WHO HATH WISDOM.—He who turneth away his head when he puncheth the fire.

She who putteth not on her bridal raiment until the bridegroom appeareth.

He who smiteth not a strange animal, but first informeth himself as to its nature.

He who subdueth his temper when the provoker of his ire is the biggest fellow.

He who pledgeth himself to abstinence when the liquor recoileth from his stomach.

Ye young girl who persuadeth not herself that ye husband will be much kinder than ye lover.

He who putteth not up his money on a horse race without first having an understanding with ye horse's rider.

She whose character being exceedingly shaky, doth not seek to injure her neighbor's.

The old maid, who having no one to love her, raileth not at the younger folks, nor whispereth venom against him whom she would have won.

And all such have wisdom.

IF a person neglects a cold forty-eight hours nothing will "cure it;" it will run its course in spite of everything like measles, in about two weeks; but if "little colds" are added from time to time, the cure is protracted into months ending in a hacking cough, and then follows consumption. If a cold is properly attacked the instant chilliness comes on, it can be infallibly cured, and generally so if within twenty-four hours the person will go to bed, wrap up warm and stay there twenty-four hours, eating nothing but oranges, apples, grapes and berries, etc., in their natural state, and drinking nothing but hot beef teas, thus keeping the body in a slightly perspiring condition; especially keeping the feet warm; if very chilly at first put bottles of hot water in the arm-pits. The sooner a person attends to these things after taking the cold, after the first sense of chilliness, the more prompt and infallible will be the cure. Never go outside the door when you have a cold.—Dr. Hall.

AN OREGON WIDOW AS A NEVADA WIFE.—Not many months ago Al. Perkins, a well-to-do rancher in Dayton, took to himself an Oregon widow for a wife. There was a gay party, champagne was as free as milk and water, and the blow-out was pronounced a success. A few days ago, however, a change came over the spirit of the milk-rancher's dream. He did not hitch very well with his new affinity and ordered her to take her four children and skip out. She produced a Colt's navy revolver and informed him that if he put on any French airs with him she'd fill as full of lead as the jumping frog of Calaveras. A neighbor interfered in his behalf and she fired them both out. She now holds the redoubt. Perkins says that Oregon widows are hefty.—Virginia City Chronicle, December 19.

IT may be safely concluded, says the Engineering and Mining Journal, that 90 per cent. of all the bullion produced since the dawn of history (which by the best authority has amounted to over $7,000,000,000 worth) has been taken from alluvial deposits. If sources of these enormous amounts are approaching exhaustion, there are certainly grounds for apprehension that the annual production of the world will steadily diminish in the future. No satisfactory conclusion can be reached on this point until the origin and formation of alluvial gold deposits is thoroughly understood.

THE MAKER OF THE BEAR FLAG.—In reference to the funeral of the late Peter Storm, the reputed maker of the Bear flag of pre-Argonaut days, which took place at Napa on Sunday afternoon, the Napa Register of the 17th takes occasion to present the following sketch of his life: Peter George Storm was born in Christiansand, Norway, in September 1799. When fourteen years of age he left his home and followed the seas until he came to California in 1833, having traveled over many parts of the globe. His life in the early days of California was full of adventure. He followed the occupation of hunting and trapping, mostly in Napa, Lake and Sonoma counties. He was present in Sonoma, and is credited with having made the famous Bear flag, in 1846, and which is now in the possession of the San Francisco Pioneers. He evidently came of good family and was a man of more than ordinary intelligence. He often spoke of his brothers and sisters with tears. In speaking of his early life he mentioned that he had been married and had two children. Perhaps they may be living, but no one here knows. He was of a quiet and retiring disposition, and passed through all the excitement of California without accumulating lands or money. He seemed to care little for lands or money but was always industrious and ready to work. In early life his people were in affluent circumstances and he had a fair education, according to the account given by himself to his old friends, particularly to the family of Henry Fowler, of Napa, who have known him intimately for over thirty years.

WEBSTER once told his friend Harvey that several years before his great debate with Hayne he had investigated the whole subject of the public lands for the purpose of opposing a resolution of Mr. McKinley, a Senator from Alabama, proposing to cede the public domains to the States in which they were situated. The question never came up, and Mr. Webster said: "I had my notes tucked away in a pigeon-hole, and, when Hayne made that attack on me and upon New England, I was already posted, and only had to take down my notes and refresh my memory. In other words," said Mr. Webster, "if he had tried to make a speech to fit my notes he could not have hit it better. No man is inspired with the occasion; I never was." Of the many anecdotes about what took place between Mr. Hayne and Mr. Webster afterward, Mr. Harvey says there were many which Mr. Webster characterized as untrue, but he vouches for the following: Mr. Webster met Mr. Hayne that night at the President's reception, and as he came up to him, Mr. Webster remarked pleasantly: "How are you to-night?" "None the better for you sir," was the General's humorous reply.

DELUGING THE RAILROAD TRACK AND FLOODING THE DESERT.—The rainfall of last Monday night did considerable damage to the railroad track. There was a wash out one mile this side of the Tehechepi Summit, and another two miles north of it. In consequence of this the trains were delayed, the one that should have arrived at Los Angeles at 1:50 P. M., Tuesday, not reaching there until 5 o'clock Wednesday morning. Over at Sand Creek, fifteen miles beyond Mojave, the country is flooded with water for a distance of thirty miles and has the appearance of a vast lake. Kern County Gazette, Dec. 22.

THE INYO INDEPENDENT devotes two columns space to the James' one track railroad, and the building of a 20 mile section of the road in that county. The thing appears to have been determined on, and we have no fears that it will not prove a grand success. With one such road to demonstrate its advantages, other roads will soon be built all over the country, and solve the question of freights and fares long before the Legislature could be got to do it.—Visalia Delta.

FURNACE No. 2, at the Eureka Consolidated works, turned out on the 4th of November 14¼, on the 5th 13¾, and on the 6th, 15¼, and on the 15¼ tons of bullion, which is 14½ tons more than that wonderful Salt Lake run. For the thirty days' run of the same furnace, from the 1st to the 30th of November, the bullion production was 393 tons, an average of 13 1-10 tons of bullion per day.—Sentinel.

THE Anti-Horse Thief Association has 361 lodges and 8,000 members in Missouri, Iowa and Illinois. It does not encourage lynching, although that course is permitted in places where the officers of the law cannot be relied on to prosecute thieves. In a recent convention in Illinois it was said that the order had secured the conviction of over 1,000 thieves within a year.

DURING the civil wars in England the universities gave their plate to be melted down for the king, and now it is proposed that the churches in Russia shall, if need be, disgorge the contents of their plate chests for the same purpose. Some of them are very rich in silver and silver gilt vessels, but probably these would be but as a drop compared to the ocean of expense.

PROFESSOR HERMANN, of Berlin, discovers that Dr. Slade, the spiritualist, uses a thimble made of very thin, transparent rubber, in which the piece of slate pencil is fastened. The thimble is attached to a piece of elastic which is sewed under his coat. The table, he says, was raised by Slade's toes.

A RUSSIAN man-of-war has captured a Turkish transport steamer in the Black Sea with 700 troops on board.

A VETERAN, aged seventy-six, has been fined $20 and sent to jail for six months for asserting that Marshal MacMahon is addicted to absinthe, and was under its baneful influence when he resolved to make a coup d'etat.

BOSTON Post: Brigham Young's grave is watched constantly by Mormons living for the purpose in tents near the spot. Their vesper song is: "We're tenting to-night on the old scamp ground."

A WRITER says: "Diamonds are sneered at as the mere evidence of wealth, and showing the absence rather than the presence of artistic taste." That's the reason we never wear ours.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 5.....1878.

A TERRIBLE state of things prevailed in and around the captured town of Plevna after Osman Pasha's surrender. The dead were unburied and the wounded uncared for, and thousands of dogs and carrion birds were feasting, not only upon the dead but the helpless wounded. Eighteen thousand Turkish prisoners were huddled together in a camp on the river Vid and the mortality among them was frightful, the dead and dying being piled together like cordwood to be carted away.

WORTH HAVING.—The Alta publishers have placed us under obligations for a copy of their Pacific Coast almanac for 1878. This little book gives a review of the industry and commerce of the State, chronological tables, election returns, list of postoffices, list of Federal and State officials, etc., and much other useful information, all for the trifling sum of 30 cents per copy. It is well worth the sum to anybody.

A CREDITABLE PRODUCTION.—The San Francisco Sprit of the Times favors us with a copy of their Christmas number nicely bound and profusely illustrated, being altogether the largest and most complete publication of the kind ever published on this coast. It contains a short sketch of every county and notable place in the State, with many illustrations to add to its attractions.

THE PROPOSED RAILROAD.—The Darwin News of last week takes hold of the Darwin and Owens Lake single track railroad scheme, and forcibly sets out the necessity for it. We hope to be able to again refer to the matter in detail next week.

DISPATCHES to the War Department state that four of the San Elezario mob in Texas have been killed by United troops and Texas rangers. Two were killed while resisting arrest, and it is supposed the others were lynched by the Rangers after their capture.

SECRETARY SCHURZ denies that he intends to resign. He may be removed, but never expects to resign. It is now asserted that the compromise between Conkling and Evarts on the basis of Schurz leaving the Cabinet is assured.

As soon as his health permits, Senator Patterson will take a two month's leave of absence, and as he will not ask for a pair on the Democratic side, the Republican majority in the Senate will be reduced to one.

LOT-JUMPING-SHOOTING AFFRAY.—Last Thursday night a lot jumping affair leading to considerable shooting in which no one was hurt, occurred on North Main street. The facts of the case are, according to the story told a Standard reporter, as follows: On Wednesday night J. L. Blethens located or jumped the disputed lots and put a quantity of lumber on the ground. The next day he commenced fencing the lots. Thursday night John W. Wheeler proceeded to put the lumber placed on the lots by Blethens out in the street. He was engaged in this when Blethens opened fire upon him with a double-barreled shot-gun, from behind a wagon in the street. After he had emptied both barrels without doing any harm, Wheeler returned the fire with a revolver, when Blethens ran for Bob Foulks' house on the opposite side of the road, followed by Wheeler, who fired twice without effect. Wheeler attempted to follow Blethens into the house but was prevented by Foulks and others. Both parties were arrested.—Bodie Standard, Dec. 26.

Three hundred young Elders have been selected by the Mormon High Council to go on missions to California, Oregon and the Eastern States. The older reprobates are not to have the first pick of the new concubines these young bucks gather in. After this there is to be a fair divide of the ewe lambs—that is, the old fellows are not to have a monopoly as they used to.

The leaves are turning slowly yellow: their Summer's lue is hence; the ripening fruit is on the mellow; the small boy on the fence. He looks around, he views the ground, and thinks the moment suits; he fills his pockets full and round, then jumps the fence and scoots.—Bucolic Ex.

It is postively asserted by Democratic papers in Washington that the President will renominate Roosevelt and Prince as Collector and Naval Officer of New York as soon as Congress re-assembles, and that they will be confirmed.

Report has it that Packard is to be made Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, in place of French, against whom considerable disatisfaction exists.

Eugene Kelly is being proceeded against in New York for contempt of Court in connection with the Mariposa grant case.

REMOVAL OF THE INDEPENDENCE LAND OFFICE.

We find the following astounding bit of intelligence in a dispatch dated Washington, December 28th, and published in the Alta of the succeeding day:

Another Executive order, issued to-day, discontinues the Independence (Cal.) Land Office, and transfers its records and business to the Visalia office. The order was issued upon the joint recommendation of Senators Sargent and Booth, and Representatives Pacheco, Page and Davis. In their letter making the request, they say that it appears from representations of prominent citizens resident in Independence and Visalia Districts that very little business is done at the Independence office; that the place itself is innaccessible by railroad, and that its longer continuance would be detrimental, rather than beneficial, to the public service. Register Briggs, of the Independence office, some months ago, tendered his resignation on the ground of its extremely meagre emoluments, the fees received in one month being less than forty dollars.

The reception of this order here produced a storm of indignation and depth of feeling never before equaled by anything of the kind emanating from the head of the Government. In view of the quiet, underhand manner in which the scheme of abolishing this Land Office had been brought about, the lying premises on which the action was based, its obvious injustice, the unusual political weight, comprising the entire State Representation in Congress save one, brought to bear, and other no less weighty reasons that cannot be mentioned in a breath, all tended to intensify the general sense of an injustice received, and indignation toward the scheming rats, yet unknown, who instigated it. Some said there was "a nigger in the fence," and cited facts in support of that theory, which simply meant that Register Briggs himself was the responsible agent for the mean thing, being all the meaner and more treacherous if from his hands. The reasons for this mistrust against Register Briggs rest on numerous remarks and acts of his own. But so far as we can judge from facts at hand, he is only responsible to the extent of having done nothing officially or otherwise to prevent it. It is well known that for some months past he has used every endeavor to obtain relief from the duties of the office, chiefly, we may suppose, for the reason that he had made his arrangements to locate elsewhere, viz., at Bodie in the extreme northern portion of the district. As action by the Department was delayed much to his detriment in pre-arranged business obligations at Bodie, he became so impatient as to represent to Congressmen such literal facts regarding the recent insignificant amount of business of the office as to lead them to suppose the sooner it was abolished the better, and thereby save the trouble of making new appointments, etc. This we gather from his own remarks. He tells us that he wrote to Page, urging him to use his influence to have a new Register appointed, that he might be relieved for the reasons above given at the earliest possible moment; to this end had made the published statement regarding the forty-dollar fees for that month. To Sargent to the same effect, and as a courtesy due for his original appointment by the Senator. In this letter, as he tells us, he also recommended a citizen here as suitable to take his place; to Page he recommended still another citizen for the same place, if we hear aright from other parties. To the Commissioner he wrote to the same purport, adding that having to vacate present premises, he should take no action toward obtaining new quarters for the office, prefering to leave that matter to his successor; adding that no suitable accommodations for the office could be had in this town, consequently it might be found advisable or necessary to move it to some other point where such office accommodations could be had. That and no further, to the officers named and no others, had he said anything whatever that could be construed as a recommendation for the discontinuance of this office. In other words he denies in toto that he has ever tried to compass its abolishment, or effect any purpose related thereto except his own immediate release from official connection with it; that the order of discontinuance has taken himself so much by surprise that, by reason of the amount of unfinished business in the office he should immediately telegraph asking the suspension of the order for ninety days. We have no comments to offer touching these points except to remark that Mr. Briggs was decidedly in error in assuming that no accommodations for a Land Office were to be had here.

We will have to go a little further to find the whole of the colored individual but partially revealed in the fence. A year ago some land grabbers and other undermining rats concocted a scheme to abolish both this and the Visalia offices and erect a new one at Sumner. Representative Wigginton discovered the tails of these rats in time to step on and squelch them; but for the time being, for, as we now see, they renewed their burrowing, and this time so secretly they had cut clean through before anyone outside the ring suspected they were at work or had time to throw even a handful of broken glass in their way. Register Briggs was at that time accused of being in with the rats, but such was not the fact, as we now have good reasons for believing. In this second effort there seems to have been some new rats at work, and with something of an contrary object, involving some extensive mining litigation at Bodie. To compass that object it was proposed to locate the office nine thousand feet in the air at that point in the extreme northwest corner of the district. Through some prominent San Francisco lawyers interested in that litigation, also the Nevada Senators, Representative Davis, of San Francisco, appears to have been induced to take a hand. But that didn't suit the plans of the Sumner rodents, most of whom lived in San Francisco, and dreaded the hardship and expense of snow-shoes certain to be entailed at times in reaching the office in the High Sierras. Neither did it suit the convenience of the others to risk the miasmatic influences of Sumner, so, between these opposing forces, nothing could be done without a compromise. Thus it came that the weight of the State delegation in both Houses, except Luttrell, had their sympathies enlisted one side or the other. As the Independence office had no friend, not even at its own desk, to say a word for it, and as not one of the nation savers knew anything whatever of the geographical situation of its district except that one month it only paid forty dollars of fees, and that its Register was froze out and wanted to go to Bodie, they all agreed at once it would be good legislation to burst it out. Then as a necessary compromise, and all having something to hope for from the former unsavory reputation of the Visalia institution, Bodie and Sumner, though on opposite sides of the big range and some eight hundred miles apart, agreed to come together at that point and work harmoniously until they could get a better hold for something else.

Senator Jones some months ago wrote to a gentleman in this place that this Land Office would probably be abolished this Congress. That fact together with that of the extraordinary pressure brought to bear upon the President, shows that other influences than Register Briggs' acts of omission or commission were the real cause of this underhanded blow at our local advancement. At the same time he has said or done nothing in the premises since his defeat at the last election to inspire the general respect or implicit faith of Inyo people.

SOME OF THE REASONS.

We are satisfied that the Senators and Representatives in Congress who joined in that letter recommending the abolishing of this Land Office, had no real knowledge of existing conditions, or otherwise not one of them would have ever become a party in the business. Not one of that representation has ever had his residence nearer to the nearest line of this land district than from three to four hundred miles—from its center, by traveled routes, scarcely within twice four hundred miles. Not one of them ever set foot within its limits, or in this State on the same side of the great range, which makes it a country to itself.

Next, we will undertake to assert that no prominent or any other kind of actual citizens, "resident within the Independence Land District," ever informed either one of those Senators or Representatives that this Land Office was detrimental rather than useful to the public service. In this assertion we wish to make an exception in favor of some possible citizen resident in the extreme southern or northern limits of the district. In regard to such statements arising from any permanent or prominent citizen of this district, with the above possible exception, we feel perfectly assured our Congressmen have been imposed upon, either by some lying carpet-bagger or their own misapprehensions of the facts.

We assert the abolishment of this Land Office to be a positive injustice to each and every resident of the entire vast area known as the Independence Land District, for these reasons:

That they are cut off from access to any land office elsewhere located without having to travel from two to six six hundred miles, lowest average being not less than three hundred miles.

That the entire district lies to the eastward of the Sierra Nevadas, by which it is made a separate and distinct country, with respect to any and every other portion of the State, save in the matter of a general State government and such commercial relations as may be carried on between sections hundreds of miles distant.

That, in consequence of the distance and expense of travel, all the land office business can be just as well carried on with an office in San Francisco, or the city of Washington itself, as with one at Visalia.

That it is the duty of the general government to aid the development of every such undeveloped region by affording it every reasonable convenience in the transaction of its business with the government, and of one citizen with another, when required to be done through government offices, as in contested land and mining cases.

That this country as it is pays more in support of the State and Federal government, in the way of its mining products and Internal Revenue special taxes, than any other of equal population on the entire Pacific coast.

That it has been deprived of a legitimate incentive to expansion of its settlement and trade, in the withdrawal of the United States troops from within its lines; that the said withdrawal was the result of the misrepresentations and machinations of a misanthropic Post Commandant, actuated, as it really appears, more by personal spite than by zeal in the public service. That, as a matter of literal fact, the region subsequently barely escaped an Indian outbreak of no mean proportions, and that the danger of such in the future is not yet wholly passed. That by reason of that fact many citizens were put to an otherwise unnecessary expense in preparing for their own personal safety.

That the removal of this land office is of a piece with that of the removal of the troops. That its removal to a distant point will insure extra costs upon citizens, unjust, unreasonable and uncalled for in every sense of right, inasmuch as it is the plain duty of the general government to do all in its power by usual and legitimate means to save all classess of citizens, and particularly of the pioneer class, struggling against pioneer obstacles, every possible dollar of unnecessary expense in the transaction of business with the government.

That instead of so doing, every move of later government officials, civil and military, has tended to deprive this section of its legitimate share of public benefits of some class; first goes the military, then the mail service is cut down in every instance without exception when any change is proposed at all, and in more than one case discontinued in toto, and finally the United States Land Office, and that, too, at the very stage in the development of the country when more needed than at any previous period—at the very time when both the agricultural and illimitable mining interests would have been materially enhanced by easy access to this very office—hundreds of mines preparing for securing U. S. patents, tens of thousands of acres of desert land to be entered and reclaimed. In short, every advantage of a Federal office or institution of any class is either reduced or totally withdrawn, save and except the one imposing the heaviest tax, the greatest source of revenue, viz.: the Internal Revenue agency, by which thousands of dollars are taken from our midst every quarter. That remains and ever will.

But not so the one most needed, this Land Office, which, while at present yielding no revenue of consequence to the Government, yet puts it to not a dollar of expense. But the grand sum of one thousand dollars a year officers' salary, though coming from the office receipts, is too much money for this great and glorious nation to spend for the benefit of an isolated population of full six thousand souls, pioneering an expanse of territory twice as large as some of the New England States and possessing more natural wealth than half of them combined.

But if the general government is so poverty stricken as all that, and found it necessary to discontinue some pinyune Land Office, why should this of all others been the one? If the laws have been so changed that land business can be transacted through the mails (which never can be except to a limited extent) why not have taken some office possessing reasonable mail and railroad facilities? Visalia, for instance, has direct communication by rail to a land office on either side, and but a few hours distant. No; it must be one having none of these—one that cannot reach any land office, not even Visalia, short of hundreds of miles of travel, ahd that almost all by stages—mails but three times a week. What sense of justice, of policy, or what sense at all, is there in such discrimination against a new and struggling country in favor of territory so long settled, gobbled up and stolen by wholesale as to no longer need a land office, except to a comparatively insignificant extent?

Who but a fool or a knave, knowing the situation in this land district, would say the said land office should be removed because of its "inaccessibility by railroad." Could any better superficial reason be advanced for its retention?

SATURDAY, JANUARY 5,..... 1878.

CLASSICAL LITERATURE.—Some time since we had a query from Cerro Gordo as to whether Union Con. "orders" were receivable for taxes. As a matter of course they are not, but they are considered equal to gold here, and are readily exchanged for the necessary commodity. However, it transpires, but not necessarily in this connection, that Sheriff Passmore and John Hughes had apparently settled upon the amount that the county demanded of John, and he remitted the same to Dad Moore. The sum total of these "orders" exceeded the figures required by forty cents. On the strength of the latter item Dad was advised "to take a little rot." Dad investigated and found the whole to be forty dollars short, and pertinently inquired as to how he was to realize any "rot" on the strength of that. John responded with the necessary balance, and explains the whole matter with a short but lucid letter to Dad, which we are not prepared to quote, but the Sheriff elect may explain it to inquiring jokers. He is now fully authorized to take a little "rot."

DIED.—MRS. Mary Moore, a poor woman who has been lodging at the old Inyo House, died last night from consumption, after prolonged suffering. She was the wife of the man who was lately tried for assault to murder, and acquitted on the ground of insanity. Both were for a long time in the County Hospital, and since being discharged have lived in poverty and suffering, relieved only by the charity of the few who knew of their existence. Through the kindly offices of certain ladies, the remains have been appropriately prepared for the grave, and it will fall upon our citizens generally to defray the expense of burial. We are requested to give notice that the funeral will take place to-morrow at 10 o'clock, to which a general attendance is solicited.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—There comes a report of another death at Bishop Creek, on the night of Thursday, December 27, from accidental causes. A Big Pine team, in which were Albert Halverson and W. L. Callihan, was returning from Benton, and in the night one of the wheels fell into a deep rut near Bourland's blacksmith shop, at Bishop. The deceased, John Till, aged 52 years, an old resident of Mono and surrounding country, was thrown from the wagon, and as he fell received such injuries that a blood-vessel was ruptured and he died within a few moments. The driver was some what hurt but not seriously. At an inquest held upon the following day, by Justice Alexander, the above general facts were elicited.

COUNTY COURT.—The County Court, in chambers, was yesterday engaged in taking testimony in the case of Harris & Rhine vs. Eclipse Mining Company, which will come up in the United States Circuit Court in San Francisco about June next. We have as yet no authentic information as to what the English company intend doing with their extensive property here, now being frittered away in law. The exercise of a little American sense and a decent management in the future would prove beneficial both to that company and this county.

A CASE AT LAW.—A suit was brought before Justice Schalten last Monday, in which Jos. Harris, a saloon-keeper, sought to recover from a man named Griffen the sum of $6 or thereabouts, by process of law, the plaintiff having loaned the same to defendant, while the latter was engaged in gambling. Our worthy District Attorney appeared for Mr. Harris, while Geo. M. Gill conducted matters for the defendant. Before a jury of three, George got away with the racket, or verdict, and is justly proud thereat.

LETTER LIST.—The following is a list of letters remaining unclaimed at the postoffice Jan. 1, 1878; John Bennets, Robert Branks, Lon Ball, James A. Cain, Mr. Crough, Mike Conway, Francisco Carles, J. W. Gibson, A. Gillett (2), John S. Gorman, James Hickings, J. D. Hudgin (3), John T. Kelly, Wm. Lanyon (2), Joseph McDermott (2), W. M. Mitchell, John Murray (2), C. O'Mar, M. W. Pratt (2), W. T. Rickard, J. Street, Wm. Tyler, Pierre Vian, Robert Wood, Will Woodward (2).

TO MEET.—The Jockey Club, and those interested in racing matters, are requested to meet at Paul Bennett's office next Monday evening. Full reports of the Executive Committee are to be handed in, and action had in regard to them. It is proposed to submit several suggestions of importance, and a full attendance is desirable.

MORE SPORT.—The Big Pine races, which begin on Monday next, are attracting to that point most of the fast horses of the county. The short, straight track is an excellent one. A grand ball is to be given on the opening night, with dancing and fun continued ad infinitum.

TIMBERS.—Another lot of heavy timbers has been received from the Big Pine saw mill for the new Rex Montis mill. Supt. Hutchings is getting the new 10-stamper to as near perfection as possible, in all its appointments.

TAXES.—Deputy Sheriff Moore reports that, upon his forthcoming settlement with the county, he will turn over to the Treasurer the sum of $30,000.

WOOD.—Jas. W. Smith is prepared to deliver wood in town from the flume, at the low price of $10 per cord. Advertisement next week.

THE MEETING TO-NIGHT.—Note the call in another column for the meeting to-night. The subject matter is of importance to every citizen.

Christmas Tree Festivities at Lone Pine.

From a friend we have the following brief account of the exercises of Prof. and Mrs. Cooper's school at Lone Pine, Christmas Eve:

The programme was divided into two parts; the first consisting entirely of primers, first and second readers.

After the greeting song by the school choir, the opening piece was a welcome song by the three classes in concert, commencing:

"Then welcome, welcome here to-night,
We give you kindly greeting,
In this our yearly meeting."

Then followed recitations and dialogues adapted to this part. Where all acquitted themselves so well, it is difficult to cite any one in particular, yet I cannot willingly pass without it. The "Christmas Welcome" by Tillie and Stella Meysan was beautiful; "Throwing Kisses" by Martha Dodge, was pretty; "Suppose," a poem by Annie Nosler, was nicely spoken; "Do your Best, Your very Best," by Master Jacob Shober, was very good. The prettiest piece by the little folks was "Mother, Home and Heaven," by Paulita Snow. The first part closed with two dialogues, "Hippity, Hippity Ho," by five little girls, and "What I Love," a concert piece, both spoken pleasantly.

The second part comprised the large students of the school—third, fourth and fifth readers.

This opened with a song "Little Bright Eyes," a duet by Minnie Lasky and Zelia Meysan, with chorus by school choir; "Annie and Willie's Prayer," a long poem recited by Miss Minnie Lasky, was well received; "Christmas Day," by Ida McCall was very pretty.

In this part where the readings were all so fine I am loth to cite any one, but the programme is too long, so I can only give a passing notice to a few. The "Sword of Bunker Hill," Master Benny Lasky; the "Mexican Flag," Felix Meysan;" the "Biggest piece of Pie," Joseph Blaney; "Popping Corn," Jesus Carrasco; the "Broken-hearted Dutchman," by Sammy Lasky, and "Washing Day," by James Ball, were all well spoken, and some of them were quite humorous. In this part the prettiest piece was a poem entitled "Katie Lee and Willie Gray," by Miss Zelia Meysan. "Little Bennie," by Mary Ball; "In Aunt Charlotte's Days," by Annie Adams, and "Waiting for the Children," by Sophia Shober, were pleasantly recited and well received.

Miss Mary Meysan presided at the organ through the entire excercises, which together with the singing of the school choir, which consisted of Misses Minnie Lasky, Mary Ball, Zelia Meysan, Lillie Holland, Sophia Shober, Ida McCall and Annie Adams, made the music very fine.

Among the songs were "Pretty as a Picture"—nicely sung—"Don't be Angry, Mother," "Go, Birdie, tell Winnie I'm Coming," "Pull Down the Blind" and "Merry, Merry Christmas." The solo "Write me a Letter from Home," by Miss Lillie Holland, was well received. The song "Kris Kringle" was lively and pretty.

But the crowning feature of the evening was Santa Claus with his wonderful Christmas Tree, loaded down with good things and pretty toys for all the children in town and the country round—not one left out. I thought this tree with its loaded branches a grand exhibition of the kind and generous hearts of the people of Lone Pine, and long will it be remembered with joy and gladness by all.

BISHOP CREEK SCHOOL.—We are indebted to the teacher of the Bishop Creek school, Mrs. S. G. Howell, for the following most creditable record of her pubils, for the term beginning November 26 and ending December 21. The percentage system of credits for scholarships and deportment represents the standing of her classes as follows—the first figure following the name being for scholarship, the second for deportment: Georgie Drake—87, 85; Milton Clark—87, 84; John Clark—84, 86; Ira Clark—90, 89; Frank Hull—93, 98; Charles Hull—88, 99; Edward Clark—96, 99; Charles Powers—90, 97; William Bulpit—95, 98; David Hall—80, 85; Willie Moore—80, 85; Milburn Hall—87, 85; Robert Peeler—99, 94; Lee McKroskey—94, 98; Grant Clark—83, 87; Willie Inman—87, 88; Frank Inman—86, 87; Oliver Cromwell—78 93; John Garland— —, 80; Emma Hull—99, 100; Lillie Drake—90, 98; Josie Hughes—80, 98; Nellie Hughes—93, 99; Ada Clark—96, 98; Kitty McCrosky—98, 98; Mamie Clark—97, 95; Katie Hughes—90, 95; Katie Matlack—94, 100.

A CHANGE.—THE INDEPENDENT editorial room has been denuded of a certain amount of governmental truck belonging to the Internal Revenue Deputy Collector for this division of California. By "truck" we refer to a quantity of books, blanks, etc., and not to Mr. Childs, the officer himself—who has also taken himself off to Gospel Swamp, or rather Bishop Creek, in this county, where he will in future hold forth, making regular pecuniary demands upon all who deal in gin and cigars, crooked whisky or straight tobacco. His card will be found under the new advertisements setting forth the fact that he should be addressed at Bishop Creek.

GONE BELOW.—J. H. Holt, Esq., best known to this community by his successful work on Kearsarge Hill, started to San Francisco on Thursday last. We presume that he goes in the interest of his mines and the great tunnel project, the importance of which we have had considerable to say heretofore.

THE WEATHER.—The weather for the past week has been very cold—too cold, in fact, to offer any inducement to be pious, but rather the reverse. We were informed that the blaze of a candle was instantly frozen in Aurora upon exposure to the cold. This indicates a fearful degree of frigidity.

The Races

Our report of the races of last week closed with those of Saturday, the account being necessarily brief, as it was compiled after the usual hour of going to press. However, the main facts were given and it is only necessary to place on record the result of a half mile race, which occurred on the following day. An extra purse of $100 was given by the club, mostly on account of the Lone Pine horse, which had been beaten in the mile race, and barred out of the quarter race for second-class horses. Three horses were entered and started—Wake-up-Jake, by Rittgers of Lone Pine, Croppy, by Gill, and Sleepy Dick, by Ball. After a false start, in which Croppy got away from his rider's control and ran the whole distance, the horses were called up and got a remarkably even send off. As the three passed under the rope "a blanket would have covered them," Sleepy Dick neck and shoulders ahead. He had been selling for 25 cents in pools of $5, $8 and $10. The time was given in at 54 seconds.

MATCH RACE.

With the foregoing closed all contests under the auspices of the club, but a match had been made between Horton's "Ned" and Russell's "White Stockings," which was run while the crowd was in attendance, the distance being one-fourth mile. The item we have to make about this was the reckless manner in which the rider of "Stockings" conducted his part of the business. The man—for the idiot was not a boy, we are glad to say—had managed to get his horse about two lengths ahead just before the outcome, but turned him square into the crowd with the animal at full speed. With the knocking down and trampling which followed it seems almost miraculous that the two or three men who were picked up senseless were not killed outright, but it has proved that no one was dangerously hurt. John Lucas got a deep cut over the left eye, laying bare the skull, besides heavy bruises upon the body. Jas. W. Smith's injuries were confined to contusions in the breast and a severe blow upon the mouth and nose. It was of course decided to be no race, and upon the second trial "Ned" fairly won the race and stakes.

LOST.—One of Tommy Kehoe's horses got away the other day, and lost parts of a valuable saddle. A reward is offered to the finder for their return.

A CHANCE.—T. McEwin, of Big Pine, offers to lease a valuable ranch near that point, on favorable terms. See advertisement.

THE Stockton Independent gives the total amount of rainfall of the season up to Christmas as 2.36 inches, being a trifle less, for that section, at the same date last year. Then rains were followed by drying north winds, but this year conditions have been better, so that the soil is in decidedly better condition for the growth of grain now than last year at the same period.

SENATOR BLAINE sharply criticises the Southern policy, and says the President has placed himself in a position where he cannot receive the support of the party that elected him. He thinks the Southerners are "laying low" until they get on top; that they are playing policy to get possession of the Government, when they will rule as they did before the war.

SAID old Dryshot, the broker, as Mr. Simpson, his clerk, came, accompanied by his dog Jowler: "Jowler,, my boy, be very careful of yourself; if you go out with Mr. Simpson a few times more I'm afraid you'll get drunk." As the warning was not addressed to Mr. Simpson he made no reply, but climbed upon his stool and scribbled away with admirable industry.— Virginia Enterprise.

A REBELLION recently broke out in Punta Arenas, New Granada, which the Governor was at first unable to quell. The insurgents murdered the captain of the garrison, robbed all the commercial houses and set fire to the town.

WOODEN MONEY.—Advocates of inconvertible paper currency may perhaps derive some satisfaction and encouragement from the fact that from the reign of Henry I. down to the period of the establishment of the Bank of England the legal tender money of England was fabricated out of wood. This instrument was called an exchange tally, and by virtue of it the holder was entitled to receive from the Crown the value inscribed thereon. It really consisted of one-half of a four-sided rod or staff, on which, when in its entire state, the sum it purported to represent was carved in tranverse notches, varying in width for thousands, hundreds, scores, pounds, shillings and pence. These signs were for the unlearned; for the advantage of those who could read, the sum was written on two opposite sides of the staff, and finally with a knife and mallet the staff itself was split in two longitudinally. One-half, called the tally or check, was given to the person for whose service it was intended; the other half, called the counter tally, was laid up in safe keeping until its corresponding tally should be brought in by the person who had last given value for it. It intrinsic value, was of course, only that of the wood of which it was composed, but by representation it denoted large sums. It was a current token of real money, and served actually to distribute it from man to man by exchange. From this primitive tally was derived the Exchequer bill, first introduced in 1696 by Mr. Montague, then Chancellor of the Exchequer. The word "bill" too was no doubt obtained from the Norman-French word bille, which means a staff. Bank post bills and bills of exchange in our day came from the same wooden base, and soldiers are said at this hour to be billeted, because formerly they tendered wooden "billies," or tallies to the victuallers upon whom they were quartered. In olden times officers of the army were taken into the king's own pay, were said to be put on the staff, that is they were paid with Exchequer tallies, or wooden money.—British Trade Journal.

ANN ELIZA YOUNG was not favorably impressed with the internal working of woman suffrage in Utah. On the first election day after the right of suffrage had been accorded to her sex, she was standing in front of Brigham Young's office, when he came out and asked her if she had voted. "No, I have not;" was the reply. "Why not," he asked angrily. "Because I do not understand the political situation and I do not want to vote ignorantly." "Get into the carriage; I want you to vote immediately. Rossitur will take you to the polls and tell you how to vote." With Rossitur, who was the Prophet's coachman, as her political mentor, Ann Eliza went to the polls and voted for Elder Cannon.

WHEN the gloomy record of the Barclay street disaster is complete, it will probably show at least ten dead and more than forty wounded. Even if brought within that compass, it must be accounted among the most shocking of such events in this city, in respect to the suddeness with which it carried death and disaster even to passers-by on the open street. Evidence appears to be accumulating to prove that the boilers under the pavement did not explode; at present the various theories that are brought forward to explain the explosion seem somewhat inadequate. —N. Y. Tribune.

A STUMP orator boasted that his candidate would "hold his own" no matter what the opposing party might do. "Yes," said the opposition speaker, "he always holds his own and a good deal that belongs to other people, too."

IN an assize court the crier was old and deaf. "Call Arabella Hanks," said the Judge. Entertaining much doubt of the name, he rose from his seat and said with a much puzzled look, "What, your lordship?" "Call Arabella Hanks, crier," repeated the Judge, much provoked. The old crier thereupon, with a countenance indicating both doubt and desperation, in his loudest voice called out "Yaller Belly Shanks! Yaller Belly Shanks!! Yaller Belly Shanks!!! come into Court." It is needless to say that the dignity of the Court was seriously compromised; and quiet was again restored only to be again disturbed by the laughter caused by the crier, who in answer to the Court as to whether or not the witness replied, said, "No, my lord; and I don't believe there is such a person in the town, for I have lived here forty years and I never heard of him before."

REMEMBER that all questions have two sides; one is the right side, the other side the wrong side; one is the side of justice, the other injustice. If you take the right side—the just side—ultimately men, however much they may oppose and revile you, will come to your support. Earth with all its powers will work with you and for you, and heaven be pledged to conduct you to complete success. If you take the other side there is no power on earth or in heaven that can lead you through successfully, because it is appointed in the counsels of heaven that justice and truth alone can prevail.

WHICHEVER side loses a case all the lawyers win, and a prosperous and a busy time they have of it sometimes. The Erie suit, for instance, on Friday required the services of thirteen lawyers, among them such leaders of the bar as Wm. M. Evarts, ex-Judge Comstock, Daniel Dougherty, ex-Judge Emott, Dorman R. Eaton, A. J. Vanderpool, and Ashbel Green. These gentlemen are not in the habit of working for nothing, and it is safe to say, without waiting to see how the suit goes, that they have already secured a verdict.—N. Y. Tribune.

SPEAKING of a representative outside mine the Eureka Sentinel says: The Eureka Consolidated mine has paid twenty-six dividends aggregating $1,600,000, and has levied two assessments amounting to a total of $100,000. The stock is divided into 50,000 shares and has returned to the investors $32 per share since its incorporation. Its present condition warrants the assertion that three dollar monthly dividends will be in order for some time to come. A pretty good record for an outside mine.

IN THE STREET.—First Mason (on a strike): "Going to the pub?" Second Mason (on strike): "Tain't no use; all the pubs is shut. The brewers men have struck." First Mason—"No. Ain't hit a hinfamy!" Second Mason "Dang 'em. If I was their master I'd see if they should strike, the blackguards. Oh, Lor', Bill, I am just thirsty, ain't it hawful?" First Mason—"Ortn't to be tolerated in a civilized country. Hi shall choke with dry jolly soon. Cuss the brewers' men." —Fun.

THE latest advices from Washington say that the sub-committee of the House will report in favor of seating Wiggington. A careful examination discloses the fact that Pacheco had fourteen illegal votes and failed to receive two votes to which he was entitled, reducing him from 19,104 to 19,092; and that Wigginton had eight illegal votes, reducing him from 19,103 to 19,095, or three majority.

A TRAMP was arrested and taken before a magistrate, and sentenced for three months. The Justice in explaining the sentence, remarked that while there was no evidence that the prisoner had been guilty of any crime, he thought it prudent to commit him, as he had the wild haggard look of a man about to start a newspaper.—Transvaal Argus.

WHY, INDEED?—Aunt Towser supposes that the Lord Chambermaid must have been interfering with the theatres again, as she reads that at St. George's hall they are performing "Once in a Century." Why don't he shut up the place altogether?—Funny Folks.

WHEN Senator David Davis wakes up in the morning, he calls out to his private secretary, "John, on which side did I vote yesterday?" "Democratic," says John. "Ah! this is the Republican day. John, put a cannon ball in each coat tail pocket."

THE coldest storm wave of the season was experienced by a young man from Syracuse, who escorted an East Rome girl home Sunday night, and was detected by her father just as he was putting his moustache where it would do her the most good.

"YES, my son," said a fond parent, to his attentive son. "The very hairs of our head are numbered." "Huh," exclaimed the youth, gazing inquiringly upon the baldness of the aged parent's head. "that's nothing."

"MARIAH! Mariah! please slet me in," said a man to his wife, who was looking out of the window watching him trying to open the door with a tooth-pick. "Ish tread on my key an' ish all flattened out."

I DON'T like to talk much with people who always agree with me. It is amusing to coquette with an echo a little while, but one soon tires of it. —Carlyle.

RIVAL ATTRACTIONS.—Young ladies—"Good morning, Mr. Jones. Of course you are going to the cattle show?" Curate Jones (with a groan at the thought)—"Oh, my dear young ladies, how can you think of such dissipation! We have a mothers' meeting with buns and milk to follow, and I am to sing a hymn of my own composing. Who would care for the worldliness of the cattle show, with such a prospect before him?"

A LITTLE girl down in Maine was listening with much interest to the story of Jonah. When the question was asked: "What should you think would be the first thing Jonah would do after the great fish threw him up on the land?" She answered promptly, "I sh'd fink he'd go home as quick as he could and get cleaned up."

PATRON.—"On, the hanimal be all right; but, I say, can't you put me a 'olding of 'is 'ead, and the missus a feedin' 'im? And our Billy moight be on his back, an' Hiserbeller and Mary Hann a lookin' hon, and while yer 'and's in yer moight chuck in the twins. What's a dab of paint more or less?"

EVEN the church going infants of Toledo are precociously wicked. On a recent Sunday a small child grabbed all the coin on the contribution plate in a church in that city, and had to be shaken before he could be convinced that the date for resumption had not been reached.

SNOOK'S boy heard him say the other day that there was money in hens, and he proceeded to investigate the old man's poultry yard. He had gone through a dozen fine specimens when the old gent descended upon him, and the boy now wonders if there is a balm in Gilead.

ANY one who has had any experience with bumble bees will corroborate the following: A bumble bee lighting on a thermometer will raise the mercury ten degrees. But a man is more susceptible than a thermometer; a bumble bee lighting on him will raise his temperature more than a hundred degrees.

WORTH, the monarch of modistes, employs 1,200 assistants. A fashionable lady one said to him: "I don't like your taste at all, Mr. Worth." "Madam," he replied, "I am quite sure if I had your taste I should not have any customers."

THE Transportation Commissioners of California have issued a report of 160 pages, in small type at that. A cotemporary very truly says that a "work of this size must contain either a power of wisdom or a power of chaff."

THOMPSON is not going to do anything more in the way of conundrums. He recently asked his wife the difference between his head and a hogshead, and she said there was none. He says that is not the right answer.

"DEY ain't no nigger on de top side er kreation," said a colored man at Tenille the other day, putting his hand to his bandaged head, "what can sing a hymn an' put the gear on a kickin' mule at de same time."

MAMMA—"Look, Cissy, here's the dear doctor, coming. What a favorite he is. See even the chickens run to meet him." Cissy—"Yes, mother, and the little ducks cry 'quack, quack.'"

FATHER, to son just from college—"What have you learned at your college?" "We never learn anything. They don't let us see the newspapers."

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, JANUARY 12.....1878.

THE Eureka Sentinel in its issue of December 30 has a column of extracts from THE INDEPENDENT of the preceding week, which it heads with "The Reporter's Paradise," and "A Cheerful Section of Country," etc., and says: "Along down about Inyo county and the Owens river country is a section of this great and glorious Union where people mean business. We have often noticed that there was but little foolishness tolerated in that highly favored locality. It is a place to which the heart of every properly constructed reproter must ever turn longingly. Unless the Sentinel man has more time to write up and elaborate upon such little affairs and accidents referred to than we have, he not long for such a country as this at all. The fact is that Inyo, while affording plenty of occasion for ink-slinging, does not support a paper well enough for it to employ a man specially for that purpose. Our main business at present is to attend to the mechanical part, make a condensed record of facts, and—bide our time.

THE State authorities of Nevada are troubled over a grand surplus of coin in the treasury, resultant from the tax on bullion, and the Controller urges an extra session of the Legislature to reduce taxes from 90 cents to 40 cents on the $100, thus saving the people $300,000. Even at the reduced rate there would be $250,000 in the vaults at the next meeting of the Legislature, which is considered ample for all contingencies. Nevada affairs have been managed by some successful financiers, it seems; and perhaps it would be well enough for this State to frame laws allowing mining counties to help out their scant resources by a tax on the "net proceeds."

CYRUS H. MCCORMICK has won a suit against the Pennsylvania Railroad, which will be of considerable interest to travelers. The ground of the suit was, in brief, that after Mr. McCormick's baggage had been placed on the train at Philadelphia and his demand for its return had been refused, on the ground that its removal would prevent the starting of the train at the proper time, the baggage was carried to Chicago stored and destroyed by fire. Mr. McCormick recovers its value, with interest—in all more than $15,000—the court holding that the road, having taken his baggage without his consent, was responsible for it.

THERE is a balance in the Bank of England in favor of the dead Southern Confederacy, but no one is able to draw it. It is as closely locked up as the money of the Mormon Company was in the hands of their treasurer, Sam. Brannan, in California in 1849. He informed them that, as their gold dust was given into his keeping in the name of the Lord, he could only pay it out upon checks signed by the Deity. As the signature could not be obtained in those wicked days, Brannan kept the dust, and upon it laid the foundation of a large fortune, which he has since squandered in riotous living.

AS AN offset to the great silver remonetization meeting in Chicago, another was called to take action directly the reverse. The latter was a failure. The silver meeting was attended and participated in by over 5,000 persons, while the anti-silver meeting was a very small and insignificant affair. A Chicago paper states that the 240 persons who signed the paper against the remonetization of silver belong to the creditor class who have money owing to them, and this accounts for their desire to have their dues paid in the more valuable of the two metals.

IT is a noticeable fact that the Northern Democratic press is gradualiy wheeling into line with the West and South in favor of silver. There are at least two newspapers in New York that have taken this stand, and there are others either showing signs of a similar course, or taking refuge in silence.

SENATOR ALLISON thinks the Silver bill is bound to pass, and if the President vetoes it, he expects to see it passed again as a part of the appropriation bill. He is able to say he does not believe it will work any hardship to the bondholders to have the debt paid in silver.

A MOVEMENT is on foot in Oakland to establish a Mechanic Arts' school where boys may learn trades. Col. John Scott has made a liberal domation, and the plan is now under discussion.

DISPATCHES from Washington indicate that a strenous effort will be made at this session of Congress to restore the income tax in some form or other.

LAND OFFICE CONSOLIDATION.

The Independence Land Office has recently been abolished and the district added to that of Visalia. There would seem to be nothing very significant in this; but when we take into consideration the fact, of which few are aware, that about a year since the Visalia Land Office came near being removed to Bakersfield, presumably through the influence of Billy Carr and his sort, we shall not be surprised if that measure was again on the tapis. The former effort was prevented by the accidental presence and timely effort of Mr. Zumwalt, who happened to be in Washington at the time, and dropped on what was being done. The Visalia Toodles, who during the past few weeks had a taste of Carr's patronage, and have been willing therefore to indorse the desert land swindle, may soon enough have cause for grief.

The object to be attained by consolidating the Inyo land district with this and its removal to Bakersfield is presumed to be that the men who are figuring to bring it about have a new land scheme in view. Having possession of the office, they could have all the lands in that district returned and surveyed as mineral. Then the 16th and 36th sections of each township, which would otherwise belong to the State school lands, would require other selections in their stead. These lieu lands could be located in this district, and would naturally fall into the hands of such land sharks as Carr and Haggin, because they would be the first to have knowledge of what was going on. It takes science to buy government land. —Visalia Delta.

It was generally understood after the land office consolidating scheme of last year was thwarted, and supposed to have been finally defeated, that Carr, Haggin and other prominent land thieves were at the bottom of it, and that the leading motive was precisely the one now assigned by the Delta in its comments above quoted. It was also well understood that a prominent judicial officer and others, including the railroad, were aiding and abetting the scheme in behalf of the new town of Sumner, in the outcome of which they had direct interests. All that occurred before there was any outcry against Carr et als' extensive desert land grabs, so that there was nothing of the odium since attached to that business to interfere in the perfect accomplishment of the grand plan of consolidating the three offices in one there at Sumner and in control of just such officers as the land ring saw fit to name for the place. Of course, economy was a strong if not a leading argument urged before Congress in support of the proposed change.

Then, backed by railroad officials, a judge and other resident citizens of no small influence with our Congressional delegation, and, most powerful of all, the whole of the land stealing interest—with all these to support the move, it was wonderful, indeed, that it did not succeed; and all the more so because it was presented on the plausible grounds of public economy—a very taking argument before Congress at that particular time. But through Mr. Zumwalt and Representative Wiggington, as we suppose, the thing came to grief—was a failure. If a failure then when every chance in its favor was apparently so very much better than at any time since, there was little reason to apprehend that a similar move would so soon after prove successful. According to all reports both the President and Secretary Schurz were now particularly on the alert as regards the operations of land operators. Both were supposed to be men of ordinary intelligence, and not to be imposed upon on the special plea of "economy," when under no circumstances could the direct saving to to the general Government be to exceed $1,000 per annum, that being the total amount of the obligations of the general Government for officers' salaries in maintaining the Independence Land Office. Neither was it supposable that they could be imposed upon by the shallow plea that to continue such an office would be "detrimental to the public service," unless indeed, fraud in the management of the office had been alleged and proven. Then, and then only, could it be shown that the continuance of the office was detrimental to the public service. But if so shown, which has never been done, or even alleged, why adopt such heroic treatment as the total abolishment of the office as a remedy? If the President proposes to carry out his civil service reformation on that plan would there not soon be a remarkable scarcity of Federal officers in every Department? No, we are forced to the conclusion that the President, Secretary of the Interior and Commissioner of the General Land Office have simply allowed themselves to be imposed upon by sheer weight of names attached to a letter asking the removal of this land office to Visalia. With such a presentation neither thought it worth while to give the matter a second thought, and acquiesced accordingiy. We can accept that as a satisfactory explanation of the President's course of action in this matter; but it is not so easy to find one to account for the unanimity of our Congressional delegation in urging the measure. Neither of these honorable Senators or Representatives have endeavored to establish reputations for niggardly economy, therefore the $1,000 per annum for salaries is not likely to have had much weight with any of them; neither could the "detrimental to the public service" pretence have appealed strongly to their honest, practical common sense. They well know that if no public lands were disposed of through this office the Government could be robbed of none of its lands; that if any were so disposed of the records from this office were as good proof of the legitimacy of such transactions as those from any other—in fact a little better than some others, inasmuch as public report has attached no taint of fraud to those from this said Independence Land Office, as it has to those from almost every other in the State, and to none more especially than the transactions of the Visalia office. Neither could either of them have been so shallow as to urge the change on the ground that this office was inaccessible by railroads, knowing, as each of them ought to know, that no railroads exist anywhere within the district line, except to barely touch one extreme, therefore it could be no convenience to citizens, to compel them to traverse the length of their own district in order to reach a railroad by which to get to a land office located on a railroad hundred of miles outside their own lines—in short, that the railroad question in this sense affected nobody except non-residents who might have business, honest or otherwise, before the local land office, and felt a personal attendance under the circumstances a hardship. To that class, limited in numbers, and including all the principal land-grabbing gentry, the inaccessibility of this place by rail was a matter of some moment; to them and them only could the change on that ground be of the least earthly benefit. Then if that "inaccessible by rail" argument had any influence with our delegation in this matter, we begin to see in whose interest they legislate, and by token of the same to understand they care not one straw about the actual settlers of the wilderness, for whose benefit principally local land offices are popularly supposed to have been instituted.

Turn it which way we may, with the lights now before us, it is impossible for us to find one single creditable motive on the part of any member of our delegation for their hasty action in recommending the abolishment of this Independence Land Office. If justified on the ground of lack of information regarding the actual situation and geographical facts, then it proves them to be legislators unfitted for their high trusts, for otherwise they would not act with out knowing something of what they were doing. If the surmises of our contemporary above quoted are correct, then our Senators and Representatives must simply admit themselves to be the most pliable of cat's paws, or themselves no better than their land-stealing advisers.

THE INDEPENDENT has never had the slightest inclination to charge any of these honorable members with being unfit for their trusts by reason of willful ignorance, nor of lending countenance knowingly to land thieving schemes. On the contrary, the senior Senator by reason of his stand on at least one occasion, against contemplated land steals in our midst succeeded in winning the highest esteem of all our citizens who had knowledge of the full facts. They have had no occasion to doubt the integrity of the junior Senator, or either of the three Representatives involved with the Senators in this transaction. Therefore our citizens are the more surprised at the said action, and the more at sea when endeavoring to account for it. It is the general belief that the honorable gentlemen have unwittingly allowed themselves to be imposed upon. If so, their course as honorable men is plain—they have but to try to undo what they have done amiss. When they do that this land office will be re-established here, the San Francisco land thieves will be requested to wait awhile, and the people of this land district will be saved in actual traveling expenses thousands of dollars cash and value of time every year were they to be compelled to transact their land office business as this snap judgment order now proposes.

We are satisfied from various circumstances, in addition to those referred to, that the scheme for the abolishment of this land office is the work of other than local powers and other than enemies of our locality.

HER LUCK.—The news is telegraphed from the Danube that "Sofia has been abandoned." Sofy isn't the first that has been abandoned, and we don't see what there is in such a common occurrence as to make it a subject for the world to talk about by telegraph. If Sofy herself had become abandoned the case might have been different. And now, we think of it, who is she, anyhow?

THE news comes from Chicago that Carl Schurz recently in a letter to a friend in that city stated that he should resign and leave the Cabinet.

THE MASS MEETING.

Quite all the prominent citizens of Independence were in attendance at the meeting at the Court House on Saturday evening last, pursuant to call published on the same day, for the purpose of entering protest against the removal of the Independence Land Office. A. R. Conklin, Esq., was called to the chair, and Jas. E. Parker was elected Secretary.

The press dispatch conveying the information of the Executive order discontinuing the office was read, and after considerable discussion the following resolutions were introduced, read and unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, Information has been received that the Land Office at Independence has been ordered to be discontinued, and the records to be deposited in the land office at Visalia. And, whereas, the scope of country which the Independence Land Office was intended to accommodate includes an area of at least 20,000 square miles in extent, and its removal therefrom will inflict the grievous burden of compelling our people to travel a distance of 400 miles to transact their business, and entail upon them heavy expenditures; and, whereas, we believe that the true status of our people, and the necessity for the retention of said office at this place, has been misrepresented to the Department of the Interior; Therefore be it

Resolved, That we, the people of Inyo county, in mass meeting assembled, do urgently pray that the Honorable Secretary of the Interior rescind such order, if one has been issued, and that said office be retained at Independence, California, as the wants and demands of our people require it.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be transmitted by the Secretary of this meeting to the Honorables Newton Booth and A. A. Sargent, United States Senators from California, and also to the Honorables R. Pacheco and P. D. Wigginton, Horace Davis, H. F. Page and J. K. Luttrell, and that they be, and hereby are, respectfully requested to strenuously use their influence in having the said office retained at its present location.

Resolved, That we fully indorse the comments contained in THE INYO INDEPENDENT as published to-day [Dec. 5], as being a full and correct exposition of the question therein discussed, and as full, reflecting the views of our citizens, and that the publishers of the paper be requested to forward marked copies to the Senators and Representatives in Congress from this State, Commissioner of the General Land Office and Secretary of the Interior.

A resolution soliciting the co-operation and earnest efforts of our Senator and Representative in the Legislature toward securing the passage of a joint resolution memorializing the Departments and Congress to continue this land office, was introduced and adopted.

A committee, consisting of J. E. Parker, Nathan Rhine, P. W. Bennett, J. B. Rowley and A. R. Conklin, was chosen to take in hand the matter of presenting protests against the removal, preparing petitions, etc. Upon adjournment of the meeting a dispatch was expressed to Mojave, to be telegraphed then to the head of the Interior and Land Departments and our Senators and Representative in Congress asking for a suspension of the order for 90 days, until the facts could be presetned in full and people of this district heard from.

At a meeting of the committee held last evening, the following form of petition was prepared and ordered to be circulated for signers in all the settlements from Antelope to Tehechepi:

PROTEST

AGAINST THE DISCONTINUANCE OF THE INDEPENDENCE LAND OFFICE.

To the Hon. Carl Schurz, Secretary of the Interior, Washington, D. C.: We, the undersigned, citizens of the Independence (California) Land District, having heard that it is the intention of the Interior Department to discontinue the United States Land Office now at Independence, California, would most respectfully represent:

1st—That said land district as at present constituted covers a vast area of unappropriated public mineral and agricultural lands, lying east of the Sierra Nevada mountains and parallel thereto for a distance of nearly 400 miles, without railroad facilities and having no communication with such except at the extreme ends of said district; that the land office as now located is about central geographically and as regards the inhabited portion of the district.

2d—That the district is steadily settling up and its public lands certain to increase in demand; that the vast mineral belts within its mountain regions are of such character that more than $30,000,000 in bullion has been produced, while new mines are being constantly discovered and developed, which will all in time become subject to U. S. patents.

3d—That to discontinue said Land Office would subject our people to onerous burden and expense, and practically stop pre-emption and homestead entries and patenting of mines, as well as the purchase and reclamation of an immense quantity of desert land—as the following will show: Expense of traveling from Mono county to Visalia and return, to enter or prove up upon 160 acres of land, $175—in addition to loss of at least 10 days' time, which may be valued in this country at $40—the cost thus exceeding government price of the land by $15. And in contested cases, involving the costs of witnesses, such a change would amount to a prohibition of trials of our settlers' rights.

4th—The distance by routes of travel from the northern part of the present district to the proposed point of Visalia is upwards of 450 miles, and from Independence 250 miles. The fact of the utter absence of railroad and telegraph communication, which has been urged as a reason for the discontinuance of this office, is the most cogent reason which we can urge for the Government to furnish our people facilities for transacting such business at home.

Therefore, we earnestly petition that the Department order discontinuing the said Independence Land Office be revoked; and, in the interest of public policy, the said office be continued.

And your petitioners will ever pray, etc.

THE TEXT BOOK QUESTION.—The fight on the text book question is raging with amazing zeal in Sacramento. Emissaries of at least two heavy Eastern publishing houses are there and ranging through the country endeavoring to work up an influence favorable to the continuance of the McGuffey readers and the Monteith geographies. Against these outsiders, of course, comes the advocates of the Pacific Coast readers. To us it will be astonishing indeed if our legislators do not advise these outsiders to "take a walk," and adopt our home manufactured series, which are certainly just as good if not considerably better than the others, and more acceptible to our teachers, parents and children because recognized as a California production. And certainly no one could ask such neat books to be furnished any cheaper (apparently scarce above cost of binding), or their substitution provided for on any more reasonable conditions than the publishers have offered and bind themselves to carry out. Give home interests and home firms a chance—those Cincinnati people have enough to do to supply all the States on their own side of the big hills, without coming here to sling California to their plethoric belts along with the rest.

LATE in the Fall of 1864 the 23d Regiment of Ohio volunteers, Col. R. B. Hayes, commanding, went into Winter quarters near Kanawha Falls, West Virginia. The soldiers made for themselves comfortable huts, and for regimental headquarters they built a double log cabin in the most approved style of army architecture. When this structure was ready for occupancy, Mrs. Hayes joined her husband in camp and the two made the cabin their Winter home. Over these snug and comfortable quarters the Colonel's wife presided with the same tact and grace of manner which have become so widely known since the same lady become hostess at the White House, and they won for her the hearts of the entire command. Some of the officers of the regiment have lately caused to be made a miniature fac simile in silver of the cabin and its immediate surroundings. The base of the piece, which is about the size of a man's hand, is inscribed "To the mother of the Regiment." The whole is of delicate workmanship, and presents a striking picture of a spot which is remembered as the scene of many pleasant events. It will be sent to Mrs. Hayes to-morrow evening, when the silver wedding of the President and his wife is tobe celebrated at have White House; and although they have intimated to their friends that they will accept no presents on that occasion, an exception will doubtless be made in this instance, on account of the givers as well as the events of which the gift is a reminder.—*Washington Corr. INYO INDEPENDENT.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 12,.....1878.

THE JOCKEY CLUB.—A permanent organization of the Independence Jockey Club was effected at a meeting held on Tuesday evening last, at the office of P. W. Bennett, Esq. After some preliminaries were disposed of, the following named officers—who are to constitute the Executive Committee—were chosen to serve for the ensuing term of one year: V. G. Thompson, President; P. W. Bennett, 1st Vice President; John Broder, 2d Vice President; O. I. Mairs, Treasurer, and Geo. M. Gill Secretary. A committee was appointed to draft constitution and by-laws and to prepare and submit a system of racing rules and regulations for the government of the Club, and report the same at a meeting to be held February 2. The Executive Committee in charge of the late races reported a deficiency of $105, mainly incurred on account of the extraordinary expense in fitting up the track, buildings, etc., for the first time. Nearly the whole sum was at once subscribed by those present, and a committee soon obtained the balance from our merchants. It is understood that the Club propose getting a title to the ground, fence it and sink a well or two for its permanent improvement.

SOME ACTION NECESSARY.—It is now getting well along in the Legislative session, and some steps should be taken to secure the legislation so absolutely essential in regard to county financial matters. The hospital fund should be straightened up, if nothing else. Our Representative is well informed upon the subject, and the matter might safely be left to him; still, if our leading citizens and financiers were to meet and exchange views doubtless a bill could be framed that would of immense benefit. These columns are open to any suggestions. No time should be lost about it, however.

THE AMOUNT.—In his first regular settlement with the County Treasurer, day before yesterday, Deputy Tax Collector Moore paid in $32,759 73. The Treasurer immediately apportioned the sum, and up to last evening had received, figured up and redeemed over 300 warrants, aggregating about $15,000. The Expense Fund is still some $6,000 behind. There remains unpaid about $20,000, of which it is supposed one-half will be paid with the additional five per cent, and the balance go into final delinquency.

AN APPEAL.—We hear that the Union Con. Company of Cerro Gordo has taken an appeal to the Supreme Court in their suit against Inyo county, or rather the Tax Collector, which was decided adversely to it in our District Court. The action was brought to recover some $4,000 paid in taxes on alleged overvaluation of property. It will be seen that the matter is one of considerable importance to our county.

EXAMINATION.—During the past week Thomas Volkert was subjected to an examination before Justice Alexander, Bishop Creek, on charge of having caused the death of James Wright, his late partner, the man who was found dead in that region some three weeks since. The Justice has evidently striven to do his whole duty in the matter, but as there was no evidence sufficiently strong to hold the accused, he was discharged. The whole affair is so mixed up that it is impossible to get at the straight of it now, but we can safely promise some interesting details next week.

MINING PATENTS.—The Consolidated Virginia Mining Company have received from the Government patents to their mines—some five in number, situated on Kearsarge Peak. The Department seems now to be in complete running order, as the work of obtaining them has been accomplished in a remarkably short time.

BASE BULLION SHIPMENTS.—The base bullion shipments from this county are running pretty light, the average being not to exceed 125 bars a day, all of which comes from the single furnace running at Cerro Gordo. Some of these days, ere long, things will be somewhat different.

RESTING SPRINGS.—A 50-ton smelting furnace is being erected at Resting Springs, which district is now conceded to lie within the boundaries of this county. It is a good deal further from Inyo's centers of population, though, than if it were in another State.

REDEMPTION.—Any one holding a county warrant of any description will hear of a chance to get some coin thereon by submitting bids as per advertisement of the County Treasurer, elsewhere. There ought to be some competition in the matter this time.

CHICKEN POX.—This disorder is bothering some of the little ones about town considerably. Perhaps they would scratch through it with less night squalling if they knew it had such a pretty scientific name as varicella, which it has.

PAYABLE.—Quite a string of county warrants, drawn mainly upon the old general fund, will be found advertised as payable this week. It would be a funny thing if some of the original holders were to present them for payment.

HYMENIAL.—It is an open secret that there is to be a wedding in town on Monday evening, next, the high contracting parties being a well known young couple of this place, who enjoy the best wishes of everybody.

GOODIES.—Gardner, at his factory near this office, has on hand a lot of elegant, freshly made candies. Go buy some. Liberal discount to the trade; outside orders solicited.

Some Inyo Inventions.

We are inclined to think Inyo has a right to boast of a due proportion of inventive talent among her citizens—we mean in a mechanical line, not that sort which invents tremendous "facts" and sticks to them pertinaciously, as is so common in Eastern Nevada and other countries. In support of our proposition we will mention two or three recent home inventions out of at least a dozen no less meritorious in original conception that have come under our own personal observation, there, no doubt, being others about which we have heard nothing.

First in point of time comes an invention by Dr. A. F. Stoeckly, which, in its uses, will surely endear the Dr. to the heart of every weary housekeeper and kitchen maid, and even many mahalas, all over the land. There is no joke in this. It is a machine designed to wash, scrub, scour and mop floors, all perfectly done at one operation, and with no more trouble or exertion on the part of the operator than to fill its self-heating reservoir with water, supply soap, lye, etc., and, like a baby-cart, trundle it about the floor—no wet feet, sloppy floors, sour looks and flying mop-sticks to renew the semi-weekly horror engendered by scrubbing days on the minds of the cats, dogs, husband and other members of the family. Indeed, so quickly and well can the work be done with this machine any housewife who is good and considerate as she might be can hop out of bed early of mornings and have every floor scrubbed and dried before she calls up her worthy spouse at all. In point of fact the machine is of scarcely less than ten-mahala power and has as much executive ability as the Kern County Board of Supervisors. We are assured by those who have witnessed the model at work that there is no doubt of its working perfectly and as claimed; and such being the general need for such a machine, it must prove of great value to its inventor and manufacturer.

Next in order of time comes one of several inventions, all connected with printing, by a member of THE INDEPENDENT firm. Its purpose is to enfold newspapers, pamphlets, etc., in their wrappers and paste the edge of the latter down, all ready for the address, precisely as the same work is done by hand but more neatly, and perhaps ten times the rapidity of an ordinary hand. Its specialty is the only part of the work in transforming the blank sheet into a printed, folded, wrapped and machine addressed newspaper, that was needed to render it possible to do the whole of that work by one combination of machinery, complete, ready for the mail at one operation, as it were, from the blank sheet and without touch of human hands at any intermediate stage. Save in the matter of enclosing in wrappers, the design of our invention, but independent of any such combination, every part of the work as outlined is now being done daily by machinery alone, without a break in the operation, except at this point where wrapped papers are needed. So far as we know or believe no machine or model previous to this has ever been perfected so as to perform its apparently simple duty, that of putting a newspaper in its wrapper as stated. Model tests leave no room to doubt its proving a perfect mechanical success; being of use in but a single, and limited, branch of business its prospects as a pecuniary success is not so flattering. Patents for this and the machine first mentioned are now pending, and will likely be issued for each in a few weeks.

Next in order, and last for this time, comes one of several inventions by our townsman, Oscar Bacon, being a machine for uncorking and recorking wine bottles while the latter are in an inverted position. Its work, like that of both of the others previously referred to, is just such as has always heretofore been done wholly by hand because no machine has been perfected for their respective purposes. That its use may be better understood a word in relation to the manufacture of champagne and other sparkling wines will be required. At a certain stage in the process the grape, elderberry, tarantula, or whatever other juice may be used, is placed in bottles, which are then tightly corked and stowed by tens of thousands away in cool cellars, there to stand neck downwards till every atom of solid held in solution has had time to find a resting place at the bottom, which is the inner end of the cork. In due time it becomes necessary to remove the cork and substitute a new one in order to get rid of said deposit, all of which has to be done with the least possible agitation of the liquid, and of course the neck must remain downwards until the new cork is in place. Aside from removing the cloud from the liquid, it is also better to remove the foul deposit for the reason, as we understand the matter, that each of these minute solids contains an embryotic fight, snake, dragon, double headed devil or other horrible thing, which, if allowed to remain in solution in the bottle, is certain to find its way sooner or later into some depressed man's stomach, and there develop into such dismal proportions as very frequently to cause discouragement in the man's family, and even more certainly, to make a whole community to long for a chance to attend his funeral—that is, the snake's or dragon's that sneaks into the man and causes him to make such an eggregious ass of himself. As the percentage of waste of liquid is necessarily large in the comparatively slow operation of changing the corks by hand, the waste is carefully saved, including all the aforesaid embryotic devils, snakes, etc., and, with the addition of a little benzine, old tobacco quids or anything else that comes handy and will add color or tone, is then made into Cognac or French brandies and the best brands of American fighting whiskies. It will be seen from all this that a machine like this one that will take out the old cork with its deposit of things as mentioned, permitting none to get afloat in the bottle again, then introduce the new cork so quickly the waste has no value for whisky purposes, if not only performs a valuable and wonderful mechanical service, but, at the same time does an immense thing in the interest of public morals through the destruction of those minute dragons, etc. This last assumption being correct, there was a time in the world's history when it now seems a man with such a machine ought to have accumulated many shekels by taking contracts to cast out devils—beginning on them when they were small of course. But in all seriousness, as we have seen this model at work, we are confident the machine will perform every mechanical duty here claimed for it, and as rapidly as the operator can turn a short crank, or place and displace the bottles in a gently moving circular table by which they are presented to the machine. In its line it is certainly a meritorious invention, and no less of prospective value.

ANOTHER MAN SHOT AND KILLED.—A gentleman up from the Lake informs us that on Thursday a difficulty took place at the water station, some five miles this side of Darwin, between a teamster employed by the Freighting Company and an old man employed about the station, ending by the latter being shot by the former and instantly killed. Our informant had forgotten the names of both parties, and could give no details of the affair other than the old man, for some cause, was advancing upon the teamster with a butcher-knife in the intent of plunging it into him, and that the teamster told him that if he came a step nearer he would kill him, to which warning the old man paid no regard. The teamster snatched up a shot-gun standing near and fired, the muzzle being almost in contact with the old man's breast. As a matter of course the shot was instantly fatal. There are still a few more men left in the county, so we suppose the bloody carnival can go on for some time yet.

AT BIG PINE.—The recent races on the Big Pine track were well attended, though there was not a great deal of betting or pool speculation indulged in. In the quarter race, Hutchison's Black Harry got away with the business, beating Dickinson's May Hammond about twenty feet. The entries for the 600-yard race were Ball's Sleepy Dick, Gill's Croppy and Hutchison's Pinto; won by the first named. In the 300-yard dash, May Hammond, Croppy and Missouri Roan took the track—the latter coming out about a length ahead. Those present express themselves well pleased with the general air of fun and hospitality which pervaded the place, and speak in high terms of their enjoyment at the dances given at the Big Pine Hotel and at Hessian's residence.

RACES.—We learn authoritatively that the reputation already gained by the Independence race course will in future attract outside Nevada and southern California horses of considerable note, to compete for purses and pools. It is suggested that the Club extend one side of the track so as to make a straight half-mile course, which will probably be done. The next meeting will occur sometime in March, while the Bishop Creekers are talking of having a series of races there about the 22d of next month.

MERCHANDISE.—Our readers will note the new advertisement of the Messrs. Cohn, Lone Pine, who are among the most liberal of our home dealers, and will take pleasure in shipping goods to any part of the country.

F. & A. M.—There will be held a stated meeting of Inyo Lodge to-night, for work and the transaction of regular business.

Darwin Items.

From information received from parties now here who attended the races at Independence, we conclude that THE INDEPENDENT's figures made most of the horses go a minute too fast. Figure 2's got into the 3-box. Correct the record, or somebody, a few months hence, will be losing the drinks, by "leaving it to THE INDEPENDENT."

Some people think there is no money to be made in the freighting business, particularly on Darwin freights. We think the following, taken from a Los Angeles paper, is quite conclusive proof that at least one man connected with the Cerro Gordo Freighting Company has made something: Mr. Nadeau has bought the lot on the south west corner of First and Spring streets, and proposes to erect an $80,000 three-story building soon.

William Canin died at Lookout last Monday of pneumonia, and was buried there on New Years day. He was one of the pioneers of Panamint, and engaged in business there with Mr. Hudon, under the firm name of Canin & Hudon. His funeral was attended by several of his friends from this place. We are informed that the parents of Mr. Canin are now residing in Canada, about 80 miles from Ottawa city; that he has a brother in the Black Hills, and a cousin at Bodie. His friends are taking steps to have placed around his grave a suitable fence, and will send for a marble headstone. As there were no papers or letters found to indicate where his relatives are residing, Black Hills and Canada papers are requested to copy the notice of his death, found in another column.

On the 31st ult. the Emigrant Mining Company shipped 135 pounds of silver bullion, valued at $1,500. The total shipments of this company, as given at Wells, Fargo & Co's. office here, for the month of December last, were $11,250. There were also shipped by prospectors gold bullion valued at $600. As the mill of the Sheldon Mining Company, at Snow's Canyon, is running successfully, we expect to be able to record some very good shipments of gold bullion during the present month. Considering the fact that the Emigrant Company has had but five stamps running only twelve hours each—in consequence of the inadequate supply of water—we think the members of the company may congratulate themselves for the success they have met with. —Darwin News.

THE bullion product of Nevada for 1877 was over fifty-one millions, an increase of nearly three millions over the yield of 1875. The Eureka Sentine says the prospects are good for as large an out put the present year as last.

LETTER FROM ROUND VALLEY.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Round Valley, as usual, had its Christmas tree loaded down with gimcracks and valuables. A conglomeration of things, such as tin whistles, rag babies, false teeth, tiny baby socks, sections of pumpkins, sacks of wool, night-caps with sleeves attached, Chinese almanacs, and costly articles as saddles, gold watches, silk dresses, etc.

The children wonder why Santa Claus does not come oftener. They would hail him as a still greater public benefactor could the hoary headed old philanthropist make it convenient to come just once a month, or at least shower his blessings on the Fourth of July as well as on Christmas eve. We are always dilatory in preparing in due time—never conclude to have a Christmas tree until a few days prior to the day, which allows but little time to procure suitable presents. Let it be known about the 1st of December, and a big pine tree will be necessary, spreading its huge branches through the school house roof; down which old Santa himself will smoothly glide on his exit from the moon or elsewhere, "und all over froze."

After the tree was stripped quite a crowd repaired to the house of J. E. Jones, while the others amused themselves with dancing until "the wee sma' hours." However, about midnight all hands put in an appearance at the aforesaid house, where every man, woman and child enjoyed a good meal—a bounteous repast, which was prepared by several of those hospitable ladies.

I felt inclined to pity those kind ladies when observing how indefatigably they labored to feed the inner man—we thought all this trouble could be avoided if each person upon leaving home would deposit a cracker and a small flask of cold tea in his pocket. But, dear me, how near heaven a man feels; how brimful of joy he is when munching away at a dead turkey, chicken pie and all that sort of thing! Long may these women live, and their daughters, too (providing they'll make as good cooks as their mothers and others).

"MUSIC HATH CHARMS."

"Of all the hearts beneath the Heaven,
That man has found or God has given
None draws the soul so sweet away
As Music's melting, mystic lay;
Slight emblem of the bliss above
It soothes the spirit all to love."

The man that hath no music in himself,
Nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treasons, strategems and spoils;
The motions of his spirits are dull as night,
Let no such man be trusted."

So saith the poets; yet ever since Round Valley has been settled by the whites we have been satisfied with such music as the braying of mules, bleating of calves, grunting of pigs, barking of dogs and the discordant shrieks of howling cayotes! The best musical talent extant in this latitude used to be accredited to the roosters, but we often objected to their time, being generally too early in the morning, thus disturbing our sweet slumbers, instead of charming with evening songs. We don't go much on the rooster unless he is laid out on the table.

I am glad to announce that a new era has dawned upon us in this valley. Before another centennial appears we'll become civilized Caucasians, and our advancement and progression will be due in a great measure to the ability and accomplishments of Mr. Buck, the present Round Valley school teacher. This gentleman, besides being an excellent school teacher, is well versed in music, and, unlike many artists, feels delighted to entertain all around him, old and young, with vocal and instrumental music, and impart the same to those desirous of learning. Christmas eve, Christmas night and on several other occasions audiences here have been highly entertained by Mr. Buck's performances on the organ and also his singing. Round Valley is proud of having secured such a genial, competent teacher. Long may he live among us and his services be duly appreciated and well remunerated.

It is said that "music is the only art that can calm the agitation of the soul." Our worthy P. M. while standing on tip-toe the other night, listening to the enravishing strains produced by Mr. B., emphatically declared that "This thing (music) drives the devil out o' the house." Consequently it behooves the young folks, and older ones, too, to improve the present opportunity; study and treasure up the rudiments of the art. These farming settlements should have more music. Sweet melody should resound in every household, and evening songs soothe, charm and soften our stern, harsh natures. If there was more music in all our neighborhoods the effect would be wonderful. Many a bright lad's career changed from seeking diversion and recreation in saloons and at gambling tables, to find real joy and pleasure in consulting the muses.

We predict that in a short time Round Valley, through the instrumentality of Mr. Buck, will have good singing. It is said that Bishop Creek has one or more music teachers. Why not form a singing class, or two or three in such a large and thriving settlement? Bishop ought to have a monstrous choir. If there was "music sweet" in the meeting houses, no matter how indifferent the preaching, the reverends would always find full houses, whereas they now bitterly complain of frequently preaching to empty benches.

GIMCRACK.

A PROMINENT Union Pacific official in Omaha states that Jay Gould has said that if the Union Pacific comes out of the Congressional fight without a scratch, the company will build 100 miles of the contemplated Black Hills railroad, surveys of which have been made, and the iron for 100 miles of which has been purchased. The Black Hills country is improving rapidly, and recent heavy sales of mines to Californians have given the mining interests a new impetus.

SINGLE RAIL LINE.—The Railway Age says: The single rail principal seems not unlikely to come into somewhat extended use for short roads, particularly in hilly regions, where a graded road bed would be expensive and difficult on account of sharp curvatures. A road on this plan is being built in the Bradford oil districts of Pennsylvania, and a car has been constructed for it running on two wheels, two small wheels on each side to maintain it in position.

DURING La Grange's superintendency of the San Francisco Mint he has disbursed for supplies and wages over $4,000,000, and has coined over $240,000,000 of gold and silver.

AN exceedingly interesting discovery to the literary world, has been made at Rome. Curiously enough, though it unfolds the secrets of the Jesuits, the discovery was made through information given the civil authorities by Jesuit priests. It is a subterranean chamber under the Roman College. The chamber is large and literally full of books. Their number and value are, as yet, of course, unknown, and no estimate can be made, but already some exceedingly valuable volumes have been taken out, and indications are found that books were added to the collection as late as 1870.

UNDER the head of "foreign news" comes the announcement that the Sultan has strangled forty servants with promptness and dispatch. Now, we should rather call this "domestic intelligence."

THE President is studying the Texas Pacific Railroad scheme. He is reported to believe that the road does not need government aid.

AFTER the first of January there will be but one telegraph company in California—the Western Union.

LEARNING the ropes is of no advantage to a man after he has been hung.

Geological Lecture.

Prof. W. D. Gunning, whose high reputation as a geologist and a lecturer had preceded him to this city, began last evening at the Congregational church, a course of lectures on geology. Not so large an audience was present as the character of his lecture should have commanded. The lecturer is an earnest, rapid speaker, who keeps his audience, not by remarkable eloquence, but by the breadth and depth of the text thought of his discourse and the very lucid manner in which he presents his subject. Profound as are the matters of which he treats, he makes them clear to the most ordinary comprehension, and invests them with an attention which is often enchanting and at times deep, He is very skilful with the crayon, and illustrates his lecture by rapid drawings, which are frequently dashed off with such spirit as to elicit hearty applause. The subject of the lecture of last evening was "The Earth Before Life." He began by saying that the science he would unfold is the most fascinating of all physical sciences. Everything writes its own history. Geological science is that which reads the history of the earth written in the globe's crust. We want, first, to know the anatomy of the crust. Delineating on the slated canvass, the speaker showed that the earth's crust is composed of two classes of rock—one massive and crystaline and the other stratified—the one born of fire and the other formed under water. The stratified rocks were formed from the ruins of older rocks. Under the air the world is forever wasting away; under the sea it is forever forming anew. All the features on the earth's surface were sculptured by water. The speaker stood a few days ago, he said, on the crest of Mount Davidson and looked away over turreted ridges, over rounded domes, and far away to alkaline plains—as ragged and barren a landscape as the hand of God ever spread under the foot of man—and thought how all these tumbled rock waves of desolation had been sculptured by pelting storms and eroding floods. Where have the wasting rocks been carried? The speaker traced them as mud into the sea, and from sea mud into other rocks. While nature is forming these rocks she is dropping into them the remains of animals and plants which are petrified. If the bed of the Pacific was laid dry, exploring it, we should find petrefactions of sea life and life from the neighboring land. Wherever in California we stand on any rock, save that which ribs the Coast Range and Sierras, we stand on the dried bottom of an older Pacific. Wherever in New England, he said, we stand on any rock we stand on the dried bed of an older Atlantic. When we read these rocks in the order in which they were formed, we find them to be volumes of the earth's history. Whatever lifts the mind out of the present and throws it into the far past or the far future, elevates and humanizes. We are to travel a past that is only less than infinite. It will have no interest for us, said the lecturer, unless it holds the root of the present and traverses the methods of creation. It does hold the root of the present, and the lamp of law we are to flash on the by-gone creations must be lit at the flame of life that burns to-day. Science is the mind of man re-thinking the great creative processes. The speaker then invited his audience to bear him company in a stroll on a sea beach. He drew and described in rapid succession the typical patterns of life, developing the laws of structure which underlie each type. This was perhaps the most interesting part of the lecture and kept the audience completely under his control, as he delineated the varied primal forms of sea life, and asked why these frail creature of the sea? Answering, he traced life through the invertebrate, radiata and vertebrate patterns and pointed out the methods of creation. Applying these methods he next invited the audience to leave the living seas and stroll with him along the shores and through the beds of ancient seas. He would take a bird's flight view of the history of creation as recorded in the rocks of our own continent. Starting from the coral reefs of Florida, he showed that these are the youngest sea-born rocks of the continent. The memorials inscribed on these rocks, he said, will not take us back of the present order of things. From Florida he passed into Alabama, and sketched a stratum of marl, the position of which showed it to be older than the Florida reefs. Drawing its characteristic fossil, he reconstructed the monstrous animal which appeared as a huge cross between the seal and the whale. Passing into Wyoming Territory, he next showed that while Alabama was under the sea, this region, from the Uintah range to the Wind River mountains, was under a fresh water lake, and that at one time the Pacific ocean washed the foot of the Wahsatch mountain range. He sketched on the blackboard from ruins taken from the fresh water lake bottom, described an immense elephantorial animal—a kind of a cross between an elephant, the rhinoceros and moose. It roamed along the margin of that lake, companioned by horse-like, pig-like, camel-like and ape-like animals. Passing into Colorado, he sketched a group of rocks still older than those of Wyoming, and restored from its characteristic fossil an immense kangaroo-shaped saurian, which showed natures on the way from reptile to bird. From system to system he passed down through the crust, delineating the creations from each epoch. Coming to the mountains of Canada, he showed that their rocks sweep under and are separated from the Florida reefs by other rock systems also sweeping or trending under the first, and in all just seventeen miles thick. The Huronian rocks of Canada, he said register the beginnings of life. The "old red sandstone" registers the beginning of life with true head and brain. Two miles of rock leaves lie between the inscribed memorial—at the present rate of rock growth—of 40,000,000 years! Forty million years of life without brains! Three hundred and sixty million years—he concluded as the summing up of the subject—this globe spun on with life without sense or consciousness of life; and passing through strata after strata of rock testimony, he declared the record reads, by the scale of present growth and formation, that the earth was all the vast period of 400,000,000 in simply getting under headway.—Sacramento Record.

THE river Danube has figured largely in history for 2,000 years, and it again becomes the object to which the eyes of the whole world have turned. It furnished a highway for the Turks in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries to penetrate Europe as far as Vienna, and in the days of the Crusade it became an outlet for the religious enthusiasm of Europe to fly to the Holy Land. The Danube, from its source in Baden to the Black Sea, is 1,820 miles long and it drains, with its tributaries, an area of over 300,000 square miles. It passes through Bavaria, Austria, Hungary and Servia to the Carpathian Mountains, where it separates Roumania and Bulgaria, and passes into the Black Sea through several mouths, the principal one being that of Sulina. The Danube is navigable for steamers as far as Ulm in Bavaria. At Nicopolis in the fourteenth century, 100,000 Christians were driven by the Turks into the Danube, and in the fifteenth century 40,000 Turks were slain on its shores at the siege of Belgrade.

A FAITHFUL DOG'S REWARD.—A gentleman who lives in Vernon county tells a remarkable story of the sagacity of a dog which accompanied him on his travels. While in the Short Creek timber, on his way to Joplin, the dog jumped and caught the horse by the bridle rein. Mr. Ewing drove the animal off, but it persisted in catching the horse by the reins, until the gentleman concluded he must be mad. Under the impulse of the moment he pulled his revolver and shot the animal, which then ran back along the road over which he had come. In a few minutes Mr. Ewing missed his overcoat, which had been tied to the saddle. He turned back to find it, and after riding about a mile not only found his over coat, but his faithful dog, which was lying on the garment dead.—Jefferson (Mo.) Tribune.

A PAPER by Capt. Feilden, the naturalist on the Alert, in the late British Arctic expedition, on the mammalia of North Greenland and Grinnel Land, appeared in the Zoölogist of August and September, 1877. The expedition discovered the most northern traces ever found of man—about six miles south of the eighty-second parallel—consisting of the frame work of a large wooden sledge, a stone lamp and a snow scraper made out of a walrus tusk. This is the ultima thule of Esquimaux advance, and northward no vestige of a human being was ever found. Many other traces were discovered along the shores of Smith Sound to the southward, and collections were made which will throw much light on the vexed question of Esquimaux migration.

HOW TO BUILD A HAPPY HOME.—Six things are requisite. Industry must be the architect; tidiness the upholsterer; it must be warmed with affection; lighted with cheerfulness; and industry must be the ventilator, renewing the atmosphere and bringing in fresh salubrity day by day; while over all as a protecting canopy, nothing will suffice but the blessing of God.

CHIEF JOSEPH'S DAUGHTER.—On the day of the last fight of the United States troops with Chief Joseph, his little daughter, ten years old, finding that her father was occupied with his rifle, ran to the ponies and made an heroic effort to herd them in. The cavalry, however, cut her off, and seeing that she would be captured if she remained with the animals, she took to the hills. After the fight and surrender Joseph's first question was regarding his child. Every effort was made to find her, but at last reports no trace of her had been found. Chief Joseph believes that she is dead, and is greatly affected by her loss.

DANGEROUS.—A Welsh gentleman has invented a new engine of warfare, which is likely to attract considerable attention. It consist of a cannon, so arranged as to discharge a sharp sword-blade crosswise in the direction of the enemy, the knife or cutter being so poised in its career through the air as to cover the whole space in a longitudinal direction described by the blade itself. An eight inch ball would carry a sword fourteen feet in length 600 yards, literally mowing down every human obstacle in its path.

GOLD NUGGETS.—The largest nugget of gold ever found weighed one hundred and eighty-four pounds, Troy, and was valued at $32,000. It was discovered in June, 1858, at Ballarat, Australia. A pure and more valuable nugget was found at Korong in 1867, and was estimated at $35,000. The famous Calaveras nugget, found 1854, was worth $29,000. A cubic foot of pure gold is worth $262,000.

WITHOUT exception mining men who examine our mines say that there is already enough ore uncovered to keep twelve mills running steadily for two years. This they say of the present actual developments—they are no less positive, however, in affirming that the ledges possess all the elements and characteristics indicative of permanency.—Bodie Standard.

BRITISH Ministries seldom retain power when they become as irreconcilably discordant as that under the leadership of Lord Beaconsfield. Should he continue to disregard the murmurs of the press at the crookedness of his ways, he may find that Parliament will demand a more stable Government.

MRS. MURAT HALSTEAD, the wife of the editor of the Cincinnati Commercial, though the mother of eleven children, looks no older than thirty-five. Her hair, of a rich, golden brown, is seven feet long, and when flowing loosely trails behind her on the ground like a robe of gold.

MR H. D. BACON, of Oakland, has offered to give the University of California $25,000 in money and his collection of pictures and other works of art, for the purpose of founding an art gallery, provided the State will add $25,000 to the fund.

CONGRESSMAN HORACE DAVIS claims that the President has taken sides with the anti-Chinese party of California. He too thinks that the helpless Caucasian is ruined by Chinese cheap labor, and is in favor of checking the Mongolian invasion.

THE dividends paid last year by the incorporated companies of San Francisco amounted to about $40,000,000, and the earnings of the Central Pacific Railroad Company are estimated at $17,000,000, with expenees $7,000,000.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, JANUARY 19.....1878.

SEND THEM IN.

A careful distribution to the various settlements has been made of the blank petitions concerning the Land Office matter, so that each place may have from one to four to accommodate the names of signers. An effort should be made to secure, as soon as possible, the signature of every bona fide resident in the district. It is the people's sovereign right to petition, and in this case the only method of giving expression to the popular sense of wrong in the proposed removal.

Each sheet complete should be returned to Nathan Rhine, Esq., Independence, by whom they will be fastened together and forwarded to the proper authorities.

THERE are only five States in the Union where Governors are elected annually. These are Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Michigan. In Alabama, Colorado, Connecticut, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, New York, Ohio, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont and Wisconsin, Governors are elected every two years. In Pennsylvania and New Jersey they are elected every three years, and in the remaining sixteen States of the Union they are elected every four years. The smallest gubernatorial salaries ($1,000 per annum) are paid in Maine, New Hampshire, Michigan and Vermont. The largest salaries are paid in New York and Pennsylvania, whose Governors get $10,000. Louisiana pays her Chief Magistrate $8,000, California $6,000, Oregon $1,500, while the Governors of other States are paid in sums ranging from two to five thousand dollars and upwards.

DIED.—Senator Nathan Porter, of Alameda, was stricken with paralysis, at Sacramento, last week on Thursday, and died on Sunday morning. He was a native of Massachusetts, aged 62 years, and was one of the few able men who have borne themselves through several terms of the Legislature above suspicion of corrupt influences. He neither introduced or supported bad measures, and any bill that he undertook to oppose was sure to be throughly shown up. His services are a loss to the whole State. A new election will be called in a few days to supply his place.

CONGRESSMAN BANNING, Chairman of the House Military Committee, introduced a bill for the reorganization of the army. It will save $5,000,000 annually. Among other things discovered in the scrutiny the Committee has given the army is the fact that out of forty-one Colonels of the line not more than four have been with their regiments for years, and but three have been in actual command of their regiments since the war.

IT is stated that President Hayes has definitely determined to make the Chinese question the subject of a special message to Congress. In this message he will call attention to present and prospective evils of Chinese immigration to this country, and will recommend Congress to take such action as in its wisdom may be most proper and effective to restrict and regulate the immigration of Mongolians.

SENATOR RODGER'S bill in relation to raising funds for public libraries, provides that Supervisors of any county may levy a tax, not to exceed one mill on the dollar, to establish free public libraries. The object is to give all classes of the community free access to books without charge, thus furnishing facilities for information even in remote counties, only heretofore enjoyed by people of large cities.

THE Argonaut, the ablest literary journal on the coast, will change its form with the new year. It will be enlarged to sixteen pages and printed on elegantly tinted paper. We will undertake to say that no Pacific Coaster subscribing for the Argonaut will consider the money ill-spent, but quite the contrary.

PERU is inviting Chinese immigration on a grand scale, having subsidized a line of steamers for that purpose. As California is fighting earnestly to get rid of them, it is natural to suggest that we subsidize somebody to take them where they are wanted.

ONE who appears to know the "bonanza kings" quite well, declares that they "are as illiterate as they are wealthy; not one of the leaders, were it to save his life from everlasting perdition, could write correctly a letter of half a page."

WHAT A NEVADA PAPER HAS TO SAY ABOUT IT.

It is pleasing to note that at least one honest and able paper in our neighboring State of Nevada deems our little local interests worth a bit of its particularly well informed attention. To show how this is we append a couple of brief but quite intelligent articles from the last issue of one of the Aurora, Nevada, papers—called, by way of compliment to a California mining camp, the "Bodie" Standard:

THE INYO INDEPENDENT man received a shock compared to which a clap of thunder from a clear sky would have been considered as a matter of course. The land office was moved from Independence to Bishop Creek and the Secretary of the Interior failed to consult the editor of THE INDEPENDENT about it. Thereat the slighted editor consumes three columns in giving vent to his amazement, wrath and grief—a column to each feeling.

How proud the Bodie people must feel when they look over the astonishingly well informed columns of their "local" newspaper, their own little deceiving fraud that, for coin, so glibly flatters all that is mean in them from from afar off—but we will come to that after stopping to remark that we are truly glad to learn that the land office has already been moved hence, and just to Bishop Creek only forty miles away, right here in our own county, instead of to Visalia, two hundred and fifty miles in a contrary direction and across the impassable Sierras, as was stated in the order as published in every leading paper that comes to this office except this "Bodie" exponent.

A petition praying that the land office of this district be moved to Bodie, was recently sent to Washington bearing the the names of over 700 citizens of this [Note the "this."—EDS. INDEPENDENT] portion of the county. Bodie is the only point in the district where the land office should be located—regarding its accessability—and because this place will furnish THREE-FOURTHS of the business connected with the land office from this time on. That there may be done the most good to the greatest number, we trust that the petition, so numerously signed, will be at once granted.

And we trust for the honor of northern Mono that it may turn out that the whole story as to the existence of any such petition may have no better foundation in fact that the assertion of the paper in which we find it. But if such did exist, and was signed by over 700 citizens as a knowing indorsement of the statements we have taken the liberty to emphasize in the above quotation, then we take the additional liberty of saying that western Mono contains some 700 stupid dupes, else some 700 citizens who will indorse any palpable mistatement of facts in a hope, however faint, of some trifling gain to themselves regardless of the rights of others. Even the Standard stumbles, and has to qualify his "accessability" statement—and only to make it worse. About that time no doubt there was a snow-storm threatening, and he was in dire trouble to know how in the name of his local fraud its next issue was to be got from its place of publication in the State of Nevada across deep and trackless snows to its nominal point of issuance on a mountain 9,000 feet high, and in another State. We do not blame the truthful editor for trying to ease his conscience a little—the unqualified assertion would be a little too cheeky even for a man who can unblushingly perpetrate such a weekly deceit as the "Bodie" Standard. Even he knows that his proposed location for the land office is unapproachable for weeks at a time in ordinary Winters except by means of snow-shoes, and that at times none but the most adventurous expert dare undertake the trip even on snow-shoes. He also knows that the lofty locality, so far from being centrally located geographically or otherwise, is very nearly in the extreme northwestern angle of the tri-angular shaped district, and miles in the high mountains off any existing or possible thoroughfare between populated centers of any description. As all old residents of the district well know, if this Nevada editor man does not, in the entire district from end to end and side to side there is not a more inaccessable settlement of any kind in all its broad expanse of mountains and valleys than this same identical exclusively mining locality of Bodie, consequently no place more ill-suited for the establishment of any institution designed for the general convenience. He knows as well as he can know any indefinite fact that it is the hight of absurdity to say that any one mining camp among so many of so nearly equal promise can by any possible combination of circumstances furnish one-half more business of this kind than all the others together, the vast agricultural interests, the principal source of such business, included. In the light of tangible facts and probabilities the sum total of such business from Bodie and vicinity will bear about the same proportion to that of the remainder of the district as the whole together does to that of the other seventy-nine land districts of the United States combined.

Come to think about it, we are treating the Standard's little joke too seriously; if not a joke then we are constrained to say that that part of Mono is possessed of men unscrupulous enough to do anything to forward their own local interests. If that petition is not a myth then let the dwellers in southern Mono look out for themselves, for the getters-up of that petition would scruple no more to override them by any means fair or foul, given a suitable opportunity, than if they were so many Chinamen. The proof of this is, first, that if 700 different men signed a petition to the above purport, 700 different men were willing to sanction a series of glaring perversions of facts; secondly, that if said petition contained 700 names not less than 500 of them were other than of legally qualified citzens of the county, which does not number to exceed the half of 700 legally qualified voters in its entire area—and of which moiety fully one-half reside in the southern part of the county, and would not sign said petition for any consideration; thirdly, that said getters-up must be of just that kind who, failing to obtain legitimate signatures in sufficient numbers, would copy from any outside Great Register, or even a convenient grave-stone, to complete a list equal to the accomplishment of any selfish scheme they might have in view.

We attach no importance to this petition at all, supposing such to exist, only as showing what a peculiar controlling element has drifted in to the northern extreme of this land district. We should not believe any such petition existed at all except in the facetious imagination of this Nevada editor-man, only that such is so fairly in keeping with the entire, rascally conceived, land office removal swindle.

Finally, looking at it as affecting our publishing interests only, the utter abolishment of this land office is of no more special consequence to us than would be the abolishment of any outside postoffice; its patronage to our share can be neither less or more by reason of such change. But we have interests in common with hundreds of our patrons and others who are to be defrauded of a legitimate advantage, and in that interest we protest against the whole dirty business, and the rats who are at the bottom of it.

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.—Through the Bodie Standard of the 16th we learn that a mining discovery, likely to prove of immense value, has just been made at a point seven miles west of Bodie. The discovery consists of three different ledges, the croppings standing two or three feet above ground, and with a width on the widest of nearly forty feet, the narrowest, about twelve. Assays show $47 in silver and $7 50 in gold. Two of the ledges are quite close together, exactly parallel to each other, and traceable for over half a mile. The third and largest lies a quarter of a mile to the eastward. Altogether the discovery seems to be one of great prospective importance. If we were doing a promiscuous newspaper business we would immediately go to Aurora and there issue a red-hot local newspaper for the district, provided we could find a name for it without trenching on the rights of other local papers; that, and to find unengaged snow-shoes enough by which to publish it in a manner sufficiently local to secure recognition from briefless attorneys, would be a leading worriment. Would it be distinctive enough to call our proposed little local venture the Three-Ledge Fraud? Would that be distinctive enough not to cause confusion in the minds of delinquent subscribers so that they wouldn't rush up to the wrong office to pay up? That's what bothers us, and we'll have to take the matter under advisement.

"LOOK OUT FOR THE LOCOMOTIVE." Darwin people, and no doubt many other folks, interested in the contemplated narrow gauge railroad, will be glad to hear that Col. Sherman Stevens, of the Inyo Lumber Company (the projectors of the enterprise), has not been idle since he left. Thursday last we received a letter from Inyo, this county, from Mr. Jas. Davis, stating that the Colonel had arrived in Detroit, Michigan, and had written to his San Francisco associates that "the railroad would be commenced without much delay." Mr. James, the inventor of this system of railroads is expected to arrive in Darwin in a few days. We do not wish to unduly excite the people of Darwin, but we express our decided belief that the road will be built at an early day, for the reason that it is demanded by our business interests, will prove a paying investment, and it will not be difficult for capitalists who investigate at all to become convinced of that fact. We may look for such a revival of business in and around Darwin within a few months, as shall far eclipse any former phases in that regard, and it will not be a mere paroxysm, but healthy and permanent.—Darwin News, Jan. 12.

THE Sentinel says the average cost of extracting and smelting a ton of ore in Eureka District is from $35 to $38 per ton.

A Silver Tax Bill.

The bill of Waters, of San Bernardino, amending section 3888 of the Political Code, will be discussed at the next meeting of the House Judiciary Committee, and opposition may be expected to it on the ground that it will permit the counties to discharge their obligations in silver. The proposed amendment is as follows:

SECTION 1. Section 3888 of the Political Code of this State is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

SEC. 3888. Taxes must be paid in legal coin of the United States, except that silver coin of the United States shall be a legal tender for taxes at their nominal value for any amount not exceeding fifty (50) dollars on any one assessment; a tax levied for a special purpose may be paid in such funds as may be directed.

SEC. 2. This act shall be in force from and after its passage, and immediately upon the approval of this act a printed copy of the same shall be furnished to each of the tax collectors of the several counties in this State, who shall post the same conspicuously in his office.

Upon which the San Francisco Chronicle comments as follows:

An absurd bill has been introduced into the Legislature compelling tax collectors to receive $50 in silver in one payment at par value. It would be unconstitutional if passed, for Congress alone possess the power to regulate a legal tender of silver. In addition the State would be compelled to pay its employes in silver to a great extent, which would be a virtual reduction of their pay; or if the State purchased gold to pay them with, taxation would necessarily be increased thereby. Three such reasons as these ought to be sufficient to kill any bill.

Washington News.

The morning session of the Woman Suffrage Convention was very stormy. While Mrs. Lawrence, of Massachusetts, was speaking she was interrupted by Mrs. Crocker who denounced the Convention and delegates in harsh terms, and was with difficulty silenced. Immediately after adjournment a committee of the delegates had an interview with Vice President Wheeler and Speaker Randall, the object being to obtain the consent of the two Houses to permit the representatives to present arguments on the floor of each House. The request was rejected by the Senate—ayes 13, noes 31. The House took no action.

Sargent to-day introduced the following proposal to amend the Constitution:

SECTION 1. The rights of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.

SEC. 2. Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

Mr. Sargent also introduced a bill providing that female lawyers may be admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of the United States.

Edmunds submitted a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States prohibiting States from making appropriations for sectarian purposes. Referred to the Committee on Judiciary.

In the House, Luttrell introduced a bill to prohibit the employment of Mongolians on any public works of the United States. The penalty for a violation of the law by any one in authority shall not be less than $1,000 fine and six months imprisonment, nor more than $5,000 fine and imprisonment for one year.

THE following story, which comes under the category of "highly interesting if true," is told of Commodore Ammen, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation in the Navy Department: During the rebellion, Ammen, then a captain in the navy, was placed in command of a party of men who had enlisted in San Francisco for the Pacific squadron. They were embarked on a merchant transport, and a few days out the men, among whom were many rough characters, showed a disposition to mutiny, alleging that their food was unfit or insufficient. The muttered threats and black looks at length became so alarming that the master of the vessel, fearing for its safety, as well as for the lives of himself and crew, who were outnumbered ten to one, expressed to Captain Ammen his fears and inclination to make for the nearest port. "Why make for port?" said Ammen; "I am in command and I wish to go to the squadron." "But," replied the master, "they will kill us all—they will kill you if you go among them." "We will see about that," said the captain. Arming himself, he went down where the men were gathered and walked in among them. Voices were immediately hushed, and one burly fellow named Murphy, the leader in the mischief, came toward him, determined evidently to begin the work of destruction at once. Raising his revolver, Ammen shot the man dead, and then commanded, in a voice which contained much more than words, "Throw him overboard." Recovering from their stupor, the men glared like wild beasts upon the intrepid captain, and soon the second mutineer gained the courage to make a move towards him. Another shot and again came the order, "Throw him overboard." Yet once more was the awful tragedy repeated, and a third bloody feast was thrown to the sharks. The mutiny was ended. The men huddled in the farthest corners. Pointing out one by one the remaining ringleaders, Ammen ordered their companions to put them in irons, and when this was done he returned to his stateroom.

GRANT and Vesuvius had a friendly smoke together.—Boston Post. And they'll lava a good time when they meet over their "drop of the crater every morn."—Worcester Press. That is carrying the joke tufa, geologically speaking.—Ex. Yes, far enough to make 'em both throw up.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

THE King of Italy, Victor Emanuel II, is dead. He was in his 58th year. He ascended the throne of Sardinia in 1849, and became King of Italy in 1861. His administration of the affairs of the empire ran counter to the interests of the Church, and he early called down on himself the enmity of the Pope. He assailed the privileges of the clergy, secularized the property of the Church and took from the religious associations the monopoly of education, which they had long enjoyed. He was excommunicated by the Pope on account of these measures, though the dispatch states that religious consolation was administered to him just before he expired.

"NIGGER IN THE FENCE."—The valley people are very indignant over the order for the removal of the Independence Land Office to Visalia, and seem to think there "is a nigger in the fence" who has been at work to bring about such a result. We think the nigger is found in the monopoly that has run this State for years, and has now got the upper hand so that it will continue to run it—the Central Pacific railroad. "Revenge is sweet," and these men will have revenge when an attempt is made to thwart them by a defeat of their pets, political or otherwise. We doubt if a single individual in this end of the county had anything to do in the matter; or even knew anything about it until the arrival of the San Francisco papers containing the dispatch. We certainly did not, never heard the subject mentioned, nor did we even suppose that any such movement was contemplated. If the valley people can drop on the resident Agent of the C. P. R. R. (and it has one in every town) we believe they will disclose the nigger in the fence.—Darwin News, Jan. 12.

PECULIAR.—Some noticeable peculiarities are to be remarked concerning the underground water question in this place. Owing to the light snow fall last year our underground river which sweeps down from the mountains has fallen many feet lower than ever known before, and in consequence wells that have always maintained a good supply of water the year through are now perfectly dry and have been for weeks past. Efforts to obtain water in old and new wells in different parts of the town disclose one peculiarity referred to, which is, that within a radius of less than five hundred feet the surface variation of the underground stream is full twenty-five feet. For instance, Dr. Blair, just north of the court house, has water at 50 feet; intermediate wells thence 400 feet to Rothschild & Co's, are dry at 35 feet; there they have a good supply at 33; thence about the same distance south deeper wells are dry; a well being sunk at H. Levy's had water at 32 feet; a foot deeper through a cement let it all leak out, and now at 43 feet that well would make a good powder magazine; 200 feet further south the well at this office has water at 25 feet. Two small creeks pass through the place, but without material effect, perhaps none, upon the wells even in their immediate vicinity. The formation is clay, gravel and small boulders, and probably 500 feet deep. This underground river falls slowly till the latter part of March, when it begins to rise, attaining its greatest hight in July, being then some 25 feet above low water mark if there is any such mark—and this is the time and season to dig wells—and don't put any stone in them the first year.

CERRO GORDO.—The Beaudry furnace of the Union Con. Company is making a steady output of 125 bars per day of probably the richest base bullion now produced on the coast, mainly from high grade silver ore coming from the San Felipe. The lead mines yield only sufficient ore to furnish the necessary flux and keep the one furnace in operation. In the new shaft drifting is in progress both from the 700- and 900-foot levels, to strike or run under known bodies of ore in the Union and Santa Maria. Everything about the works is running admirably, and in connection with the new shaft house of corrugated iron, Supt. Porter states that its first cost was 10 per cent. less than a wooden one, to say nothing of its comparative immunity from future loss by fire.

COMMITTED FOR ASSAULT.—Thomas Volkert has been lodged in the county jail for a period of 250 days, in default of paying a fine of $250, imposed by Justice Alexander for assault. The ranch of Wm. G. Watson adjoins that known as Volkert's, there being a strip of ground between the two the ownership of which is or has been in dispute. On the 8th instant Watson went there and began removing some grape vines, when Volkert appeared upon the scene with a shotgun and compelled him to leave. Watson proceded to Bishop and filed a complaint, with the result stated.

WARRANTS PAYABLE.—All warrants drawn upon the County Expense Fund up to and including date of November 5 are now payable at the Treasurer's office. There are only some $3,000 of warrants now outstanding on the fund, and if but half of the taxes now delinquent are paid in the whole indebtedness will be wiped out. Thus the county can be run at least for a time on a cash basis, excepting as to hospital expenses.

STORM.—The first heavy snow storm of the season opened out on Sunday last, continuing for about three days and covering the mountains well down on the foot-hills. In the neighborhood of two inches of rain fell in the valley, contracting the long visages of ranchers into a broad grin. However, should the present warm weather continue, the benefit will not prove to be very much after all.

DISCHARGED.—Manado Canadas, a native of Portugal, was incarcerated in the county jail on the 15th instant, on a charge of insanity. On Thursday last the County Judge summoned Drs. Colleau and Bicknell and proceeded with a regular inquiry as to the prisoner's mental condition, which resulted in his discharge. Dad Moore intimates that the wrong man had been put in durance.

ASSESSMENT.—The Rex Montis has levied another assessment (No. 9) of $4 per share, delinquent February 11. This, as well as the last, being doubtless called for on account of the construction of the new mill, now so far advanced as to stop the running of the old battery, consequently the usual weekly bullion shipments.

VALUABLE GAME.—A Chinaman employed at the Rex Montis mine has lately succeeded in running down, killing and capturing three fine animals of the genus mephitis, for their valuable medicinal properties. Tarpey is responsible for the statement that the whole atmosphere of Kearsarge mountain was blue with the odor.

SOLD OUT.—The Columbus correspondent of the Esmeralda Herald says: Mr. J. M. Caldwell has purchased from N. T. Piper his splendid ranch at Oasis, Mono county, California; the price being $25,000—payable in three years.

SOLD.—The property known as the Shaw and Smith ranch, in suit for partition, was sold by the referee on Monday last. James Shaw was the purchaser, the price paid being $3,500.

DELAYED.—The Northern stage has for the past two days been several hours late, on account of heavy snow at Aurora.

GOLD DISCOVERY.—Reports are somewhat conflicting and our account of the matter may be a little inaccurate in a few unimportant particulars. The ledge, owned by well-known parties of Cerro Gordo, is located anywhere from that point to Gold Mountain, or else just across the Inyo range east of the Eclipse. Specimens of the gold shown, representing the average, contain a slight percentage of free quartz—just enough to render a reduction of the stuff necessary; but the convenient facilities for this are everything that could be desired, as there is a powerful waterfall in the immediate vicinity, while the grassy slopes are covered with an enormous growth of timber, and beds of coal underlie the rich plain at the base of the foot-hills. In width the ledge varies, but crops out seven thousand five hundred feet high—a mass of almost pure gold—and runs clear up into Bodie, where the editor of the Standard gets up his weekly mining report. Later—Prospectors just in from the scene are somewhat excited over more recent discoveries. The wonderful fact transpires that the trouble of transportation by wire tramways, milling or even mining will be unnecessary. An underground laboratory, supplied by fire from internal furnaces, or by heat from the oscillation and abrasion of surrounding rocks, at one point pours forth the molten metal. Until they get a mint on the ground ready to coin it, the proprietors will be compelled to simply mould the gold into bars.

SWANSEA.—The resumption of operations at the Swansea furnaces will prove of decided benefit to the whole county, and our Lone Pine neghbors in particular. With a thorough and economical management, able to make advances upon ores and return exactly what they are worth, less a reasonable price for reduction, we have no doubt whatever of its entire success. There are mines all up and down the Inyo mountains which could furnish an abundance of galena ores for flux, though of a low grade in silver; the Hughes mines, between Lee and Cerro Gordo, for instance, easily accessible by wagon, could supply a half dozen furnaces, and with proper concentration by sluices the ore would pay alone. Could the furnace men get the rich Ygnacio silver ore to reduce no further supply in that class need be looked for, but plenty of rock could be had from the San Benito, San Lucas, La Despreciada, Osceola, Wittekint, Crowning Glory, Italy and others—assuming that fair prices will be paid, thus inducing owners and prospectors to go to work.

NEW FIRM.—Messrs. Matlack & McInnis have leased Uncle Abe Parker's well-known blacksmith shop in town, and have formed a co-partnership for the purpose of conducting the business.

Reply to "James Crack."

BISHOP CREEK, January 17.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Your correspondent from Round Valley, Mr. James Crack (by the way, a gentleman I never heard of), styling himself "Jim," said something that we of Bishop Creek are not going to stand. Speaking of us he says: "If there was music sweet in the meeting houses, no matter how indifferent the preaching, the reverends would always find full houses, whereas they now bitterly complain of empty benches." If he designs that for Bishop, it lacks nothing but truthfulness. I attend the preaching of both reverends, and there is no lack of hearers. To be sure, we find men dead in the sage brush frequently, and have assaults to kill occasionally, with other like moral pastimes, but we go to church. If designed to apply generally, he has made a very dangerous statement if he wishes to be thought a reliable correspondent. Of course he would not venture such a statement without first perusing the newspapers of the land, which he could easily do, as there are only a few thousand of them. If designed to apply to "James'" own locality, I retract all I have said. On hearing that the "schoolmaster was abroad" one reverend did venture up that way to give them some of the "however indifferent," and after a few trials returned "bitterly complaining of empty benches." Just what effect his hardihood had on his life insurance policy I do not know; but this I know, he does not go back any more. It is fortunate for the reverends that James does not feel as friendly towards them as towards schoolmasters, or they might come in for a share of his fulsome flattery! I wish he had not said anything about the "music of braying mules and bleating calves." Uncharitable people may laugh. Again he says "Dear me, how near heaven a man feels, how brim full of joy, while munching a dead turkey." James may think that is new religion. Not so; I read the other day in an old book of some people whose "God is their belly." Now, where a man's God is, there is his Heaven. "Rejoice, oh mountains of Hepsedam," one man has had a square meal. You cannot imagine what an effect that letter had on trade at Bishop. Consols (which means whisky straight), in spite of the vigilance of Mr. Childs, has become fearfully "crooked," and plug tobacco at Charley Stoutenborough's has advanced an inch and a half. Who can tell what effect it will have in Europe where your paper circulates? What will Bismark say? How will McMahon take it? If he takes it straight as he does his whisky, he is a goner. When it gets to Constantinople and Friund Pasha reads it to the Grand Vizier, will not that pet of John Bull, the "Sick Man of the East," take that "munching of dead turkey" as a declaration of war, and march an army into Round Valley? And then what will the little dormouse do? Be careful what you publish, and remember that "England expects every man to do his duty." CANTHARIDES.

A MONTANA Justice of the Peace doesn't splurge any when he marries a couple. He says: "Arise! Grab hands! Hitched! Six dollars!" And that is all there is to it.

ACCORDING to our Eastern exchanges very few people eat genuine butter.

OUR MONO LETTER.

BENTON, Cal., January 13.

MESSRS. EDITORS—A few lines occasionally from Rural will suffice to say that Benton, though feeble, is not dead. And if the aforesaid Rural will confine himself to the truth and ring in as many truthful changes on Benton as they do up country about a certain up country place, we opine the good readers of THE INDEPENDENT will eventually arrive at the conclusion that there are some other places besides that up country place, and that Benton is one of them. "Where is Benton?" some one may ask. Now we propose to tell you about the geographical position. Anybody up the country can see the upper (or mountain) end of the White Mountains. Well, Benton is there, or a little west of the aforesaid White Mountain range, but better described as being at or near the forks of the road, where one road leads out into Nevada and the other to Bodie. That's where Benton is and everybody knows where Bodie is.

EARLY TIMES.

Benton has been some place since 1863, that being about the time the mines were discovered here, which have proved to be true fissure veins bearing rich ore. From 1863 to 1872 the miners shipped their ore by Creaser's teams to Reno for reduction, not being able to build mills of their own. About 1872 a mill was built by a company styled W. J. Williams & Co., which proved to be a curse to the camp, as the company were a set of bilks and came here for the purpose of bilking the honest miners out of their valuable ore, which before they had been sending to Reno. But after bringing their curse upon the camp (viz.: their failure to work the ore) they left the place the worse for their enterprise. The second unsuccessful attempt at fraud upon the people was inaugurated by Bill Leet, who started in on the Williams & Co. plan. He found it would not work and then sold out to Albert Mack for exorbitant figures. But Mr. Mack and C. H. Aaron, his superintendent, proved fully equal to working this ore, and made a complete success of it, which proved a year of jubilee to the miners. Up to this time all that could be called Benton was taken out of the mines, shipped to Reno, in the shape of ore, and returned in merchandise and mining supplies. Since then the boys have a bit or two "to throw over the bar," as they say. During all this time the town has maintained a gradual, healthy growth, and the "bottom" has never dropped out of the place, and as a friend remarked, who was a mining engineer and whose business called him away, "Benton will be a flourishing mining town long after you and I are gone."

We doubt very much if a long string of how the Comanche, Diana, Kerrick, Eureka, Laura, Centennial, Lyford and dozens of other mines were progressing, and how their respective superintendents were sinking, raising, drifting, cross-cutting, leveling, stoping, tunneling, timbering and tearing the very bowels out of Mother Earth, would interest your readers, or I would give them a "game" on that topic to prove that there is really a place called Benton, and that mining is the principal business. But we do not wish to mislead the weary traveler who might accidently be going to Bodie, and get him to stop here. Neither do we wish to advance the idea to capital that Benton is the place to invest money, but we propose to move on at our gradual healthy pace, and we believe our future will be good and well developed mines, a healthy state of commerce and capital invested here be, as in times past, paying dividends.

LAKE DISTRICT

Bids fair to be a mining camp of considerable note, and we hope ere long to give a report of that place that will warrant prospectors in pointing that way, and open up mines worthy the attention of capital. At present, however, with the thermometer at 38° below zero I could not recommend Lake District as a very congenial field of labor. The citizens of Benton propose to build and equip a first-class wagon road to Lake District, via Casa Diablo, without the assistance of an assessor or capital from other portions of the county. The citizens of Bridgeport are trying to have an act passed by the Legislature authorizing the Supervisors to create a bonded indebtedness for the purpose of building a county toll road from Antelope Valley to Bridgeport, thence to Bodie, thence to Dexter's Wells. Hence the difference. But we think when business between Benton and Lake District will justify a road we will have it; and when business between Antelope Valley, Bridgeport and Bodie will justify a road worth $20,000 they will have it, and welcome, if they will not lay in ambush upon the highway and rob the tax-payers to pay for the road.

ALASKA BROKE LOOSE.

We have been having some very severe cold weather, the mecury standing 10° above zero. At Belleville, Columbus and Marietta the weather has been unmercifully cold for the last few days, the mercury ranging from 8° to 10° below zero, and a great many cases of frozen limbs are reported, some of a very serious nature. Cattle and sheep in Fish Lake Valley are dying by the band, and hay is worth U. S. gold coin. But the weather in Aurora and Bodie is said to be unusually pleasant for that altitude.

PERSONAL.

T. J. Hubbard arrived about ten days ago. Tom takes charge of the Indian Queen mill and mine at Hutch's Canyon. Geo. H. Badger returned a few days ago from San Francisco. Mr. McKennard, Creaser & Milliner's bookkeeper, arrived a few days ago. Billy Edmundson has arrived from the East where he has been visiting his people. Jacob Baker, father of J. E. Baker, arrived here last week. Mrs. Holbrook, of Wyoming Territory, arrived a short time ago. She being the first wife of G. W. Hightower, deceased, she proposes in behalf of her heirs to contest the right of the second Mrs. Hightower to administer on the estate.

Creaser & Milliner have just opened a large stock of general merchandise and propose in a measure to check a monopoly in that line, and give people at least a choice of two places. A double-headed New Year's ball occurred here on New Year's eve. One originated by the aristocracy the other by sociable people. The former died in its swaddling clothes. RURAL JACOB.

The Noble-Fenton Tragedy.

We extract the following from the Darwin News, some of the testimony taken and the verdict found by the Coroner's jury in the recent killing at the New Coso station, some seven miles this side of Darwin, mentioned in this paper last week:

Mrs. F. R. Fenton, sworn: My name is M. E. J. F. Fenton; age 34 years; I reside at the New Coso station, distant about seven miles from the town of Darwin, County of Inyo, State of California. Yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock, I saw Charlie Noble, the teamster, coming up the road, and Mr. Fenton was coming down the ditch on horseback at the same time; he got to the corral first. I went down to the corral and got some potatoes when the team came in; the teamster was unhitching his mules, and Mr. Fenton tossed me the papers of the jockey box, and I went up to the house and pared the potatoes for supper. I went out toward the chicken corral to throw them out to the pigs. I heard Mr. Fenton cursing, and then I heard Charlie say distinctly, "I don't want any trouble with you, Fenton; let it drop where it is." Mr. Fenton said in a very loud voice, and quite distinctly, "G—d d—n you, I'll cut your bloody heart." Then I heard a pistol shot, and Mr. Fenton threw his hands up and said "Oh!" and then I heard another shot and he said "Oh, Minnie!" I ran to the corral for I knew there was trouble. Charlie came towards me and said, "Mrs. Fenton, I am sorry, but could not help it; he came at me with a knife and I had to do it." Charlie then asked if he should go after the boys and I said no. I told him to go to Darwin and send Henry. I went down to the gate and said, "Horatio, can't you get up? can't you speak to me?" Charlie got on his mule and came to Darwin. The cause of the trouble was, that Mr. Fenton thought he was going to be discharged from the station; he had done things unlawful and he thought Mr. Noble was employed by Mr. Lott to watch him; he also threateded to kill Mr. Lott and Mr. Nadeau if he was discharged, and had also threatened to kill me if I told anything about it. Mr. Fenton told me that if ever he found out that Charlie Noble ever told Mr. Lott anything about him, that he would kill him (Charlie Noble); that he wanted to stay there until the first of May, and that he was bound to do so, even if he had to kill every one who came around. Mr. Fenton has threatened my life and others repeatedly. I have been afraid of my life for weeks. After my husband was killed I went down to him and saw a knife in his hand [knife exhibited to witness]; that looks very much like it. His name was Horatio Reed Fenton, aged about 39 years; a native Jamestown, Chautauqua county, New York.

VERDICT OF THE JURY.

We, the undersigned, jurors summoned to appear before A. J. Gould, Justice of the Peace and Acting Coroner of the Sixth Township, County of Inyo, State of California, at the town of Darwin, in the said Sixth Township, county and State aforesaid, on the tenth day of January, A. D. 1878, to inquire into the cause of the death of H. R. Fenton, having been duly sworn according to law, and having made such inquisition, after inspecting the body and hearing the evidence adduced, upon our oaths each and all do say, that we find the deceased was named Horatio Reed Fenton, was a native of Jamestown, Chautauqua county, New York, aged about 39 years; that he came to his death on the ninth day of January, A. D. 1878, by gunshot wounds from a pistol fired the hand of Charles Noble, and that shooting was justifiable, and necessarily in self defence.

ARTESIAN WELLS.—Artesian wells number 1,000 in California. Of these 300 are in Santa Clara Valley, fifty miles from San Francisco. Most of them overflow the surface, and the tubes average seven inches in diameter. The local resources of artesian water are now mapped out. Under the valley runs a broad river coming from the great lakes of the Sierras 200 miles off. The pressure from 6,000 feet elevation suffices to throw the water above the surface. The depth of the bore runs from 160 to 250 feet. Outside the boundaries of this subterranean river (several miles wide) no depth of boring has struck artesian water. There is reason to believe that every valley in the State has an underground river, leading direct from the same lakes, and lying below the superficial currents that have no direct connection with any elevated reservoirs. This makes them artesian. The name is derived from Artesium, the ancient name of Artois, in France, where the first flowing water was obtained in a well.—S. F. Corr. Baltimore Sun.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 19,.....1878.

IT is noted that probably the oldest settler in the State is Peter Storm, who arrived in California in '33. He was the maker of the famous "bear flag" of Sonoma, when, in 1846, the citizens of that place declared that California should be an independent State. The flag was made of cotton cloth, on which Storm painted with berry juice, by the means of a blacking brush, a rude portrait of a grizzly bear. The emblem is now in the possession of the Pioneer Society of San Francisco, and is always brought out on all notable occasions.

WHEN a steamboat gets aground in any of the Western rivers, she waits until she gets the fever and ague and then shakes herself off.

A MAN who had a scolding wife being asked what he did for a living, replied that he kept a hot house.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 10.

MESSRS. EDITORS.—Ding-a-ling goes the front bell. "That's the mail carrier, I know," says Helen, as she bounds out of her chair, tosses aside her embroidery, and runs to the window to take a coy peep through the half closed blinds. "I was certain Bob wouldn't let another day pass without sending me a letter. Oh, yes, here it is—thank you, Jane—isn't a heavy one, though; bless his heart, he always did write good long letters, and now that he is in Italy he will have so much more to tell me about the sunny hills and beautiful galleries — 'Hotel D'Elosa, Florence, Italy, December 4, 1877. My Dear Helen: Here I am at last in Florence—that ideal Mecca to which I have been journeying for so many days, &c. &c.' "

Little by little Helen's voice died away, and soon the contents of the letter from her Bob was only to be interpreted by the tell-tale blushes which came and went on her beautiful face. She was so wrapt up in what she read that one could have envied her her happiness. That letter was truly a sorcerer. It has come all the way across the seas from far away Italy to the very house where Helen lived without accident. But suppose there had been an error in the direction then Uncle Sam would have taken it, and having first pronounced it "dead," would have buried it among the other dead letters in the great sepulchre he keeps for that purpose. Every day of precious and important letters go astray, and hundreds of hearts are made sick by hope deferred. In the early colonial times, so the old yellow pamphlet in the Department archives tells us, great pains were taken to recover letters which had been lost. A letter in those days was an expensive affair; paper cost a great deal, and the postage was considerable, ranging from twenty-five cents even up to one dollar; to say nothing of the annoyance of having to whittle out your own pen from the quill and impressing on the back the immense seal so customary in those long gone days, and the imagination pictures the writers who years ago have crumbled into dust whence they came.

From November, 1777, to December, 1789, all the letters that then went astray are recorded in a book of forty-five pages. This covers a period of twelve years. A marked contrast is evident when it is known that for the year 1877 more than of dead letters were received by the Postoffice Department. For the handling of this immense number fifty-nine ladies and twenty-nine gentlemen are employed. It is an easy matter to talk about a millions of letters, but when it is understood that each particular one has to be separated, handled, marked, inspected, and the majority opened and returned to the writers, the magnitude of the work can be imagined if not appreciated. When a letter is misdirected or the postage has not been pre-paid the postmaster immediately sends it to the Dead Letter Office with the other letters which have not been called for. Here they are opened by the gentlemen who sit at long table in the large, cheerful room. If anything valuable is contained in them they are handed over to another division, where their contents are registered and placed in a large safe for future redemption. If there is nothing in them of value, they are sent up stairs, where the ladies inspect them, and if the address of the writer is found the letter is enclosed to the person by whom it was written. If the letter has been held for postage, a circular is sent to the person to whom it is addressed, informing him that there has been received at the Dead Letter Office a letter directed to him which will be forwarded upon receipt of the necessary postage. To this circular the Department receives many very funny replies. If no response is made within thirty days it is treated as an ordinary dead letter.

THE GREAT AMOUNT OF MONEY

passing through the mails can be imagined when out of the dead letters alone—a small percentage—over $50,000 in money and more than a million and a half in drafts and commercial paper was taken within the last year. All but about $5,000 of this has been returned to the writers. A great share of this comes from the mis- or non-directed letters. People seem to be so intent on what goes into the letter they forget the superscription. It is a sad thought when one reflects upon the vast amount of suffering that comes from this neglect. Here, for instance, is an illustration—an exact copy of a letter received at the office not long since.

"My Dear Mag—i resieved your verry wilkim letter yestuday it gave me grate ease of mind to hear are well as this leaves me in at present, thank God."

The writer then adds a sad story of disappointment and disaster, and finished by saying: "I send you ten dollars for you need it more than I do."

Poor Mag! The $10 for which she longed and waited has gone into Uncle Sam's rich purse—not from choice, but from necessity.

are treated in a very diplomatic manner, and are in all cases returned across the water without being opened. America seems to be a perfect geographical enigma to foreigners when they direct letters to friends here. They mix all the States and cities up in one grand mess, and then put a considerable amount of the mixture on each letter. For instance, one address reads as follows: "Ole Anderson, Rockaway citi, Pa. North Amerika, New York." Who will undertake to forward that letter? And yet the dwellers across the sea probably make no more mistakes of this kind than we Americans, for how many of us fully understand all the geographical localities of the minor cities and provinces of Germany or Sweden, or, in fact, any country on the continent?

In the gallery are seated forty or fifty ladies whose business it is to return the letters in official envelopes to the writers when their address can be found. Every day the huge sacks which go forth from that place crammed with letters show the amount of work which the ladies do. One handsome young lady is kept busy all the day stamping the envelopes, and she does it with lightning rapidity. It is said these ladies are the best readers of bad writing in the country, and it is not to be wondered at when one sees some of the specimens of their work. The average lady reader will probably think that it must be "too funny for anything" to be continually reading other people's love letters; but even gold tarnishes with much handling, and so it is with reading other folk's letters when it has to be done at the rate of from twenty to fifty an hour, day after day, and month after month.

A WONDERFUL RESURRECTION.

A few months ago an application was received for a letter which had a famous history. Forty-two years ago it missed its destination and landed in the Dead Letter Office. No call was made for it, and there it remained in the archives until the descendants of the writer, wishing to prove their right to his property, obtained from old journals the information that the deed had been mailed at such a time to such a person, but had never reached its destination. They made application to the Department for the letter. The odds were so greatly against them their surprise must have been boundless when the old yellow document was returned to them just as it had been mailed over forty years ago.

DON SANZA CABRAL AGAIN.

Many will remember the great sensation caused by the account of the "Diamond King" (a fictitious character created by Mr. Wm. H. McElroy, of the Albany Evening Journal). Papers all over the country published the account and, as a consequence, hundreds of letters addressed to him came to the Dead Letter Office, and were afterward returned to McElroy as the only living representative of the aforesaid Don. In his application for them he says: "I do not wish these letters for publication, but would value them for file in my scrap-books, as illustrating in a marked and unique manner the success of 'The Brazilian Wedding,' an extravaganza directed at the follies of modern life."

The writers of these letters represented every degree of life; all, with American directness, asked for donations from him for this purpose or that purpose. Some even enclosed a postage stamp or a photograph, only to have the clerks who returned these letters wonder at their credulity.

A ROMANCE.

Every day there comes with the list from Philadelphia a letter enclosed in a plain envelope and addressed in the delicate chirography of a woman, to "Edward P. Ewing," simply this and nothing more. The lady never signs anything but her initials, hence the letters cannot be returned to her. Here is the subject for a romantic novel. One can imagine a broken hearted woman every day sending a letter out into the world to her lost lover, in the vain hope that some day it may reach his hands. She does not know his wherabouts, so she sends her letter out directed anywhere, nowhere, hoping, yet despairing of its ever reaching him.

THE MUSEUM

has been given up owing to the lack of room. Major Dallas, the genial chief of the office, is making every endeavor to have it reopened, but there seems to be little chance of his success until Congress takes some active interest in the matter. In the museum one of the most interesting features would be the immense photograph album, which is a great study of itself. As your correspondent left this interesting place he couldn't help thinking how much trouble and sadness would be averted if people would only direct their letters in a "loud" hand, as Pat did when writing to his deaf grandmother, making the superscription plain and full, or if this does not suit the ladies, let them always add their addresses to their letters and they will never be lost. The Decline of Nations—The Danger of Too Much Wealth.

Alexander D. Anderson has just issued a work on that portion of the North American continent known formerly as New Spain, and which includes California, Arizona, New Mexico and Nevada. One part of the book deals with the gold and silver product of the country which the author treats of. Included in the rest is an account of the treasures which Montezuma lavished upon Cortez and his command to conciliate them, as recounted by Bernal Diaz, a soldier under Cortez. He tells how the army of Cortez was met, while on its way to the capital of the Aztecs, by an embassy accompanied by one hundred Indian porters, each bearing splendid gifts. We will mention two of these presents. One was "a round plate about the size of a wagon wheel, representing the sun, the whole of the finest gold and the most beautiful workmanship—a most extraordinary work of art, which, according to the accounts of those who weighed it, was worth some 20,000 gold pesas. The second was a round plate even larger than the former, of massive silver, representing the moon, with rays and other figures upon it, being of great value." Then there were casques filled full of gold dust; there were golden birds and animals, life-size; there were chains and collets, and golden trinkets of all kinds, of exquisite workmanship and inestimable in value. The proffered gifts only the more excited the cupidity of the Spaniards, and they pursued their march until they despoiled the Tytic king of his treasures and robbed him of his empire. At that time Spain excelled all other nations of the earth in wealth and grandeur. For a hundred years after the conquest of Mexico a steady stream of treasure in gold and silver flowed, and was discharged into the lap of Spain from Mexico and South America. But justice, if slow, is ever sure in her inviolable decrees. There came a time when Spain learned that manhood in man and virtue in woman could not be bought with gold. The terrible men which Cortez led into Mexico and Pizarro called around him to storm the capital of the Incas, had all passed away, and there were none to fill their places. Isabella was dead, and her severe court had changed into one of the most licentious courts in Europe. Money was so plentiful that it was not valued; honest labor began to be despised; then young men began to learn to live without work, and young girls caught in the art of wearing rich robes and of keeping their hands white and soft without labor. In the country the inhabitants grew fewer and fewer, while the people of the cities increased wonderfully. At last war came, and it was found that the armies of Spain were no longer invincible—no, not even formidable—while almost in a day her great Armada was swept from the sea. Her colonies dissolved their allegiance from the mother land, and there was no power to regain them. Her schools perished; as her manufactories had all been suffered to go to decay, her wealth was exhausted in purchasing luxuries, until at last it was apparent that Spain was one of the weakest and poorest kingdoms in Europe. Montezuma and the Inca were at length avenged. In our own land our treatment of the Indians has been about as bad as was that of the Spaniards. We have killed them and taken their country without giving them an equivalent for it. We have gathered much gold and silver; we have learned to be unsatisfied with what was looked upon as an ample fortune fifty years ago; our young men are growing to despise work, and some of the most beautiful girls of the land are learning to dream unwisely of rich robes and jewels and fair hands. The cities are growing faster than the country, and even now every five men who toil support some healthy vagrant who lives by his wits. Are we not as a nation going very swiftly down the path which Spain trod? Spain did not stop until she reached utter degradation—a point where she was the pity and the scorn of the earth. Can anyone say we are a hundred years behind that same point ourselves?—Virginia Enterprise.

IT was noticed that the doctor's step was a trifle unsteady as he approached the bed upon which the sick lady lay. Reaching the bedside he proceeded to examine her pulse. In fumbling about under the bed-clothes with both hands, searching for the lady's wrist, he accidentally got hold of his own, when, placing his fingers on the pulse and noting the beats for a moment, he said: "Madam, your case is plain—you're drunk."

A GOOD deal of inconvenience is caused to hotel keepers by the vagaries of suicides, who are in the frequent habit of engaging a room for the simple purpose of shuffling off the mortal coil quietly, comfortably and without disturbance from the outer world, but, with the selfishness of sorrow, wholly oblivious of the inconvenience they may cause to their hosts after death. Some have the face to leave a note apologizing for the trouble they must inevitably occasion, but this is little satisfaction to poor Boniface. Generally, it is the humbler class of hostelery that is selected as a jumping off spot, but now even the Palace Hotel is coming into notice in the same way, and a Boston man, wearied of life, selected it as a good place to swallow laudanum in. And now the beautiful clerks are sad and thoughtful; the diamond pins sparkle with less aggressive lustre from their rumpled bosoms, and they scan all who register with a world of speculation in their pensive eyes as they assure the incoming guest that opium in all forms can be obtained on application, free of charge and warranted harmless in its effects. Hotel clerks are mortal after all, and cannot bear too much prosperity. The suicide of that Boston man has totally unnerved them. —S. F. Stock Report.

CHARLES NAPIER, an Englishman of good standing in science, has been testing the theory that alcoholic drink is compatible with animal food, but not with farinaceous. He announces, as the practical result of many experiments, that a vegetable diet is a remarkable help to the cure of drunkenness. He mentions the case of an old man, whose constitution had been shattered by repeated attacks of delerium tremens, and who was cured of his appetite for liquor in seven months by eschewing meat.

THE Cabinet has given some attention to the Chinese question and has arrived at the conclusion that the control of the coolie traffic is not a matter for legislation, but that the State department alone must take the matter in hand.

MINERALS.—A. B. Paul, Chairman of the Committee on Minerals to be sent to the French Exposition, has compiled a catalogue of 585 specimens which have already been secured. The Committee desire to increase the list to more than 5,000 specimens. The collection would, of course, include samples of all the more important minerals found on the West Coast, from Alaska to Central America. The San Francisco Bulletin says that "it is in this department that the most important exhibit of our resources will be made. Probably nothing sent from the United States to the Paris Exposition will attract more attention or enlist more interest than a complete collection of the minerals of this Coast." The estimated expense of making a complete collection and placing the same on exhibition in Paris is not less than $5,000, but even if the State makes no appropriation for the purpose such a sum could be raised without difficulty. There ought to be some understanding among our Inyo mine-owners in regard to securing a representation of minerals—the making of such a display as no other county could make, in the interest of themselves and the whole coast. In every mining center there should be a depot established for the reception of specimens, in charge of such honest and capable men who will readily enlist themselves in the work. It would become their duty to carefully pack with each piece its description—name of mine and character of mineral, with its assay or approximate value per ton, for the convenience of Mr. Hanks or Mr. Paul of the State Commission, who will finally label, arrange and classify the collection by catalogue. Such pieces as the owners wish to keep will be returned, those donated will finally go to make up a permanent State cabinet. The effort will return to this country a hundred fold more than its cost in money, time and trouble. And in the absence of others to take in hand the business of receiving, marking, packing and shipping the minerals, THE INDEPENDENT will undertake the work if generally agreeable. Where the exhibitors have them, duplicates might be sent, to remain on exhibition at this office. We are not as yet fully authorized to say so, but are none the less convinced that our local stage companies will make no charge for transporting specimens to this office from any part of Inyo or Mono counties.

WITH so many things in current events that don't please people, it becomes all the more a comfort to note something that does meet with general approbation: in this category comes the statement that "a vigorous movement is on foot to secure the intervention of Congress in behalf of its Gentile interests of Utah." Bills have been introduced, one in the Senate by Christiancy, and the other in the House by Mr. Luttrell, to abolish female suffrage in the Territory, to prevent polygamists from serving on juries to try cases of polygamy, to provi le for a secret ballot, and to otherwise secure fair elections.

IN spite of the general favorable attitude of the Southern Representatives on the silver bill, Lamar and Hill, the two leading Senators from the South, have both prepared speeches against the Bland silver bill. A vote on a motion to refer the bill to the Judiciary Committee defined the position of several Senators, and a careful canvass of the Senate leads to the belief that the full vote will fall short of two-thirds. But by a later vote the silver men claim one more than two-thirds.

THE idiot Kearney, who heads the so-called workingmen of San Francisco, has been arrested divers times, yet as soon as His Honor Judge Ferral gets a lick at him he is free; meantime conflagrations ad nauseum are threatened. We think this agitator should be Wellock-ed up. Kearney not be?

THE wharf at San Buenaventura was badly damaged by heavy seas on the 15th instant, some 300 feet of it being washed out, and the wharves at Santa Barbara, Carpenteria and Moore's Landing were carried away.

IT has been found by experiment at Milan that at a distance of 1,000 miles the telephone can transmit spoken words in a soft tone, and that the tone of the voice can be distinguished.

THE Carson Valley News says there is some probability that a telegraph line will be built from Genoa to Bridgeport, Bodie and Aurora within a few months.

LIEUT. GOV. J. W. ADAMS, of Nevada, was on the 16th instant married to Miss Emma Lee, of Corsicana, Texas, at the latter place. Bully for Jewett.

THE "TRUE INWARDNESS."

Register R. M. Briggs left us a few days ago, and went northward, presumably in pursuance of his long and feverishly cherished intention of taking up his abode in that remarkably accessible city where very ignorant people think the "Bodie" Standard is published. That paper tells us: "R. M. Briggs, the gentleman who experienced so much difficulty in disengaging himself from the recently deceased land office at Independence, left here yesterday for his home in Jackson, Amador county * * but will probably return this place as his permanent home." How much this last clause reminds us of things before. Who among our Inyo readers but must recall many similar expressions of intentions by the same aged gentleman, but with respect to this very locality in which we write, not the place where the Standard is regularly published by snow-shoe process. Who will soon forget the really eloquent panegyrics lavished upon this very section by this same Mr. Briggs — its illimitable mineral resources, its great agricultural extent, its hundreds, nay, thousands, of gold and silver mines to be developed, to be patented, its tens of thousands of desert, likewise, fertile lands that must, ere while, gladden even aged eyes with the sight of hundreds of ever so smiling homes. Above all, what a climate we had, also, what a future for us—when we get a high school on its legs at Camp Independence. Here should his, Mr. Briggs', home be, here should he cast his lines if he never got a nibble. His ambitions were not on his own account to accumulate gold and silver, nor for political preferment—no, lapse of decades had obliterated every incentive to action for mere personal motives of that kind. In the interest of others only did he desire to be honored with a position in which he could do much by needed legislation to build up a country in which his home was to be ever more, in which not even the oldest and most inveterately ragged pioneer in sage-brush land could feel a more perfect identity of future interest than did he, all these base electioneering accusations that he was simply a carpet-bagger in our midst to the contrary notwithstanding. So, to lessen chances of failure in working up this needed legislation, or rather, to enhance his own chances of looking after this legislation himself, he said in public speeches he never would vote for Sargent, never—just as if it was Mr. Sargent and not Mr. C., of this paper, who was to blame for Mr. Briggs being a candidate for the Legislature. All this occured during and previous to the last election, the most virulent attacks of praise of our section finding expression just prior thereto. People were greatly delighted to find out they dwelt in a country of such promise—but mostly went and voted for Moffatt, and thereby lost their land office, also cured every symptom of those panegyrics and lost a most enthusiastic citizen. All this has a bearing upon another article we find in the same paper, an extract or two from which we here submit;

Of course the Standard, which has an extended circulation in Inyo county, could have exposed the true inwardness of the whole game long ago, but out of charity for the INDEPENDENT man * * thus far refrained from telling what we know about the affair. Now in justice to our readers in Inyo county we are compelled to tell a tale which the INDEPENDENT has not the honesty or enterprise to relate.

Here follows the astounding revelalations: first, that some time early last Fall, R. M. Briggs, "then Land Commissioner [as the sapient Standard man puts it] of the Independence Land Office resigned his position;" second, that he recommended "Mr. Chalfant, editor of THE INYO INDEPENDENT, as his successor;" third (and true inwardness of the whole thing), "that the Washington Derpartment [when was that Department established?] had heard of the latter gentleman, as no attention was paid to the request." That was showing a good deal of disrespect to the gentlsman who submitted the recommendation, seems to us—but that "Washington Department" never was very polite. Fourth: "Mr. Briggs, seeing that his resignation would not be accepted while accompanied by such a recommendation, and also failing to secure the appointment of another recommendation, finally wrote to Washington urging the utter uselessness of a land office at Independence."

We regret to say it, but somebody has wilfully mistated at reast one fact in the last quottation. Mr. Briggs never did recommend either Mr. Chalfant or Mr. Bennett, the other gentleman referred to, until weeks after he himself had announced the fact that his own resignation had been accepted, therefore the deduction drawn in that connection in the quoted sentence is utterly false, but is material only as showing the duplicity that is revealed in the italieised words, and that has characterized the entire underground transaction. We dislike exceedingly to use such harsh expressions touching the conduct of any man, much less one for whom we had many reasons to wish to respect and sustain as a friend. Had this community received the slightest hint from Mr. Briggs that he should in any manner advise the removal or abolishment of this office, or that he had any reason to anticipate that such a move was in contemplation, he could have left us bearing some degree of respect. But not a hint even of his own views in the matter was ever given to our knowledge. In view of the admissions now given in the article from which we quote, and the secrecy that had been previously been maintained in relation to the same, it is clear that Mr. Briggs, either through pique at the result of the election, or of personal disagreements with individual citizens here, together with collusion with mining or land grabbers elsewhere, went quietly to work from the very date he resolved to resign and change his place of business to promote the removal of the land office as a punishment on the people of Inyo, according to the programme he had announced in Benton. It will be noted that his influence for evil is more marked than for good. Weeks after his resignation had been tendered, and as we truly believe, not less than a month after it had been accepted, Mr. Chalfant, of this paper, in the line of his business of obtaining news of public interest, inquired of Mr. Briggs who was likely to be his successor. He said he did not know; probably some clerk from Washington would be sent out to take charge. "Did you recommend no one?" "No one; I don't know anyone who will take it." Mr. C. then said that rather than have the business, or the office itself suspended he would take the position, if no one else would, and furnish a room for the office—or would do the latter anyhow—if Mr. Briggs would take the trouble to submit the recommendation, together with a brief statement of possible bearing, of which more sometime hereafter: that he (Mr. C.) did not care enough about the place on his own account to so much as write even one line to obtain it, and would not take any further trouble about it whatever. And now we assert without qualificaiion, that so little importance did Mr. C. attach to the matter of his own appointment from that hour down to the removal of the office he never again referred to it to any man whomsoever. And yet this is the wonderful secret now divulged with such an overpowering flourish by this astute Nevada editor. This excrutiating disappointment we have suffered explains, according to Mr. Briggs and the "Bodie" genius in recent conclave assembled, "the bitterness, and the length of the land office editorials of THE INDEPENDENT man." Isn't it astonishing what deep and well sustained deductions a pair of intelligent men, working sweetly together, can evolve? Here, in this revelation concerning our individual disappointment, the Standard man finds not only an answer to our every argument against this removal, but also a fair justification for the perpetration of the swindle itself. How long is it going to take the editor of the Standard to see that his half-peck measure will not gauge honest mens' bushels?

Subsequent to the above mentioned incident Mr. Briggs stated to Mr. Bennett that he hardly knew what he was to do with the office yet under his control, as he must leave, and there was no one seemed to want it. Thereupon Mr. B., pretty much as Mr. C. had done, agreed to accept it, so he also became a contingent candidate, but has never written any editorials on the subject to excite the inventive faculties of the Aurora gentleman. Leaving him to draw his own deductions from these few brief remarks we submit this part of the question, but will hereafter add a chapter telling what we know about the appointing system for this land office—how one Register tried to steal all our "swamp" lands, how the next did steal every cent of fees and blackmail all he got his hands on, and finally, how the last stole the office itself, bag and baggage.

THE Chinese newspapers represent that a lamentable condition of affairs exist in that celestial country. In one of the northern provinces thousands of people are dying daily from famine. The living turn cannibals and feed on the emaciated dead. In many cases the strong kill the weak for food. All the horrors prevail which such a calamity brings to the heathenish people. Civil wars, drought and general mismanagement have helped impoverish the country. The credit of the Empire is not good, and the government is becoming discouraged at the ugly state of affairs. It is not unlikely that ere long we shall have a general flow of Chinese immigrants to the country. Even the reports of abuse and ill-treatment that returning Celestials complain of and carry to Chinese shores, will hardly deter the pig-tails from flocking in droves to this country ere long, unless prevented by law.

THE Carson Valley country has been visited by a terrific wind storm, which destroyed fences, bridges, flumes and upset stage coaches. Next best thing to one of the regular Western tornadoes.

THOSE "LABORING" MEN.

The labor troubles in San Francisco are assuming a serious aspect. Mayor Bryant has issued a proclamation forbidding meetings of men "who threaten to commit offenses against the property and lives of the inhabitants of the city and county," declaring that such assemblages are unlawful, etc., and that "such asssemblies, whether held in halls, on the streets, or on sand-lots, will be suppressed, and the supremacy of the law and order resolutely maintained." And to this end the militia are kept in their armories ready to enforce this proclamation; no doubt, too, the federal troops in the adjacent fortifications are constantly kept well in hand in readiness for any possible emergency demanding their services.

Meantime some of the self-constituted leaders of the Workingmen—Kearney, Wellock and Knight, particularly—are now undergoing trial in a criminal court for conspiracy. While it is a matter of much uncertainty about any of them being found guilty of anything in particular, it would seem that the developments of the trial, especially as to the real character and motives of these men would have a tendency to cause every real workingman and true citizen to withdraw at once and forever from such contemptible but dangerous leadership. It does not appear that either of these men are of those suffering for lack of rumererative employment themselves. Wellock, who is not even a naturalized American citizen, and but a few months in the country, says he has no motive or interest in promoting this Communist agitation other than a desire to help in a reform in favor of the people under whatever Government he may be sojourning and finds reform needed; that China labor does not interfere with his personal interests in the least, nevertheless, as an Englishman who proposes soon to become an American citizen, he knows that such creatures must not be countenanced by a free Government in any manner whatever, and to prevent that is the sole object of his individual concern in the business; that, to carry out these ideas, he does not propose to drench the land in blood until after some Returning Board has defrauded the Workingman's Party of the fruits of a victory they are certain to gain by peaceful ballot; then and not before does he and his friends propose to go forth to kill and slay; until then they shall not destroy Nob Hill, or hang any Legislators, or anything of that kind, only that the last Chinaman must take to the sea, peaceably if they will, knife, rope and guns if need be.

Kearney, who really seems to be such a simpleton one would think his kind could not command a corporal's guard of followers for any purpose whatever, is the real leader in the movement, but has less to recommend him as such than even this recently imported Englishman, save that he has had a year's citizenship with its knowledge of our principles of Government to give him the right to lead native born citizens in a movement, as he proposes to conduct it, designed to stultify the very first principles of free government, in so far that he designs to accomplish a measure of reform in our politcal economy, not as needed reforms have always been, and, until anarchy comes, must ever be brought about: viz. by peaceful means, but by an appeal to brute force—a Communistic, bloody revolution, if need be. A fool, indeed, he must be who can even hint at such a bloody alternative at this era in experimental free government, and worse fools are they who permit such creatures as this Wellock and Kearney to take them by the nose and lead them to inevitable ruin.

In this we wish to distinctly say that, so far as we understand the ostensible object and principles and necessities for a united effort, those of the Workingman's Party have our most hearty sympathy; the character of the leadership, and the means they advocate by which to accomplish an end of so little concern to themselves, are what we condemn.

WE of Darwin are ready to do our share in whatever is necessary to assist in special legislation for our county, particularly as regards hospital matters. But we must acknowledge that we don't know what ails the hospital fund, nor how crooked it is.—Darwin News.

The hospital fund is seriously ailing. The last warrant redeemed bears date of August 2, 1875. The fund is $11,500 behind, exclusive of interest; its warrants when drawn are worth about 60 cents on the dollar, and the county is therefore paying about two dollars for one dollar's worth of service. The remedy is for the Legislature to authorize a current hospital fund and one to provide for redemption of warrants outstanding either by payment or purchase. The levy has been up to the maximum of 25 cents, but the Board of Supervisors have the power to levy a hospital poll tax, however, in aid of the fund—which plan may be pursued, in the absence of a better one provided by our Representative.

RIGHTS OF STOCKHOLDERS ON CORPORATIONS.—As the matter is of some importance, herewith is appended the bill passed by the Senate, and likely to become a law, amending section 307 of the Civil Code, in relation to corporations:

"All elections must be by ballot and every stockholder shall have the right to vote in person or by proxy the number of shares standing in his name, as provided in section 312 of this Code, for as many persons as there are Directors to be elected, or to cumulate said shares and give one candidate as many votes as the number of Directors multiplied by the number of his shares of stock shall equal, or to distribute them on the same principle among as many candidates as he shall think fit. In corporations having no capital stock each member of the corporation may cast as many votes for one Director as there are Directors to be elected, or he may distribute the same among any or all of the candidates. In either case, the Directors receiving the highest number of votes shall be declared elected."

Senator Pierson, the author of the bill, explained that the bill establishes the principle of minority representation in the election of directors of corporations. Thus, if stock of a company consisted of 100 shares, and five directors, any person or persons owning twenty shares could elect one director. With forty shares two could be elected. It prevented any one man or number of men controlling a bare majority of the stock from electing the whole directorate. The principle contained in the bill is part of the Constitution of Illinois, and no corporation could be established, except under his principle of minority representation.

THE CONVENTION.—The Secretary of State has received returns from all but five counties—Alpine, Humboldt, Lassen, San Diego and Placer—of the total vote cast for a Constitutional Convention, showing a majority of 741 for the measure. The Legislature, it would seem, stands in favor of providing for the Convention, having organized a joint committee of five from each house to which all bills upon the subject are referred, and which is instructed to report a bill for the purpose. The Halloway bill provides for a Convention of 120 delegates, to meet at Sacramento. The elections for delegates to take place on the third Monday in April, and the Convention meets on the third Monday in May. The time for holding the Convention is limited to 40 days, and the Constitution is to be submitted as a whole or in parts within 60 days after the adjournment of the Convention. The per diem for the delegates is fixed at $8, and the allowance to clerks at $6. Mileage is allowed at the rate of 20 cents per mile. The sum of $100,000 is appropriated for the purposes of the Act. The Pierson bill fixes the number of delegates at 200, 120 from the State Senatorial Districts, and 80 additional, divided into 20 at large from each of the four Congressional Districts. The Hart bill is similar in general terms to the one by Halloway, except that only $80,000 is appropriated for the purposes of the Convention.

VERY INTELLIGENT.—Mr. H. L. Childs, U. S. Deputy Internal Revenue Collector for this Division, writes us that the "Bodie Standard man must be remarkably well posted upon Governmental affairs." Mr. C., it appears, sent an official card to that paper notifying persons liable to special tax that his office would henceforth be at Bishop Creek. Whereupon the Aurora paper for Bodie announced the removal of the Land Office to Bishop, and proceeded to expatiate upon the impertinence of this paper in objecting to it.

AN OLD CLAIM.—Assemblyman Moffat has introduced a bill in the House for the relief of R. M. Wilson, who filled the position of County Clerk of Mono from 1861 to 1864. It provides for paying him the sum of $9,048. The claim accrued when Aurora was the county seat of Mono, before it was proven to be within the boundaries of Nevada, and the difficulty now arises whether California can be made liable for services rendered in a district outside the State line.

PERSONAL.—Estray Inyoites, we notice, generally get back to the country after a time—as in the case of Wm. Barrows, late of Cerro Gordo, who returns for a visit and possibly for business....P. Reddy, Esq., reached home from the mineral metropolis of Darwin yesterday, but we have had no opportunity so far of finding out how much or how little he knows.

ORE SPECIMEN.—Our ore collection was this morning enhanced by the presentation, from Jerry Mairs of the Headquarters saloon, of a magnificent specimen of chloride and carbonate ore from the Cactus mine, Lee District. It assays per ton in silver and gold $7,500, and as the piece weighs 1 lb 2½ oz., it contains about $4.30 in the precious metals.

IRON AND WAGON WORK.—The advertisement of Matlack & McInnis, who have leased Uncle Abe's blacksmith shop, will be noted elsewhere. Having been for years in the shop, Matlack's ability as a workman is well known, while the reputation of his partner in that line is equally good. Our old friend Woods continues in charge as the wheelright.

ANOTHER PATIENT.—A man who was injured at a late accident upon the Cerro Gordo grade by the upsetting of a brewery wagon, was this morning brought from Lone Pine to the County Hospital for treatment. Though his injuries were considered slight at the time, he now appears to be partially paralyzed. We did not learn his name.

ANOTHER BILL.—Congressman Pacheco has introduced a bill allowing occupants of lands within one mile of Camp Independence to gain title by homestead or pre-emption. This is the third effort in the same direction, other bills having failed of their object, but the conditions are now changed and the measure may go through.

INCORPORATION.—On the 16th instant the Hidalgo Mining and Smelting Company, of Darwin, filed articles of incorporation. Capital stock, $10,000,000. Directors—Jose Carrascosa, S. Heydenfeldt, J. M. Seawde, J. M. Tinoco, C. Guitierrez, J. B. Arambide and J. C. Schleiden. The principal place of business is San Francisco.

COMMENDABLE.—The town of Lone Pine, headed by Zaun, Dodge, Lucas, Begole, Phillippay, Elder, Lasky and a great many others, are fitting up in perfect shape a public cemetery lot of three acres, located southwest of town. Its preparation, fencing, etc., has cost the public spirited citizens a considerble outlay.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.—The next regular meeting of the Board of Supervisors will occur on Monday, February 4, but it is probable that an adjournment will be had until after the 10th, when Supervisor Garretson is expected home from the East.

DISBURSEMENTS.—Since the Tax-Collector's settlement some $33,000 have been disbursed to the State and toward liquidating Inyo county's indebtedness. The forthcoming report of the Auditor and Treasurer is looked forward to with interest.

SICK.—For several days past Postmaster Rowley has been seriously ill, necessitating other attendance upon the mail business. We are glad to add that Bro. J. B. is getting better to-day.

SOME OF THE BEAUTIES OF IT.—There are five new applications for mining patents now lying in the Land Office unattended to, owing to the absence of the Register.

QUIEN SABE.—If anything exciting or of momentous local interest has transpired throughout the county this week, we have been unable to learn of the fact.

MORE OF IT.—During the week a rainstorm or two and a considerable fall of snow on the mountains, where "the beautiful" is most welcome.

STATE DOCUMENTS.—We acknowledge obligations to Senator Fowler for quite a number of valuable State reports, documents, etc.

PASSED.—Moffatt's bill increasing our County Treasurer's salary to the sum of $1,800 per annum has passed the lower House.

PREACHING.—The Rev. M. W. Pratt will preach at the school house to-morrow evening, at 7 o'clock.

APPLETON'S JOURNAL for February, in pursuance of the announcement of an illustrated series of articles describing the "American at Work," has a paper on salt-making at Syracuse, accompanied with suitable engravings, the text of which is by W. H. Rideing, and the drawings by Kelly. Among the articles in the number likely to attract attention is one on "Rip Van Winkle," which is not a criticism on the character or the play, but an embodiment of a number of interviews with Mr. Jefferson, by which we have the actor's own ideas of his performance, of the character of the play and of the people that gather to listen to him; and in addition to this there are some "behind-the-curtain" views of Jefferson in his private life and his social personality. It is a fresh and readable paper. Dr. Guernsey has made a connected narrative of Stanley's recent remarkable voyage down the Congo, which is of great interest and value to all who have imperfectly followed the explorer in his letters from the field of adventure. George M. Towle writes interestingly of Dr. Schliemann's discoveries at Mycenæ. Maurice Thompson has an entertaining paper in which the pugnacious spirit of birds is described and exemplified by numerous examples. Professor Harrison, of the Washington and Lee University, gives a description of a voyage from Athens to Corfu, which is full of graphic pictures. There is a short story by Mrs. Lillian Brown; a pathetic poem by Edgar Fawcett, entitled "The Dying Actor;" and other good things. "Cherry Ripe" is concluded in one long installment; and "By Celia Arbor" gives fresh evidence of being one of the best novels of the season. The editor discusses Human Interest in Landscape Art; the latest experiments as to the influence of plants upon the atmosphere; Whittier's birthday; the quarrels of statesmen; the function of criticism, etc.

A Fight to the Death.

In Bodie on Tuesday last a shooting scrape occurred which resulted in the death of John Bresman, better known as "U. P. Jack," a notorious rough and desperado, and in probably fatal injuries to the second party to the affair, James Blair.

The two men, who had been partners in several mining claim operations, had been together during the day drinking considerably, and at about 5 o'clock in the afternoon on their way home stopped in at the Standard boarding house bar, and began an angry dispute regarding some recently made location. The proprietor of the house urged the men to go home, and Blair, who seemed to be the soberer of the two, finally succeeded in getting Bresman as far as the sidewalk, where the dispute was continued until Bresman cut it short by exclaiming that he was "chief" and wanted to fight right then and there. This Blair agreed to, telling Bresman—whose belt containing his pistol had become unfastened, and lay on the ground—to "heel" himself. Bresman buckled on his weapon, and the two men stepping about two feet apart fired at exactly the same instant, the two reports sounding like one.

Both shots took effect, but they continued firing until their revolvers—six barreled each—were emptied. Bresman then returned to the boarding house bar-room and Blair went around to the side of the house where, holding his revolver between his knees, one arm being shattered, he reloaded with one hand, returned to the bar-room and shot Bresman in the abdomen, inflicting a wound which caused his death in a short time.—Esmeralda Herald, Jan. 19.

CHARCOAL.—There are 800 coal-burners employed in the Eureka trade, 90 per cent of whom are foreigners and about 50 per cent of the latter are American citizens. With a few exceptions this force is in the employ of less than a dozen firms, two-thirds of whom are of foreign birth. The average distance that the coal is hauled by teams is 35 miles, ten companies owning the outfits. There has been consumed within the last five years 6,000,000 bushels of charcoal, and it is estimated that there is timber enough standing, within a radius of 60 miles, to produce 25,000,000 bushels. The regulation standard allows 33 bushels of coal to one cord of nut-pine wood, but this is not correct, actual experience proving that it will not produce more than 28. It will be seen that there is not quite a million cords of wood in the growth of timber on the hills and mountains, and probably one-third of this is not available. At the present rate of consumption our supply will be exhausted in eight years, allowing that every stick of growing timber can be utilized. At the price ruling in Eureka (25 cents per bushel), the article remaining to be marketed in the future has a value of $6,000,000. If the mines of Eureka District remain permanent, and do not give a larger output of ore than at present, we shall be forced to look to the dense timber growths of the Sierra Nevadas for our future supply.—Eureka Sentinel.

PAGE'S GRAZING LAND BILL.—Page has re-introduced his grazing land bill, which was originally offered by him in the 43d Congress. It recites in preamble that there are in various portions of California public lands, neither mineral, agricultural or timbered, but only fit for grazing purposes; that said lands are of little value and yield but comparatively little pasturage, and that they are mostly in possession of persons who have improved them for purposes of pasturage. The bill therefore proposes that any United States citizen who, at the date of enactment shall be in exclusive possession of grazing lands of the foregoing description, may purchase not exceeding 640 acres at fifty cents an acre, upon making oath before the Register and Receiver of the district in which the land is situated, that his purpose is not speculative, but in good faith, to appropriate it to his own exclusive use, and that he has not directly or indiretly made any agreement for alienation of title.

LEE DISTRICT.—The Emigrant Mining Company on Sunday last made its usual shipment of 87 pounds of bullion, valued at $1,650, and on yesterday shipped 80 pounds more, valued at $1,500; total for the week, $3,150. There are at least 80 tons of first-class ore on the dump ready for shipment to the mill, which assays from $150 to $175 per ton, and about the same quantity in the mine broken down. There are, also, fully 800 tons of second-class ore ready for shipment, which goes from $60 to $100 per ton. There were worked at their mill in the month of December last, 123 tons of ore, which produced an average yield of $154 50 per ton. The bullion runs from 990 to 995 fine.—Darwin News, Jan. 19.

The Sheldon Mining Company, of Snow's Cañon, last Sunday shipped its first bullion, a bar weighing 76 pounds, reported to be about one-half gold.—Ib.

How Old is Man?

The subject of Prof. Gunning's second lecture was, "Man Before Civilization; Man in the Geologic Record; Man in His Beginnings." He said that nature was not good until the coming of man. Her adjustments were imperfect. She carried in her bosom the seeds of her own death. From a number of destructive forces the speaker selected two, and showed how, in time, they would destroy the air, one taking its oxygen and the other its nitrogen. Nature had no means of restoring either of these gases to the air, and thus maintaining forever the conditions of life. Sometime, in the cycling ages, she must perish or bring forth a being who would help her.

Nature was a failure till supplemented by man. The speaker noted it as a fact of deep significance that man came in the day of nature's decline. Her fires and her fires of life were dying out. Time was when the domes and spires of the Sierra and Coast ranges were ablaze. Shasta began to "pale his eneffectual fires," Hood was quenched, Diablo darkened into a cinder. With the expiring volcanic throes that ribbed these mountains with basalt came man. Time was when this fire-girt land was fruitful in vast and varied herds. They began to die. The horse had gone, the mastodon was going, and man came. Over all the earth nature was writing the same history. The higher orders of life seemed everywhere smitten with death, when man came. Earth's hollow need was prophet of his coming. When did he come? The speaker felt his way back through the unwritten history of the race by fossils in the mind. By this method he drew out the pre-historic Indian, the pre-historic Chinaman and our own pre-historic ancestors. Through this method he reached the conclusion that man began on a continent which rests to-day on the bed of the Pacific and Indian oceans; that a wave of migration swept him into Asia; that a later wave swept him from Asia into America before the continents were rifted asunder by Behring's Straits; that another wave, and the last of all, swept him from Asia into Europe. Passing from this "geology of the mind" into geology proper, he sketched the Earth's account of man. He showed that primeval man must have prowled along the shores of oceans and lakes and banks of rivers, and he sought memorials of him in ancient shores. He drew a sketch of the region about the Comstock lode, showing that the lava which now forms the porphyry of the hanging wall flowed at its eastern rim into an arm of the sea, which filled the Carson valley. He sketched then, on the authority of Berthoud, crude implements of stone from the beach of that sea. By this showing, man is older than the Comstock lode. He might have fallen into the open, steaming fissures where now, in the closed fissure, he is delving for gold. From Nevada the speaker passed into California, and chalked out a discovery he had made in the fossil forest of Calistoga. Man was there before the trees were petrified, before the outbreak of basalt in the Coast range. He passed then into the underground history of man, and took his audience, by chalk delineations, down through an English cave. That cave was the abode of man and cave hyenas and bears, when England was as cold as Greenland now is. Older memorials show that men housed there when England was as warm as South Spain now is. The speaker had groped through these cave homes and "the centuries behind him like a fruitful land reposed." He would speak of the age of man as we speak of the age of a great cathedral; its foundations were laid in one age; its walls and pillows rose in the next. The over-spanning dome crowned them in the next. So rose this temple of the soul; its foundations were laid in the infinite past; its walls of flesh and pillars of bone rose through the rock-recorded aeons. The dome of thought crowns them at last. He had groped through these cave-homes, and

> The centuries before him
> Like a golden promise lay—

For man, so old and yet so young, holds the germ of all that is great and good; already he supplements nature and becomes a creator; his arms are laid mightily on the gray old globe to destroy and make anew.—Sacramento Record-Union.

UNIFICATION strides apace in Germany, but not without many and serious concessions to the Liberal party. At last the Kaiser has concluded to modify the tariff so as to make it reasonably protective, according to the American model, and advantageous to the whole empire, while the conduct of the finances of the nation and the direction of the railroads is to be placed in the hands of the Imperial Government. This is a great advance in the work of cementing the petty States into one great Faderland, and they are gradually becoming acceptable and even popular. There will be strenuous opposition to these reforms in some portions of the empire, but the general scheme will be carried out by giving the Liberal leaders places in the Imperial cabinet and Parliament. Many potent opposing mouths will be closed by this policy, and it is quite likely that Bismarck will live to see the realization of his magnificent dream of German unity, for these latest movements of his declare him to be master of the political situation.

THE municipal clocks of Vienna are moved in accord by means of pneumatic tubes, connected with a central clock. Every minute a wave of compressed air is sent through the tubes, causing the hands to move.

THERE are too many men trying to solve the problem of how to live without work, and this is what keeps up hard times.

A ROUGH EXPERIENCE.

WRITTEN FOR THE INDEPENDENT.

A few years ago the writer, then in Mexico, had occasion to make a journey to a mining camp some ninety miles distant for the purpose of procuring some statistics regarding a very rich mine, which was then under negotiations for sale. I was accompanied by a Mexican on foot named Sylvester, who acted as servant and guide, and as our way lay through a very rough country seldom traveled, I relied greatly on his ability as a "trail-hunter" to reach our destination. As it was an invariable custom of mine to make a rough map of the country through which I traveled, showing the trail and prominent landmarks, I was not alarmed about finding our way back in case we were lost. Fortunately we reached the camp safely without mishap, and I at once proceeded to make myself at home.

Daily I visited the mine in company with its owners, and after the lapse of two weeks, being well fortified with information in the shape of surveys, sketches, etc., I set out on my return home.

The rainy season had just set in, but I was confident of reaching home before the river and creeks I had crossed would be swollen. After traveling some fifteen miles we crossed a wide and rocky creek, and I felt some misgivings in doing so, when I observed that suspicious looking clouds were gathering near the mountain tops. I called the guide's attention to this and informed him that we must reach the old log hut that stood on the summit of the mountains before night, which was really further than we had intended to go for that night. My suspicions were correct, for before we got there we were wet to the skin. We at once made preparations for the night, brought in pine knots and logs, and soon had a roaring fire in the fire-place. There was no door; otherwise it was a substantial structure. I staked my mule where the feed looked the most inviting and then returned to the fire filled with forebodings for the morrow.

It was pitch dark and the cold rain fell in torrents. The lightning was fearful and almost incessant. Peal after peal came the thunder, and with a fearful crash an immense pine-tree was shivered into atoms by the lightning, the shock being so great and in such close proximity as to almost stun us. And what lent an almost supernatural effect was the dismal howling of the wolves. Sleep was out of the question for me. Sylvester had given himself up to it, and lay nodding and waking at every fresh boom of thunder. I reloaded my fire arms, tried to read and write in my diary, but imposable. How the long hours dragged on, and still it poured huge torrents. Suddenly I heard the mule snorting and plunging. Springing instantly to my feet and waking Sylvester, we snatched brands from the fire and arms in hand issued forth to ascertain the matter. The poor, cowering mule rushed up to us as if to seek protection from what we knew must be some wild animal. The cabin being large enough, we brought her in, and strirred the embers into a flame to frighten off unwelcome visitors. How I watched the slighest movement of the mule's ears as she snorted and gave frightened glances toward the door. And I prayed for morning, and at last it came. Cold, foggy, wet! Great pools of water and splintered trees lay in every direction, and within fifty feet of the house were the tracks of a bear in the soft, wet turf.

The rain had to a great extent obliterated our foot-marks, and I had recourse to the map quite often. It rained again that afternoon, and at night we camped about five hundred feet above the creek, whose bed was our proper trail for the distance of three miles. It was cold and damp, but we were exhausted, and after listening awhile to the roaring of the swollen creek, which was heard distinctly above the whistling of the wind as it went surging through the forest, we fell asleep.

Once more daylight came, and we hailed with pleasure the clear sky and the sunlight on the peaks of the higher mountains. I concluded to stay where we were for a few hours to see if the water in the creek, which was being the recipient of the contents of thousands of little rivulets, would subside sufficiently to make our further progress safe or practicable. So, spreading our things out in the sun to dry, I started out for an hour or two to hunt deer. After a short walk I spied a fine buck drinking from a pool, and the wind being favorable, I got within a hundred yards, when he took alarm, bounded a few feet and stopped, when I whistled a few notes long enough to give me an opportunity to aim from a kneeling position and send a bullet through his side back of the shoulders, from which he fell dead. Having unusually large and branching antlers, I wished to possess myself of them, and back I went for Sylvester to help. What was my amazement when reaching the scene of my exploit again to find that my game had been carried off by a bear and a large one at that, as shown by his immense foot-prints. His course was towards a large ravine, and as the trees were too large for us to climb, and we were anxious to pursue our journey we reluctantly (?) gave up the idea of pursuit.

Expecting a rough time in the creek, I lashed the carbines, blankets and other effects firmly to the saddle, put my papers in an oil-skin and then inside my hat, which I tied close to my head, my watch I hung by its chain around my neck, and in this shape down we went to the creek.

There was no other possible way for us to go. My heart almost failed me when I saw the angry seething foam, through which we must pick our way. To wait any longer was to increase the danger, as I knew it would be raining again ere two hours had passed. I took the bridle from the mule, and into the water we stepped. Sylvester first with a stick to sound the bottom and with one end of the lariat in his hand, then came myself holding to the rope also, which was tied to the mule's neck. We felt the rolling stones striking our legs, and with great difficulty we crossed ford after ford, and yet were only about a third of the way and the hardest was yet to come. We now entered the gorge; the mountains were almost perpendicular on either side. With more caution than ever we started straight down the creek. There were no resting places now, and the water grew deeper and swifter, and rapids fiercer and more tumultuous. Before we had gone twenty yards we were literally at the mercy of the flood—taken off our feet and dashed against half-hidden rocks. My clothing was torn from my body, and I was bleeding from innumerable cuts and bruises, and nearly strangled with the water; the poor mule fared worse; the leather was torn from the saddle, rifle, pistol, blankets and food were swept into the angry flood; she was cut severely in her breast, while the skin was torn completely off one of her knees. I climbed on a rock and, despite the swift current, sustained myself there until Sylvester, who with the mule had been carried on to shallower ground, could render assistance.

We at once made up our minds to climb the steep sides of the gorge rather than make any more attempts in the water, the result of which we felt must be drowning. We decided to leave the mule, thinking it impossible for her to follow us on account of her injuries, but the poor creature seemed to know our intentions, and struggled up the steep ascent, we occasionally lending her a helping hand. The thought then struck me we would need her for food if from our lofty destination we could not discover some ranche. With no covering save a buckskin shirt, I suffered severely; my feet were raw my bare limbs torn by cactus, and I sat down many times with the intention to give up, but the guide, who had come out of the adventure the best of all, counseled a continuance of the climb. At last standing on the summit, we discovered an Indian corn patch some eight or nine miles off! But was it not an old deserted place? We hardly dared to hope; it seemed too good to be true. Faint with exhaustion, hungry and thirsty, we prepared for the night. My light boots had been unable to withstand the water and rock, and as an impediment I had thrown them away. So we took the saddle-blanket, cut it up and wrapped it around our feet. No fire, and yet so cold. All night we lay shivering, or walking around for warmth. Hunger and thirst increasing. What a night we passed.

Morning came, and with stiffened limbs we started for the ranche. The mule followed us for a mile, and then laid down with an appealing look at us not to desert her. I knew that we must return to her if the ranch was uninhabited, and on we pushed without her. The miles seemed leagues, and when within two hundred yards of the patch we were overjoyed to see two naked little Indians playing in front of a cornstalk hut. Sylvester called out to them, and with a look of fright they rushed into the house. Out came the father and mother, and as I was scarcely presentable to a female, although she herself was very lightly clad, I crouched behind a bush, while Sylvester went into the house to explain our visit and procure a blanket or a pair of pantaloons for me to appear in. He returned accompanied by the Indian bearing a pair of boy's linen pants, such as they wear in the country. I slipped into them somehow, and being a very tight fit and short, I felt about as ridiculous as I undoubtedly looked.

The children would not come near me at first, I being the first representation of the white race that they had ever seen. The oldest boy was despatched with some corn and two gourds of water to the mule with orders to bring her in the next day. And we set down to a repast, though decidedly plain consisting of tortillas and baked squash, was the best of any partaken of in my life.

For two days we stayed here, until sufficiently recuperated to go thirty miles further on to the river, where we would stop at a large ranch called Las Huertas. Borrowing a blanket for a saddle we once more struck out and at nightfall reached our journey's end. So our host informed us, as he said it would be impossible to cross the "Rio," My heart sank at this, but as we were in good quarters it was not so very bad. I was rigged out in good shape by the owner of the ranch, who was in comfortable circumstances, and once more I felt like a white man. In fact I was made a great deal of, as it was considered quite an honor to have an Americano as a guest. For one whole week I moped about, and sat by the river bank gazing on the muddy waters as they swiftly eddied along. I was now quite strong again. Finally with a youth's impatience I decided to swim the river. Though knowing it to be a very hazardous experiment, no amount of persuasion from my host could alter my resolutron; the river once swollen would remain so until the expiration of the rainy season. He said that I would be carried down by the current and over the rapids; that my strength would fail me. But having always been accustomed to swimming, I had more confidence in myself. So I went about my preparations in the morning, and gave Sylvester the choice of staying where he was or crossing by means of a rope, after I had first got over; he chose the latter. I got several long lariats and ropes and fastened them together, and we all adjourned to the river. All the peons employed on the ranche, together with the members of the family, among whom were three women, came to see the "Gringo" cross. Undressing myself, I fastened the end of the rope around my body, and with directions to those who had charge of the rope that if I held up my hand to haul me in, I struck out boldly in a slanting direction up the river. The river was one hundred yards wide, more or less, here, but it was deep and I had no hidden snags or rocks to fear, but the current was swift and the water cold, and I was liable to be carried down to where the white foam betokened danger.

I felt myself being carried down, foot, by foot, and that the weight of the rope was seriously impeding me, but by alternately turning on my back and swimming that way for a change and rest, I finally touched bottom and stood again on dry soil, only twenty yards from the edge of the danger line. I was numb with cold, and run up and down the bank to restore circulation in my body; then I went up the bank until opposite the Mexicans on the other side, made my end of the rope fast to a large boulder, and signalled to Sylvester to cross. He had our clothes in a bundle tied on the top of his head, and as he had simply to pull himself along, he came over all right. Now for the mule. Going still higher up the river with our end of the rope, we waved for them to drive the animal into the water, we pulling on the rope at the same time. In a little while she stood dripping and shivering before us. We acknowledged the cheers of the Mexicans, and twenty miles further traveling found us at home. The Superintendent was about to start in search of us. The report I gave him was verbal, as everything I had was lost. Three days after I was taken sick, the result of overstraining the system and exposure. For one month I lay on my back. When the dry season set in again I made the same trip, though under more fortunate auspices. Thus ends a never to be forgotten chapter in my early life.

LOST FREIGHT.—The item of lost freight in railroad affairs amounts to a good deal in the course of a year. The Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago road employs four clerks to look after lost freight. Much of it is found and restored to the owners, but the losses in one year to the road amount to about $20,000. This includes goods of all kinds, principally boots, shoes and the finer grades of dry goods.

INSECTICIDE.—The Journal of Chemistry says that hot alum water is the best insect destroyer known. Put the alum into hot water and let it boil until the alum is dissolved; then apply it hot with a brush to all cracks, closets, bedsteads and other places where insects are found, Ants, bedbugs, cockroaches and creeping things are killed by it; while there is no danger of poisoning in the family or injuing the property.

A PATENT has been taken out for a protecting stern for the use of book-agents and lightning rod men. It is automatic, and spreads out a double row of spikes, like an inverted peacock tail, whenever the wearer turns to leave the house.

EUREKA Republican: Two young men conspicuous and nobby at the opera last evening, were noticed sparring for breakfast this morning.

GRANT INTERVIEWS VESUVIUS.—Grant (to Vesuvius)—Do you objeet to smoking? Vesuvius—Oh no; smoke away. I like it. I am an incorrigible smoker myself. Puff. Grant—Smoking ever make you sick? Vesuvius—Yes. I throw up a good deal, and am troubled with chronic eruptions. Grant—Ever make you nervous? Vesuvius—Makes me a little shaky sometimes. Grant—Folks complain about your smoking any? Vesuvius—Yes. But it makes no difference to me. I can't live without smoking. I smoke just as long as I please. Grant—So do I. Think it is a bad habit? Vesuvius No. I am as old as the hills, and have smoked ever since I can recollect. Grant—So have I. Only my folks complain that the tobacco scents the room. Vesuvius—Egad! I scent all Naples sometimes and the surrounding country. Grant—Got a match about you? Vesuvius—No matches, General; plenty of sulphur, though. I'm in the gunpowder line, General, like yourself. Grant Yes. Why, I fought it out on that—humph! I've heard that before. Good morning.—Graphic.

AN Omaha, Nebraska, dispatch dated January 21st says: A conspiracy to ruin a number of respectable young girls has been unearthed thereby. There were in the conspiracy a dozen men some of them being married. They were in the habit of decoying girls into offices, rooms of hotels, etc., on pretense of passing the evening in sociable games. At last the daughters of a minister and lawyer were ruined. The minister's daughter, only 15 years old, was kept away from home four days, and her whereabouts was only discovered after the most vigilant search. The arrest of five men followed, two of them being married. The parents are among the most respected citizens, and intend to push the case to the bitter end. The offenders also moved in good society.

THE Tulare Times learns that during the storm at Hanford, on the 16th inst. houses were blown down and several unroofed. The telegraph wire was blown down. Wagy & Smith's lumber yard was scattered in every direction. Considerable damage to property is reported.

THE WAR ENDED.

It seems that the Turk has accepted the terms of peace proposed by the Russian Commissioners at Adrianople, so it is now believed this terrible war has come to an end. The conditions are such as to give to Russia complete control of all the Eastern provinces heretofore dominated by Turkey, also, and most important of all to Russia, the free navigation of the Dardanelles. Russia also retains military control, as hostages, of the great fortresses of Kars and Erzeroum and the port of Batoum on the Black Sea. These points are to be held as security for the payment of the cash indemnity agreed upon, which is said to be so very large Turkey can never pay it, therefore the Porte henceforth becomes simply a vassal of the Czar—will have to move across the Bosphorus whenever the latter gives the word.

Thus goes down the cruel Turk who, for seven hundred years, has terrorized all Christedom; has directly and indirectly caused more human blood to be spilled than any other Power in the world. There is nothing to regret in his downfall. As one of our exchanges remarks, "from this time forth Russia will take a very front stand among nations of the earth. She has unlocked the bars of the Dardanelles—bars that were held shut against her by a shameful conspiracy of civilized powers, and in spite of the principles of eternal justice—and will now pursue her great destiny untrammeled by the mean obstructions of jealousy inspired by fear."

England, the chief of these jealous obstructionists, has lost prestige by the result of this war almost equally with her humiliated ward, the Turk himself, for whom she blustered and egged on but dared not fight.

THE New York Times makes an argument in favor of the recognition of the Diaz government in Mexico. Diaz was not legitimately chosen, but he has been in authority more than a year, and possibly ought to be recognized. The republic of Mexico is not a republic like Switzerland. We are to take our turbulent neighbor as we find her, with a chronic disposition to revolutions. Though Gen. Diaz made himself President by overturning the lawful government, the event was not unprecedented in Mexico as to make us unduly sensitive about accepting it as a fully accomplished fact. Besides, while our government may be loath to lend countenance to past violences in our sister republic, it is bound to observe that, as the Diaz government is the only authority beyond the Rio Grande, to overthrow it would require a revolution as great as the one that established it. Mr. Foster has reminded the State Department that during the past half century there have been about sixty changes of administration in Mexico; but this fact instead of working against Gen. Diaz, should work in his favor, since it shows that he has already surpassed in length of rulership the average of his predecessors. The indications are that he cannot be ousted from office, and the time has come when we think the government should recognize him.

OFFICIAL information from Gen. Miles' post at Fort Keogh, says news is received there that Sitting Bull is at Frenchman's Creek with over a thousand lodges, including the escaped Nez Perces and refugees from the agencies. These last number 800 warriors and Sitting Bull's own camp 2,300, all well armed. The principal hostile chiefs with him are Black Moon, Four Horns, Long Dog and Red Bear. Two companies of infantry have been sent to Fort Peck to hold it. Indians from Sitting Bull's camp have been seen within 10 miles of Fort Peck, and an attack upon both that place and Fort Keough is among the possibilities. Miles has only 500 men.

THE production of gold in the United States, anterior to 1858, footed up in round numbers $630,000,000, of which period the greatest production for one year was $65,000,000 in 1853. From 1858 to 1875 the aggregate production was $807,700,000, making the total yield by the country, including 1875, $1,332,000,000,. The production in 1877 was the largest for any single year in the history of the country. The bonanza bullion, it should be remembered, is about one half gold.

IT is said of Joe Jefferson, the actor that his most vital personal trait is the love of truth; once upon a time he was heard to exclaim: "The blessed truth! I tell my children 'For God's sake tell the truth!'—the greatest armor a man ever put on."

IN RECAPITULATION.

There are several points in relation to this land office removal job that will bear recapitulation, and to which we would most respectfully invite the attention of our Congressional delegation and of all parties in interest.

A land office should be maintained on this (the eastern) slope of the Sierras, because that range is literally impassable at any point within the lines of this land district, which extends parallel to said range for a distance of over 400 miles; therefore it is impossible to locate a land office outside of the district, at any point whatever in this State, that may be reached by settlers or miners from this district short of from two hundred and fifty to six hundred miles travel, or double those distances going and returning.

Whenever such a long and expensive journey as that becomes a requirement all further pre-emption and homestead entries in this district must cease, simply because settlers as a rule cannot afford such a monstrous additional cost in securing their homes; not only that, but in many instances settlers will be compelled for lack of means to perfect entries, already made, when the time comes for them to prove up. In a similar manner must it tend to retard the great and all important interests of this district in so far that the ordinary mine owner cannot afford the additional cost of securing title to the mine by U. S. patent; capital will not invest in undeveloped and unpatented mines, and yet it is beyond the financial abilities of the majority of mine-owners to go on and develop their mines in an outlying country like this, and at the same time stand the extra cost, now to be imposed, in securing and making their value available by U. S. patent.

From the best data procurable, we have no less than ten thousand mineral claims recorded in this portion of this land district from the town of Benton, inclusive, southward. Nearly half that number have been placed on record in but two small mineral districts out of some fifteen all told. Less than half of one per cent. of this large number have so far been patented; yet there are good reasons for the belief that at least ten per cent. of the whole will be so secured just as soon as the owners can command the means wherewith to do it. It is not unreasonable to assume that whenever railroad and other attainable commercial advantages are enjoyed by this section, the mining interests will receive such an impetus, allowing for new discoveries, as to more than double this estimate of probable applications for mining patents.

In this event, and to a considerable extent in the natural progress of things, there will be additional entries of not less than 90,000 acres of agricultural lands, under which is to be included timber and dry lands, technically designated as "desert." In addition to this, there are within the district well on to two hundred incomplete mineral and agricultural applications and entries.

As no applicant can make personal attendance at any land office outside the district, no matter where, for less than $250 each on the average, including value of time and witness' expenses, it is greatly within limits to assume that for every acre of land pre-empted or homesteaded the extra cost to the applicant, above the government price, will not be less than from $1 50 to $2 per acre, while under the same conditions no mineral patent can be obtained for less than $250 extra cost in every such case.

To now impose this uncalled for and totally unnecessary burden upon a people already carrying more in the way of national, State and county taxes than those of any other of equal area in this State, is little less than an outrage. As suggested by a correspondent in another column, and as we have stated heretofore, if public economy demands the discontinuance of any one or more land offices in this State, every sense of even-handed justice demands that it should be some other than one in an isolated, struggling, pioneer section like this; a region hundreds of miles distant from commercial centers, from any existing or possible land office in any other district within our State boundary lines. There is not within the entire limits of this State a land district that cannot better spare its office than this, for the reason that there is no other but possesses modes of rapid, cheap and easy communication with similar institutions in adjoining districts. In the nature of the case no portion of any land district west of the Sierras should be included in this with the office here, or, per contra, should any portion of this district whatever be annexed to any other on that side.

One of the alleged causes for the order of removal of this office was that the amount of its business did not justify its maintenance. Yet, to show the extremely narrow motives which actuated the prime movers, it is now an unquestioned fact that the same parties who procured this removal on these grounds did so with the ulterior motive of relocating it in identically the same district, and that too in absolutely the most inaccessible locality within its entire borders—as if the mere fact of the change from one point to another within the same exterior lines could possibly enhance its business. Even admitting the truth of the worse than absurd claim that the new locality would henceforth furnish as much as an equal share of the business as compared to that from the rest of the district in the aggregate, much less nineteen-twentieths, the actual transactions of the office will not thereby be enlarged one iota. But whether it be finally located in that extreme in the northern end of the district or consolidated with the Visalia office as proposed, it must inevitably happen that the aggregate of land business from this district will be very much less than it ever has been heretofore, insignificant though it may be at the best. The reasons for this are too obvious to need elaboration further than to say that people can very nearly as well go to San Francisco itself to transact this class of business as to either Visalia in the adjoining district or Bodie, the other point referred to, within our own district line, a fact capable of easy demonstration did space permit.

There are many settlers here who have no individual concern in this matter; but there are none, not a property owner, in the district but must suffer injury should this office be discontinued, and in this way: the extra tax imposed on those who do have business with the office is so much money withdrawn and utterly lost from local circulation. In the course of but a few years the aggregate of this loss, after making due allowance for the certain diminution of land entries of all descriptions for the reasons already stated, will amount to a sum too large for any poor community to be able to spare and not feel the pressure most decidedly.

IN CONVENTION.

The Workingmen met in State Convention in San Francisco on the 24th instant, and adopted a platform of principles, selected a State Central Committee and did other things preparatory to perfect organization of the party throughout the State. Kearney presided, and in his opening address laid down the law for the government of the Convention like a veritable autocrat or Tammany Sachem. In the main, though, his suggestions were of such purport as might well be adopted as rules by any political body. So, too, will a number of the resolutions adopted meet with very general approbatiion, while others, again, are so absurd, so chimerical as to give grounds to suspect the sanity of the movers. Most of these latter were referred to Committees, and may not be heard of again.

In the first category comes a resolution declaring that "we wlll recognize no nationality, no religion, no party but the Workingman's Party of California." Also one declaring for compulsory education, and firm support of our free school system, besides the main planks of the platform touching the Chinese Monopoly and Subsidy questions which we cannot now more than refer to.

In the other list comes this remarkable proposition, which was referred to the Committee on Resolutions:

Resolved, That all unoccupied lands now held by any railroad company, incorporation, State or municipality not disposed of to actual settlers on the 1st day of January, 1879, shall be declared public land and the Government pay the sum of $1 25 per acre for each and every acre so reverting to the public domain, said money to be paid to the original grantee, and that the Government issue bonds to the amount of $300 with free transportation to every person with his family who with his family who may in good faith wish to settle on the same in lieu of money, the agency to furnish to the settler one pair of horses, harness and agricultural implements, seed and six months provisions, the same to be the property of the Government until the said settler to repay to the Government the original value of said articles, with interest at 6 per cent. per annum, time for repaying not to exceed five years.

To be in keeping with this the Government ought also to provide every poor but respectable young fellow a wife if he will give bonds to return her to the agency if she don't behave herself; also to summarily execute all bachelors who reach a certain age without having tried to do something for their munificent Uncle Sam.

AT the inquest on the body of the released Fenian Macarthy, his comrades deposed that he had been severely treated in Chatham Prison. He had complained of his heart, and stated that if he died in prison the Governor would be his murderer. The jury gave a verdict of death from heart disease, accelerated by treatment he received in Prison.

IN the Senate a bill was passed by a vote of 22 to 11 amending sections 275 and 279 of the Code of Civil Procedure by striking out the words "white male," thus permitting women and persons of color to practice law upon passing the requisite examination.

MR. GLOVE has disappeared from Grover, Minnesota, in rather an offhand way.

LETTER FROM ROUND VALLEY.

MESSRS. EDITORS—We find petitions circulating among us requesting the Department to revoke the order abolishing the Independence Land Office. Every man who sees the petition scribbles down his name with a vengeance, and swears that it is an imposition on this community to have the land office removed to Visalia. Should these high officials at Washington condescend to study the topography of this land district—its extent and vast mineral and agricultural resources—its mines already turn out bullion by the million, and the soil of its mountain valleys produces hundreds of tons of grain annually; with its extensive stock ranges, and thousands of acres of desert land—a great deal of which is already being reclaimed—these gentleman would surely see the necessity and convenience of having a land office at Independence.

God knows (if they don't) that we are already sufficiently taxed. The County Tax Collector demands three per cent. per annum; the storekeeper must get a hundred, or more, per cent profit; we have to pay a hundred dollars a ton for freight, shipped from San Francisco, on all implements, hardwood, iron, machinery, etc. And still the heavily burdened farmer and miner—the sinews of the country—are requested to submit to another outrageous tax—that of traveling hundreds of miles across the mighty Sierra Nevada range, to Visalia to transact our land business. The money expended in the transaction and traveling would frequently doubly exceed the value of the land contested. The Department has but a faint idea of how the money goes in land and other cases in this country. A few years ago when the land office for this district was at Aurora (only 80 miles distant from this point) a neighbor, accompanied by the necessary witnesses, went to Aurora to prove up on his land. The decision was in his favor. Upon his return home he discovered that the traveling expenses and office charges (exclusive of the Government price for the land) amounted to $400—twice the real value of the land at that time. Visalia is about 310 miles from this point, without railroad facilities, but a stage line part of the way that can charge fifteen or twenty cents a mile.

Should it be essentially necessary for the sake of "public economy," to have the Visalia and Independence land offices consolidated, an impartial jury, in possession of startling facts connected with this extensive district, would undoubtedly decide in favor of the latter place—that the Visalia records, etc., should be removed to Independence. These petitions with their long list of names ought to be sufficient to convince the Department of the absolute necessity of continuing the Independence Land Office.

STARVATION IN WALES.—In the New York Tribune we find a most saddening story of starvation in Wales, particularly among the colliers in the town of Merthyr. There the men have had little or no work for months past, and in consequence themselves, wives and children are literally starving and freezing to death by inches.

OUR MONO LETTER.

BENTON, Jan. 29, 1878.

MESSRS. EDITORS—On the night of the 22d ultimo the gentle zephyrs became rude and rough and continued so until it brought rain, sleet and frozen vapor in abundance, which measured about six inches deep, but is now fast disappearing and at the present rate of evaporation there will not be a mark of the white garment, which now adorns the hills and valleys, left in three days. The mail between here and Aurora is now conveyed in sleighs, but soon the wheeled conveyances will have to be brought into requisition.

TIMES.

on an average, are pretty good; both mills are running to their fullest capacity and making their regular shipments. This forenoon the express loaded four bars of Diana bullion and six bars of Comanche bullion, valued at $10,000, the result of about four days run. The mines all look well; even the lowest levels of the deepest mines show plenty of the black metalic substance, which assays "away up." Mines in this district are fast becoming a legal tender, and a great number are being relocated, and others worked under a lease, which are proving a profitable business.

THE U. S. LAND OFFICE

question is now and forever settled. A petition was forwarded from this place with the names of 900 residents and taxpayers of this place and Bishop Creek praying the removal of the office to Benton! And we were informed by J. C. Murphy, of Bridgeport, that while he was in San Francisco a short time ago a telegram came to the effect that our petition had been granted. "How's that for high!" Oh, no, I guess not. Benton is too far from Bodie to ever amount to anything. So is San Francisco. Kearney's rebellion would not have occurred had not San Francisco been so far from Bodie.

PERSONAL.

A large team arrived last week with goods for Creaser & Milliner. The severe cold weather is driving some of the sporting fraternity from Bodie; quite a number are here collecting a little metal. J. C. Kemp, the shadow maker is in town doing a wholesale and retail picture business; his poorest are good enough. Warren Butterfield, while working at an edger saw, in Mack & Fargo's mill, got three of his fingers neatly and promptly amputated by the saw; the operation was not painful, and the next day he walked down to Benton, a distance of 17 miles, and called upon Dr. Fetterman, who dressed the patch of stumps, which are now doing well.

DIED.

Wm. H. Cunning, of this place, died January 26, and was buried at 3 P. M. on the following day. Mr. Cunning was about 33 years of age and a native of Ohio. He was aware that his time on earth was short, and on the 24th he made a will and appointed Thos. Albright his executor.

RURAL JACOB.

A SUBTERRANEAN MONITOR.—Among the infernal machines invented for use in carrying on the underground war between the Justice and Alta, was a sort of subterranean monitor which was rigged up in the Justice. It was a kind of bullet proof car placed on wheels, with port-holes through which to shoot. This was to contain two men with plenty of guns and pistols, and was to have been propelled from behind. In this Mr. Curnis expected to capture the entire drift, and if necessary the level. As its efficiency was not tested, it is difficult to give any opinion as to its probable workings. What Derby had in the Alta to match this machine we do not postively know, but have heard it hinted that the ground on his side was mined, and that it contained enough giant powder to blow everything in the neighborhood to Davy Jones' locker. —Enterprise.

MESSRS. Evans & Prescott, of Carson City, have patented a smelting furnace and condensing attachment for smelting ores, dust and tailings, which, they claim, will successfully treat the flue dust of our furnaces. If so, they have a fortune awaiting them on the Base Range, and only need put in appearance with their invention, and demonstrate its practicability, to accumulate a handsome fortune. There are thousands of tons of the article laying around loose, that assays as high as $50 a ton, and we await the coming of the man who can extract the precious metals by some cheap process.—Eureka Sentinel.

TELEGRAPHIC.—Pratt returned from San Francisco yesterday, having concluded negotiations with the mining companies and business men of Bodie and Aurora, whereby the company have secured an advance payment for telegraphing to a sufficient amount to warrant the construction of the line, without taking into consideration the future prospects of the new camp, which are certainly most flattering. Work was commenced on the line this morning; so the Genoa and Bodie telegraph scheme is no longer prospective. Glad to hear it. It is much needed.—Carson Valley News, Jan. 25.

THE managers of the Lee Monument Association have made another appeal to the people of the South, and "especially to her daughters," for funds for the proposed monument. They recommend that ladies be appointed in all the towns to solicit subscriptions, rejecting no offer, however small; and that on the night of January 19th, the anniversary of Lee's birth, "tableaux, balls, musical soirees, dramatic representations, feasts, or some like entertainments" be given.

THE Rev. David Rosenberg, of Columbus, Ohio, has issued a call for "a national convention of all Israelites who are willing to accept Jesus Christ as the promised Messiah of the world." Probably a large hall will not be needed.

JONES said right out and out the other evening, as he raised his fifteenth toward the chandelier, "There's nope 'lace li' kome." He was placed in cell No. 19.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 2.....1878.

CONCERNING BABIES. — Newspaper people are exceedingly diffident about some things, let folks say what they will intimating the contrary. We mean that they (the newspaper people) have a delicacy about publishing a certain class of facts on no better authority than mere rumor or gossip—such, for instance, as births, marriages (it is a mooted point which of those two words should take precedence in order of mention; it's a sort of a prerequisite to be born before a body gets married, yet it is not just the thing to have that original event to take too much precedence of the secondary circumstance; it would betoken an indifferent state of morals, still, anomalous as it is, the secondary circumstance which morality says must precede the other cannot possibly do it; it's a knotty question)—as we were saying, such as birth, marriages and natural deaths. When a man gets his neck broken or comes to an untimely end in any such way, and we hear of it even incidentally, the fact will be published with pleasure—that is, a melancholy sort of pleasure, you understand. But not so if he dies what is called a natural demise from disease with or without the aid of a doctor or two. It is an invariable requirement with all respectable newspapers to never, under any circumstances, announce a birth, marriage or natural death under their proper headings except only upon responsible authority, which means upon either the verbal or written information of the parties in interest or personally knowing to the facts. Mere rumor, however well satisfied we may be of its correctness, is not acceptable as authority to publish things of this kind, and that is the very point we wish to impress upon the minds of all concerned. As we intend to be sufficiently explicit in this matter to avoid misconstruction even if takes all Summer, we will state that by "parties concerned" we don't exactly mean the principals in any of the transactions under consideration. In case of a born it is not a requirement that the new arrival himself should let us know about it, although he is as largely concerned in what has happened to him so soon in life as anyone, perhaps more so. In case of a marriage the admission of the fact to us, either by word of mouth or in writing by the bridegroom will be accepted as a sufficient provocation to publish it as a fact, ordinarily; provided, however, that he had never committed any act previously to raise an equal degree of doubt as to his sanity, consequently his responsibility—but it is always considered better authority to have the details of the solemn affair from the officiating clergyman or official, who are presumed to have had a tolerably clear idea of what did transpire, though they were not the most concerned. In the remaining case, we always demand better authority than a man's own assertion that he deceased at a given time, consequently never under any circumstances give place to a notice of that kind, either with or without obituary poetry, unless the statement comes from a living party whose word will almost always be taken in preference to that of the subject himself, however veracious we may have previously considered the latter. It will be noticed, too, that this third case differs from either of the others, inasmuch as it is more difficult to say who is most concerned in the sad event—himself or his heirs and assigns, or somebody else. But from what has been said we hope now that at least two facts have been made clear, to wit: that no death, marriage or birth notices will be published except upon responsible authority for their occurrence; and, secondly, that it almost invariably happens that in each of these cases the trifling trouble of furnishing this information will devolve upon others than the subjects themselves, save in the conditional exception noted. We may further add that we never make any charges for these notices, but are always pleased to afford the accommodation. Lastly, this closes the present chapter on babies, etc.

SPELLING SCHOOL.—By invitation a number of ladies and gentlemen were present last evening to witness or take part in a spelling contest by Mrs. Lowe's school, and all passed quite an agreeable and perhaps profitable evening. It is a "true fact" that her pupils without exception acquitted themselves in a manner to elicit high praise. It is also to be noted that a representative or two each of the legal and printing professions not only "went down" frequently but with suddenness, although either one of them feels ordinarily and with Webster's Unabridged for instant reference he is the equal in spelling of any two schools in the county; but somehow it didn't turn out just that way this time, not entirely.

THE CAUSE.—An irresponsible friend of ours confidentially told another friend of ours there was a constant dread on his mind for fear he would get into trouble through an almost irresistable inclination "to hook something." He said he couldn't account for it only on the grounds that he didn't think he had eaten a beefsteak for three months without getting more or less of the horns, and that must be what brought on this "hooking" disorder, which he feared would spread. The suffering man was from up the country.

LIST OF LETTERS. — Following is a list of unclaimed letters in the Independence Postoffice, February 1: Wm. Bell, Frank Bodeur, Wm. Cooper, Peter Connelly, James H. Cook (2), Wm. Condren, M. H. Cooper, Andrew Cooper, James Collins, John Crough, Robert Delahide, Maggie Dalton (2), Thomas Donnahan, Patrick Downs, A. Grissell, H. Hubbs, Jno. Hayes, Geo. Huband, Kenady David, Wm. R. Lewis, Roman Montenegro, H. J. Mohr, B. G. Parker, John Steen and Mike Sulivan.

RATHER COMMON.—We have had several little one-horse earthquakes here this week. The only one, however, that came under our own observation occurred a few minutes before 10, Wednesday night. The usual rumbling preceded the first indications of the scarcely noticeable movement which followed quite long enough for us to indulge in various speculations as to whether it was occasioned by a passing buggy, thunder, or what. The movement came at last, satisfying the question in favor of the "or what" view. About 2 the same night there was another shake, we are told, and of somewhat greater force. Since then there has been at least two additional shakes, both light. There has always appeared to be some diversity of opinion as to the exact point of the compass whence come these temblors: to the writer they appear invariably to come from one and the same point, viz., nearly due southwest. As a rule the movement travels evenly with the sound, rarely preceding it, though that has sometimes happened; such are the most startling, because they give not the slightest notice.

ROUND VALLEY.—Geo. H. Badger, of Benton, Mono county, California, will in a few days open a first-class store at Round Valley, on the Hilton ranch, and furnish it with a complete stock of general merchandise. A building is now being erected which will suffice for a store, express office and post office. This will be a great convenience to the residents of this thriving community, and the investment will doubtless be a paying one. Mr. Badger proposes to take in exchange for goods all kinds of farm products and do a general barter trade. Advertisement with particulars will appear in our next issue.

DARWIN.— Mr. John Wilson, who, with P. Reddy, Esq., started on their return to Darwin to-day, informs us that there is quite a certainty that the New Coso furnace will fire up sometime this month, and that very soon thereafter the Defiance furnaces will do the same thing, both institutions for a run long enough in duration to count something. This will certainly be an agreeable change from the very quiet times that have troubled the Darwinites for sometime past.

EXPLANATION.—Rev. M. W. Pratt, who arrived here on Wednesday, desires us to express his profound regrets for the non-fulfillment of his appointment to preach here last Sunday evening, the reasons for which he will himself explain to those who favor him by attending services hereby announced for to-morrow evening at the school house.

NEXT WEEK.— Can't help it; but friend Macarter's new ad. must unavoidably go over till next week—all on account of Sheriff Passmore's string of personal allusions on this page, which, no doubt, will be read with the usual interest.

JUMPED THE CAMP.—Joe Davis, in a letter which we cannot possibly give at length before next issue, wishes to warn the public against one John O'Brien, a swindler who bilked Darwin people, then left between two days, coming in this direction.

WAS A MISTAKE. —Sheriff Passmore got back from his extended trip over on the other side this week. He admits he was in Marysville, but says it is all a mistake about his marrying anybody's widow.

BORN.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 2.....1878.

THE actual area of California is placed at 100,500,000 acres. The number of acres enclosed up to August 1st, 1876, was 6,319,864, and 3,576,366 acres only under cultivation. The assessed value of the entire property of the State for 1876 was as follows: Real estate, $317,-330,063; improvements, $103,124,361; personal property, $126,240,281. Total valuation, $546,694,705. The State is steadily increasing in the importance of every branch of her varied industries and in the totals of her products. The resources of the State are still largely in the rough and undeveloped. In comparison with other countries her population is infinitessimally small. Therefore it will be seen that the great need of our State is an increase of population. But the time, we think, is not far distant when she will lead all other States in the Union in every branch of industry.

A GEOLOGICAL PHENOMENON.— Ex-Officer Daniels, who has recently returned from Sunrise district, in the Como range of mountains, informs the Virginia Chronicle regarding an unexplainable something, as follows: About twice a day in warm weather, and three or four times a week in cold, a tremendous report, as if an artillery salute was being fired, bursts from the mountain's side. It is generally a small report, followed immediately by a much heavier one, which "echoes through the rocks around," and makes the ground tremble. Near the spot is a river of hot water nearly as large as the Carson, which flows from the mountain side. This furnishes the explanation of the noise, which is probably caused by the bursting forth of pent up volumes of steam. All this is according to Daniels. He predicts a rush for the district in the Spring.

A WATER spout of terrific force occurred near the oil wells in the Sespe district, Ventura county, during the late storm. A chasm was torn in the hills, and great bowlders as large as a coach were tossed about like pebbles. One of the results is that the channel of Sespe creek has been entirely changed, running on the opposite side of the divide from its former course. The oil camp of Jones & Co. narrowly escaped being in the track of the destroying element.—Los Angeles Express.

Professor Stewart on Telluric and Celestial Phenomena.

In National Guard Hall last evening Professor W. Frank Stewart delivered a lecture upon the "Formation of Mineral Veins and the Mineral Resources of the State of Nevada." If we looked at a well made map, the Professor said, we would find the interior of the great American Basin in which we live, ribbed with mountain chains lying parallel to each other, with a general trend from northeast to southwest. Great fissure ledges containing quartz and minerals have the same general trend or strike. In the primordial arrangement of matter atoms assume a polar form in their aggregation, and gradually build up, from invisible points, the solid rocks of the earth as we now find them. Therefore the atoms, invisible at first, have formed vast strata of rocks at the depth of the sea by precipitation and molecular aggregation. The entire crust of the earth is a crystal. All the sedimentary and metamorphic rocks have obeyed the law of polar cleavage in their crystallization, and, therefore when disturbed, from volcanic forces or by the law of shrinkage, as maintained by Mr. Mallott, at the point of least resistance, and hence all of our profound fissure quartz lodes, as well as the mountain ranges, have a general strike toward some point or points in the Arctic or Antartic circle. The great disturbing forces upon the earth are clearly the effect of the corresponding forces upon the surface of the sun. Modern astronomers have very nearly proved that the maximum spotted condition of the sun's surface, which occurs at periods varying from six to eleven years, is the direct source, by magnetic effect, of the most startling terrestial phenomena, such as typhoons, whirlwinds, tornadoes, volcanic eruptions and earthquakes. In proof of this hypothesis the lecturer gave innumerable instances of magnetic disturbances upon the earth, such as remarkable auroral displays, sending telegraphic dispatches by terrestrial electricity, without the use of a galvanic battery, and so forth. The analogy between the elements of the sun and those of the planets had been demonstrated by the use of the spectroscope, and sufficient is already known to warrant the belief that the material universe is linked together and controlled by an all pervading electro-magnetic agent.

THE FISSURES ARE FORMED

Referring to the remoteness of the earth from the sun, the lecturer claimed that the elements analagous to those of the earth are incandescent, while the same elements upon our planet are literally frozen, and therefore have assumed the form of solids.

THE FORMATION OF MINERAL VEINS.

In relation to the formation of mineral veins, Professor Stewart maintained that the quartz ledges, as well as their accompanying minerals, were precipitated into the deep rock fissures from solutions in the heated waters of the seas during the protracted mountain-making eras of the triassic and miocene periods. This was illustrated by reference to the solutions of salts and their mechanical crystallizations as now accomplished in borax, alum and sugar manufactories. To prove the hypothesis of precipitation, it was shown that in Leeds district, in Utah, by the law of attraction, there are innumerable aggregations of horn silver resting in beds of sandstone, such aggregations having no connection with either ledges or seams of quartz. It was also stated that in the same sandstone beds there are large masses of silicified wood, which are permeated with chloride of silver, and upon assay the wood will sometimes yield as much as $1,000 per ton. Allusion was further made to the fact that in amorphous rocks, superficial fractures, or what miners call "gash veins," frequently containing well defined ledges of mineral bearing quartz, suddenly come to a point in the enclosing rock and disappear, showing conclusively that they could not have penetrated the uncleavable matrix from below.—Virginia Chronicle.

Plums and Prunes.

There is no fruit raised in this State, more particularly in this valley, more certain of a good market than the plum and its first cousin the prune; therefore we think none more worthy the attention of horticulturists. In consideration of this and the additional fact that many of our peach trees must in the nature of the case soon begin to decay, the following by an Idaho correspondent of the Rural Press is worthy of attention:

While engaged in the nursery business for about twenty years, I observed some points that suggest to me the propriety and advantage of grafting plum on peach stock. First, the peach root is a vigorous, healthy root and a gross feeder, and was always found to be of a healthy look, no matter at what age or on what kind of soil; that the top or wood above ground was always found to be in a decaying condition from the time it was three years old. This observation resulted in the practice adopted by my parents over forty years ago, of cutting back and renewing the same as we renew grape vines. Remembering that our old peach orchards had been renewed time and again, by cutting back the tops while the roots remained healthy, I was led to the thought that a plum would succeed on such a root.

Now, on the other hand, I always found the plum root diseased, seldom digging a tree five or six years old but what I found the root knotty, with rotten spots and wood borers in them. At the same time the wood of the plum tree is a sound, fine hard wood, seldom brown or decaying inside like the peach. Knowing that they assimilated on the same stock, I commenced grafting plum on peach, and I have had them growing side by side, and from those first bearing up to those fifteen years old, I have always found the fruit superior in size, and the tree much larger and more robust and vigorous in appearance.

I have had experience with them upon various soils, and am well satisfied that if I were planting upon a damp heavy soil, where a peach tree would be worthless, I would use plum on nothing but peach root.

As to suckering, the nuisance is beyond human patience to bear. I at one time had some plum on plum stock, and they were so much trouble that I dug them up and worked the ground for two years to get rid of the suckers.

Now I will tell your readers how to get a plum orchard that will produce the finest variety of fruit and succeed on a greater variety of soils than any other. Lay off the ground as you want the trees to stand in the orchard. Plant a few peach pits at each point. Bud them in September following with plum, and the following Spring remove all but one tree from each point. In this way you have a tree without the mutilating process of transplanting, and you will find that you can raise plums from the tule lands of the Sacramento to the frost line of the Sierras.

I have seen plum on peach stock of the finest and most vigorous growth produce excellent fruit on wet, springy land, on dry, gravel land with a well-drained subsoil, on alkali land with a hard-pan subsoil, upon the foothill lands in Walla Walla, on the sand ridge lands and upon cold meadow lands in Grande Ronde Valley, where in the month of August the potatoe and squash vines were killed with frost; and here in Boise Valley, upon the warm sandy plains, in the cosy, little foothill valleys, and upon the low bottoms of the river, where their feet stand constantly in water, the plum seems at home.

SHEEP AS COMMONERS.—In this county eight precincts are annually eat entirely out by sheep driven from other sections. The ox-teams of our lumbermen have starved to death, and this industry has almost died out in this county because sheep have fed off the mountains. The miner is prevented from prospecting because there is no feed for his animals. The young pines are being killed, and our mountain slopes will soon be denuded of forest and every vestige of vegetation. We may then look for a succession of drouths. The evils are borne by the community to satisfy the whims of the few who eke out a miserable existence at no profit to themselves or their fellow men. It is time the Legislature should place sheep husbandry upon a more healthy and legitimate basis, and we suggest that sheep should be entirely excluded from the common.—Tulare Iron Age.

SOME anonymous individual announces that the people of the United States use daily eight tons of paper collars. We do not understand this. The man with a paper collar is an outcast from society. He is never seen on the street or in the parlor. What, then does he do with all the collars? Does he eat them? Is it possible that there is growing up among the youth of this vast country a morbid appetite—a mad craving—for paper collars as an article of diet? This thing must be looked into.

THE House Committee on Indian affairs have agreed to recommend the passage of the bill transferring the Indian Bureau to the War Department.

Bret Harte's Decadence.

There has been a good deal of gossip over the conspicuous absence of Bret Harte from the Atlantic dinner in Boston, but it was a matter of no surprise to those who know the history of his early connection with that magazine. When Bret Harte first came from California, and all society was running wild after him, and he was able to dictate his own terms to the suppliant publishers, the Atlantic Monthly closed a contract with him for the exclusive right to the products of his pen for one year. The consideration was $10,000. Of course no stipulation was made as to what amount he would produce, because no author can guarantee in advance to what extent he will be brilliant or whether he will be brilliant at all. The Atlantic got just one article from Harte during the year. One of his best friends once told me that Harte's great trouble lay in the fact that he was utterly devoid of a conscience. If his washerwoman had saved $500 by long years of careful industry, he would borrow it without the slightest intention of paying it, or without a single twinge of conscience over his action. Indeed, Harte has closed most of the avenues about him in a way that Dick Swiveller did. The New York Times, which once published some stories of his, spoke of him editorially, some time ago in a way that was the next thing to calling him a swindler. There is an old story about his lecturing in Boston with a Sheriff's officer on each side of the platform, behind the scenes, waiting to get the money for the dress-suit in which he was lecturing, and there are stories innumerable about his personal debts, and of the sums he has received from publishers in advance without furnishing them with the stipulated equivalent in manuscript. The mystery is where all the money goes, for there is a great deal of it, and he is not known as a man of gambling habits. —New York Corr. Cincinnati Gazette.

SOCIETY BLACKMAIL.—Presents have a great deal to do with this grabbing propensity of the fair sex, which increases in strength the higher the lady is in the social scale. Young girls should never be allowed to accept presents of any real value from their admirers. If only young ladies, who are always laying traps to win what they are pleased to call "bets," could hear what was said of them by their victims they would not "bet." Then the habit of levying booty from all acquaintances on a marriage is a bad one. It is the blackmail of good society. Generally a number of vulgar rich people give very expensive presents, in order to see their names chronicled amongst the donors, and with a keen eye to obtain some sort of a social return. This obliges many of the real friends of the girl to buy articles for her which cost more than they can well afford to pay. These marriage presents are becoming an intolerable tax.

DIVING NINETY FEET.—The latest performance in London, and one that draws a salary of $500 per week, is the startling feet of Zagel, a young girl, who dives through the air and lands in a net 90 feet below. She drops head first but gently and gracefully swerves in her flight until at last she strikes on her back in the net and rises unharmed.

RUSSIA has taken the fate of Roumania, Servia and Montenegro into her own hands, and neither of them will be represented in the peace negotiations.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 9.....1878.

A NEW JURY LAW.

Senator Fowler has introduced a bill designed to make a radical change in our petit jury system, or rather the method of selecting such juries. We have not examined the bill itself, but judge of its merits from a synopsis by the Visalia Iron Age, which paper indorses the said plan warmly, and in so doing expresses our own views very decidedly.

If this bill should become a law, as we hope it may, it will sweep away at a dash our present cumbersome jury system, which has brought jury trials everywhere in this Union to be considered little less than the broadest kind of farce, a burlesque on both law and justice. The plan is as follows:

In the first place one hundred men are to be selected by the Supervisors, for their known competency. Half of the names are to be struck from the list by the County Judge; and from the remaining fifty twenty-five are to be drawn by lot; and before any challenging takes place or any question is raised as to the competency of the jurors, the number in attendance is to be reduced to eighteen. Now, instead of examining each of these and dismissing every one that can give an intelligent answer, the first step is for the parties to file an affidavit that certain of the jurors are disqualified to try the case. When eighteen jurors have been found the parties each challenge three of the jurors, and the remainder try the case.

Every one has seen the most honorable and intelligent of our citizens excused from juries simply because it was known that they would do justice, and justice was not the thing being sought after. Attorneys will soon tire of the business of writing out and swearing to affidavits against this class of citizens; and the result will be that criminals will have to reconcile themselves to the fate of being tried by honest and intelligent men. Crime will then learn to hang its head, and shall not continue to disgrace a system which in its inception was designed to shield innocence against the encroachments of power.

NOT A GOOD LAW.—It seems that Inyo was added to Merced and other counties in the bill recently passed by both Houses of the Legislature deferring the time for publication of delinquent tax lists to July next. It is quite likely the bill will receive the Governor's signature, and therefore become law in full force. It will, of course, be a great present relief to all delinquents, but on the whole its effect must be unfavorable in this county, since its tendency will be to temporarily bankrupt the Expense Fund, depreciating warrants accordingly, and to no adequate purpose. Had it been a law, to take effect hereafter, by which taxes might be paid in quarterly or semi-annual installments, it would have been far more acceptable to all classes. No certified copy of the new law has been received here yet, and until that is the case the old law will be carried out as before, so that a portion of the expense of collecting delinquent taxes will be doubled, making it that much harder on delinquents as well as others.

THE Darwin News thinks it would be but a fair thing for the State to assist outside mining counties like this in taking care of their disproportionate number of indigent sick—disproportionate because of the hardships connected with the leading pursuit, which, in its nature and results is of paramount importance to the State at large, therefore the State at large should share the costs of its maintenance as well as its profits direct and indirect. The points made in support of the new plan are pretty well taken, and we regret we cannot give them at length, or devote further space to the subject at this time when it particularly needs attention.

BODIE has more people than she can care for, and wants no more until the Winter is over. The Standard has this: "Our California and Nevada exchanges will do us a favor by cautioning such of their readers who intend coming to Bodie, to defer their trip for at least three months. People are coming here at the rate of fifteen to twenty-five per day, which, with our present accommodations, has resulted in crowding the town to such an extent that to obtain even a place to spread one's blankets is a matter of great difficulty."

A MAJORITY of the House Elections Committee have reported Wiggington elected by four majority. The Republican minority of the Committee will submit a report claiming the election of Pacheco by fourteen majority. We suppose the contest is virtually settled in favor of Wigginton, as the Democratic House will adopt the report of the majority committee. But Mr. Wigginton will find in the end that his whistle has cost him much more than it is worth.

COMPLAINTS are made from Sitka that the influence of the Alaska fur company is destroying the place.

"PULLING IN HIS HORNS."

In his issue of the 19th THE INYO INDEPENDENT speaks of the entire list of attorneys practicing before the Mono county bar as "briefless attorneys;" the week following it calls them "very ignorant people." Wonder if one of those "briefless attorneys"—a resident of Independence—who is known for and near as a brilliant lawyer—had anything to do with it?—Bodie Standard.

Beg your pardon, but you wilfully misstate the fact when you say that "it [THE INDEPENDENT] the week following" made any such reference to those attorneys whatever as above insinuated.

Now, since you have so often referred to that briefless attorney matter, we will say that THE INDEPENDENT does not back down in the slightest degree from a fair construction of its original remark about those briefless attorneys. We say this: A number of lawyers signed a card recognizing a paper published in another State as the legal medium of publication for a county in this State. Every lawyer in that list knew perfectly well that so far as any legal effect was concerned, they might just as well agree to recognize none but the Nevada Codes in their practice in Mono county, in the State of California, because such agreement would have been not one whit more in the teeth of the rulings of our State Supreme Court than was this effort to legalize an illegal mode of court publications, in and for Mono county. Not a lawyer in that list—least of all the one referred to in the above, whom we know to be a good lawyer—not a lawyer in the list would dare to bring an action in any court in this State if it depended in any material degree upon a publication made in such an irregular way. Knowing that to be true, they at least expected to be briefless so far as Mono was concerned, or they would never placed themselves at such a disadvantage in that county. They might just as well have agreed to recognize the New York Herald as the legal paper for Mono county, California, as the one they did recognize, which was then, and is yet, we suppose, published in the State of Nevada.

Since the Standard seems extremely desirous to bring these legal gentlemen to its aid, we will now state that, notwithstanding that card of recognition, there never has been a single publication made in the columns of the "Bodie" Standard for Mono litigants that would stand the test of law in any court, unless these gentlemen can point out some California statute where the publication clause "may be published in a newspaper in an adjoining county" reads "may be published in a newspaper published in an adjoining State." If we do not miscontrue the law utterly, the publication of the Mono delinquent tax list in this Nevada paper is simply a fraud on Mono tax payers, and if these legal gentlemen loaned the weight of their names to induce such frauds and mislead litigants, then the term "briefless attorneys" was quite well deserved, let the literal facts of the extent of their practice be what they may. We understand, however, that when they did sign that card for the Bodie fraud it was from a complaisant desire to help what they considered a needed institution, to-wit, a paper for Bodie, just for the time being, expecting it would be but a month or two till such a paper did exist in fact, therefore, that there would be no time for harm to come through illegal publications, because none were likely to be offered in the said brief interval.

We did not propose to interfere with the individual affairs of the Standard, or those of any other of our contemporaries; in that desire we purposely ignored the Standard's first and puerile reference to this trivial matter, but since it wants as much light on the subject as possible, and also to involve others by its persistence, we will now undertake to say that if the Board of Supervisors of Mono county allow the Standard pay for publishing the present Mono county delinquent tax list, they will allow an illegal bill; provided, always, that since our last advices the said Standard has not been removed from Aurora, in the State of Nevada, to Bodie, in the said County of Mono, State of California.

Is that explicit enough? And don't you think, Mr. Standard, you are displaying wretched taste in thus dragging into unpleasant notoriety friends who tried to help you? Do you want to saddle your fights on them? If they are spoiling for the conflict, notify them to parade.

THE New York Times (Republican), after the silver vote in the House, and after a careful personal examination of the pulse of the Senate, is convinced that the Bland bill is already sure of becoming a law, although the President may veto it. The only amendment will be a proviso giving the government the profit of coinage. At the Treasurer's office they propose, if the bill becomes a law, to pay off members with a few dray loads of silver. Republican papers generally concede that the silver bill is bound to pass. The Times calls upon the Republican party to stand firm against the measure.

Good Advice.

The Los Angeles Star submits some advice to workingmen which strikes us as being sensible. Following is an extract:

Permit us to say a word by way of warning to our laboringmen. Never bind yourself by an oath to any political or religious clan or clique. If you value your freedom or love your country, never give any men or set of men such power over your liberties as to bind yourself by an oath to be obedient to their dictation. If you associate yourself with a company of your fellow citizens to accomplish any good purpose it is understood that you are to withdraw when you feel that you cannot conscientiously follow the will of the majority of the association. You are then free to act as you please. But it is very different when you bind yourself by a solemn oath to follow that association whether right or wrong. Keep clear of all such ties. We speak not against the workingmen's organization. Indeed, we wonld not hesitate to join them, provided they would take editors as workingmen. But we will never join a political organization which would require of us an oath of allegiance, no, never. And we predict that if ever American liberty is undermined it will be by just such means. Let us be free men to vote and act as wisdom dictates.

Keep up your organization, but never put it in shackles—and if you find yourselves, too weak to prevent its being thus abused, come out and let it alone. We want you to be patriotic freemen, and to act as such in this movement. What we want in addition to this thing is an anti-Coolie organization. Who will start one? This would be a great aid to the workingmen's movement in this city and county. We have written this article hoping we may have given some counsel worthy the consideration of that class of our citizens.

MR. BRIGGS could not obtain a room for love or money wherein to keep the office running, without going to the expense of building or repairing some old dilapidated house. He was forced out of the room he at one time occupied, as it was needed for a whisky shop; he then moved part of the archives to the Postoffice building, paid $15 a month rent—the Government does not allow him for rent—and was finally forced to remove from there for various reasons, one of which was the emoluments would not pay the expense of the office. He then wrote the Commissioner of the Land Office, at Washington (is this explicit?), that he could not get office room in Independence, and recommended that the office be removed to Bishop Creek or Bodie, where a suitable building could be procured. What could have been more natural?—Bodie Standard.

And we beg leave to repeat what we have already stated on at least two previous occasions, viz.: That good rooms could have been had, and were offered, suitable for the Land Office, if not for an attorney's office. Is this explicit enough?

WHAT part in the above programme did the editor of THE INDEPENDENT play when he was Register?

The above is from that highly honorable sheet, the Bodie Standard, and refers to our remarks about "one Register trying to steal all our swamp land," etc. We do not propose to occupy much space in a controversy with a paper that deals in that style of aagument; but will state for the information of staangers that neither the editors or any other person connected with the INYO INDEPENDENT ever was Register of the Independence Land Office, but that one of them did resign the Receivership, and that from that day forward THE INDEPENDENT devoted its energies to bursting out the very steal referred to, and as much as any other cause, if not more, did do it, precisely as it has already bursted this present attempted outrageous land office steal in the interest of the Bodie Standard, et als.

THE BATTLE OF THE BOOKS.—It is gratifying to know that the bitter, acrimonious contest in the Senate on the text book question is so far settled that a bill has passed that body relegating the whole whole text book qudstion in the hands of the State Board of Education, where it belongs, and whence it was taken two years by one of the meanest tricks that ever disgraced a California Legislature—and that is saying a great deal. Senator Lewis, of Tehama, certainly won his spurs on the side of right in this contest.

VOLUME SEVEN.—The Kern County Courier-Californian has just completed its seventh year and volume. Bro. Chester has manifested some warlike symptoms towards us now and then, nevertheless he prints an excellent paper, and, as we understand the general situation, one well worthy of local support and high success.

THE Chicago Tribune's Washington special says: Persons who have canvassed the House say that a close count shows less than ninety votes for the Texas Pacific bill.

THE Fresno Expositor publishes the delinquent tax list of Fresno county, which occupies seventeen columns of that paper. The taxes delinquent aggregate $20,000.

THE United States Senate has, by a vote of 43 to 22, passed Matthews' resolution concerning the payment of United States bonds in silver dollars.

IT is remarked of a Chicago couple, "Two souls with but a single thought"—how to get rid of each other.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The anti-subsidy resolution adopted in the House of Representatives by a vote of 147 to 85 declares that, in the judgment of the House, no subsidy in money, bonds, public lands, endorsements, or by pledge of the public credit should be granted to or renewed by Congress to corporations or associations engaged in or proposing to engage in public or private enterprises; but that all appropriations ought to be limited to such amount and purposes only as shall be imperatively demanded by public service.

The Sutter claim which has been before several Congresses, was considered by the Private Land Committee. Sutter claims to be the original discoverer of gold in California. His claim is for lands that have been granted him by the Mexican government before California was acquired by the United States. The Committee of last Congress reported favorably upon the claim giving him $50,000 in lieu of his claim, but the Senate did not consider it.

The Pacific Mail Steamship Company have decided to double their carrying capacity between New York and Aspinwall and Panama and San Francisco, in order to meet the present pressure of freights, which are represented as more than a semi-monthly line of steamers can accommodate. It is proposed to hereafter send out a steamer every week.

Capt. Eads has received a warrant for $500,000 on account of his improvement of the South Pass of the Mississippi and securing 22 feet of water. He had previously received $500,000 on the same service for 20 feet. He gets a half a million for each additional two feet up to 30 feet, and then $100,000 a year for 20 years to keep it up to that standard.

Col. Bee has received a number of orders for Chinese laborers recently from the Eastern States. A coal mining company in Missouri has contracted for 500 coolies to work in the mines, and another for 200 comes from Arkansas.

Great excitement has been caused in San Domingo and Hayti by a rumor that Spain will soon sign a treaty assuming a protectorate over the islands. It seems to increase the unpopularity of President Baez.

The Emma mine case is to be revived at Chicago, Frederick A. Bragg sueing for $250,000 and $1,000,000 damages. He alleges that Park defrauded him in the sale to the English party.

Those deeply interested say the President declares that he will not ask the present Congress to make an appropriation to pay the $5,000,000 awarded to Canada by the Fishery Commission.

IT appears that, after all, the bill to extend the time for publishing the delinquent tax list in the counties of Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo, San Benito, San Bernardino, Ventura, Merced, Mariposa, Inyo, Tulare, Kern and Fresno has passed the Legislature and awaits the signature of the Governor. No such act has been called for or desired by the people of this county (or any other, so far as we know), and we wonder that our members have permitted such a measure to pass without their opposition for any of the counties named. It is an injustice toward those citizens who pay their taxes promptly. Its tendency is to encourage the lackards and drones to hang back. We understand that parties from this and Fresno counties promptly telegraphed Mr. Fowler asking him to oppose the measure.—Visalia Delta.

CAZNOVE, of the Louisiana Returning Board, has been released on five thousand dollars bonds, signed by Aristides Marie and Joseph Mascom (colored), property holders and large real estate owners. Kenner is in jail awaiting bonds. Wells is still non est, search on the part of the Sheriff having entirely failed to reveal his whereabouts.

SAYS the Los Angeles Express: The bill to repeal the Board of Public Works act has passed the Legislature, and our city is now relieved from an incubus which has done much to create a disturbed state of feeling among the people.

JUDGING from the reports, it appears as if there is a growing sentiment in Congress in favor of restricting Chinese immigration.

Two Indian tribes are at war with each other at Sitka, and Government and other property is being destroyed.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 9.....1878.

BUSHELS OF FUN.—Plenty of people find more to amuse if not to interest them in going to horse races than to church, no matter what James Crack and Mr. Cantharides may say about it. Some way, they think there is more fun in seeing the noble beastes (not Messrs. C. and C. just referred to) get up and dust than to listen to a fair average sermon—more to enlist attention in hearing ye earnest jockey bloviate about the absolutely unapproachable excellencies of "that hoss," likewise to hear the sonorous yells of the accomplished pool seller—all these things and much more have peculiar attractions to lots of folk, and is called fun of the most gorgeous kind. We are dealing in facts, not philosophising, and, not having ordered these very human traits, take no responsibility in the matter further than to say that the fellow that bets on the wrong horse sees less fun in the business than the other fellow, but at the same time one is just as necessary to make the thing go off lively as the other, consequently we call the attention of both kinds and of all other sorts to the fact that four days' racing is advertised to begin at Bishop, February 22, and six days' ditto here on the Independence track, beginning March 11.

PASSED.—Mr. Moffat, to whom was re-refered the bill to raise the salary of the Inyo County Treasurer from $1,000 to $1,800 a year, reported in favor of its passage. It was argued at length, and would have suffered certain defeat, because held to be at utter variance with the public policy and the retrenchment principles on which members were sent there, only that Mr. Moffatt insisted that it was the desire of Inyo citizens generally to have the bill passed; also that it was upon this understanding that the officer elect was voted for, and only upon that understanding that he agreed to accept the position. By virtue of these statements (which will not receive general or cordial indorsement in this county, notwithstanding the many well-wishers of the officer in question), the bill passed the Assemby under suspension of the rules by a vote of 30 to 25. What with this (which takes the proceeds of 400 poll tax receipts), and the probable effect of the delinquent tax bill, we can't say we think the financial legislation for Inyo is exactly of the tendency to be universally commended.

THE "COMATHERE BULLDOSE."—We are in receipt of several stanzas of rhyme under the above head, purporting to have been picked up on the lower levels of the Union Con., Cerro Gordo, but as he neglects the essential fact of sending his name, we can do no more than give one verse as a specimen, as follows:

Some facts to you I will relate;
It commenced the year Eighteen seventy-eight.
The truth to you it must be told
To show you how the day-shift men were sold.

WAS AN INJUSTICE.—It is a pleasure to us to say that we now know the references made last week to Mr. Cassidy did him a positive injustice, because it had no real foundation in fact, although our information in relation to the matter in question was of such a character as to then fully justify our allusion, as it appeared to be direct and trustworthy. Mr. C was the victim of circumstantial evidence, and that is all we need say about it, now that he is here pursuing the even tenor of his way, and ready to answer for himself.

STOCK SALES IN CERRO GORDO. "Stock Broker" writes us a report of the operations in the Cerro Gordo Stock Board in local stocks during the forenoon session on the 2d. They are as follows: Horton and Johnson 34 and 15 shares, respectively of Mexican, at $2 25, buyer 30; Drake, 14 of Blue Tail, at three bits; Randolph, 44 of Tarantula, at 8 cents; Hoskins and Whalen 120 of Blonde, at $2 50, without grace; Abbott, Hoff and Samuels bought largely in the New Blonde and Topsey, average about $4 per share. No sales on the following day, because all the bidders were bankrupt.

PAYING OFF.—We have at least one encouraging financial item to report, which is that since the October report of the Auditor, as shown by the present report by that officer and the Treasurer, the county indebtedness has been reduced to the extent of $11,000. But the next report will knock the stuffing out of that little gain, we suspect.

A GRAND TIME.—That magnificent brass band of Cerro Gordo arrived here this afternoon, and will to-night give a minstrel entertainment, which, to judge from their reported success in Lone Pine last night, will be equal, not to say superiof, to anything we have ever had here. They return to-morrow. Turn out everybody.

HOSPITAL TAX.—The Board of Supervisors are considering the question of levying a per capita hospital tax, and will probably make the order. It ought to be done; that fund is now nearly $12,000 in arrears, and falling behind more and more every year.

IN THE FIELD.—It will be seen by reference to his advertisement, that D. B. Macarter, Lone Pine, is in the mercantile field in a manner to insure the success his personal popularity and excellent variety of merchandise deserve.

PREACHING.—Rev. Mr. Pratt will preach at Lone Pine to-morrow at 11 A. M., at George's Creek at 3, and at this place at 7:30 the same day. On Sunday the 17th he will hold services in Round Valley.

FOR A VISIT.—Mrs. A. W. Eibeshutz started on Sunday last for an extended visit with relatives in San Francisco.

STATED meeting of Inyo Lodge, No. 221, F. & A. M., on Saturday evening next.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

MONDAY, Feb. 4, 1878.

Board met in regular session; present, Westerville and Chairman Meysan.

Bids to surrender warrants were received, as per Sinking Fund advertisement, and submitted by the County Treasurer as follows: A. W. Eibeshutz, for the full amount on hands ($2,057 36), at 96 cents; Harris & Rhine, at 85 cents. The latter was accepted. Warrants upon the Expense Fund amounting to $2,386 05 were so surrendered for $2,028 14 cash.

Mr. Eibeshutz gave notice of intention to file protest against the award on the grounds that the accepted bid was not tendered until the limited time had expired. Said protest was filed on TUESDAY, Feb. 5.

Ordered, that the County Clerk open correspondence with the Supervisors of San Bernardino county asking said county to join with Inyo county in a joint survey of the intervening boundary line along the Sixth Standard South to State line on the east. It was further ordered that if said Board consent to join in said labor immediately, that County Surveyor Seeley is hereby authorized to proceed at once in company with the Surveyor of San Bernardino county and run said line, and to report with diagram to this Board as soon after the said work was completed as circumstances would permit.

Bill of Geo. M. Gill for taking testimony, Justice's Court, laid over to next regular meeting.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 6.

J. H. Holt applies for the establishment of a wagon road from Graves' ranch along north side of Kearsarge mountain to summit of the Sierras. Ordered, that Jos. Schalten and W. A. Cassidy, to act in concert with H. T. Walker and County Surveyor Seeley, be hereby authorized to view out and report upon said proposed road, as per said application.

Resignation of J. B. Rowley as Justice of the Peace tendered and accepted.

THURSDAY, Feb. 7.

In response to application of Assessor Dillon to be allowed assistants, ordered that he be allowed to employ one or more Deputy Assessors at the expense of the county, provided the aggregate of such service shall not exceed one hundred days.

Ordered, that the Auditor draw a warrant on the Expense Fund in the sum of $250 in favor of Mono county, in full of the share due from Inyo county for the joint survey of the Inyo-Mono boundary line.

It appearing that there was a balance of $29 22 remaining in the Sinking Fund, ordered that the bid of A. W. Eibeshutz at the rate of 96 cents be accepted to take up said remainder. Warrants to that amount were accordingly tendered and redeemed.

Bills by Drs. Middleton and Wainwright for holding autopsy rejected for non-compliance with subdivision 2, section 4290, Pol. Code, and for being excessive in amount.

It appearing that the Court House privy is located upon ground belonging to J. A. Hannah, who applies to have said building removed, ordered that the Sheriff be authorized to procure its removal to a more suitable spot in the rear of the Court House.

FRIDAY, Feb. 8.

The quarterly reports of the County Treasurer and County Auditor approved and ordered printed one time in the INYO INDEPENDENT.

Bill for use of Independence District school house for election purposes—passed last session—rejected.

Bills by A. B. Elder for Constable's fees, and Mrs. Stewart for boarding jurors, prssed to next term.

Protest from citizens of Lone Pine against closing road to Tuttle Creek cañon, and petition from same asking purchase of right of way through C. D. Begole's land to Lone Pine Creek cañon, passed to next term.

Same order with petition asking that Bend City bridge be rebuilt.

Ordered, that duplicate assessment book be dispensed with.

STORMY.—Snowy, rainy and generally stormy weather has got to be the rule rather than the exception with us here of late. But the local demand for the said snow and rain is by no means over-supplied just yet.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING.

BY JAMES CRACK.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Jeems regrets having given offense to Mr. Cantharides by mentioning inadvertently of preaching to empty benches. Cantharides says: "We (I?) can't stand that; it lacks nothing but truthfulness." Further on he retracts and contradicts himself thus: "One reverend did venture up there (to Round Valley) to give them some of the 'however indifferent' and after a few trials returned, bitterly complaining of empty benches—he does not go back there any more." Consistency, brother, is a jewel, and much ado about nothing is a grand case. Try again, brother. The Rev. Mr. Pratt announces that he will preach in Round Valley the third Sunday of this month.

Mr. C. must have misunderstood Jeems. The latter, although a hardened sinner, cherishes no disrespect toward the preachers. This is a free county; they can preach and pray and whack away at unregenerate sinners to their hearts content and not be molested. In that Round Valley letter, narrating hastily the performances of Christmas time (eating, drinking, singing, dancing, etc.), James Crack innocently alluded to the charming influence of music—the necessity of cultivating that fine art, which has been sadly neglected in this section, and the desirability of forming singing classes, and the organization of choirs, whose heavenly strains should arouse the people and consequently materially assist in securing occupants for "empty benches." Jeems still contends that the young should become enamored of the joys and pleasures of music—that they should study and learn the rudiments and in due course of time make their homes and churches, hills and vales resoun l with harmony of sweet sounds.

Mr. C. having admitted the fact of empty benches, should like a pious Christian accept the above, also, as sound doctrine, and with stentorian voice shout from the pulpit the words of the Psalmist: "Sing aloud unto God our strength; make a joyful noise all ye land." But probably the gentleman is selfish—prefers to have his own sweet voice occupy the whole time, and, as the Dutchmen says, "Bray pooty much mineself."

In substance Cantharides says, "I wish you would praise the reverends more and dry up on school teachers." Can't do it, doctor. The parents and children of this valley think more of the present school teacher than of any divine—not even Beecher or Moody excepted. Envy will show itself inside as well as outside the church.

Cantharides (which means — but never mind) feels and writes very funny. He seems to be envious of our enjoying a square meal Christmas. Yes, sir; between two and three hundred of us had a big blow out at the same house Christmas eve. A good many years ago we felt proud, and thought ourselves fortunate when munching away at a handful of taboose for a meal, having lived for weeks without bread. But for the last ten or twelve years this little valley has raised abundance of the staple articles, hence we have "heap hogadie." And if you come this way, no matter whether you are a saint or a sinner, we'll give you a square meal, also, and fill your jacket without purse or money. Still, we are independent cusses, and don't give a —— whether you come or not. Some pretended teachers will preach to people that "God is their belly," while the same gentlemen, with great gusto, will unmercifully munch and crunch other people's geese and turkeys.

"Uncharitable people may laugh." Well, let us all "laugh and grow fat." "Be merry and wise." Life is short. We'll cross the river into the summer land, poco tiempo. "Oh, that will be joyful," although some of us are fiercely threatened with a perpetual brimstone poultice.

Cantharides elevates Jeems, and tells you of the wonderful "effect" the latter's epistle has had on trade and commerce at home and abroad. Of course, C. is reliable, although he feels disposed to brand Jeems as "unreliable." Don't growl any more, Messrs. Editors, that you pay James so much—$5,000 per annum—little enough considering the extraordinary "effect" produced on European powers by the ponderous documents.

Cantharides, give us something fresh and original—anything interesting—hell and damnation, in preference to much ado about nothing.

SHUT DOWN.—We are told that all smelting operations in Cerro Gordo have been temporarily suspended for lack of a sufficiency of lead ore, with which to smelt the silver-bearing quartz. It is next to idle to indulge in speculations based on any personal knowledge we have of the present condition of the mines on the Hill, still we feel well assured that those furnaces will not remain cool but for a short time. It won't do; there isn't a single furnace running in the county, if the old reliables up there are shut down.

PROSPECTS GOOD.—We feel sure no fears will be entertained of short crops in any part of this valley on account of scorcity of water for irrigating purposes. There is already quite a fair supply of snow in the mountains, while the weather continues of such character as to give almost certain promise of much more.

TO BE HERE.—Supervisor Garretson, who has been East for some months past, writes that, barring accidents, he will be here to resume his official duties early next week, subject to re-appointment made necessary by having overstaid his leave. Glad to have Mr. G. back again.

DEPARTED.—Mrs. P. P Gerrish, and children, departed this morning to rejoin the husband and father in San Francisco, who left us some months since on account of some business embarrassments.

SCHOOL REPORT.—The following is the monthly report of the Independence school for the month ending January 31: Whole number of pupils enrolled, 37; average daily attendance, 29; per centage of attendance, 80, nearly. The following is the Roll of Honor:

NAMES.	SCHOLARSHIP.	DEPORTMENT.
Minnie Harris	100	100
Johnnie Schalten	100	100
Julia Cook	100	100
Willie Chalfant	99¼	89

Frank M. Graham	85	80
Frank Sherer	80	90
R. S. Hitchcock	—	100
C. Randolph	—	90

This is based on 100 credits in lessons and the same in deportment, 80 being the lowest. Some reached the requisite number in one and not in the other; when this is the case the lacking must be low. It gives me great pleasure to have it in my power to say truly, that the pupils with a very few exceptions are gradually becoming more earnest in study, more ambitious to excel and more obedient and orderly in deportment. This improvement is principally due to the very efficient supervision and frequent visits of Trustees Chalfant and Conklin, which, while directly restraining and encourag the children, has indirectly created a public interest and parental responsibility, which, if maintained, will in time bring about a perfect reform. A consummation most devoutly to be wished for by every friend of order and morality. MRS. A. LOWE, Teacher.

The Eclipse Mining Company.

EDITORS PRESS:—Will you do me the favor of publishing the following in answer to a statement made at the last meeting of the Eclipse gold mining company, as reported in the London Mining Journal of December 22, 1877? The statement is mischievous, and if uncontradicted is very likely to prove injurious:

The Eclipse mine, as of course you know is in Inyo county, California, and is a most valuable property. Mismanagement and carelessness on the part of the home directors have resulted in the collapse, for which I, being several thousand miles away, am made the scapegoat. Two facts in reply to the imputations of incompetency and dilitoriness.

From April to August of last year I kept the mine constantly running under the burden of law suits, attachments, labor troubles and want of funds. Statement after statement of how matters stood were forwarded to the home office, to none of which I received a reply. Everything went on from bad to worse until, despairing of relief, and literally unable to obtain credit, I saw the Sheriff in possession, and was compelled to leave for San Francisco. Even here I have heard nothing from headquarters, and it was only from a chance remark of a third party that I learned of the reported liquidation. In the second place, I have simply to say that statements were forwarded to Finsbury Circus as regularly as possible under existing circumstances at the time and have since then kept them informed of vital matters relating to the mine, etc.

The foregoing is in answer more particularly to that portion of the Secretary's report, as copied in the journal referred to above, of which I extract the following:

"Mr. Nelson, who had been sent out proved of no service whatever, and he (the Secretary) had never been able to obtain any information from him relative to the accounts."

In conclusion I would add that if English capital invested as this, had been properly managed by the officials at headquarters, shareholders would have obtained ample returns for their money invested and the blame of nonsuccess is attributal to them (Directors) and not to their representatives on this side the Atlantic. Although still these representatives here can but say that every assistance has been offered for their welfare, but they have not thought it worth while to avail themselves or appreciate the same. C. S. NELSON.

Eclipse G. M. & Q. Co., Inyo Co.

THE REPORT OF THE MEETING.

A special general meeting of shareholders was held at the office of the company, Finsbury Circus, London, on Wednesday, Mr. Potts in the chair, to consider the present position of the company and the desirability of a voluntary winding up. The Chairman said the Directors had called the present meeting in order to lay before the shareholders such information as Mr. Rickard had sent over relative to the position of the property. The Directors had delayed calling this meeting in the hope that Mr. Rickard would have returned from America, and been present in order to state the fullest particulars regarding the property. Unfortunately Mr. Rickard had not returned, having been engaged in some mining speculation in America. After the letters of Mr. Rickard had been read, perhaps some of the shareholders might think there was a ray of hope with regard to prosecuting the mine, but they had spent money without any return, that possibly they might not think it worth while to go in any further. He might mention that himself and Mr. Wild did not intend to advance any more money and Mr. Hurlburt also had lost heart, That being so, there was only one course, to wind up voluntarily and appoint liquidators. As regards the accounts, the Secretary would be able to render an account with regard to England, but it has been utterly impossible to get any reliable accounts whatever from the other side.

The Secretary then read extracts from the most recent letters from the mine, showing the present unfortunate position of the property and the utter impossibility of continuing operations unless further money was forthcoming. The Secretary also mentioned that a debenture holder in this country had already lodged a petition for the compulsory winding up of the company. The Secretary, in answer to questions said it would take about £5,000 to pay off the present indebtness, but it would leave no capital to go on with and they would require another £5,000 to develop the property. Some time ago a telegram was sent over from here saying that funds were required to release the property; and in answer to a question as to how much it would take the reply was $4,000. A sum of £800 was subscribed and sent over to enable the property to be released, but it was afterwards found that considerable more than that amount was required, as the £800 only went a small way toward paying the workmen and such like things. Mr. Nelson, who had been sent out, had proved of no service whatever, and he (the Secretary) had never been able to obtain any information from him relative to the accounts. A shareholder said it was clear that unless a certain sum of money could be raised, it was utterly impossible to continue operations at the mine. The property was mortgaged to secure the debentures, which were a first charge upon it. It is impossible to raise money in operations. The proper course to pursue would be to direct the Board to place the company in a proper condition for liquidation. A lengthened conversation ensued, in the course of which several legal points were raised, which were replied to by the solicitor. Eventually it was decided to liquidate the company voluntarily, and Mr. I. H. Taylor and Mr. Bluett were appointed liquidators.—S. F. Mining Press, Feb. 2.

ROUND VALLEY, February 10,

MESSRS. EDITORS—The weather—what a fruitful theme! Until Christmas we had delightful weather, since then we have experienced all sorts of weather and more changeable than any coquettish young maid. Talk of climate: This ought to satisfy a Santa Barbarian or any other man. Here we get the tropical and the semi-tropical, arctic, antarctic and "sich" nicely blended, and sometimes all in one week. It is very perplexing even to the weather-wise; the "oldest inhabitant"—that veritable old gentleman—admits that he can't predict, control or shape this climate to suit everybody. Take it as it comes, and don't worry, he says.

Some farmers are itching to start the plow. A mild, warm day suggests a move in that direction, but the next morning it will be evident that Jack Frost has been hard at work during the night, which throws us into a dismal mood; then we clutch the jack-knife and a soft stick and go to whittling, at the same time humming that the "melancholy days have come," and wondering when will the "balmy breath of Spring, ethereal mildness" come—if ever. The soil is thoroughly saturated with water and the mountains well covered with snow, which indicate abundance of water for irrigating purposes next Summer. Although the weather is very "onsartin"—one day snowing, the next raining and the third freezing—yet we perceive Farmer Wildasinn tearing the ground—breaking sod with six yoke of oxen. If he doesn't raise babies he is bound to raise wheat. Speaking of babies, reminds me that a little fellow, boy, something less than twenty pounds (minus boots or breeches) has put in an appearance at Mr. J. Shipley's, where he demands board and lodging. He has no money, but has a good pair of lungs, which will soon be useful to him in rendering the usual chin music as payment for his hogadie, washing, etc.

HAY.

Round Valley has never shipped any baled hay before this season. The other day seven loaded teams started out for Benton with baled hay. This speaks well for northern mining camps, and is encouraging to the farmers of this section. Hundreds of tuns more hay could be cut every year in this valley, providing there was a good market; and surely the season is sufficiently long—from June to October, although some farmers seem to delight in haying as late as December—to cut every blade of grass.

A NEW STORE

building is looming up, which will soon be filled with a big assortment of goods by Mr. Badger, of Benton. We had a little store here a few years ago, but the storekeeper proved himself too generous—sold some things for less than cost and whisky dirt cheap. "Tut, tut, now then, now then, take a drink." Probably Mr. B. is too old and experienced to follow suit. A good store will be quite an acquisition to this valley. We now have to travel to Bishop Creek, the round trip being from 25 to 30 miles, for supplies. Say we make a trip a week, 25 miles a week. 1,300 miles per annum, in ten years 13,000 miles—about half the distance around the world! Quite a tax. And still the Bishop Creek storekeepers raise no objections to our frequent visits. Mr. Badger, like a public benefactor, comes to the rescue, and undoubtedly calculates to sell, as Pinchower used to say, "so sheep like nefer vas."

The one thing needful now is the removal of Munzinger's brewery up here; but Louie says he is doing well among the Good Templars of Gospel Swamp. Joking aside allow us Dutchmen to congratulate Munzinger. The beer is excellent, the malt being made of Owen's Valley barley, which he says cannot be excelled for malting purposes. Munzinger proposes to consume a heap of barley the coming season.

There is strong talk of a grist mill to be built in this valley. Another rumor is a saw mill in the Long Valley timber and a new wagon road built up the Rock creek cañon into Long Valley. Talk is cheap, and often ends in smoke or something worse. Still we may at a not very distant day witness a brisk trade between this section and the mining districts, timber regions and stock ranges of Long Valley and vicinity. GRINGO.

DYED CIGARS.—The artificial dyeing of cigars has as yet attracted but little attention among smokers, and is conducted very quietly and is apparently harmless, yet under all circumstances it should be condemned. Every artificial change of a natural product like tobacco to give it a better appearance should of itself be branded as improper. Then we must take into consideration the fact that the natural color of the cover has an essential influence on the strength of the cigar, and consequently most smokers place great value on the color. By artificial coloring, on the contrary, the judgment is deceived; and it makes it impossible to determine the quality of a cigar from the color of the cover, for every dealer now has it in his power to make splendid dark cigars from his very light ones. On all these grounds dyeing cigars must be ranked as an adulteration for the purpose of swindling the public. Unfortunately, no means have yet been devised whereby the public can distinguish such cigars in all cases from the genuine. All that we can do at present is to call attention to the fact and recommend caution in the matter.—Scientific American.

THE LAUGH OF CHILD.—There is no day so sacred but the laugh of a child will make it holier still. Strike with hand of fire, O weird musician, thy lyre strung with Apollo's golden hair! Fill the vast cathedral aisles with symphonies sweet and dim, deft touches of the organ key. Blow, bugler, blow, until your silver notes touch and kiss the moonlit waves, and charms the lovers wandering on the vine-clad shore; but know your sweetest strains are discords all, compared with childhood's merry laugh—the laugh that fills the eyes with light. Oh, rippling river of laughter, thou art the blessed boundary line between beast and man, and every wayward wave of thine doth drown some fretful fiend of care. Laughter should make dimples of joy enough in the world to catch and hold and glorify the tears of grief.—Ingersoll.

A SINGULAR discovery has been made on board the Irvine, a full-rigged vessel, recently in the dry dock at Rotherhite, London. The ship had recently arrived from Peru, at which place the body of a woman was found imbedded in the cargo, which consisted of soda. The body is in a good state of preservation, and is supposed to be that of a victim of an earthquake which occurred many hundred years ago in Peru. Rings are inserted in the ears.

THOMAS PASSMORE.

The shortness of his stature only served to emphasize, by contrast, the well-known indomitable energy and physical courage of our late Sheriff. Through all the Indian troubles of the early times in Inyo his utter fearlessness amounted to such rashness that the officers of the citizen-soldiery had to check him with words of caution and command upon every occasion of danger and fighting. He was self-confident to the last degree, quick to act and one who could only be finally overcome by just such a cowardly and unexpected assassination as that by which he met death while in an act of official duty. In all the relations of life, Passmore was altogether too large-hearted and liberal for his own good.

He was born in Ohio, and so far as can now be learned, a half-sister residing near Zanesville is his only surviving relative. He crossed the plains in '52, and for many years lived in Sierra county. In February, ten years later, he formed one of a party of three who first visited this, then unknown country, coming southward from Aurora. He passed on southward, but returned in the same year and located the farm now owned by the Shepherds, at George's Creek. From that time on he has been closely identified with almost every interest of this entire region, and upon the organization of Inyo county in 1866 was elected County Clerk. Devoting himself to farming and mining, he declined further position until elected Sheriff two years ago—a career destined for such a tragical ending. He was widely acquainted throughout the State, known by every man, woman and child in Inyo, and it may be most truthfully said that he had not an enemy in the world.

With the rugged Pioneers and citizens, who knew and loved him so well, his memory will never grow dim. Peace to the ashes of Tommy Passmore.

A LONDON letter, alluding to Stanley the African explorer says: His last expedition cost the New York Herald and London Telegraph $100,000. Stanley's report of it, in book form, with illustrations, will net him half a million dollars. It will no doubt have the largest sale of any book of travels ever written.

THE Colorado river is said to be lower than it has been for years. It fell 13¾ inches from January 14th to the 16th.

GEN. CROOK'S VIEWS.—In Omaha recently Gen. Crook expressed himself as follows in relation to Indian matters:

In his opinion it would be difficult to maintain peace on the Northern borders and on the upper Missouri and Yellowstone. Sitting Bull could not long remain on British soil, because the English having nothing to supply the Indians with, and the scarcity of buffaloes makes it necessary for the Indians to follow the buffaloes to their accustomed stamping ground, which is in United States territory. Whenever Sitting Bull and his Indians come down that far there will be more or less communication between them and other Indians and consequently there will be more or less tlouble. The decrease of buffaloes is so rapid that the Indians will soon have to find some other means of subsistence, and this will eventually compel them to rely on the Government or to commit depredations. In his opinion over 100,000 buffaloes have been slaughtered every year for the last 10 years, and the natural increase is very much less than that. Gen. Crook thought it would be impossible to prevent Sitting Bull from crossing the border into the United States, as there were 500 miles of unprotected territory. There are troops on Tongue river, Yellowstone and Upper Missouri, and there is no doubt that they can do much toward checking the Indians from committing any serious depredations, still there will always be in that upper country more or less danger until Sitting Bull is cleaned out. The agency Indians will have communication with Sitting Bull's forces when they come down.

NOT UNEXPECTED.

The concluding portion of the shocking, terribly shocking events that began at Lone Pine last Sunday evening has occasioned scarcely any surprise, hardly a regret except for the cause, anywheres in this community. We had simply reached a point in a very long lane where a turn must come, just where all had begun to look for it. If any surprise was occasioned it was not that the turn was now here but that it had not been reached months ago, as it would have been inevitably had not our citizens as a class been at heart the most law abiding that ever hewed out homes in the wilderness. For months and years the manslayers have been abroad in our midst, striking right and left in darkness and in daylight with impunity more and more absolute with each successive effort. But one, barely, has been awarded his lawful deserts, and yet time after time, and in every instance the commnnity has looked to no other than lawful means for redress for violated law, but not for individual protection; they know, with regard to the latter, that to do so would be but to lean upon a broken stick; hence it has happened more than once, we dare say, that good men have felt there was no recourse but to strike and slay in self-defense, because the law had not the slightest terror to a murderous assailant. The imbeeile manner in which certain charges of murder have been prosecuted in our courts, together with the invariable "not guilty" that has terminated every such trial both preliminary and final, with the one exception noted, has brought the law touching such cases to be looked upon with profound contempt, as a fraud, a false quantity, the trials under it as grotesque farces ever to end alike, and too often in material detriment to the reputation for integrity of the twelve citizens who, by force of a solemn oath, can only smother moral convictions of truth oftentimes and render judgment on grounds so technical as to excite a smile of derision on their own lips, yet grounds of such weight in the administration of law as to rarely be ignored in safety. More than one black murderer has thus been adjudged guiltless here, and being so accepted and universally expected, people have become prone to estimate almost every manslayer as a murderer in fact, and to assume that as each in turn is turned loose, it was simply a repetition of the standing legal farce, therefore a burlesque on justice in all cases alike. It is not in the least strange that the continuous repetition of the same old play without variety in the ending should finally induce a pretty wide belief that the beginnings and merits, one case with another, were also too nearly identical to be submitted to year after year without a loud call for a change. It is only a wonder that that call has not been made before this. It will be a still greater wonder if it is not still more emphatically repeated at the very next occasion—a danger the murderously inclined will do well to heed. No doubt is entertained but that both Indian Dick and Sheriff Passmore—each ranking among the very best of their respective races—were foully murdered simply because the past experience of their assassins, coupled with their knowledge of the invariable routine above outlined, had led them to think they could do murder with impunity so far as the law was concerned. The terrible retribution they and their abettors subsequently met was a natural sequence of this belief in what the murderers themselves had counted upon in their most foul deeds, together with a similar public estimate of the utter futility of the law in dealing with such cases. These facts in connection with the peculiarly aggravated circumstances surrounding or attending the murder of a most worthy citizen and officer were quite sufficient to cause the long muttering storm to break forth in the fearful manner it did. And, deprecate mob law as we may, we do not hesitate to say that the actors in that bloody sequence are not only indorsed by this community at large, but are going to be sustained, let who may raise the cry for law and order. We have dealt herein much in generalties, but in the hope their meaning cannot be misconstrued either at home or abroad.

MURDER—SHERIFF PASSMORE SHOT AND KILLED.

Mob Law—Vengeance—A Terrible Episode.

During the night of Sunday last and the Monday morning following, our neighboring town of Lone Pine was the scene of some as bloody work as ever startled a country or community—six mangled corpses, including that of Thomas Passmore, the Sheriff of Inyo county.

Long noted throughout this interior country as the habitual resort of a most murderous gang of cutthroats and lawbreakers, the large house and saloon of Frank Dabeeny—a Portugese—situated on the corner of a block in the southern portion of the town, was the central figure in the events here recorded.

About 9 o'clock in the evening Gumesindo Palacio, the barkeeper and nephew of the proprietor, following his fiendish instincts, and committing his second cold-blooded murder, went to a small cabin in the rear o the establishment mentioned, called from the door a Piute Indian known as Dick and deliberately shot him dead, without the slightest provocation. The Indian had for years been employed by citizens; was harmless and well thought of. As the word spread through town a strong party of citizens proceeded to the place for the purpose of taking the murderer in custody. They found the house locked and admittance refused. After some parley and threats from the inside, some one proposed sending for Sheriff Passmore, upon whose demand it was thought the door would be opened. The town has for a long time been without a peace officer authorized to make arrests, and it was but accidental that the Sheriff was then in town; perhaps his presence had not been thought of before, but at any event he was awakened and immediately joined the crowd of citizens. He demanded admission, stating that he wanted to arrest Palacio. He was refused in vile and insulting terms. Right here, knowing the dangerous character of the wretched inmates, Passmore's utter fearlessness should have given way to reasonable caution, but fate had otherwise ordained. Twice forcing in the door, the officer in the final effort received a bullet in the breast. Statements differ as to whether one or three shots were fired from within. We believe that there were two, by Dabeeny and Palacio. The deceased received one bullet through or just below the heart and one through the left forefinger. The door was instantly closed and braced; Passmore stepped back, handed his pistol to one of those present and fell dead at the corner of the sidewalk. A wild excitement resulted. The crowd of citizens before bent only upon lawful proceedings became an infuriated mob. The house was surrounded and the various windows and doors riddled with lead. It was a quarter of an hour before the body of Passmore could be picked up. Time had worn on to 10 o'clock when this occurred. In an hour later Dabeeny had attempted to escape from the building by the rear, but was overtaken, knocked down and captured. He was led across the street but again toward the house; on the way back he was taken from those in charge and shot to death. Palacio attempted to leave the house some hours later, on a rapid run across the street, the result being a dozen bullet holes through his worthless carcass.

Five other of the inmates of the house—Eustaguio Santoyo, Carlos Ferman, Manuel Lobos, Navarro Robles and Joaquin Brazil—had been allowed to come out and surrender. A terrible fate awaited the two former, as will be related further on, but the three last named, being deemed innocent and of previous good character, were only held for examination as witnesses.

Messengers had been dispatched to Independence, and as soon as possible Under Sheriff Gregg, Coroner Blair and a large party of resolute and exasperated citizens reached Lone Pine.

Early in the morning Eustagio Santoyo and Carlos Ferman had read and translated to them a notice to leave the place within ten minutes. The first named had received a wound across the neck during the night—against whom there seems to be no definite charge of previous crime; the second one had killed a drunken Indian some two years ago at this same Dabeeney den of murderers; it is also stated for a fact that he had fired the pistol which killed George Eames in the memorable fight at the same house when a Mexican known as "Poncho" got his quietus and Jack Allison was wounded.

About 10 o'clock in the day a gentleman coming up from Olanche reported the discovery of two dead bodies lying in the sage brush some four miles below town. The Coroner's jury subsequently identified the bullet-riddled carcasses as the said Carlos Ferman and Eustaguio Santoyo.

We attempt no description of the scene where the mangled corpses were lying, all, save that of the Sheriff and the Indian, being disfigured almost past recognition.

The Coroner and his jury made examination of all the remains and the surroundings; a full record was made of the testimony elicited, which has been condensed in the foregoing brief account of the affair. We append the

VERDICT OF THE JURY.

State of California, County of Inyo. Before J. D. Blair, Coroner. In the matter of the inquisition upon the bodies of Thomas Passmore, Frank Dabeeney, Eustaguio Santayo, Carlos Fehrman, Gumesindo Palacio and Indian "Dick," we, the undersigned, jurors summoned to appear before J, D. Blair, Coroner of the said County of Inyo, State of California, at the town of Lone Pine, on this 11th day of February, A. D. 1878, to inquire into the cause of the death of said parties, having been duly sworn according to law and having made such inquisition, after inspecting the bodies and hearing the testimony adduced, upon our oaths each and all do say that: We find that the deceased first named, the said Thomas Passmore, was Sheriff of said Inyo county, a native of the State of Ohio and aged about fifty-one years; that he came to his death on the 10th day of February, A. D. 1878, in the State, county and town aforesaid, while in the performance of duty as such Sheriff, by a gun shot by the hands of one Gumesindo Palacio, deceased, We also do further find that the said Frank Dabeeney, Eustaguio Santoyo, Carlos Fehrman, Gumesindo Palacio and Indian Dick, deceased, came to their death at the time and place aforesaid, by gunshot wounds at the hands of parties to this jury unknown.

All of which we duly certify by this inquisition in writing, by us signed this 11th day of February, A. D. 1878.

NEW DISTRICT.—A new district has been formed for the section of country where the late gold discoveries were made, and is called "Beveridge." A Recorder has been elected and by-laws adopted. The mines are situated about sixteen miles northwest from Cerro Gordo, on the eartern slope of the Inyo mountains, nearly opposite the Eclipse company's mines, which are on the western slope. The ledges are said to crop boldly and are traceable for a long distance. We have not heard how valuable the ore has been found by assays, but as active work will be commenced right away we shall soon be enabled to report. At present the easiest way of reaching the mines is by way of Cerro Gordo, from that place keep along the the mountains to the mines. Hope some one up there will keep us posted. —Darwin News, Feb. 9.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 16.....1878.

QUITE A BLOW.—A sudden south wind sprang up on Tuesday night last and effected considerable damage to a couple of well-known institutions of the town. The first and most serious loss was that of the chimney of the new Fernbach brewery building, which stood some thirty feet in hight and unprotected by building or scaffolding. It fell across the water-wheel and malt mill, but did not seriously damage them. The lost brick chimney is to be replaced with an iron smokestack. In the latter instance the experimental windmill belonging to THE INDEPENDENT office was the victim, and it got pretty thoroughly demoralized—a result, however, due vastly more to carelessness than any fault of the machine itself. It will be repaired in due time and made to do the work intended for it.

THE FUNERAL.—Notwithstanding that the notice of time of burial was so short as to preclude an attendance from the northern portion of the county, on Tuesday last a cortege of some forty carriages accompanied to their last resting place the remains of Thomas Passmore, which had been lying in state at the Court House since the evening before. They were laid by the side of those of his wife in the Post Cemetery, the Episcopal burial service being most impressively read. The members of the Masonic Lodge were conceded the honor of acting as pall-bearers, and took precedence—though it is due to say that the deceased, to the deep regret of the craft, was not yet a fully made brother of the fraternity.

A VACANCY.—Under the law the Board of Supervisors could not do otherwise than to declare the office of Mr. Garretson, as Supervisor from Bishop Creek, vacant, his return to the county having been so long delayed. We understand that a petition with the requisite number of signers has been circulated praying for the appointment of Mr. Sneden, while a similar one will doubtless be presented for the reinstatement of the old incumbent. Either would be satisfactory to the people. The appointing power rests with the County Judge, we believe.

SNOW BIRDS.—Joe McDermott, engaged with his miners in running a tunnel on the Sheridan ledge, just below the Rex Montis, has accomplished about 60 feet of the entire 250 to be run to reach the ledge. When last heard from he was in soft ground and making good progress. After he and the rest of the miners have been "three months under the snow" up there, they will have some idea why the rich, soft ore fissures of that pogonip region are packed with ice to the lowest depths yet reached.

LOCAL PATENTEES.—Among the recent U. S. patents granted upon machinery, we note that one has been issued to Dr. A. F. Stoeckley for a scrubbing machine, before referred to in these columns, and one to J. W. Mahoney, of Bishop Creek, for an improved plow. Dewey & Co., of San Francisco, were the agents in both cases. We hope to be able to announce the issuance of patents to other local inventors ere long.

PROSPECTING.—Callihan, Peel and others are working a promising ledge in the new Goldopolis district, in the Inyo range some twenty miles northwest from here. They are building an arastra for working the ore. Billy Lake is doing the assessment work on a large silver ledge nearly opposite Fish Springs. John R. Hughes and others have a small force at work in the new Beveridge district, referred to in an extract elsewhere.

REX MONTIS.—The Rex Montis mill, the pans of which were started up on tailings, was disabled and shut down on account of the bursting of one of the new Stevenson pans. Supt. Hutchings immediately started to the Bay after new ones—those with wooden sides, probably. Work still goes on at the mine, though there is now no communication with those fellows up in the clouds and snow.

AT WORK.—A strong force of men and teams are now at work on the Big Pine Irrigating Canal. The survey of the ditch now being made does not necessitate the great length of the one first proposed, and, of course, will not irrigate so large an acreage, but it belongs to fewer men and they are able to carry the work through.

DEAD.—George Snow, a gentleman well known in all of this region, died of dropsy in San Francisco whither he went about a month ago. Mr. Snow was an old time prospector, and located claims at Lookout, Darwin and other camps in the county.

RACES.—Purses are offered at the Lone Pine track on the 22d instant for races as follows: Single dash of one-half mile, $25 to first and $15 to second horse; dash of 600 yards, purse of $25; dash of 300 yards for purse of $20.

GONE AWAY.—Peter Bennett, Esq., a well-known resident and old-timer, has taken his departure for a future residence in Santa Barbara. Good luck be with him.

NECESSARY.—It will devolve itself upon the citizens of Independence to make some arrangements for the care of the Post Cemetery during the coming season.

MASONIC.—There will be a regular meeting of Inyo Lodge, No. 221, F. & A. M., held at the hall to-night. A full attendance is hoped for.

The Beaudry Brass Band of Cerro Gordo.

Our little burg has not had such a treat for many a day as that occasioned by the visit of the Beaudry Brass Band of Cerro Gordo, accompanied by quite a number of friends from Lone Pine. It was certainly a most agreeable surprise to THE INDEPENDENT force last Saturday, while busy getting out that day's issue, to be greeted with the music of twelve pieces right at the door; all so totally unexpected, and entirely new for this sage-brush region. But so it was; and the boys will accept our thanks for the same.

It is said that "music hath charms to soothe the savage breast," etc., but we conclude that the Independence people are not savages, since the various airs played in the streets by this band were decidedly exciting, but agreeably so, rather than soothing; started anew stagnated blood, and give vivid recollections to nearly forgotten scenes of the long ago—"when we went sojering," or, better, to July Fourths, where there was lots of ginger cake, and all that.

The Beaudry Brass Band contains a number of as good musicians, perhaps, as there are in the State, and as a whole won universal encomiums for their superb music; but it is due to other considerations also that the occasion is worthy of more than a passing notice, and that the band itself received such a warm welcome. It was in recognition of the fact that so many young men, all miners or workingmen, in a small mining town, should thus band themselves together for so good a purpose, when to effect the desired object months of rigid training and quite a heavy outlay of cash were required and cheerfully rendered. And a fine athletic set of young men they are, too; it's a fact that several of them can successfully vie with almost any trained circus performer in ground and lofty tumbling and similar performances. These facts, sustained by their high success in musical execution, is why their advent here occasioned such unusual stir and pleasure.

Their success as musicians and as an organization is no doubt largely due to the interest taken and energies of the band leader, Wm. Hoskins, and his three brothers, all possessing remarkable musical talent. Following are the names of the members: Joseph Hoskins, Joseph Warren, John Hoskins, Samuel Evans, F. M. Drake, W. E. Goodrum, Gabe Hoskins, Richard Reynolds, Thos. Lawry, Fred. Bowen, Jas. Snell, Mark Hoff and Wm. Hoskins, Leader.

In the evening the band gave a minstrel entertainment, which, though not in every particular a grand success, was as pleasing as a whole as anything we have ever had here. Among the noticeable features of this entertainment was a magnificently executed piccolo duet by Wm. and Gabe Hoskins; the unique China dance and song by Goodrum and Drake; the ground and lofty tumbling by two of the boys; Goodrum's "end man" playing, and Mark Hoff's speech. "Well, it's so-o!" Only two or three hours notice had been given for this entertainment, nevertheless, the large court-room was very nearly packed by well pleased people of all ages, sects and sexes.

This ended, the decks were cleared for action, that is for a dance, which was kept up with great spirit—sometimes with music by the full band—till the following day was several hours agone.

But for the fact that regular duties demanded the immediate presence of about half the number in their places on the "Hill" the band would have visited Big Pine and Bishop Creek, where, we are satisfied, they would have received a very hearty welcome and rendered a fair quid pro quo. As it was they had to mount the fine four-horse turnouts furnished by the Dodge Bros., of Lone Pine, and start homeward on Sunday evening, and with everybody's expressed wish to "come again, boys."

SILVER PEAK.—Supt. J. B. Hiskey, of the Silver Peak mines and mill is conducting extensive operations over in that region. On the work are employed some fifty men, developing, erecting a new mill, etc. Bullion to the value of $50,000 has been shipped so far, but a drop compared to what will be produced when the new works and processes are complete. This is a heavy New York company, comprising Samuel J. Tilden, of eight-to-seven fame, among its backers. There should be by all means be a regular mail line established between Silver Peak and this valley.

A GOOD POINT.—It has been pointedly suggested by a prominent citizen of the upper portion of the Valley that, while work is going on in the Legislature, our Representative caused to be placed on the statutes a law in relation to Indian testimony in case of prosecutions for selling liquor to Indians. The Nevada law, authorizing juries and judges to take such evidence and give it due weight, making the taking of such perfectly legal, furnishes the substance of the improvement proposed.

PERSONAL.—Messrs. P. and E. A. Reddy reached town yesterday, for a short stay in Independence. Wm. Walker, of Olanche, has put in most of the week with us. J. R. Hughes, of Cerro Gordo, made a short stay, and we also noticed the infantile proportions of J. W. McMurry, of Big Pine, perambulating the streets with Joe Walker, from the same locality. Many other more or less noted Inyoites were among those here during the week.

THE fashionable bracelet in Paris is l'esclavage—slavery. It is is a fetter of gold worn on the arm above the elbow, and is rivetted and soldered by the jeweler in the presence of the donor, to be worn until death, or divorce, or separation. The jeweler, when the operation is over, bids the lady call next day to see that the rivet holds firmly. She comes—without her friend, bien entendu—and the treacherous goldsmith confides to her the secret of a concealed spring, by which means she can remove the fetter at will.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT IN FULL.

LONE PINE, Feb. 15.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Thinking that an account—separate from that compiled by your representative—of the killing of our late Sheriff would be acceptable to your readers, I send you the following: Between 8 and 9 o'clock last Sunday evening, while nearly the whole town was at Diaz' ranch at a barbecue, an Indian woman came running into Begole's saloon and said that Indian Dick was shot and killed by Gumasindo Palacio. This Indian was an intelligent, hard working man, possessed of some property—upon which, I believe, he paid taxes—and lived with his family on the outskirts of the town. It seems that Palacio went to the door of the house, and calling the Indian shot him dead as he reached the door, and then deliberately walked to Frank Dabeeney's saloon and went to bed. Three citizens went with the squaw to the Indian's house and learned the above particulars. There being no officer in town, they thought it their duty to arrest Palacio and turn him over to the proper authorities. Word was sent to Diaz' of the killing, and the three citizens, now joined by others, went to Dabeeney's house—which was closed and in darkness—and called out for Dabeeney to open the door as they wanted to arrest Palacio. Dabeeney refused, and used very foul language. Hearing that Sheriff Passmore was in town, it was decided to send for him, supposing the demand for admittance by the Sheriff would instantly be complied with. The house was well guarded so that Palacio could not escape, but while waiting for the Sheriff he (Palacio) came to the back door and asked who they wanted.' Upon being told they wanted him, he said "If you want me come and take me," and quickly got back in the house again. About this time two shots were fired from within. When the Sheriff came he knocked on the front door and called to Dabeeney to "Open the door; I am Tom Passmore, the Sheriff." Some one was heard to come softly across the room and stop near the door. Passmore commanded the door to be opened two or three times, and told them he would break it in if they refused. Passmore then pushed in the door and it was immediately pushed shut again. He got it open again, when a shot was fired and the door again shut and fastened. Passmore stepped back and said "Boys, I'm shot," and walking some eight feet, fell on his face dead. What few persons were armed then fired into the door, and Dabeeney was evidently wounded at this time. The cry was raised to "Set fire to the house!" "Blow it up!" and Dabeeney hearing this thought his safety lay in getting out. He and two others came out of the back door. Two—Dabeeney and Joaquin Brazil—were captured, the other, who must have been either Palacio or Carlos, got back into the house again. About half an hour after this Frank Dabeeney was found dead in the street.

A close guard was kept around the house until daylight, when the front doors were broken in and a rush made inside for Palacio. He managed to get through and out, and was making for the sage-brush but had only got some two hundreds when his murderous career closed. About noon word was brought into town that Carlos Firman and Austacio Santillo were both dead some four miles south of town.

In order for every body to understand how richly Dabeeney, Palacio, Firman and Santillo deserved their fate, a few words will not be out of place as to their characters. Frank Dabeeney has for the last 8 years kept a house where thieves and murderers were always concealed and assisted, where Indians could always buy whisky and where every night brawls, in which pistols were freely used, to the great danger of families living in the vicinity, took place. He had been arrested several times and fined, and citizens had told him repeatedly that if he did not keep a more orderly house he would be compelled to shut it up, but all of no avail. Palacio was a nephew of Dabeeney's by marriage. It was at Dabeeney's house that Eames and a Mexican were killed by these two men assisted by Carlos. I am convinced that had Carlos got away he would surely have returned, and we would have had the doings of a Chavis to chronicle. Saltillio was a dangerous man, as every time he got drunk he was liable to kill the first man he met.

All four of these men were at Dabeeney's, and concerned in the killing of Passmore, and the people of this whole section congratulate themselves that nothing more is to be feared from them.

Wednesday last a meeting was held, and as a result, notice was given that, under no consideration, would any of the parties heretofore connected with that house be again allowed to open it for any kind of business. CITIZEN.

REWARD.—The Commissioners of Esmeralda county have wisely offered a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the murderer or murderers of Joseph Parmental, at Columbus, at early morning on the 30th of January. It is thought that the Governor will offer a similar reward, and that this amount will be sufficient to induce some one to "peach" on his confederates, as it is generally thought more than one had a hand in the affair. No positive information was obtained at the Coroner's inquest, hence no arrests. —Esmeralda Herald, Feb. 9.

IN the Lennie McCormick-Lucky Baldwin seduction case, recently tried in San Francisco, the jury brought in a verdict for defendant. The fair, frail Lennie in her testimony proved herself guilty of perjury, bigamy, adultery and various other little peccadilloes, and now languishes in jail on a charge of perjury preferred by Baldwin.

CLOTHES-PINS are now shipped to New Zealand. The natives use them for ear-rings, but an old chief who got hold of one of them with a half-horse power spring in the back, and hooked it on his nose, was looking around ten minutes afterward for a missionary to kill.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

SATURDAY, Feb. 9, 1878.

Ordered that proposals for the redemption of Inyo county bonds be advertised for by the County Treasurer in the INYO INDEPENDENT and San Francisco weekly Chronicle each, for three successive weeks beginning immediately after the 2d of March next, there being the amount of $1,600 on hands for the redemption of said bonds.

Also publication of notice, during the same period in the first named paper, for proposals for care of indigent sick during the following fiscal year.

The following preamble and order, relative to the levy of a per capita Hospital Tax, were taken up and passed:

WHEREAS, it appearing that the Hospital Fund of Inyo county is overdrawn to the extent of nearly $10,000, inclusive of interest, and that the annual expense of maintaining the County Hospital is in excess of the revenue derived from the maximum apportionment allowed by law from the collected property tax,

Ordered that a Hospital Tax of $2 per capita be levied and collected in the same manner and with the same commissions allowed for collection as prescribed by law with regard to poll taxes.

Upon petition of citzens and qualiffed voters of Inyo county, and upon the proper bonds being tendered and filed, Wm. L. Moore, Sheriff elect, was appointed Sheriff of Inyo county for the remainder of the unexpired term of Sheriff Passmore, deceased. And thereupon Supervisor Westerville offered the following preamble and resolution, which was adopted and ordered spread upon the minutes:

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 12.

THURSDAY, Feb. 13.

In the matter of the application of Reddy & Conklin, special counsel heretofore engaged by the county to defend its interests in the case of the Union Con. M. Co. against Thomas Passmore, Tax Collector, for orders to have brief printed, and to give personal attendance in said case, it was

Reddy & Conklin, attorneys for the defendant and representing the interests of the county, be empowered to procure the necessary printing on the appeal in the said case, and that they are also instructed to attend said case in person before the Supreme Court.

And it is further ordered that the Auditor draw a warrant upon the Expense Fund in favor of said Reddy & Conklin for $500 in final payment, in compliance with the terms of the contract with them in said case on file herein.

THE SCIENCE OF ADVERTISING.—Advertising wagons, dodgers, hand bills and circulars are perhaps well enough in their way. But the experience of a century or more, as well as common sense, of enlightened men, point unerringly to the columns of the largely circulated and popular newspapers as the place wherein the advertisements are read and thought over, and make persuasive impressions on the popular mind. There is the element of persuasion here that gives it perpetual and increasing value. The showy makeshifts, in the matter of effect, are no more to be compared to the columns of the popular and well read newspaper as a power to attract purchasers and induce trade, than are the showy picture flashes of the kaleidescope with the great and valued work of the master painter.—Washington Star.

THE discovery has just been made in a field on the estate of Nanteul-Vachal, Aisne, in France, belonging to the Count de Gars, of about eighty human bodies in a cavity in the ground. Only the skulls and a few ribs remained, and by them two flint knives, a sort of poniard, a hatchet, an instrument resembling a pike, all in silex, and what appears to be of great value, an object in pottery, supposed to have been used as a musical instrument, as it has the form of a trumpet. The hole was covered with a flat stone at about one meter below the surface of the earth.

CHAS. W. CRANE, Room 10 Safe Deposit Building, is our Sole Agent for San Francisco

His First Newspaper Contribution.

He was a friend of mine and used frequently to drop in and give me advice as to how I ought to run my paper.

He was a minister and consequently thought I should devote more time to the cause of religion and not so much to politics.

He said it could be made a power in the Western land, in which we had cast our fortunes.

He was a lover of the original, too, and said he disliked to see reprint, and thought I should write more—take the time in fact to fill the paper up with good, new stuff. That seemed such an easy thing for him that one day I ventured to say:

"Brother, you had a glorious meeting at the schoolhouse last night, I hear—suppose you write it up for me?"

He didn't seem to act as though he wanted to.

I urged.

He flushed a little and stood around awkward like. He had never been honored with an invitation to write for the press before.

I still urged.

Then he took off his gloves and overcoat. Then I gave him a seat at the table, with paper and pencil.

He sat down to editorial work.

He had always been talking about how it should be done, and now he was at it.

He started in.

I went about my work, and having written a column or two of matter for the week's paper, left him still writing while I went out to solicit some advertisements.

I was gone an hour or two, and when I came back he was still at it.

He was sweating awfully.

The table and floor were white with copy-paper, and the pencil in his hand was much diminished in length.

I went to dinner.

When I returned he was at it yet.

There was more paper scattered around, the pencil was shorter and he wetter. It was Summer.

The hours dragged on till the middle of the afternoon.

His eyes were bent on the dazzling white paper before him, and his finger's moved nervously, and the pencil was a stub.

I began to grow frightened. I knew I had only a small weekly, and that its fourteen columns of space (one side was a patent in'ard) would not hold the contents of the Bible, and a supplementary message from Heaven besides.

At last the man looked up, and timidly advancing with a piece of paper in one hand, suddenly turned and went back to change a word.

Then he came on again, and, like one who had passed through a vision, held out the paper and feebly asked;

"Will that do?"

I looked.

There were just seven lines of it, advertising measure!

He was a large man—weighing over 300 pounds then, but when I met him three weeks later he weighed less than 125 pounds.

He had been sick.

The seven-line-nine-hour effort had been too much for him.

But it was not lost; he never advised an editor again.

Neither did he ever compose for a newspaper again.

It was hard work for him to write, and he saw he was not cut out for an editor.

GEORGE BANCROFT, the historian, often draws books from the library of Congress, and accordingly has the pockets of his over-coats made broad enough to hold an octavo volume, and sometimes leaves the library with twelve or fifteen volumes about his person.

The Little People.

"Now, Johnny," says grandma, "I wan't you to sit as still as a mouse." "Mouses don't sit still, grandma."

Little girl (who likes to drive horses and play ball)—"I wish God would smash me all to pieces and make me into a boy."

Mr. Jones—"I've got something in my pocket to give you when I go away." Child—"Then the sooner you go the better."

"What is wisdom?" asked a teacher of a class of small girls. A bright-eyed little creature arose and answered, "Information of the brain."

"Do you see any grapes, Bob?" "Yes, but there is dogs." "Big dogs, Bob?" "Yes, very big." "Then come along—those grapes are not ours, you know."

A little boy who wore striped stockings was asked by a man on the street why he made barber's poles out of his legs. His pert reply was, "Well, ain't I a little shaver."

Lady (to a little girl of four years)—"What are you going to call your new doll?" Girl (heaving a deep sigh like some anxious mother)—"I shall call it Rosa—if it lives."

"What is the difference," asked the teacher in arithmetic, "between one yard and two yards?" "A fence," said Tommy Beales. Then Tommy sat on the ruler fourteen times.

Little Willie—"Would you like to have some candy, grandma?" "Yes, my boy, where is it?" "Why, if you will buy me ten cents' worth I shall give you the half."

Discerning child (who has heard some remarks)—"Are you our nurse?" Nurse—"Yes, my child." Child—"Well, then, I am one of those boys who can only be managed by kindness; so you had better get some oranges and sponge cake at once."

Pious old Boston gentleman observes boys playing marbles on the Common one Sunday. "Boys"—he says sternly,—"boys do you know what day it is?" One of the boys yells out, "Here, Bill, can you tell this man what day it is?—he don't know!" End of one missionary enterprise.

A schoolboy being requested to write a composition on pins produced the following: "Pins are very useful. They have saved the lives of a great many men, women and children—in fact, whole families." "How so?" asked the puzzled teacher. The boy replied "Why, by not swallowing them."

A little girl who was spending her first month in the country was asked "What do you like best in the country?" Replied the child, "I like the country because there are no corners. When I am at home, mother tells me not to go further than the corner of the street; but, don't you see, there are no corners here, and I can go anywhere."

Twenty-five or thirty years ago the Rev. Charles G. Finney was carrying on a series of revival meetings in Boston One day a gentleman called to see him on business. Mr. Finney's daughter, five years old, answered the ring. "Is your father in?" asked the stranger. "No," replied the demure maiden. "But walk in, poor dying sinner! Mother can pray for you."

Even a newspaper man finds it hard sometimes to believe everything he sees in print. At any rate that is the way it affected us the other day when a nine year old boy appealed to our generosity by laying before us a card setting forth in unshrinking double pica that he was a poor widow and the mother of five children. There's no fancy in this—pure undiluted truth.

THE Lone Pine tragedy, in which four desperadoes were shot by the citizens for killing Sheriff Passmore, is but an incident illustrating the general lawlessness of the community. It appears that Passmore went to a house to arrest G. Palacio, who just murdered an Indian in cold blood, and was resisted and shot down. A steady fire was kept up by Palacio and his friends from the inside, which was returned by Passmore's friends from the outside. The result was the death of the four men who held the fort. Thus six men were sacrificed within a few hours in Inyo county, and the citizens congratulate themselves on the result. Recently four Mexicans were taken out of the Bakersfield jail and hanged for horse-stealing, and Santa Cruz disposed of two murderers a few months back by summary jurisdiction. When life is held so cheap, and juries condone murder, it is not to be wondered if the people take the law into their own hands. —S. F. Post.

A YOUNG lady, says the Reveille, who speaks French fluently, and claims that her pronunciation and accentuation of the words of that language is perfect, was describing a coasting incident in which she figured recently. She said: "A select coterie of ladies and gentlemen assembled at the rendezvous at the appointed hour; we took our places on the sled and away we went with great eclat. But the first thing I knew the sled struck an obstruction, and we all went flying hither and thither, and in less than a minute we were all dumped en masse into the snow."

ONE of the speakers in the New Hampshire Democratic State Convention inveighed bitterly against the vast "system of moneyed corporations in the shape of National Banks that is preying on the substance of the people." The delegates applauded him to the echo, and then nominated a National Bank cashier and stockholder for Governor of the State. How beautiful is consistency.

The Bonanza Firm.

It is the talk among the San Francisco papers that the Bonanza firm has been dissolved. The Sentinel had a dispatch the other day denying the story from headquarters, but it seems the matter is not yet set at rest. The Stock Exchange of the 16th inst. publishes the following;

All signs indicate that the bonanza firm has disrupted, and that Messrs. Mackay and Fair have withdrawn from the alliance. Indeed it is asserted that Mr. Mackay, having bought Baron Grant's palace on the Thames, will withdraw himself and a greater portion of his wealth to Europe and make London his future home. It is understood that the relations of all the members of the firm are pleasant, but that Mr. Mackay simply wants to retire from active business. He may become the figure head of an immense banking firm in London, founded with bonanza capital, but nothing further. Another story is to the effect that Mr. Mackay has been informed that if he renews his native allegiance, and brings his immense wealth to England, a baronetcy at least—and not improbably, an Irish earldom—may be placed at his disposal. —Eureka Sentinel.

MRS. HAYES.—Washington has only one women to talk about this Winter—Mrs. Hayes. She is every woman's envy and every man's means of exciting his wife. Even the reaction or undertow of public sentiment which generally carries off all vaunted Washington ladies has excepted her. The silverness of her laugh, if put into the Bland bill, might popularize the cart-wheel dollar. Her style of wearing the hair has already revived the comb trade and the tortoise shell interest. My little girl rushed in the other day with her hair, usually "banged," all sweeping around her jaws and her mother's comb stuck in the rear thereof. Said she, "Papa, I am Mrs. Hayes." "My dear," I replied, "take care that you are not superior to your husband." "Well, that's the fashion now," remarked the child. She meant the comb, but I was thinking of our politics. —Ex.

OAKLAND FOR THE CAPITAL OF THE STATE.—In view of the numerous difficulties attending sessions of the Legislature held at Sacramento, especially during the prevalence of heavy and protracted rainstorms, the project of changing the capital of the State to Oakland is again being quietly but earnestly discussed. It is urged that Oakland is more central, more accessible, and, in every other respect, better adapted for the seat of the State Government than Sacramento—all of which is very true. The only argument in favor of keeping the seat of government at Sacramento is found in the costly structure known as the capitol. But a steady change of public opinion is noted and it is only a question of time—and much less time than some people imagine—when the public business of the State will be transacted at Oakland.—S. F. Stock Report.

TREE PLANTING.—The proposition to pay a bounty for planting trees is a very proper one, for the reason that it is a common benefit to the whole community, and all ought to be made to pay for this benefit. By all means let a bounty be offered, so that those who confer this favor may be rewarded. If a farmer is too ignorant or too lazy to plant trees himself, it is but right that he should be compelled to contribute something toward the expenses of his more enterprising neighbors who have planted them. There is no way in which a great and permanent benefit can be so easily and cheaply conferred on this State as in planting trees, and there is no more important measure before the Legislature than the one to encourage their planting.

A HEARTY LAUGH.—A laugh sends the blood with renewed force through the body, and conveys a different impression to all the organs which it visits. For this reason every good, hearty laugh in which a person indulges tends to lengthen his life conveying, as it does, new and distinct stimulus to the vital forces. Doubtless the time will come when physicians, conceding more importance than they do now to the influence of the mind upon the vital forces of the body, will make their prescriptions more in reference to the mind, and less to drugs for the body; and will, in so doing, find the best and most effective method of producing the required effect upon the patient.

AMERICAN newspapers find an infinite fund for humorous remarks in the difficult names that have cropped up in the European war, and frequently commiserate those whose duty it is to follow on the war maps the movement of the armies. Bulgaria is certainly bad enough, but what would be the task of finding out the names if the war were in Wales? We read in the Cambrian News that at the Merionethshire Quarter Sessions the other day the Rector of Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogert ysiliogogogoch was charged with obstructing the highway, and the News adds that Llanfair pwllgewyllgogertysiliogogogoch is an abbreviation of the full title of the village.

THE Shah of Persia will leave the Persian capital at the end of April for a tour through Europe, during which he will travel incognito, and will visit all the large European cities.

THE Czar is sick and very low spirited. His sixtieth birthday, which no Romanoff survives, is in April next, and he is superstitious enough to be apprehensive.

HE was a Bohemian of the impecunious order, and as he walked along the street with a friend, he suddenly stopped at the stroke of a church bell and drew tight his trowsers-buckle. "What are doing?" said the friend. "Nothing—nothing—don't trouble yourself. But I am always very regular with my meals. Six o'clock—dinner. Sorry I can't offer you any."

SATURDAY, MARCH 9.....1878.

THE "Free Labor Exchange," established by voluntary donations, is now open for business, and the co-operation of every employer throughout the State of California and the Pacific Coast is earnestly and respectfully requested. Its object is to provide work for the needy and distribute it to the best advantage the large and surplus number of laborers and mechanics now gathering in San Francisco. The advantages offered by the Labor Exchange are furnished without any charge whatever, being absolutely free to all, and the management will take especial care in the selection of competent and reliable employés. Farms will be supplied with skilled and unskilled husbandmen. Hotels can be furnished with good cooks, waiters, servants, chambermaids and clerks. Factories will have their help forwarded according to order, from a laboring man to a skilled engineer or superintendent. Saw mills and lumber camps may order their sawyers, loggers, edgers, planers, screw turners, choppers (by cord or contract) and others. Mines can order their drillers, timberers, blasters, timekeepers, engineers, laborers, etc. Female servants of any description or nationality will be carefully selected at short notice, for the city or country, on receipt of the necessary traveling expenses, as customary for female help only. All employers residing in the country are requested to be particular in sending their orders, and to mention the exact duties required of employés, the wages offered, the route it is desirable for them to take to reach their destination; and in order to prevent disappointment and useless expense, it is hoped that ample time will be allowed to select and forward the required help. Any information about the supply and price of labor will be furnished at any time by this Exchange. Apply or address all communications as follows: "The Free Labor Exchange, Nos. 33 and 35 O'Farrell street (near Market, between Dupont and Stockton streets), San Francisco, Cal., P. O. Box 2,179.

CONSTANTINOPLE.—It has been besieged twenty-three times—twice by the ancient Greek; thrice by the Roman Emperors; once by the Latins, the Persians, the Avares, the Sclaves, and by one of its dethroned sovereigns, Michael Paleologus; twice by the Bulgarians; once by Byzantine rebels; seven times by the Arabs, and three times by the Turks. It was taken six times—by Alcibiades; the Roman Emperors Septimus, Severus, and Constantine; the Doge Dandolo and Count Baldwin: the Emperor Michael Paleologus, and Mohammed II. In 682, under Constantine II., it was besieged for seven years by the Arabs. They made the surrounding country a desert, uprooting trees, leveling villages and habitations and converting the flourishing environs into waste. Then came the Crusaders in 1204. The devastation committed by the French and Venetian champions of the Cross exceeded even that of the Arabs. They burned the richest and largest quarter of the city, and inflicted such a blow on it that it never recovered its former wealth and prosperity. They profaned the Cathedral of Saint Sophia, broke into the tombs of the Byzantine Emperors, dragged out their skeletons and scattered their bones in the streets. They fired the public libraries, ridiculed the Greek religion by decking their horses with the vestments of the clergy and their heads with the pontificial tiaras.

A SAN FRANCISCO paper says that the large exports of trade dollars from that city to the Atlantic States was made an occasion by the Treasury Department to threaten to discontinue their coinage, and the Superintendent of the Mint was ordered not to coin any more without extracting a promise from bullion holders that the coin should be used for foreign export. It is evident that some of the bullion holders have been breaking their word in the matter, as the returns show tnat during February 810,975 trade dollars have been sent East from San Francisco. It is not known who the parties engaged in this business are, but it is probable an inquiry will be made to determine the fact.

REPRESENTATIVE AIKEN, of South Carolina, who wants to abolish West Point, has no good warrant in history for turning his guns with such purpose on that old time military school. It is his right to oppose extravagant practices there, but hardly his privilege to wipe out the institution altogether.

THE question of Cuban independence is now before the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House, and will lead to no dicker, it is to be hoped.

FOR SCHOOL PURPOSES.

Mr. Moffat writes us that he has introduced in the Assembly a joint resolution by which our Legislature requests Congress to donate Camp Independence, when finally to be abandoned as a military post, to this county for school purposes. Next week we hope to be able to publish the full text of the resolution. Mr. Moffat thinks it is certain of a good majority in both Houses of the Legislature, but, of course, can only surmise its fate before Congress.

In giving credit where credit is due it is but right to say that Mr. R. M. Briggs, during or previous to his late candidacy for the position occupied by Mr. Moffat, was the first to suggest a move to this same effect, and, while so doing, very strongly portrayed the very great advantages that must accrue to this entire sagebrush slope in case of its final accomplishment. But this fact detracts nothing, but rather adds, to the honor that will, in that much-to-be hoped for event, fall to Mr. Moffat's share in taking up the suggestion and using his opportunities to push it to fruition. In case of full success he will have been the means of accomplishing something in the way of legislation of, eventually, more local value than any measure ever yet proposed for our section, the railroad bill, though it had not come to naught, not excepted. We do not by this mean to attach undue value pecuniarily to the property in question, for that is comparatively insignificant; its control, however, will be of great value and importance because it will at once insure the laying of the foundation of an institution of learning which, but for such a starter, might otherwise not be begun for many years—too late, quite surely, to satisfy the needs of scores of our youth of both sexes who would gladly avail themselves of such a practicable opportunity as this in contemplation to better fit themselves for life's duties, upon which they must all soon enter as men and women passed beyond academical days of education.

It would be difficult to over estimate the benefits that would accrue to our isolated country through the establishment of a high school in our midst. It would not only retain for home circulation the thousands of hard coin now every year being paid out by those few of our citizens able to patronize distant schools, but would make such, by the possible retention of their families around them, feel that identity of interest in the present and future of our section so essential to its progress. By the same rule it would, beyond any other one thing whatever, do more to induce a desirable class of citizens to seek homes among us; among them, men of means and energy equal to the inauguration of many feasible enterrises of a class necessary to the solid, substantial progress of the country. We now have citizens who have both enterprise and foresight enough, but not in numbers who also possess the means to undertake other than such works as promise an immediate return. For this reason—that is, the lack of men of means or lack of permanent identity with the country, not of energy or business foresight altogether—some laudable undertakings, like those irrigating canals, languish, while scarcely any others have been or are likely to be undertaken at all until new conditions in population and business means effect a material change. This very institution is inevitably bound to promote such a change, and in other ways than here indicated. The ground-work of the whole lies in the important fact that it will give a hope of permanence to every home established or to be established such as could never otherwise obtain. Even one family in a neighborhood shaping ends with a view of removal elsewhere to obtain higher school advantages than the county affords has a marked tendency to produce a similar unsettled feeling, ruinous to permanent works, with others with whom they associate, though those others may have no similar reason to induce a desire to go elsewhere. And thus it comes that not a few but many work wholly on the to-day and to-morrow style in all matters of community interest if not in final of their own.

Besides all this, such an institution in our midst would be available to a large number, even now, of youths hoping for an academical course, but who can never enjoy the opportunity of taking even a partial one if not offered nearer home, as now proposed. In effect upon general business interests, it can be no less advatageous to the man who has no direct interest in education as him who does. Besides enhancing and creating business in new and permanent lines, it would surely make a vast difference in but a few years in the amount of taxable property, even allowing for nothing but the saving that would be effected in stopping the expense of sending children to distant schools. While it is not to be expected that all such outlays would cease entirely, no matter if even better advantages were offered at home, it is certain the difference would be more than be made good in other ways. And, to give some idea of what this saving might be to our taxable interest, we will state that the cost in cash entailed upon a few of our more forehanded citizens through sending their children to outside schools aggregates not less than $60,000 for the last four years; a sum that will likely be nearly doubled for the same purpose during the next four and onward unless something is done to obviate the necessity. That something, with the starter aimed at by Mr. Moffat's resolution, can be had for a mere bagatelle, comparatively. True this outlay comes from the pockets of those who directly incur it, but it is also true the community in the way of business, originally furnished them every dollar, and are therefore equal losers by being deprived of further benefits of its circulation through its being sent elsewhere without equivalent as regards the said community.

THE GREAT FLOOD.

The destruction of property in the valleys of the San Joaquin and Sacramento by overflow is roughly estimated at between three and four millions of dollars, and will probably reach a much larger figure when the water recedes and a better idea of the loss can be gained. This will be actual loss of property, embracing every description. The greatest damage, however, is to the growing crops, of which there was a large area. This might in some instances be partially recovered after the subsidence of the water, by replanting, but in the majority of instances it will require the reconstruction of the expensive levees that have been swept away before anything can be done—a work of such magnitude as to preclude the possibility of its accomplishment in time to secure a crop from the submerged lands this year. To the loss of tangible property and that of growing crops must be added the enormous expenditure that must be made in dredging, leveeing, draining and generally reclaiming the lands before they can again be used for agricultural purposes. From a correspondent of the Bulletin we take the following description of the flood and its incidents in Sutter county alone. The same will apply more or less to all the lowlands along the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers:

The storm in the tules in Sutter county proves to have been much more severe than at first supposed. Some fifteen or twenty buildings in Levee District No. 1, alone, are now known to have been washed away and destroyed, besides barns, outhouses, grain in sack, live stock, fencing, etc. The damage to growing crops too is large, one sufferer's loss alone in this cause amounting to $50,000. A good deal of grain in sacks and loose in granaries is reported lost. Live stock of every description, windmills and many miles of fencing are destroyed. Bedding, household furniture, trunks, wearing apparel, etc., are floated off to be found, if at all, many miles from the place of departure. Your correspondent's informant also stated that he had counted six houses that had floated to his ranch, some of them from a long distance. The loss in destruction to property and crops he roughly estimates at one million dollars. Parks Bros. and John Kimball are reported among the heavy losers. The former lost five houses, two barns, a granary with a large amount of grain in sack, fences and live stock. Only one person is supposed to have perished. A hunter named Kendall was at Frank Johnson's house in the tule district when his house was threatened with certain destruction. The inmates sought shelter as best they could. Kendall and his companion secured a haystack, which was soon afloat. The stack passing under or near a tree, his companion sought refuge in its branches from which he was rescued several hours later in a half perished condition. Kendall floated off into the darkness, and there are no tidings of him yet.

SNOW SLIDE AT MINERAL KING.—Through the Visalia Delta of the 1st we learn that a heavy snow-slide took place on February 18 at Mineral King district (located in the high Sierras west of Owens lake) which carried away a large house occupied by a Mr. Frazer, his wife and a number of men, burying them up so completely that some of them were not rescued for fifteen hours afterward. Fortunately none of them were killed or smothered, though the escape from instant death of number of them was almost miraculous. Says the Delta, in conclusion: "Since writing the above, we learn from Mr. T. T. Baird, familiarly known a "Bones," one of the party, that they had been working in the tunnel up to Monday night, but on account of the immense quantity of snow with which they had to contend, they had determined to quit until the storms were over, He says there were frequent slides over the tunnel, and estimates the snow to be at least 100 feet deep below. They were from Saturday morning to Sunday evening reaching the settlements on the Kaweah, camping in the snow one night. Mr. Trauger and wife, and the German, whose name we did not learn, will remain at the mines until Spring."

ULYSSES S. GRANT, JR., son of the ex-President, has been admitted to practice in the United States Courts on the motion of ex-Governor Stewart M. Woodford.

Grangers and the Constitutional Convention.

At a special meeting of Golden Gate Grange held in San Francisco on the 29th ultimo, which was largely attended by visiting farmers from the rural districts, the following resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, No event for many years in California has more deeply involved the interests of farmers and others, irrespective of party, than the Constitutional Convention soon to be called by our State Legislature; and, whereas, at the last session of the State Grange important resolutions, seeking to make timely provision for the election by farmers and those equally interested, of suitable candidates to attend such convention, was referred to a committee of five; therefore

Resolved, That the Golden Gate Grange and visiting members from various counties attending the meeting of our Business Association, deem that the time has come for the proper action to be taken; and that the farmers throughout the State, and those of like interests, should be awake to the importance of the occasion; should proceed forthwith to form such organizations among themselves, and to take such other steps as may secure their vital interests through a proper representation by able, conservative and faithful men in such Convention.

Resolved, That we respectfully request our Legislature, now in session, to so frame their bill calling said Convention, that the number of delegates shall not exceed 120, and will be so alloted by districts to correspond with the number of Senators and Assemblymen. Also, that there be no delegates at large, in order that voters may know well for whom they vote.

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to attend the Legislature, and urge the adoption of the principles embraced in the second resolution.

OAKLAND is in a ferment over a suit just instituted against a large number of property owners to recover property estimated to be worth $10,000,000. Mrs. ex-Senator Wm. M. Gwin is the plaintiff, and Judge Delos Lake is reported to be her counsel in the case. The papers will be filed in the Third District Court soon. The property in dispute includes all land lying south of the old lagoon, near Delger avenue and Twentieth street, east of a due south line drawn from that point to the creek off the foot of Oak street, and between that line and Lake Merritt and its outlet; and in West Oakland, all the land lying west of a line drawn due south from the west end of West Eighteenth street to a point on the creek at the foot of Kirkham street. The eastern tract includes nearly all the finest residences in the city, while the western tract includes all the business portion of West Oakland, from Henry street, just west of Center street station south to the creek, west to the bay, and northward to where the Berkeley railroad strikes the shore after crossing the arm of the bay. In the eastern tract the lines cut off 110 feet of the eastern end of the Grand Central hotel.

THE magnitude of the famine in China is appalling. People of all ages are dying of starvation by hundreds of thousands. The ravages of the famine extend through four provinces of north China, which include over five thousand villages. Nine millions of people are reported destitute. Most of the young women have been sold, and children are offered daily in the market for food, and the living are said to be eating the corpses of their fellow beings who have died of starvation.

BEN. WADE, another of those men whose names will ever find honorable mention in the history of our country, died at his home in Ashtabula, Ohio, on the 2d instant, aged 78 years. His history as a public man is too well known to need recapitulation at our hands, but this of his early youth is worth recalling: "He had only the ordinary advantages of education, having worked as a farm laborer in the Summer and taught school in the Winter."

CONGRESSMAN WADDELL, of North Carolina, sometime ago introduced an act to erect a monument to Gen. Custer, and received a resolution from brother rebel officers and soldiers emphatically endorsing his course in the matter. In an appropriate note Congressman Waddell forwarded the resolution to Mrs. Custer.

TREASURY officials in Washington have been given to understand that if they accept a fee they do so on pain of instant dismissal. This is as it should be—only the principle is not carried far enough; it ought to apply to every official of the Government.

NEW PATENTS.—Through Dewey & Co., Patent Agents, San Francisco, we receive the following list of U. S. patents granted to Pacific Coast inventors, viz: W. Eppelsheimer, S. THERE is said to be a secret movement on foot to contest Hayes' title by a writ of ouster. Influential parties in Washington and New York are encouraging the proceedings. Tilden is supposed to be too ill to profit by the movement, and Hendricks is more likely to obtain the profit. Hendricks and other prominent Democrats, however, deny all knowledge of the matter.

HEAVY LIBEL SUIT.—Mary A. Krigbaum, of Bodie, California, has commenced an action in the District Court of Esmeralda county, Nevada, against Frank Kenyon, proprietor of the Bodie Standard, for $25,000. The plaintiff sets forth that she was libeled in the Bodie Standard of the 20th of February in an article entitled "The Latest Sensation." The case will come on at the June term of the District Court. Twenty-five thousand dollars is a pretty large sum, but if the plaintiff was libeled we are strongly in favor of her getting the $25,000.—Esmeralda Herald.

A DEMOCRATIC paper says that Dana's income from the New York Sun is over $50,000, "and he earns every cent of it." To this the Camden Post assents, and adds: "If the champion liar of a glorious country like this ain't worth that, what is he worth?"

IT is believed that Brigham Young stole over $3,000,000 from the church. It won't cost over $3,250,000 to find out, and the lawyers have gone to work.

MINE PURCHASED.—An important sale of a mine was made this week by Messrs. Saylor, Riddle and Harniss to P. Reddy, Esq. The mine is situated about one mile from Darwin, and is said to be a very promising property. A number of tons of ore had been extracted from the mine which laid on the dump and passed to Mr. Reddy. The ore is said to assay high in silver and lead. We shall endeavor to visit the mine next week and give more particulars. A number of men have been put to work, and Thursday last a lot of coal, blacksmith's tools, etc., were sent out. If there is anything in it Mr. Reddy will ascertain that fact.—Darwin News.

ONE by one all the comforts of this life are taken away from the toiling millions. UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE, Independence, California, March 9, 1878.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT WM. L. HUNTER, whose postoffice address is Cerro Gordo, California, has this day filed, on behalf of himself and as administrator of the estate of John Beveridge, deceased, his application for a patent for One Thousand (1,000) linear feet of the Belmont mineral vein, bearing silver ores, with surface ground (100) One Hundred Feet in width, situate, lying and being in Cerro Gordo Mining District, County of Inyo, State of California and known and designated by the field notes and official plat on file in this office, as Lot No. 39, in Township 16 south, Range 38 east, Mount Diablo Base and Meridian.

THE AGRICULTURAL OUTLOOK.—Probably no county in this State or perhaps any other is so little concerned in regard to crop interests as governed by little rains or much. True, extremely dry seasons like the last, when there was no rain in the valleys and the merest trifle of snow in the mountains, small areas of cultivated lands here and there in some parts of the valley were resolved into deserts, but the average yield per acre, save in such spots, remains the same as near as may be, one year with another, regardless of droughts or floods. Inyo farmers surely have very much to congratulate themselves upon in this particular and many others as well, compared to those of any other county or State without exception. Notwithstanding this general uniformity in the yield per acre, it would seem that with the ground so well saturated to begin with and an unlimited store of snow water to come from the mountains for the Summer through, the chances for big yields per acre and inducements for extended acreage throughout the valley were never anything like as good as now.

ORE SPECIMENS.—Why don't somebody move in the matter of having this county represented by a display of minerals at the Paris Exposition? The vast importance of the matter cannot be over estimated, and as Inyo is second to no country in the world as to its number of mines and variety of minerals, the selection should take the character of a special representation. Our miners need have no further trouble than to label, pack their specimens and ship them to "Mineral Department, Paris Exposition, Room 18, Safe Deposit Building, San Francisco." Let our mining men agitate the subject and we will next week publish a full statement of the scope and plan of the managers of the matter. If our people do their part, they will have much occasion in the future to thank John Mackey for making possible a display to the world of our mineral wealth.

COUNTY COURT. — Judge Hannah, though scarcely able to appear by reason of protracted illness, opened County Court in regular term on Monday. In the matter of Howard vs. Gordan, on appeal, judgment was rendered for appellant. In the matter of the People vs. Thos. Volkert, on appeal, District Attorney Snelling moved to dismiss the appeal, which motion was denied; Judge Conklin for the defense then moved, for numerous reasons stated, that the case be dismissed. Owing to the illness of the Court the time for hearing arguments on this motion was postponed till Monday next. No other cases worthy of note on the docket.

A BIG MINE.—W. J. Lake has just returned from work on his mine, in the Inyo range nearly opposite Fish Springs. He has a great number of specimens of rich silver-lead ore, taken from different parts of the ledge, which show many varieties of ore. The ledge has been stripped for a distance of fifty feet and shows an average width of nearly twenty. By the road on the other side of the river the metal could be cheaply hauled to Swansea, and the mine would furnish an abundance to keep the works in operation.

THE BIG TUNNEL.—Supt. Holt writes from San Francisco the fact that he has perfected every arrangement for the immediate commencement of work on the Independence Tunnel, with a backing solid enough to secure its final completion. This is certainly good news for this section. Foreman Walker, the company's representative here, has written to Mr. Holt that it would be useless for him to come up until after some of the deep snow has melted away.

A BONANZA.—Green Hitchcock and some others of his family have recently opened up a little gold ledge in the Alabama range, which seems to be a real bonanza. A few pounds of the ore pounded up in a hand-mortar, gave a net return of $120 gold bullion. The width of the seam of this class of ore is said to be from three to five inches. The boys are highly elated at the prospect, and apparently have a right to be.

SCHOOL MONEYS.—State Superintendent E. S. Carr has apportioned the school money in the State Treasury to the various counties. The amount per child is $6 56. Under the apportionment Inyo gets $3,273 76, which sum is now in the hands of County Treasurer Isaacs awaiting apportionment to the several school districts.

APOLOGY.—Owing to a general unwellness and the non-arrival of his battery of Gatling guns, our collector is compelled to apologize for not calling upon our delinquents this week. However, warlike demonstrations will begin as soon as he can get around; and early surrenders by mail, in advance of his appearance, will be gracefully accepted.

WILL CLOSE.—The six months term of the Independence school will close in two weeks from this date. And there is quite an indebtedness against the district in excess of available public moneys received or receivable that tax payers will, we are sure, take the customary pleasure in liquidating somehow, and soon.

WORKING.—The arastra at the mine in Goldopolis has been started up and is now running steadily. The ore is rich in free gold and the mine is said to show an abundance of it.

SNOW WATER.—The Union Con. at Cerro Gordo, are using snow water for steam and other purposes, finding it cheaper than to bring it through the pipes.

GIVE THE BOYS A CHANCE.—The school boys here have at times constructed rude rafts with which to amuse themselves in floating about upon a little pond in the creek near the schoolhouse. One after another of these arks have mysteriously disappeared, the last one only night before last. This was broken into splinters by some one, who was probably born a full grown man, therefore never was a boy himself in instincts. Now, if these rafts with boys poling them about a small pond do any material harm to any one or themselves let them (the rafts, not the boys) be destroyed. If not, let them have some chance to amuse themselves other than building mud forts out of dry sand, for everyone knows that their opportunities in this particular locality for learning to swim, skate, boat and all such rather necessary accomplishments and sports are distressingly limited. They might as well spoil their clothes by getting plumped overboard off their teetering arks as to spoil them in dragging dead dogs, cats, etc., long distances just to see whether they will float or not—and boys must do something or dwindle away to shadows, don't you see—and it is contrary to law to kill them all off, even if that method of ending annoyances at their hands was otherwise advisable.

THE FAREWELL.—The ball given at the Court House on Monday evening in honor of, and as a farewell to, Wm. B. Daugherty, retiring County Clerk, was graced with the attendance of all the dancers in town, together with many staid citizens who only turn out upon extraordinary occasions. We have witnessed many most enjoyable occasions of this kind, but we are borne out in stating that this was the ball and social gathering par excellence. Truly Billy D. might think people were glad to get rid of him, so well pleased did they all seem. A fine supper was served at the Blaney, during which the expressions of regret at Mr. D's. departure were of such a character as to fully disabuse any misapprehensions on his part of the kind indicated in the last preceding sentence. All we need say further in reference to this occasion is that all present seemed to make it a personal pleasure to add to the pleasure of others, and in which all made a success. On the Wednesday morning following Mr. Daugherty took his final leave, in obedience to what he deemed a stern necessity in requirements of duty to future business relations, and infinitely to his own regret, certainly not less so to that of friends left behind.

THE RACES.—There is little need perhaps to recall the fact that the Spring races begin on the Independence course day after to-morrow, still it is no harm to mention the fact. Every possible preparation in the power of the Club has been, or is being made, to make the occasion as pleasant for all as circumstances will possibly admit. Several noted racers came in a day or two ago, and more are to arrive to-day. We can name but those at this moment now here: at Mairs' stables, Murray's Dashaway, Brown Frank and Whistle Jack; Hutchison's Pinto and Black Harry, between which last and Brown Frank came off at Bishop Creek the other day one of the fastest and closest half-mile races ever run in the county, and between which another trial is set for this meeting. Kehoe's little True Blue is at Bennett's stables, besides a number of others that have been in regular training there for some time past.

ON THE WAR-PATH.—Assessor Dillon took the field on the 5th instant in pursuance of his official duties, going for the upper end of the county first, as customary. This year he will have an extra tax receipt to sell to all voters, being one of two dollars for hospital purposes. Now that voters have no less than three such receipts to pay for besides their property taxes, we should think the ladies would take more comfort in knowing they are not voters, and are therefore for general revenue purposes not worth $6, $9 or $12 per head, according to terms of delinquency in payments. But there are some, we kinder think, that are worth more than $6 apiece, if the Assessor don't seem to think so.

THE BIRTHDAY MATTER.—The News seems to think we were a "little off" in assuming that the 22d day of February was hardly the proper day to celebrate as Washington's birthday, "it being a historical fact that he was actually born on the 11th of that month." All we have to say about it is that we submitted the query to elicit inquiry from school children, and, having good authorities at hand, were perhaps not really so much "off" as might have been inferred. Yes, we'll accept the 22d as the correct day, after all.

ANTICIPATED.—It seems from information furnished the Coso News of last Saturday, that we had been misinformed as to the death of George Snow at St. Mary's Hospital, San Francisco. The News states, however, that at last accounts Mr. Snow was lying too low to give the slightest hope of recovery, and has doubtless passed away ere this.

HARD FORTUNE.—Wm. Roberts, an old resident of Cerro Gordo, while helping to reconstruct the new Union Con. shaft, after the late fire, contracted a severe cold, and is now reported as lying at the point of death therefrom. He is at Kernville, having gone there about a month ago in hope of relief from his terrible malady.

RUNNING.—The Beaudry furnace is again running as usual, and turning out splendid bullion. No dead work is being done in the Union, but whence comes a good share of the ores being reduced. The great bulk of the ore, however, is just now being taken from the old works, supposed to have been worked out two years ago.

AT CERRO GORDO.—John Maguire's entertainments gave such satisfaction to the Cerro Gordoites that they insisted upon a repetition—and we'll venture to say would get their money's worth if he was to re-repeat.

LONE PINE LETTER.

LONE PINE, March 5.

MESSRS. EDITORS—The workingmen are on the move here in this little burg. The people of Lone Pine and vicinity met on last Saturday, according to previous notice, at the School House, for the purpose of discussing the propriety of organizing a Workingman's Club or Labor Society. The purpose of the meeting was fully and ably stated by G. H. Palmer, Chairman, and W. H. Nosler. A paper was then passed around and signed for membership by some twenty men, after which officers were elected as follows: President, J. A. Rittgers; Vice President, A. J. Chelius; Secretary, H. C. Rittgers; Assistant Secretary, W. H. Nosler; Treasurer, John Lubken. A good feeling was manifested throughout the meeting, and the probabilities are that ere long the membership will be threefold more.

Our town wears a very quiet aspect, and while the dullness held sway many of our citizens who have deceased friends in the old cemetery have been engaged in removing their remains to the new cemetery. Notably among those removed were those of N. F. Coburn, whose remains now rest in the new cemetery. The removal was superintended by his old pioneer friends C. D. Begole, W. T. Davis and John Lubken, assisted by many others, who willingly paid this last tribute of respect to the memory of a good man gone, and for a surety all of his old pioneer friends throughout the valley and elsewhere will be glad to know that he now rests in sacred ground, and kindly cared for by true friends. CITIZEN.

VALE!

To my Friends in Inyo: GOOD-BYE—In saying this, with saddened emotion awakened by the necessity which compels separation from the many warm hearts in my friendly circle, I confess to feelings of regret which cannot be easily expressed. I merely take this occasion to return to all, my sincere and heartfelt thanks for the many kind favors and friendly assurances bestowed upon me during my residence among you, and which have encouraged me and enabled me to perform my official duties in a manner satisfactory to myself, and, I hope, acceptably to all.

To my late brother officials I return thanks for courtesies extended and forbearance shown, while in the performance of my duties; and to my friends in the social circle, I return my sincere thanks for favors shown and compliments tendered, that will forever remain impressed upon my memory as rays of sunshine to gladden my future life. My only desire now is, that the friendships now existing may be enduring, and that opportunity may yet occur to enable me to reciprocate to all for the favors and obligations under which I now feel myself resting.

And, therefore, with an earnest wish for the success, prosperity and happiness of all the friends I now leave behind me, I bid you a pleasant good-bye.

WM. B. DAUGHERTY.

Independence, March 5, 1878.

SILVER.—It didn't take an act of Congress to make silver good as real money to us, but we fear it will take an act of Congress or some Justice's Court to remove the diffidence some people appear to feel about offering it to us, even to the extent of their little bills due us these many days. Now, if you think you are as good as Congress, see if you can't pass some silver on this office. The offer won't meet a veto, though the stuff is offered at par.

ART OF PROPAGATION.—A work with this title has just been published by J. Jenkins, proprietor of an extensive nursery at Winona, Columbiana county, Ohio. To judge of its merits from the high terms in which it is spoken of by leading agricultural journals, it is a work well worth its cost (only 50 cents) to any person interested in raising trees, shrubbery, vines, flowers, etc., more especially to amateurs. Address as above,

CHANCE FOR PICTURES.—We are informed that J. C. Kemp, "the Flying Photograph man," is now at Bishop Creek, and will visit this section shortly. He is highly spoken of as an artist by all who have seen his work. As will be seen by his advertisement elsewhere, Addis will also be here in a short time, so between the two all tastes ought to be suited.

NEXT WEEK.—A letter relating to a frightful adventure and narrow escape from a long-eared brigand (not Brigham) of two young ladies of Round Valley, reached us too late for this issue, but will appear next week.

CHANGE OF BASE.—A. L. Freedman, better known as "Boston," a popular old-timer of Cerro Gordo, has left that place for pastures new. His family are yet in Cerro Gordo.

No such prospect for feed has been known in the country since the wet winter of 1867. The rains have fallen in the most useful order, and the growth of vegetation has not been checked with frost.—Courier-Californian.

A CINCINNATI paper makes mention of a grim joke in the promise of the successors of a bankrupt firm in that city that they will pursue the same business policy which has characterized their past transactions.

DOWN at Independence, in Inyo county, California, the other night, the people gave the retiring County Clerk, W. B. Daugherty, a grand complimentary farewell party. Billy has always been a favorite.—Virginia Enterprise.

THE Shah of Persia will leave the Persian capital at the end of April for a tour through Europe, during which he will travel incognito, and will visit all the large European cities.

DOBBINS'
"Electric Soap."

HAVING OBTAINED THE AGENCY OF THIS celebrated Soap for Lone Pine and vicinity, we append the opinion of some of our best people as to its merits:

"I have used 'Dobbins' Electric Soap,' made by I. L. Cragin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and can most cheerfully recommend it as the best Laundry Soap in existence." Mrs. F. P. HALL.

"Family washing is rendered both pleasant and agreeable by the use of 'Dobbins' Electric Soap.' Boiling the clothes is entirely unnecessary, and but very little rubbing is needed. It promises wonders, but it does all it promises." Mrs. JNO. W. GASPER.

We desire all our friends and customers to give this Soap one trial, so that they may know just how good the best soap in the United States is.

The Silver Bill.

Following is the full text of the silver bill as passed by both Houses of Congress, vetoed by the President and passed over the veto within three hours after the veto message was received. It it is the Bland bill in all particulars except the provision for the issuance of $10 silver certificates, an amendment introduced by Senator Booth—and in our opinion a very good amendment it is too, though strongly objected to for some reason by the extreme silver advocates:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That there shall be coined at the several mints of the United States, silver dollars of the weight of 412½ grains troy, of standard silver, as provided in the Act of January 18, 1837, on which shall be the devices and superscriptions provided in said act; which coins, together with all the silver dollars heretofore coined by the United States of like weight and fineness, shall be a legal tender, at their nominal value, for all debts and dues, public and private, except where otherwise expressly stipulated in the contract; and the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to purchase from time to time silver bullion at the market price thereof, not less than $2,000,000 worth per month, not more than $4,000,000 per month, and cause the same to be coined monthly, as fast as purchased, into such dollars. And a sum sufficient to carry out the foregoing provision of this Act is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated. And any gain or seignorage arising from this coinage shall be accounted for and paid into the Treasury, as provided under existing laws relative to subsidiary coinage: provided, that the amount of money at any one time invested in such silver bullion exclusive of such resulting coin, shall not exceed $5,000,000; and provided further, that nothing in this Act shall be construed to authorize the payment in silver of certificates of deposits issued under the provision of Section 254 of the Revised Statutes.

Section 2. All Acts and parts of Acts inconsistent with the provisions of this Act are hereby repealed.

Section 3. That immediately after the passage of this Act the President shall invite the governments of the countries composing the Latin Union, so called, and such other European nations as he may deem advisable, to join the United States in a conference to adopt a common ratio between gold and silver, for the purpose of establishing internationally the use of bi-metallic money and securing fixity of relative value between those metals; such conference to be held at such place, in Europe or the United States, at such time within six months as may be mutually agreed upon by the executives of the governments joining in the same whenever the governments or any three of them shall have signified their willingness to unite in the same. The President shall, by and with the consent and advice of the Senate, appoint three commissioners, who shall attend such conference on behalf of the United States and shall report the doings thereof to the President, who shall transmit the same to Congress. Said commissioners shall each receive the sum of $2,500 and their reasonable expenses, to be approved by the Secretary of State, and the amount necessary to pay such compensation and expenses is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

Section 4. That any holder of the coin authorized by this Act may deposit the same with the Treasurer or Assistant Treasurer of the United States, in sums not less than $10, and receive therefore certificates of not less than $10 each, corresponding with the denominations of the United States notes. The coin deposited for or representing the certificates shall be retained in the Treasury for the payment of the same on demand. Said certificates shall be receivable for customs, taxes and public dues, and when so received may be reissued.

As for fortune tellers and clairvoyants, their numbers are large, and are on the increase; but, luckily this class of people have been so often and so thoroughly ventilated as to call for nothing but mere mention. Perhaps the most curious fact lately unearthed about the "world of women" is that there are several respectable young women, technically "ladies" in dress and social surroundings, and really females of good character, who serve in secret the purposes of art as models. The writer of this sketch is acquainted with an estimable lady—a genuine lady in birth, education and manners—who earns about ten dollars a week as a model for a "life class." She keeps this fact a profound secret—her own mother is not aware of it—but the fact is as stated, the writer having ascertained it through a visit to an artist's studio during the sessions of a life class of art students.

Inquiring into this matter further the writer discovered that the young lady in question had in vain attempted to secure employment in writing, translating or trade pursuits, was on the verge of starvation with her old mother, when a lucky hint suggested the livelihood of a model, which was finally and successfully adopted, only after severe self struggles and under condition of the most profound secrecy.

A prominent painter, with whom the writer held a conversation recently, stated that the supply of models was at present greater than the demand, and that the majority of the models in the city of New York were not only well formed but well behaved; a "really superior class of persons" forced to exhibit themselves by their necessities. A model quite in demand is a young German. Another model has recently been married to a young painter, who fell in love with her from seeing her as a model in a life class which he was then attending, and from all accounts the daring and unconventional painter has a worthy wife. Occasionally in our better classes, and even in our best society, it is rumored that ladies do not hesitate to serve as models for busts or arms, or for classic poses, to please popular artists or to gratify their own vanity: but these are isolated cases and call for but the merest passing allusion.

LEARN A TRADE.—Daniel Webster is credited with having said: "If I had as many sons as old Priam, I'd have them all learn a trade, so they would have something to fall back upon in case they failed in speculation." A Philadelphia paper moralizes thus sensibly thereon: "The number of young men and girls who are brought up to no useful trade or calling is on the increase. The effect of this is seen in political life where thousands of men are begging, as at preseht in Washington, for 'position,' with a vague idea that untrained powefs and ignorance can find shelter in some cosy nook where they may at least draw their pay. Being practically of no earthly use to themselves or any one else, they only hope to find some place where they can exist without benefitting any one. A destitute young man without a trade, and who is not qualified by practice to become a tramp, is very likely to become one, or fare even worse by becoming a criminal.—Exchange.

A VEXED QUESTION.—A great many people, judging from their conversation, do not distinguish the difference between "sit" and "set." "Does a hen sit or set?" asks a puzzled inquirer. Now, a man or a woman, either, can "set" a hen, though they cannot "sit" her; neither can they "set" on her, although the old hen might "sit" on them by the hour if they would allow it. A man cannot "set" on the wash-bench but he could set the basin on it, and neither the basin nor the grammarians would object. He could "sit" on the dog's tail, if the dog was willing, or he could "set" his foot on it. But if he should "set" on the aforesaid tail or "sit" his foot there, the grammarians as well as the dog would howl. And yet, strange as it may seem, he might set the tail aside and then sit down, and neither be assailed by the dog or grammars. Perhaps this explanation may set the matter at rest.

IN-GROWING TOE NAILS.—These afflictions are a source of excessive discomfort and sometimes of almost insufferable pain; formerly the savage mode of treatment was to take a pair of pincers and drag the whole nail out, but now a prompt and painless cure may be effected simply by inserting the dry sesquichloride of iron between the nail and the flesh and powdering the latter with it also, then apply a dry bandage, and a cure follows after two or three applications a day or two apart.

There is a pretty legend in connection with the Bismarck family which goes to show how the oak leaves adorning the Bismarck shield were added to the clover and nettle leaves. It runs as follows: Many years ago there was a lovely maiden, Gertrude Von Bismarck. Numbers of noble knights and courtiers sought her hand and heart, but she was, by her own consent and her father's wish, betrothed to a cousin, a noble and princely youth. One day there came to the castle where the beautiful Gertrude lived, a prince of the Wenden with 100 horsemen, to try and win her. She courteously, but firmly refused him. The prince was greatly enraged, and incited by her great loveliness, determined to gain her; so he called his warriors and said he would break the clover leaf (Gertrude) with his own hand. On the same day he assailed the castle, which was but weakly defended. The castellan was soon overcome, and the Wenden entered the castle and then the maiden's chamber. "I come to break you in, you golden clover leaf. You don't sting like stinging nettles. Clover does not sting," he said, and with that he put his arm around her. A moment more and he withdrew it, crying out "Mercy!" Gertrude held a dagger over him, then struck it in his heart saying: "The nettle stings hard whoever will break or touch Bismarck's golden clover." Since then the Bismarck shield wears the oak leaves as a sign or crown of victory.—London Truth.

ENGINEER EADS, in an elaborate address recently delivered at the Merchant's Exchange in St. Louis, proposed to deepen the channel of the Mississippi from Cairo to New Orleans, a distance of about 1,500 miles, so that there should be twenty feet at the lowest stages of water. If that were accomplished, ocean steamships and deep water sailing vessels would take in cargoes at St. Louis for Europe. When Eads broached his great enterprise of deepening the mouth of the Mississippi so that the largest ships could enter at any stage of the tide, he was told that it could never be done. But he has so near secured that result that no one doubts his final success. If he can secure 20 feet in the Mississippi river at all seasons of the year, there would be little doubt that he could secure 12 feet of water in the channel of the Sacramento from the Capitol to tide water. After Capt. Eads has finished his Mississippi river job, how would it do to ask him to try his hand on the Sacramento river?—S. F. Bulletin.

COFFEE AN ANTIDOTE FOR STRYCHINA. In a foreign journal are given the details of some experiments made by a Dr. A. Lelli on the antidotal power of coffee against strychina. The experiments were made in consequence of Dr. Lelli having met with a case in which a large dose of strychina was administered in coffee without fatal consequences resulting. The animals employed were rabbits, and by comparative trials he found that a dose of five centigrammes proved fatal in a short space of time; when the same or a larger dose was given in a very strong infusion of coffee, he found that the coffee either acted as a complete antidote in preventing the poisonous effects of the strychina, or that it materially diminished the violence of the action.

THE Heathen Chinee's exploit at euchre has been outdone in poker at Oshkosh, Wis., where three gamblers lately laid a plan to clean out a fourth. The victim was dealt four aces to induce him to bet, but was given six cards so as to make a misdeal. But "Greeny" backed his four for all he was worth, and won, when his opponents charged him with having another card secreted about his person. A search revealed nothing, and he departed with his winnings. It was afterward discovered that he had slipped the extra card into a sandwich which he was eating while playing, and had actually eaten it.

IN a street car, in Philadelphia, an old gentleman was seated in one corner and the car was full. A bevy of fair ones swarmed in, of all ages and weights, and there were no seats. Whereupon the gallant old gentleman shouted aloud, "Ladies, I shall be most happy to give my seat to any one of you who is over thirty-two years of age." All remained standing.

THE report that an earthquake shock was felt at Washington appears to be unfounded. The rumor has been traced back to the fact that Senator David Davis stepped on a spool of cotton while going down stairs.

ASSEMELY CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 57.

Following is a copy of Mr. Moffat's resolution, referred to last week, and explains itself. We observe that it has been adopted by both Houses as presented:

Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, That our Senators in Congress be instructed, and our Representatives requested, to secure the passage of an act of Congress empowering and directing the Secretary of War to convey to Trustees, to be named by him, the site of Camp Independence, with the improvements, situated in the County of Inyo, State of California, to be used for school purposes, under the direction of the public schools in said county.

Resolved, That the Governor is hereby requested to forward a copy of this resolution to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress.

STORMS AND GUNPOWDER EXPLOSIONS. A correspondent of the Washington Star presents a long array of evidence that the burning of gunpowder in quantities is productive of local storms. He instances among others the following coincidences: During eight years past there has been a thunderstorm at Washington every Fourth of July, and a very violent one is cited as occurring on the opening of that celebration about twelve years ago. During the war of the Rebellion, 86.5 per cent. of the battles are said to have been followed by storms. It is said that the storm producing power of burnt gunpowder might be used in advance of an attack during war; and the Weather Bureau of the future may serve as cloud compelling Prospero, by organing rains during hot periods of Summer.

HARK!—At an anti-debris meeting held the other day at Marysville, a Mr. Tomb, says the Grass Valley Union, declined to canvass with a petition asking the Legislature to pass a law to restrict hydraulic mining. He announced himself as a Kearney man on the debris question, and is is favor of blowing up with giant powder every "Little Giant" in the mountains. Petitions would not do it, but force would. These declarations were received with manifestations of approval by the meeting. It will not take long to convince Mr. Tomb that he is engaged in a grave business, if he undertakes his plan of settling the debris question.

SNOW BLOCKADE. — Cheyenne dispatches of the 9th picture extremely rough times in that section from very cold weather and the effects of a complete snow blockade on the railroad. Snow sheds are buried out of sight; passenger and freight trains on a stretch of almost 100 miles both ways from Cheyenne are all in about the same condition, several of them being entirel without fuel for steam purposes. The passengers, however, do not seem to suffer seriously from cold or lack of provisions. This blockade was the result of a terrific snow storm of thirty-six hours duration.

THE Supreme Court of California in a recent case brought before it, decided that when an officer goes to arrest a person (with or without a warrant) suspected of crime, he must give due notice of his object and intent, or he puts himself on terms of equality with the person to be arrested, and acts at his peril.

THE following were the coinage operations at the Carson Mint during February: Double-eagles, 8,000 pieces, valued at $160,000; trade dollars, 41,000, valued at $41,000; half dollars, 62,000 pieces, valued at $31,000; quarter dollars, 312,000 pieces, valued at $78,000. Total, 423,000 pieces, valued at $310,000.

THE Republicans of Nevada have begun to talk of putting R. M. Daggett, of the Virginia Enterprise, into the field as their candidate for Governor at the coming election. As a man of character and brains he would stand equal to any executive officer in the Union.

THE Esmeralda Herald gives the assessment of property in Esmeralda county for 1877 at $866,66. Of this $464,96 is on real estate, and $401,970,-06 on personal property: and the amount of tax on both real and personal property is $1,651 69,

THE work of coining the new silver dollars is about to begin at the government mints. This office is shaping its financial affairs so as to get the full amount coined the first month, so as to pay its debts.

THE gold mines of Northern Georgia are attracting renewed attention, and nuggets of gold worth from five to fifty dollars are beginning to be quite common there.

"TO PROMOTE HONEST JOURNALISM."

Some of the leading papers are worrying themseves considerably over what they call "the press gag law," proposed in the present Legislature. Among the latest of these bills is one introduced by Assemblyman Grove Johnson, which is substantially the Pierson retraction bill of last session with two new sections added. The Pierson bill two years ago passed the Senate but was defeated in the Assembly. The main provision of the bill was that when a newspaper or other serial publication publishes a libel concerning an individual or corporation, the parties aggrieved shall have the right to take proceedings in the District Court, which Court, after hearing testimony, may order the newspaper to publish a retraction of the libel. If the newspaper refuses to publish a retraction, the District Court is empowered to enjoin its further publication. The two new sections are, first, making it a contempt of Court to publish the proceedings, or what purports to be a report of the proceedings of any case where the Court has directed a secret examination; and the second making it a misdemeanor for any newspaper proprietor or editor to falsely represent the circulation of any journal with the view of obtaining advertisements; the parties making the representation are guilty of a misdemeanor, and liable to a fine of $1,000 or one year's imprisonment in the County Jail.

Now, it has always appeared to THE INDEPENDENT that if a material wrong is done an individual or corporation, etc., by a false publication, when such publication was made through an honest misapprehension of the real facts, no honest papers but would willingly "make the thing right" of its own volition, and cheerfully; when such publication is truly a malicious libel, or of that kind merely given place to add interest to the paper, then the law only can be looked to "to make the thing right," because honesty and fair dealing are secondary considerations to newspapers given to such practices, therefore some such law as the above is necessary to compel them to respect other people's rights. But at the same time it should be borne in mind that nothing can be worse for the best interests of the public than to so cripple the press; scoundrelism of all sorts can go completely unchallenged, as must be the case when newspapers can give no hint of rascally operations until prepared to sustain it by absolute proofs. And therein lies the difficulty of having a press libel law that will not prove a two-edged sword. Nevertheless, this present bill seems to be one that will operate more rightfully to all parties than any that has yet been proposed, notwithstanding the denunciations leveled by certain papers at it and its author both.

A GRAND FRAUD EXPOSED.

But few people but have heard of the famous "McGarrahan claim," and none of those but have wondered why, though killed so often, the said claim so often came to life, and would never stay killed. Well, it is plain now from a lengthy statement given in the Chronicle's Washington dispatch of the 11th, what gave that claim such wonderful vitality. It was coin, false swearing, certificates of stock, all used where they would "do the most good," that did it. The introductory to the dispatch is as follows:

A very startling revelation was made to-day before the Senate Committee on Public Lands. It smirches the good name of many eminent men, some of whom have heretofore been held in high esteem by their countrymen, and all of whom have played very conspicuous parts in public affairs during the past quarter of a century. Fourteen members of Congress—ten Representatives and four Senators—are proved to have been bribed. Two United States District Attorneys and one United States Judge are proved to have been either corrupted or to have been controlled in their official action by corrupt influences. A private secretary of President Lincoln is proved to have been engaged in selling the secrets of Cabinet meetings to gold brokers on Wall street, and to have been bought to swear that Mr. Lincoln had directed him to sign a land patent. Two of the members of Congress who were bribed now hold high offices. One of them is a United States Senator and the other is a Government Director of the Union Pacific Railroad. The others are dead or retired to private life. One of them has been convicted of assisting White, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, to defraud the United States of nearly $600,000.

Here is the list of the honorable M. C.'s who took stock to keep life in the grand swindle: Stokes, Tennessee; Dewes, North Carolina; Kellogg, Louisiana; Wilson, Iowa; Blair, Missouri; Stewart, New York; Forney, Pennsylvania; Sawyer, South Carolina; Eldrige, Wisconsin; Lincoln, New York; McDougall, California; Ross and Clark, Kansas; Harris, Louisiana, besides many other strikers, among them ex-Surveyor General Beale of this State, a man who never knew when to stop stealing, and, of course, of taking bribes for any nefarious scheme worth a bribe. What a pity that the hundreds of other scoundrels, who by similar means got rich out of these fraudulent Spanish grants to the fairest sections of this State, could not also be similarly exposed.

The Mineral Department of the Paris Exposition.

A committee has been appointed in San Francisco, with associate members in every county in California, and at all mining centers in Nevada and Arizena, to collect and forward to Paris for exhibition every variety of mineral found on the Pacific Coast, having either a scientific or economic value.

Although the united collection will be made at San Francisco, the exhibits of the different States and Territories will be kept separate, and will be displayed equally with that of California; so that each may compete for prizes.

The collections will be classified and arranged by Mr. Henry G. Hanks, who is well known, and whose name is a guarantee that justice will be done to all. He will accompany the collection to Paris, and will personally superintend their arrangement at the Exposition, and will answer all questions of interest to visitors.

To assist him in doing so, donors should forward information of special interest, such as exact locality, assay value, extent of claim, nature of country rock, with distance from navigation or railroad, etc., all of which will be printed in brief on the labels to be attached to the specimens.

When possible, specimens of the wall rocks, or both sides of the vein, with any fossils which may be found near by should accompany the ores.

Miners should bear in mind the fact that the mineral wealth of a State does not lie wholly in its mines of gold and silver, but should send platinum, antimony, lead, copper, tin, mercury, coal, fire clay, gypsum, salt, nitrate of soda, carbonate of soda, granite, limestone, marble, sandstone, infusorial earth, coal oils, asphaltum, asbestos, mica, white sand, cement, natural paints, baryta, iron ores, pyrites, chrome iron, slate, borax, and any other mineral substance which comes to their notice.

All persons receiving this circular are requested to act in conjunction with the Committee and make its object known to all those about them.

In cases where specimens, too valuable to donate, are loaned to the Committee, a receipt will be given and the specimen returned at the close of the Exposition. The Committee earnestly request the loan of such specimens.

At the close of the Exposition, the Pacific Coast collection will be returned to San Francisco and a free Museum of Economic Geology will be established, of which the following named gentlemen will have the management the first year: R. P. Hammond, Alexander Weill, Wm. H. Martin, Almarin B. Paul, Melville Atwood.

Miners and others interested are cordially invited to visit the Rooms of the Committee, All specimens should be addressed to, "Mineral Department, Paris Exposition, Room 18 Safe Deposit Building, San Francisco, Cal."

"Wells, Fargo & Co., and the railroad and steamboat companies will convey specimens free of charge if addressed as above."

The Russo-Turkish Peace.

The conditions of peace agreed upon by Russia and Turkey, as far as revealed, indicate that the victorious power has gained every object which was openly avowed at the outset of the war. The Christian subjects of the Porte in Bulgaria will be removed from the control of Turkish Pashas, and the new principality of Bulgaria will comprise territory enough to accommodate all the Christians who choose to withdraw from the rule of Islam. The war indemnity, as far as known, is insignificant, but the acquisition of territory in Asia Minor is of the greatest importance Erzeroum, which was ready to surrender, is not included in the new Russian province of Armenia, but Batoum, which was not taken, is more than an offset. The question of the Dardanelles is left open for subsequent action, and the Turkish fleet remains in the Sultan's hands. In view of the paucity and unsatisfactory nature of the news which has reacheded the outside world regarding the negotiations, it is impossible to say whether Russia ever actually demanded the surrender of any vessels except those on the Danube. The British government certainly had no information to that effect. At any rate, Russia has gained her point of making the treaty of peace a fait accompli before an European Conference could meet, and before any formal remonstrance came from the Thames.

The attitude of England during this prolonged period of suspense has been such as to justify to a certain extent the charge that the British are a nation of shop-keepers. The England of Pitt and Palmerston is surely dead. The looms of Manchester and Birmingham are of more weight in English diplomacy to-day than loyalty to England's renown or fealty to the grand future upon which her bards delight to dwell. She has never been more powerful than now. Never has her purse been longer or her armament more puissant, and yet provocation which formerly would have driven her into action at once and fired her blood with the ardor of battle now finds her supine, halting and hesitant. Her vast commercial enterprises and possessions hang like a millstone around her neck when the tocsin calls to war. She cannot risk the vast emoluments which peace adds to her swelling treasury for the alternate triumphs and defeats which war may bring.—S. F. Chronicle.

THERE is some one in Reno that richly deserves hanging. Our readers will remember how a beautiful buggy was hacked to pieces there at the time of the fair. Afterward the hose of the air brakes were cut on both the Central Pacific and the Virginia and Truckee trains. Last week two horses in a barn were covered with kerosene and the barn fired, and now the Journal reports the cutting to pieces of a harness on a team standing in the open street.—Virginia Enterprise.

Philosopher Pickett.

Hon. Jas. A. Johnson, President California Senate—Sir: I had laid upon the desks of Senators some weeks ago a pamphlet, entitled "American Education Analyzed; or a Synoptical Disquisition on the Quality, Culture, Development, Rank and Government of Man," etc., instructing the Page who distributed the copies to say they must paid for. I have nearly always given away the productions of my brain labor on public questions; but as the printer has not been paid for issuing this pamphlet and I but little remunerated in the sale, I hope you will appoint a committee of three erudite gentlemen of that body over which you preside, to report what compensation (out of each member's private exchequer) shall be paid me for the same. As it treats much on questions of importance now being discussed by the Legislature, I would fain believe that members will find it of some assistance to them in arriving at conclusions thereon. Gentlemen of recognized ability at home and abroad have pronounced it a bronchure of much merit. I will, in conclusion, critically observe, that there are facts, philosophy, sentiment, satire and logic enough condensed in its 46 pages to afford most writers themes sufficient to elaborate a volume of 1,000. Respectfully your obedient servant,

CHARLES E. PICKETT.

It was referred to the Committee on Finances and Claims.

J. MADISON WELLS.—In detailing the life of J. Madison Wells, President of the Returning Board, the St. Louis Democrat says: "There has occurred a no more atrocious murder than that of Mat. Despalier by J. Madison Wells. At the time Wells was a man of wealth and high social standing, Despalier was a poor man without friends. A disagreement had occurred between the parties. When they met Wells was armed with a shot-gun. Despalier was unarmed, and threw up his arms to show that he was defenceless, when Wells fired upon him and killed him.

THE Legislature continues to wrestle with the fares and freights, or railroad question, but so far with no results definite or important enough to justify mention in detail. Nevertheless, that railroad question is of greater general importance to the State generally than any other before our Legislature—so important is it that it is doubtful if anything of moment will be done about it.

IN a play where it was necessary to enter in a great passion, Macready used to have a hired "super," whom he would grapple and shake and curse at, off the stage, so that he could enter naturally. One night the "super" sent a substitute, who did not quite understand the business. He resented Macready's rough treatment, which delighted the tragedian, who went at his man with increased vigor. The substitute presently "let him have it," and the pair fought savagely a good round. Macready that night burst upon his audience in a splendid rage, out-Macreadying Macready. When the substitute learned the true state of affairs, however, he bolted; but he was unearthed, for Macready came off after the scene gasping, "Hum—ha! where is he? Bless me! A splendid fellow! Pay him double, and let me have him every night."

AN old Italian chemist at Carson City, according to a correspondent of the Virginia Enterprise, after many years of study and experiment, has discovered the secret of transmuting the base into precious metals. He is said to take an ingot of bar iron, and after pouring chemicals upon it, he gives it two different roastings, when it comes out pure gold 999 fine. He is about to submit his discovery to Flood & O'Brien, to induce them to go into business on a large scale. He says he will soon be richer than the Rothschilds, and the money markets of the world will be flooded with gold. Of course; yes, certainly.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.—To-morrow is "St. Patrick's day," the patron saint of Ireland. Most authorities fix his birthplace near the site of the town of Kilpatrick, at the mouth of the river Clyde, Scotland, in the year 372. At the age of 16 he was captured by marauders and taken to Ireland, from whence he escaped after six months captivity and returned to Scotland. He was again captured, and again escaped, when he resolved to become a missionary to Ireland. In this mission he was very successful, converting many thousands to the Christian faith. He was, after much preparation, ordained a bishop in Scotland, and died in the year 464. He is credited with having banished all creeping things from Ireland by means of his staff or crosier, which was preserved in Dublin as a sacred relic as late as the year 1360.

THE VOLKERT CASE.—The County Court met on Monday last, pursuant to adjournment. In the case of the People vs. Volkert, respondent's motion to dismiss appeal argued and, on the following day, overruled. Appellant's (the defendant's) counsel then moved to dismiss the case on the ground of want of jurisdiction of the lower court, which was denied. A venire of 40 jurors was then ordered, returnable on Monday next at 1 o'clock P. M. It will be remembered that, some two or three months ago, Volkert was by Justice Alexander, of Bishop Creek, remanded to the county jail for 250 days, in default of a fine of $250, imposed for assault upon Watson, with a shot gun. Volkert gave bonds on appeal, and sets up that the finding of the lower court was not justified by law or facts; hence there really comes on a new trial.

SICK.—Charley Stoutenborough, of the Bishop Creek merchandising house of J. H. Stoutenborough, is reported as very seriously ill, Dr. Middleton, who was in attendance upon the races here, having been sent for to attend him. It is to be hoped that the patient's youth and strong constitution will pull him through. In the meanwhile our ex-editor and newspaper man, Mr. Childs, has his hands full—what with the store business, stage, express, post and internal revenue offices. He has applied to Harry Isaacs for a month's assistance, and should he go the two would make about as strong a business team as they usually hitch up.

ANOTHER REDUCTION.—It is stated that there has been made another reduction of 50 cents each per day on the wages of all employés of the Union Con. Company, at Cerro Gordo—thus fixing miners' wages at $3 per day, in a place where board costs $10 per week. Our information does not come direct, and we trust that there is some mistake about it. It were well that a general reduction of other matters be had first, such as freights, merchandise, grub and such things.

MAIL CONTRACTS.—The postal authorities have awarded contracts for carrying the mails to and from this point as follows: From Caliente to Independence, tri-weekly, to Wm. Hamilton, for $12,485. From Aurora to Independence, tri-weekly, to Geo. Allman, of San Francisco, for $5,699. Round Valley to Bishop Creek, weekly, to M. V. Nicholls, of Osage, Iowa, for $371. Action was suspended as to the Lone Pine and Cerro Gordo route.

APPROVED.—Moffat's bill to raise the salary of the County Treasurer of this county from $1,000 to $1,500 per annum, was signed by the Governor on the 25th of February, and therefore becomes a law in time to benefit the present incumbent. The original bill allowing $1,800 was cut down to the above sum in the Senate on the motion of Senator Fowler, and concurred in by the Assembly.

IN CHOKEY.—Our county jail now has an occupant, for the first time in a long while. The victim is one James Allen, under sentence of thirty days for malicious mischief. He was sent up by Justice Gould of Darwin, and brought here by Constable Welch.

FOR SALE.—The Hickey Hood ranch, near the river and nearly east of the George's Creek settlements, is offered for sale, on account of the owner's ill health. It is spoken of as a very valuable property.

RETURNED.—Last week Casper Cohn and lady returned to Lone Pine, after an absence of some three months in San Francisco. They are rejoicing in a pair of twins, born unto them about a month ago.

TO MEET.—The Board of Supervisors will hold an adjourned meeting a week from Monday next, to receive bids for the surrender of county bonds and to award a hospital contract for the ensuing year.

The Races.

To begin at the conclusion, or nearly so, the March meeting of the Independence Jockey Club has had a better attendance and induced more exciting interest throughout than was anticipated by any of the members or participants. True, there were some judgments of the results of one or two of the trials of speed to which exceptions were taken, but it is likewise true that none of these exceptions even by implication impeached the honest intent of the said awards or lack of awards, so are accepted as mere incidents of entirely new and unlooked for conditions. The weather throughout could not have been more propitious had it been specially ordered. The track, as mentioned heretofore, has been greatly improved since the December meeting, and would have been pronounced first class had it been a trifle less hard. To prevent spectators from crowding the track, or incurring harm from bolting racers at the outcome, a substantial fence has been erected on either side for a hundred yards or so down the home-stretch. In the line of providing against accidents there is one rule that should be rigidly executed on every such occasion: viz., no dog of high or low degree to be allowed on or near the track at all. Custom makes it legitimate to allow these curs singly and in packs to pitch out fiercely at every rapidly moving object in the streets and highways, but if allowed to follow up that recreation on a race track it is apt to injure the reputation of the track, even if they don't succeed in throwing a horse at every charge.

There were a number of occurrences during the week's racing that would be of some interest if given in detail, but owing to imperative requirements of office duties preventing our individual presence and knowledge of them we shall have to forego further reference to incidental matters, merely remarking there was not a single untoward accident to mar the pleasures of the occasion.

For the trotting race, best two in three, on Monday, first day, May named bl'k g. Ebony, Gelatt br'n g. Tom and Ball b. g. George.

First heat—George had the pole, Tom, center, Eb. outside. Got off, the first and last named together, Tom about a length behind. Eb. took the lead and kept it bravely, coming in some lengths ahead of Tom, George distanced. Time, 3:30.

Second heat—Eb. inside, and off with an open lead. Some one sung out "come back!" which Tom mistook as an order from the stand, and obeyed. Eb. also pulled up, but in obedience to a general call to "go on! go around!" took the track and a good square trot to the outcome, claiming heat, race and purse. It was not disputed but that the horses had been fairly tapped off; the recall was also repudiated by the stand; still, as brown Tom had evidently made an honest error as to the recall, the horses were ordered up for another trial, and got off pretty much as before. At the half-mile pole Tom took the lead and kept it, Eb. barely saving his distance. Time, 3:27.

Eb. was bleeding from a quarter crack, and lame from the very start, and in consequence of this as well as his claim to the second heat and race, declined to take the track for (to him) a fourth heat; so the pools were subsequently declared off, but no award has yet been made of the purse.

For 600 yard race, second day, Hutchison named gelding Black Harry, Murray, Brown Frank, Horton, s. g. Puttyhead. Positions, Frank pole, Harry, outside. Won by Harry by 12 feet; time 0:32.

For three-quarter mile dash for 3-year olds, third day, Jas. Richardson named b. g. Independence, three years old, J. M. Horton, Belle Wild, Chas. Schuman b. g. Monte. Position, first Belle-Wild, second Independence. Both flew track, and the race was declared off.

For half-mile dash, second class horses, fourth day, P. W. Betts named b. g. Wake-up-Jake, J. M. Horton, s. g. Puttyhead, J. F. Hutchison, s. Pinto. Position, Puttyhead first, Wake-up-Jake second. Won by Puttyhead; time 0:52.

For the mile and repeat race, best two in three, fifth day, P. W. Bennett named b. s. Budd Doble, J. M. Horton, br. s. Billy Kingsley, Thos. May, br. g. Sheepdriver. First heat won by Kingsley; time 1:57. Second heat, won by Doble; time 1:53. Third heat, won by Doble; time 1:54½.

The half mile dash and a pony race for $75 comes off to-day. Black Harry and Brown Frank will run in the half mile dash, and some rapid going is looked for.

SPRING.—While waiting for the regular invoices of sweet poetry on this topic, we will state that the thermometer, daytimes, ranges above 70, the air is balmy and soft as June, breezes light, moist and variable, many fruit trees in full bloom and the remainder are manifestly all preparing to follow suit very soon indeed; all this, of course, is accepted as indications favorable for big fruit and garden crops—if it don't freeze too hard next month, as it most likely will.

THE MINERAL EXHIBIT.—Eugene Chenot and H. Bellows are the Inyo county members of the State Committee on collection of minerals for the Paris exhibit. We hope they will exert themselves to make a proper showing. Miners will find elsewhere an article conveying all necessary information on the subject.

ACCIDENT.—Last week J. D. Mairs, of the Headquarters saloon, managed to fall from a low roof adjoining the place, where he was getting up to fix a stove-pipe over the new club room. He now packs a broken wrist around in a sling, and is somewhat disposed to animadvert upon his own awkwardness.

GOOD NEWS.—The Defiance furnaces at Darwin start up again in full blast on Monday next, with an abundance of rich ore. The mines are looking splendidly.

A FINE BUILDING.—Joe Fernbach's new brewery building is very nearly completed, at least near enough so as to permit a fair judgment of its architectural excellencies, which we believe to be superior to those of any other building in the county. The same remark will hold true with respect to the materials used, workmanship, fittings and conveniences for the purposes for which it is designed, and for the comforts of patrons. In regard to this latter, and in keeping with the tasteful finish and architecture of the whole is a broad veranda extending full along both the eastern and southern fronts. The main building may, in brief, be described as two-stories in hight above ground, four gables with heavy cornices, and surmounted with a latticed cupola, rod and weather vane. As for dimensions, we can only say they are by no means small horizontally or perpendicularly; the next time we refer to it we'll be a little more definite in that part. Altogether the building reflects credit on both the proprietor and designer, in which last we suspect Gus. Stecker had something to say, as well as in bossing the joiner work.

THE REX MONTIS.—Since the 7th instant the mill has been running on tailings, from which Supt. Hutchings expects to begin shipping bullion next week. The new batteries are not yet set up, there being plenty of time to complete them and the new mill generally by the time ore can be got down the snow-covered trail from the mine. All the machinery and material required for the complete mill is now on the ground. Work in the mine goes on continuously, but no more ore is being taken out, to absorb moisture on the exposed dump, than circumstances in opening up make necessary.

IMPROVEMENTS.—An unusual degree of attention is being given quite generally throughout the valley to tree planting, ornamentation of grounds and similar improvements, designed for comfort and to please the eye quite as much as for cash profits. We should think between two and three thousand imported trees, mostly fruit, have been set out in the valley this Spring. But little attention is being given to culture of timber trees proper, which is to be regretted. It would, perhaps, be otherwise were it not that but few farmers can afford to use their limited supply of water for that purpose.

KLINKING.—The klink and clatter of coin on the tables in the club rooms of the saloons in town, at all hours during the week while the sports and people generally were not at the races, would argue that silver was being spread upon the green, whether "yaller money" went on the races or not. As silver certificates are not yet at hand, however, considerable of the golden eagles were hazarded, lost and won.

AT WORK.—C. A. Walters has resumed work in excavating the roomy cellar designed for the reception room for his beer depot, located between the Postoffice and Bennett's livery stable. The frame superstructure is to be 20x31 feet, and upon which carpenters are also at work.

Attempted Outrage.

ROUND VALLEY, March 6.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Round Valley is on the improve—its heretofore peacefulness has at last been broken, and the inhabitants somewhat aroused at the bold attempt of two young persons of the valley, both of whom belong to families of high standing, attempting to rob, and possibly kidnap, two young ladies. The particulars are as follows: A Miss L. and Miss. M. were out for a ride last Sunday evening, March 3. Their course led them towards Mr. Hilton's residence, Miss M. being somewhat in advance of her companion; when about three-fourths of the distance she saw something in the road, and being of a timid disposition, and it being dark, she turned back and informed her companion of what she had seen. Meanwhile the aforesaid object seen by Miss M. moved steadily on, not dreaming of being molested on the highway. But, one on either side of the road in silence lay the two brigands awaiting the coming of their intended and innocent victims. As the aforesaid object came abreast of them (in the tone and manner of Joaquin or some other regular bandit) sprang forth two persons dressed in female attire, crying "Halt!" and at the same time grasping for the bridle reins. But what was their dismay and consternation when finding that their game had scented the danger and flown, and in their stead they had halted (but not robbed) a poor, old, frozen-eared, one-eyed, three-legged mule, who had not even a shoe to bless himself, and nothing to offer the bandits but his poor old, weather beaten carcass, that had stood the Lower California drouths for many Summers. The highwaymen gazed in blank dismay at each other, for a moment, then left the scene of action, allowing the fortunate quadruped to pursue his journey in peace.

TURDAY, MARCH 16.....1878.

WHAT IS THE "BALSA?"—That was no doubt a question in the minds of many who read Ensign Lucien Young's graphic description of the wreck of the Huron and of his own escape on the "balsa." The latter is a raft or float and on the Pacific coast of South America, whence the name is derived, it is made of whole hides of bullocks sewed into air-tight bags, two of which were fastened together at the smaller end, and form a float upon which a board is laid cross-wise. Upon this board the occupant of the balsa sits, with legs dangling in the water, and by means of a paddle guides the buoyant raft through the surf. The Balsa is much used by Peruvian women, who go out to vessels at anchor off shore to sell provisions, fruits and whisky to sailors. As they sit on the cross-board, with the inflated bags spread out like two wings from their point of junction, near which the board is placed, one end of the Balsa is elevated high above the water, and it is only necessary to turn this end toward shore as the Balsa approaches the breakers to insure a safe passage through them. The Balsa of the Huron was probably an air-filled india rubber float, sufficiently like its South American prototype to bear the family name. It saved the lives of two men, and under more favorable circumstances might have carried a line ashore and been instrumental in saving the lives of others.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DOBBINS'
"Electric Soap."

HAVING OBTAINED THE AGENCY OF THIS celebrated Soap for Lone Pine and vicinity, we append the opinion of some of our best people as to its merits:

"I have used 'Dobbins' Electric Soap,' made by I. L. Cragin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and can most cheerfully recommend it as the best Laundry Soap in existence." MRS. F. P. HALL.

"Family washing is rendered both pleasant and agreeable by the use of 'Dobbins' Electric Soap.' Boiling the clothes is entirely unnecessary, and but very little rubbing is needed. It promises wonders, but it does all it promises." MRS. JNO. W. GASPER.

We desire all our friends and customers to give this Soap one trial, so that they may know just how good the best soap in the United States is.

The Vatican.

There are 11,000 rooms in the Vatican, which is not a palace but a city compressed. An army 30,000 strong could be lodged in it; its actual inhabitants number but a few hundreds. Only two Cardinals lodge there, Simeoni and Ladochowski. The former occupies the apartments of his predecessor, Antonelli. He is of humble birth and small fortune, and when summoned from the Nuncioship at Lisbon, he had some difficulty in furnishing his quarters. It was proposed to the Antonelli heirs, his aged brothers, to sell to his successor the furniture of the suite, but so greedy of gain were they that Simeoni could, with difficulty, arrange to get part of it. Cardinal Ledochowski was given asylum at the Vatican as a martyr. He is on terms of coldness with many of his brethern of the Sacred College who reside in Rome. He has no sympathy with Pitra, because he is a Frenchman and a savant; nor with Pannebianco, because he is an ascetic; nor with Mertel, because he is eloquent; nor with La Valletta, because he is amiable; and his meetings with Hohenlohe, Bismarck's friend, have been famous in Rome. When one Cardinal comes up on the right hand side of the street the other crosses to the left, with the slightest possible grimace of recognition. Pius IX lived in a little suite of three rooms on the second story, not far from the Consistory Hall. The rooms are an oratory, a library and a bed room, furnished with an iron bedstead, a reclining chair a prie-dieu, in polished oak, and straw-bottomed chair. A cross of black wood, a benitier and few relics hang on the walls. The Pontificial Treasury defrays, as it did before the occupation of Rome, the charges of all his servants, amounting yearly to some $800,000. A few of them have not objected to draw two salaries, one from the Pope and one from the State; but the Pope, though he knew this kept silence. The Italian Government tendered under the "law of guarantees" to his Holiness annually $645,000 in gold, for his civil list, a single note for that sum being specially engraved. This the Pope always declined to receive, and under the law, after five years, the money has been turned into the Italian Treasury. "Peter's Pence," amounting yearly to over £3,000,000, defray the expenses of the Holy See. A third of the amount is devoted to Christian works, missions, hospitals, schools, churches, etc.; another third to the maintenance of the Court and the ecclesiastical administration. The remainder goes to swell a reserve fund to be drawn upon in emergencies.

THE JAPANESE RIP VAN WINKLE. The Japanese have the story of Rip Van Winkle in another form. A young man fishing in his boat on the ocean was invited by the goddess of the sea to her home beneath the waves. After three days he desired to see his old father and mother. On parting she gave him a golden casket and a key, but begged him never to open it. At the village all was changed, and he could get no trace of his parents until an aged woman recollected having heard their names. He found their graves a hundred years old. Thinking that three days couldn't have made such a change, and that he was under a spell, he opened the box. A white vapor arose, and under its influence the young man fell to the ground. His hair turned gray, his form lost its youth, and in a few moments he died of old age.

A RECENT effort to transport to this country from England some soles and turbot for stocking our Eastern bays has proved fruitless, the fish all perishing in transit but two specimens. Another effort to Americanize these dainty fish will be made in the Spring.

An Awful Night on Mount Washington.

The Hartford Times says: Special reports from the Mount Washington Signal Service Station—which are sent to us as regularly every month as that winter isolated and inaccessible locality will permit—have told of the fearful gale on the night of January 10 and 11, but the entire scene, and its heart-appalling character, can never be told. The New York Herald now has a letter from Littleton giving some further account in addition to the facts sent a week ago to the Times. It seems that the gale—from the east and northeast, singularly enough—must have attained the frightful maximum velocity of 200 miles an hour, the highest that has ever been recorded in any part of the world, and equal to a typhoon in the China seas. The men (Mr. Murphy and his assistant) have to thrust out the anemometer from the roof and hold it by main strength for a few moments—for to fasten it would be to have it snapped off in a minute. Necessarily the full force of a great gale cannot thus be entirely marked; but it marked up to 186 miles an hour—and how much more is not known. The Herald's letter says:

"The ice and sleet drifted so frightfully that eight panes of glass were broken, rendering the adjustment of the storm shutters a work of great danger and difficulty. The timbers creaked and strained, and such was the deafening roar of the tempest and the rattling of the ice against the building, it was impossible to be heard, when shouting at the top of the voice, at a yard's distance. The record showed that during the night the wind blowed thirty five miles more rapidly than ever experienced on Mount Washington, and the highest recorded velocity in the world.

During the storm, which lasted twenty hours, the barometer fell 1.130 inches, the greatest change observed since this station was established there. The narrator likened the storm to a gale at sea. There would be a lull for a few seconds, then a terrific roar and rush of ice and snow and sleet against the building, which threatened its existence. While the gale was at its highest point of fury, the men prepared for the worst. The unusual severity of the storm led them to believe that the little building in which they were stationed would be raised from its foundation and sent spinning into Tuckerman's ravine or the yawning gulf below. Each man wrapped himself tightly in furs and blankets. The ropes and chains were made doubly secure, and every precaution taken to guard against accident.

The supposition is that the velocity of the wind at one time was greater than that given, being, according to the opinion of the officer, up to 200 miles an hour. In exposing the anemometer the danger was so great that the exact figures could not be obtained. The quantity of snow, sleet and hail that fell during the twenty hours of the storm equaled 2.89 inches of water. The cold was so intense that a basin of water, within two feet of the fire, was frozen, and the men had the utmost difficulty in keeping themselves from freezing to death. The officers speak of their experience with a shudder.

COL. INGERSOLL'S humble admission that he could have improved on the universe had he been consulted, is the dictum of a truly great mind. Not many such men come to this lower sphere, and we ought to perpetuate his memory by erecting a colossal statue of him in pure brass. He reminds us of the French infidel who, standing beneath an oak tree and looking at a gourd vine, said if he had been spoken to about the matter he would have advised the Almighty to put the gourd on the oak tree, and the acorn on the gourd vine. Just then an acorn fell and hit him on the cranial region, where people's brains are situated when they have any. It was lucky for him the acorn was not a gourd, and for once, and once only, he admitted that things are better as they are. The Colonel, however, differs from the Frenchman, and persists in thinking that the universe won't be quite perfect until his great brain is permitted to make suggestions. We believe in fair play, and suggest that the honors be divided between the Colonel and George Francis Train. If the world could only be persuaded to adopt the highly intellectual propositions of these gentlemen, dethrone the Almighty, and accept the rule of the two mightiest thinkers of any age, we are well assured that something would happen at once.—N. Y. Herald.

CITIZENSHIP.—The youth of America early assume the august duties of citizenship. Under the appreciation of the principles which the struggles of ages have women into our beautiful national fabric depends its success or failure. A democracy of ignorant people, swayed by demagogues who appeal to their prejudices and passions, is the worst of human governments. A republic of calm, thoughtful men, ever ready to speak, to live or, if need be, on the battle field of principle to die for that which makes a government like ours to differ from an abject despotism—this is the idea of a perfect State.—Bishop Hobart.

MIND your stops. A compositor in setting up the toast: "Woman—without her, man would be a savage" got the punctuation in the wrong place, which made it read: "Woman—without her man, would be a savage."

IT is no wonder that a critic recently remarked that the "Raven" savors of ancient Greece. It is Poe-made.

The Sistine Madonna.

The Dresden gallery is the finest collection north of the Alps. The Sistine Madonna alone is enough to make a gallery famous. It is the most celebrated picture in the world. It has been reproduced so often in copies, engravings, photographs and chromos that it it would be difficult to find a person who is not familiar with the conception—the Holy Virgin with the child Jesus in her arms, standing on the clouds, St. Sixtus on her left; below, looking up adoringly, St. Barbara on her right, with her face turned toward the spectator; and beneath two little cherubs leaning over a railing represented near the frame. The pose and action of the figures, especially of the Virgin, is admirable; the expression is sweet, pure and rapt. Raphael was in the best period of his short life when he painted this picture, and taken altogether—the dignity of the subject, the beauty of the coloring, the symmetry of the composition and the soul which his genius here best displays—it is worthy of its fame. Properly it occupies a room by itself, and the art lover who returns to it again and again, finds that it daily increases its hold upon his imagination. The picture is about eight feet seven inches high, and six feet four inches wide. It was carefully restored in 1816.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT SALE.—Yesterday Martin Mee purchased from G. M. Jordan four of his valuable mines in Lee district, including a water right to the Willow Spring, situated about four and a half miles from the mines. Mr. Jordan is one of the first locators and old stand bys of of Lee district, and has maintained himself and family from the sales of the rich ores he has extracted from these rich mines, to say nothing of quite a sum he has been swindled out of by different partners. He concluded therefore to sell out. Martin Mee will at once take the necessary steps to develop these mines, and through his operations and those of the Emigrant Mining Company, we may look for Lee district to enter upon a prosperous mining season this Summer. The ores of this district, it will be remembered, are free milling and high-grade silver, caraying some gold. Water will soon be brought into the camp, and the Emigrant company will have their mill moved to their mines. It is now situated some nine miles away, and ore is now taken to it at considerable loss—about $14 per ton being paid for hauling. The ten stamp mill lately purchased by them at Kernville will soon be brougat over, and probably the five stamps of their present mill will be added thereto, which will give them facilities for working their own and costom ores. This will give impetus to renewed exertions in that district which in time will prove second to none in the county. Mr. Mee is one of the best miners in the county, and the acquisition of mining property there by him shows the confidence he has in the district.—Darwin News, March 16.

SLATE RANGE MINES.—Situated in a southerly direction from this place about thirty or thirty five miles, is the Slate Range Mining District, which has within its confines some very excellent mines. Messrs. D. L. Reese, J. B. Haggin and Geo. Hearst of San Francisco, have several mines in that district which, we are informed, are first-class. They have worked quietly away upon their ledges and are so well satisfied with their showing that they have applied for patents to three of them—Lone View, San Francisco Gold and Alta Silver mines—as also for a mill-site (the Slate Range) the applications for which are published in to-day's paper. We expect to have a full report of the mines in that district soon.—Ib.

ARIZONA folks are growling because their freight costs them $45 per ton from San Francisco, while Darwin people grin and bear eighty dollars per ton, and make no effort to get a reduction. Tom Scott says he can do the San Francisco and Arizona business for fifteen dollars per ton.—Darwin News.

WE read that the Pope, on receiving the parish priests, recommended them to preach Jesus Christ, his life and teachings, to guard their flocks against the infidelity and immorality so greatly prevailing—the result of a corrupt press. In all his exhortations he avoids mention of the Virgin for the purpose of discountenancing Mariolatry, which his predecessor so long encouraged. It has shocked most of the people. In his coronation speech he made no allusion to the late Pius IX, although Cardinal Di Pietro, in addressing the Pontiff, had been eloquent in his praise of the deceased Pope. The omission could not therefore be accidental, and has been variously commented upon. The Pope and Cardinal Franchi have determined upon a policy of reconciling as far as possible the interests of church and State on questions pending with the various Governments.

A RECENT Belgian publication shows that the actual population of the earth is about 1,000,000,000, about equally divided between males and females. Every year about 33,000,000 die; every day, 81,334; every hour, 5,781; every minute, 60. Therefore there is a death every second. In civilized countries there are more births than deaths, but the whole world considered, the number of the former is about equal to that of the latter. More people are born and die in the night time than in the day and, generally speaking, low-sized men die before those of tall stature. Eight thousand and sixty-four languages are spoken in the world—587 in Europe, 896 in Asia, 276 in Africa, and 1,264 in America.

THERE are 600 men working in the bonanza mines and these men wash themselves and their clothing every day in a tank in the changing room, prepared for the purpose, and there accumulates in the bottom thereof fifty pounds of sediment. Col. Fair recently had some of this sediment assayed and was surprised at the result: Gold, per ton, $128 60; silver, $130 50, making a total of $259 10 per ton for the dirt washed out of the shirts and overalls of the miners. This sediment will be saved hereafter.

EGGS sell in Maine for a dollar and a half a dozen. In order to give them this value the shells are first perforated with two holes, the original contents blown out and the vacant space filled with whisky. All on account of the Maine liquor law. Another dodge is the patent faucet, which turned one way yields vinegar, and the other way ale.

HON B. D. WILSON, of Los Angeles, died suddenly of heart disease on the 10th instant, aged 67 years. Deceased was an early pioneer of this coast. The Los Angeles Express, with turned column rules, eulogizes the deceased in the very highest terms; and there is a very profound expression of grief among those who knew him best.

THE New York Nation gauges Bob Ingersoll's caliber exactly when it defines his lectures against the Christian religion as simply a "rehash of Tom Paine's, Voltaire's and Theodore Parker's well known arguments, with an intermixture of Western humor and the usual mushy eulogies on love."

THE Kentucky Senate has repealed the test oath required of every member that he had not used money to secure his election. The ground of the opponents of the oath was that, besides bribery, it forbade the legitimate uses of campaign funds, such as printing tickets and posters and hiring halls.

SENATOR JONES, of Nevada, the leader of the silver movement, is not a bonanza king, as popularly supposed. He was at one time worth $3,000,000, but his mine gave out, and bad investments and unfortunate speculations, it is said, have swept away the most of his accumulations.

THE Greenbackers recently held a convention at Toledo, Ohio. They repudiated old party lines and organizations, and adopted a straight Greenback platform. They christened their organization the "National Party."

Now in some parts of the State the overgrown grain has to be plowed under because no sheep or cattle can be found to feed it off. But a few weeks since stock men and sheep owners were giving half of their flocks for straw to feed the other half.

AN amendment to the Constitution of the United States is to be proposed, changing inauguration day from March 4 to May 4.

SARGENT'S BILL FOR THE SALE OF TIMBER LANDS.

The bill introduced by Senator Sargent for the sale of timber lands provides that surveyed public lands in California, Oregon and Washington Territory, valuable chiefly for timber and unfit for cultivation, may be sold to United States citizens in quantities not exceeding 160 acres to any one person or association at the minimum price of $2 50 per acre, and lands valuable chiefly for stone may be sold on the same terms. The bill, however, expressly excepts from its operations all mining claims or the improvements of any bona fide settlers on lands containing gold, silver, cinnabar, copper or coal, and all State selections under grants for education, internal improvements or other purposes, and lands within Indian or military reservations. It is also provided that the bill shall not defeat any rights conferred by the Act of 1866 granting the right of way for ditches, etc., over public lands, or impair any bona fide claim under any United States law. The bill contains stringent provisions to guard against the acquisition of title for speculative purposes, requiring, among other things, personal affidavits to be made by the applicants that the land is of the prescribed character; that they apply to purchase for their own use and benefit; that they have made no agreement to alienate the title; which statement, together with a minute description of the land, shall be published for sixty days in the various newspapers, as a notice for adverse claimants, etc. False swearing is to be punished as perjury, and an evasion of the other provisions of the act will work a forfeiture of the title. The bill next provides that after its enactment it shall be unlawful to cut, destroy or remove timber from any public lands, with intent to export or dispose of the same, and no owner, master or consignee of any vessel, or the owner, director or agent of any railroad shall knowingly transport the same. Any persons violating the prohibitions shall be punished with a fine of from $100 to $1,000; but nothing herein contained shall prevent any miner or agriculturalists from clearing his land in the ordinary working of his mining claim, or preparing his farm for tillage, or from taking the timber necessary to support his improvements, and the penalties provided by this bill are not to take effect until one year after its enactment. The bill provides, in regard to all Territories except Washington, that the number of acres of timber land purchasable from the Government shall not exceed forty.

Representative Wren's bill allowing the use of timber on mineral lands for mining and domestic purposes does not contain the proviso of the Senate committee's similar bill, that no timber shall be cut within three miles of the upper timber line. He omitted this provision because it would manifestly impair the usefulness of the bill to a large class of people living in the foot- of the Sierra Nevada and elsewhere.

THE SUTRO TUNNEL.—At every blast now fired in the header of the Sutro tunnel small pieces of rock and dirt are jarred down from the roof and sides of the 2,000 level drift of the savage mine. The sound of the percussion drills at work can also be heard at that level. The Sutro tunnel is now about 300 feet east of the 2,000 level of the Savage, and probably on a line with the Senator works. It will strike the Savage at a hight of about 350 feet above the 2,000 level, and within 60 feet of the incline. If the tunnel is pushed to the west wall of the Comstock, it must be driven west about 1,000 feet more before it can be said to be completed to the Comstock. But if the design should be simply to connect with the advanced workings on the lode, then the tunnel need only be driven west about 500 feet more. The Virginia Chronicle, from which the above is clipped, predicts that the tunnel will be completed by June next.

THE new Territory (Lincoln), according to the bill as at present prepared, will contain 97,800 square miles, is 76,200 from Dakota, 14,400 from Montana and from Wyoming 7,200 miles, making a Territory larger than any of the Western States, and within its borders are over 600 miles of navigable rivers and more than 2,000 miles of river valleys. The present estimated population is 25,000. The friends of the measure have represented that there is more gold in this Territory than in California. During the past year there were 175 steamers unloaded at Bismarck, and more than 500 teams were constantly employed during the year carrying freight to the Black Hills.

ON the 18th inst. the Les Angeles Express began its 15th volume. All we have to add is that the Express has few superiors in real editorial ability among the dailies of this coast.

THE Governor has vetoed the bill passed for the relief of sufferers by the flood.

SARGENT'S SPEECH ON THE CHINESE QUESTION.

On the 7th instant Senator Sargent delivered a speech upon the Chinese Immigration bill pending in the Senate that meets with universal commendation from the press of this coast, and certainly must have accomplished something toward opening the eyes of those Eastern people to the real nature of the curse this bill is designed to remedy in some degree. Lack of space forbids even a synopsis of Mr. Sargent's arguments, but their tenor and earnestness may be judged from this extract, referring to those to Kennedy, the advocate of the Six Companies:

This production emanates from the lobbyists in the interest of the Chinese Six Companies, the grand slave masters of the Pacific. My constituents do not send lobbyists here to enlighten you, but depend on their Senators and Representatives to show to the Committees of Congress and the respective Houses the important consequences depending upon a solution of the Chinese question, not only to California, but to every State and Territory on the Pacific slope and perhaps by and by to every State in the Union. Chinese immigration presents in California a present evil as great as any ever ascribed to slavery in the Southern States, and at no period in your history has a people been confronted with a problem more difficult to handle and more dangerous, if not adequately solved, than that which presses upon the attention of Congress. The recent labor riots in the East have arisen from a mere transient cause, from temporary depression of business, or an unusual and morbid condition of the public mind or that of certain classes of society. That which may have been but an evanscent result of temporary causes in the East is a chronic and increasing disorder in California, and which cannot be put out of sight or safely neglected.

Gen. Connor for Governor of Utah.

The Gentiles of Utah are making a strong effort to have Gov. Emery removed. It seems that he has ranged himself socially and officially on the side of Mormonism, declining to affiliate in any sense with the liberal element of the Territory. In short, the Mormons have "captured" him as completely as they did Gov. Axtell some years ago. The removal of Gov. Emery being a foregone conclusion, a movement has been inaugurated in San Francisco to have Gen. Connor appointed as his successor. The General is a much respected citizen of Eureka, and while we regret to lose him, we can but wish that he may secure the place if he desires it. Gen. Connor has once before taught the Mormons a whole some lesson, and in him Utah would be certain of a fearless and sterling Executive. Alluding to the fact that Utah needs a firm hand at the helm, the Alta has the following:

The favorable circumstances alluded to suggest that it would be a proper thing for President Hayes to appoint at the present time some one to the Governorship of that Territory who is familiar with its issues, and who has in a measure the confidence of the people, and as the name of Gen. P. Edward Connor has been forwarded to Washington by his friends here, as a proper person to be the Governor of Utah, we cheerfully add our indorsement to the recommendation, as we think that gentleman a very fitting person for the Executive chair. Gen. Connor is a man of hard sense; is not a fanatic on any thing, and is as capable of looking at facts impartially as any man we can think of. His military career is unblemished; his readiness to favor and promote the interests of the people of Utah has cost him tens of thousands of dollars, and his fidelity to the Government is beyond question. His appointment to the Governorship of the Territory would be satisfactory to the Gentiles and to the Mormons, and we hope President Hayes will give it his careful attention.—Eureka Sentinel.

IN looking over our tabulated table, furnished by the Surveyor-General, we find that the following may be classed as the leading wheat producing counties of the State, and the number of bushels each: Stanislaus, 5,000,000; Colusa, 4,500,990; Merced, 4,500,000; Santa Clara, 2,875,120; Butte, 2,400,000; Yolo, 2,322,269; Solano, 1,965,175; San Joaquin, 1,800,000; Sutter, 1,368,975; Contra Costa, 1,354,961; Monterey, 1,333,333.

THE Department of Agriculture at Washington recently dispatched a sack of a new variety of wheat, which it requested might be distributed among farmers for trial. It was found to consist of wild buckwheat, mustard, black oats, white oats, rye, pigeon grass, barley, cockle, wild peas and Indian wheat; and now the recipient wants to know who will give the sample a trial.

IT is stated as some of the compensating features of the destructive flood on the Sacramento that the gophers and squirrels have been drowned out, and that deposits of rich soil from the foothills have been scattered over a large area of land that needed it. Some of these deposits are from a foot to eighteen inches thick.

THE robber of Temple & Workman's bank at Los Angeles has been captured, and all the stolen money recovered.

BENTON, March 20.

MESSRS. EDITORS — Indications are that Winter has passed; planting of trees and beautifying of grounds is the order of the season, and quite a number of our citizens, in so doing, are giving the place that thrifty appearance which in a few years hence could not be had for money without time.

TIMES

In Benton are somewhat dull, owing to the fact that both mills are now shut down. The Diana mill has not been in operation for some time—not for the want of ore, however, as the ore-houses at the mill and the mine are full; but for the want of the proper works for reducing it. What is needed is a White roasting furnace with Howell's improvement, and until the Diana company gets such it will declare no dividends. The barrel process which has been used hitherto was a complete success so far as working the ore up to a high percentage and getting fine bullion, but it is so much slower and more expensive in the use of amalgamating material that it never did pay in this camp; and now the ores are getting so base that it is given up by the "barrel process" man himself that it is no longer profitable. The Comanche Mining Company, quite unlike the Diana, has the necessary facilities for reducing its ores, but of which it has been rather short. But prospects now loom up, as a very good body of ore has been struck in the bottom of the 750-foot level, which is a signal of prosperity for that company. The other mines of the district are all paying, but are not noticed outside of Benton because they are not incorporated. The Laura mine has been paying for eight months, and has money in the treasury. The Modoc is in the same category, and has not a barren place in the mine. The Tower mine yields up precious metal in abundance. The Indian Queen shows excellently, having struck the ledge in the new tunnel, and promises to start up the mill for a Summer's run.

LAKE DISTRICT.

Parties just in from Lake District report that the snow is still too deep to do anything there. They bring specimens of ore from the Parker mine which resemble no others from outside of Virginia City. I understand that the parties who have bonded this property have ordered a mill, which comes by the southern route. Robert Blake and N. C. Webster have located a toll road from Benton to Lake, and propose to have it passable for small teams by the 1st of May, and they don't intend to tax the people a cent to build it.

HAPPY AT LAST.

The citizens of Bridgeport are happy, now that our roaring Legislature has, through the influence of Inyo and Mono's Representative, passed the bill of the "Bridgeport & Bodie Toll Road Company," which has enough road on which to build a toll gate and a house by the side of it, and who expect this county toll road to be a north and south extension of their toll gate. However, there is a consolation, in the fact that Mono county knows how to repudiate a road indebtedness, for the sound of its repudiation proclamation still echoes in the deep canyons between Aurora and Sonora, and before that echo dies out the bell will toll two or three times to tell the age and the death of an infant city on the hill; then the said repudiation proclamation will be brought out, unfolded and reread. "Then, if the tax-payers are saved where shall the bond-holders appear?" Verily, I say, at the little end of the wind instrument sometimes called a horn.

PERSONAL.

J. B. Badger has gone to Petaluma. I. P. Yaney, Esq., is now in charge of the Benton agency of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express. Reports are that Jack Clark, the stage driver, got shot in Aurora—a good target for a poor marksman. G. W. Rowan is in Badger's store. Geo. E. Webber, Superintendent of the Comanche, has gone below to attend the annual meeting of the company. John Tregembo has gone to 'Frisco to purchase machinery for the Tower mine. Seth G. Sneden has returned from Bridgeport; he and Dan Ashley went to Bishop together. Mrs. W. W. Peck arrived from Bishop. After this mélange I would make personal mention of the conduct of some hoodlums in town, were it not out of respect to their parents.

RURAL JACOB.

A JEWELER'S TEST FOR GOLD.—A liquid for testing gold, says the Jeweler and Silversmith, may be made with two ounces of nitric acid, four drams of water and one scruple of muriatic acid. The articles should be well mixed together and kept ready for use in a stoppered glass bottle, and the stopper should have a glass prong dipping into the mixture, so that when it is taken out the article to be tested may be touched with this prong with some of the liquid upon it. But before touching with the acid a file should be drawn over some part of the article, so as to make certain that it is not gilt or plated, and the liquid should be applied to the place of the file marks; if the metal is base the fraud will immediately be detected, as the acid would have no effect on gold. Qualities above nine carat would stand this test. The acid would boil more or less green in inferior qualities; if alloyed with an extra quantity of silver they will only partially stand this test, but the color of the gold would then be considerably paler, which would afford a guide to its value.

WE were informed yesterday that four men have come in from Inyo county, where they have been for the last year taking pelts from sheep that had died and were abandoned by their owners. They say that it was a very profitable business, as the sheep died in great numbers, and their pelts sold at a pretty fair price. We know of one sheep-raiser that, out of about 13,000 sheep, has but a little less than 3,000 left him. It seems that in addition to the starvation from scarcity of grass last year, the sheep would take a sort of trembling fit, and die in a few moments. So this general mortality among sheep must have made the skinning business profitable.—Los Angeles Express.

SHOOTING AFFRAY.—Last night a serious shooting affray occurred at Cobb's Lodging House, in Aurora. Jack Clarke, driver of the Benton stage, and a man named De Witt became involved in a quarrel over a quartz specimen while discussing the relative merits of Aurora and Bodie, and finally De Witt drew his pistol and shot Clarke. The ball entered the right side in the region of the liver and about an inch below the nipple. Dr. Rodgers was called and pronounced the wound dangerous though not necessarily fatal. De Witt was arrested.—Bodie Standard, March 20.

Half Mile Dash in Sacramento.

Down in the cow counties they think the time in the following described race as something extraordinary. Perhaps it is. The trial took place on the 15th, and the press dispatch says:

At the Agricultural Park to-day there was a fair attendance. The first race was half mile heats for a purse of $1,000—$500 first money, $250 second, $150 third and $100 fourth. There were four starters: Madge Duke, Ben Trueman, Vanderbilt and Minnie Brighton. In the pools the former had the call at $20 and $30 against the field.

First heat—A good send off, Minnie Brighton cutting out the work from the start, and winning the heat by an open length; Truman second, Madge Duke, third, Vanderbilt fourth. Time, 50½.

Second heat—This heat was won by Ben Trueman as he pleased, Madge Duke evidently not making an effort for the heat; Brighton whipping through the straight work every jump. Time, 50½.

Third and fourth heats won by Madge Duke, Trueman second and second money, Brighton third and third money. Time, 51 and 52½.

The mile and repeat race was postponed until to-morrow on account of the darkness. This was one of the best half mile races ever witnessed on this track.

SERVED THEM RIGHT.—Three relief bills were killed in the Legislature yesterday, as will be seen by the Chronicle report. They were each drawn for $250 per month, respectively in favor of Gen. Sutter, James Marshall, the discoverer of gold at Coloma, in February, 1848, and Mrs. Wimmer, the lady who kept house and cooked for the workingmen employed by Sutter at that time. As for Gen. Sutter, we understand that he is living with his kinsfolk in Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, in comparative affluence, and does not need aid. Marshall has had assistance for years at the rate of $100 and $125 per month, and there is no reason why he should now ask for $250. Mrs. Wimmer is a fresh applicant, who might be reasonably paid $50 per month—as much as Congress allows the widow of the late Gen. Canby, whose whole lifetime was given to the service of his country—but surely she has no just claim to any more. The Chronicle is in favor of a reasonable allowance—say $100 or $150 per month—to Sutter and Marshall as long as they shall live, which in the course of nature cannot be long.—S. F. Chronicle.

BODIE INCORPORATIONS.—The Noonday Mining Company has incorporated at San Francisco with $6,000,000 capital and the following Directors: Wm. M. Stewart, Wm. B. Carr, Wm. F. Herrin, F. K. Bechtel and Frank Tagliabue; object, to work in Bodie district, State of California. The Sitting Bull Mining Company has incorporated with a capital stock of $6,000,000 and the following Directors: F. K. Bechtel, Wm. M. Lent, Wm. B. Carr, F. Tagliabue and Wm. M. Stewart.—Esmeralda Herald.

AT PINE GROVE.—Diphtheria prevails to an alarming extent at Pine Grove, and we are informed that at present 23 children are suffering from the disease. By good medical attendance and careful nursing, though, the majority are improving, and will probably come through all right.—Esmeralda Herald.

Some of the crops on the north side of the river, on the line of the Calloway canal, will have to be planted the third time, two plantings having been literally blown away in the late heavy gales.—Courier-Californian.

PREACHING.— Pursuant to standing appointments, Rev. Mr. Pratt will hold services here to-morrow evening, beginning at half-past 7, and also on the following Sunday at the same hour. Our secular amusements in this place never fail of a goodly attendance, which is a pleasant fact to record: per contra, the attendance at church, Sunday schools and all similar calls, is discouragingly light; we fancy, if the thing was a little better divided up, people would have more to think and talk about through reminders of the church bell associations of other days and other countries, if not in contemplation of a possible brimstone hereafter — which, Beecher says, does not threaten us at all as a physical fact beyond this mundane sphere; nevertheless, we must shape our present ends just the same as if Tophet had not been abolished, or have hell here and hereafter both: thus, the conditions are about the same as they always have been, therefore our moral duties to ourselves and each other just as binding as in the days of yore.

THE BEAUDRY BRASS BAND.—The following are the new officers elect of the Beaudry Brass Band of Cerro Gordo: President, Jos. Hoskins; Vice President, R. Reynolds; Secretary and Treasurer, Wm. E. Goodrum; Musical Director, Wm. Hoskins. Assistant Musical Director, Gabe Hoskins. In his annual report the retiring Secretary and Treasurer, Frank M. Drake, congratulates the band upon its flourishing condition, and adds: "We started last March with eleven members, and worked ourselves up to thirteen in July, but since then have lost and gained until we now have twelve. During the year I have received from dues and fines $82; from donations, $167 50; from the entertainment we gave on Christmas night, $83 25; and from other sources, $75 25. Making a total of $408. During the same time I have paid out $347 65, leaving a balance on hand of $60 35."

SCHOOLS.—Mrs. Lowe's school in this place closed yesterday, and on Monday next she re-opens the school for Milton district, the term for the school year not having been completed last Fall. Mrs. Lowe has displayed unusual energy and has spared herself in no particular of hard work to advance her pupils in their studies. With some, more particularly the smaller ones, she has had marked success; results with others again have not equaled her wishes or efforts by any means, but mostly for causes that will not be permitted to prevail quite so extensively hereafter, being of a kind that others than the teacher will have to see to. We regret to have to make exceptions touching conduct o school children, but circumstances demand at least a reference, in hope of something better for the future—that is, that none of them will give any similar cause for exceptions hereafter.

BOGUS COIN.—It seems that there are quite a number of bogus half dollars in circulation in the valley—whether elsewhere or not, we cannot say. Since we do not get a chance to handle any coin worth speaking about, we only know that the spurious halves are in circulation through the exhibitions of some of our friends, one of whom exhibited two of the pieces with which he had been "stuck;" one of them was of the coinage of 1871, the other 1875, San Francisco mint. In appearance and jingle these bogus pieces are quite sufficient to deceive the unwary, though in weight they are manifestly much lighter than the genuine. It is well for all who are liable to get hold of any coin to be on the lookout for these half dollars.

THE DIFFERENCE.—A trio of our best single handed talkers were the other evening engaged in earnest discussion when the question of their respective financial standing came up. No. 1, who had lately received a heritage of about seventy-five cents from a greatly lamented uncle, proclaimed that he had squared up, and didn't owe a man in town a cent. No. 2 proceedod to illustrate his case by stating that—such had been his business foresight—there wasn't a man in town who owed him a cent. No. 3 said he could discount that: "there wasn't a man in town but whom he did owe."

A NEW ESTABLISHMENT.—We learn that the unfinished building of the Mairs Bros., northwest corner of Edwards and Market streets, and the most central location in town, has been leased for store purposes and is under contract for completion by the 15th proximo. The parties taking possession are the Messrs. C. & M. Cohn, of Lone Pine, who will establish here a branch of their merchandising business, with a new stock complete.

MINING TRANSFERS.— Some nine deeds have been placed on record in the County Recorder's office during the past week, the property being interests in the Golden Thread, Red Warrior and Borago Bronco mines and the Big Horn and Junction water claims, all situated in the new Beveridge District. The matter seems to be a general change around between the owners—Messrs. Hughes, Porter, Hunter and Brittain.

TO MEET.—The Board of Supervisors hold a special meeting on Monday next to order the purchase of outstanding county bonds (should the bids therefore be satisfactory), and to receive proposals for the care of indigent sick for the fiscal year. As the matters are of importance there will doubtless be a full Board preseat.

DIED.—George Horne, who has for the past two weeks been an inmate of the County Hospital, died at that institution on Wednesday last, from hemorrhage of the lungs. The deceased hailed from Bishop Creek, and was a hopeless case from the first.

NEW ROAD.—There is a project on foot for the construction of a wagon road between Round Valley and Lake District, the certain effect of which would be to make the route through this valley the one over which all the freights for that region would pass. There are no very serious difficulties to be encountered in the course of its construction, and if sufficient capital can be enlisted to carry the work through the direct benefits to the owners and this county in general would be immense. The people of Round Valley and Bishop, particularly, ought to take the matter earnestly in hand. The Cerro Gordo Freighting Company may take some stock in the business when it comes to transporting the 40-stamp mill for Lake District, which is to come via. Mojave.

CERRO GORDO.—The sweeping reduction in wages by the Union Con. at Cerro Gordo, mentioned as a rumor last week, seems to be an accomplished fact. It amounts to 50 cents per day for each laborer; coal from $34 to $31 per ton, and a reduction of $1 50 for packing same. Everything else goes in proportion, except such matters as the head superintendent is personally interested in—freights, hay and grain. Said superintendent is reported as having stated that by so doing he "raised the wind." It certainly created considerable of a breeze, as we are informed that over one-half of the old hands have left the place.

ATTEMPTED MURDER.—At Silver Peak on the 22d ultimo, one T. J. Mellinger assaulted J. B. Hiskey with a six-shooter, with intent to kill. Mr. Hiskey, however, got hold of the pistol in time to direct the shot to the ground, and finally got possession of the gun. From reports of the affair it appears that Hiskey was most too magnanimous in not using it upon the assailant. Mellinger had got riled up because Hiskey had refused to become responsible for his board bill. The would-be shootist is now in jail at Aurora waiting trial for assault to kill.

MISSIONARY WORK. — Up in Cerro Gordo they call a certain prospecting expedition toward the Death Valley region "missionary work." Parson English and Frank Berriman, being regular Moodey and Sankey sort of men, and in charge of an experienced guide to lead them to savage haunts, are announced to hold camp meetings at certain points, when the conversion of the entire Death Valley tribe of Indians is considered certain.

BABIES.—Since babies, particularly of the feminine order, are getting so common that every house can boast of a half dozen, more or less, at present, with the future to hear from, it behooves all who want really first-class pictures either of themselves or a portion of the aforesaid babies to call around some forenoon soon and see Kemp, just across the street from Mairs' new building.

A CHANGE.—The firm of J. S. Rothschild & Co. will shortly begin the erection of a large warehouse in the rear of their store, to accommodate increasing demand for store-room. Upon its completion their old store building, on one of the principal corners in town, will be torn away, thus removing a long standing eyesore and vastly improving the general appearance of our little burg.

THE VOLKERT CASE.—The result of the trial on appeal of the Volkert case was a verdict of "not guilty," rendered after a full investigation into the matter. To his credit be it said that the District Attorney prosecuted the case for all there was in it, but the complaining witness and those summoned for the people failed to fully prove the alleged assault.

SURGICAL.—Dr. Stevenson, at Cerro Gordo, a day or two since successfully performed a difficult surgical operation upon James R. Moffitt, in remedying a hare-lip. The patient will soon be out again, entirely relieved from the disfigurement.

THE UNION CON.—Work has been resumed on the drift from the new shaft of the Union Consolidated running towards the Union, as also upon one running from the 900-foot level to tap what is thought to be a good body of ore.

BULLION.—The Rex Montis Company shipped, per Wells, Fargo & Co., on the 20th, two bars of bullion, weighing 152½ pounds, valued at $2,000. This was the result of the first clean-up from the run now being made on tailings.

SHOOTING AFFRAY.—A couple of Italians, names unpronounceable and of but little consequence anyhow, got into a row at Silver Peak on the 13th instant, in which one received a bullet through his thigh, but will recover.

AN item will be found in the department of domestic news headed "Born" which is of considerable moment to our respected senior, who is somewhat elated over the matter and—doing as well as could be expected.

IMPROVEMENT.—The French Restaurant, under the go-ahead management of the present proprietor, H. Levy, is being improved by the addition of a spacious dining room.

THE Headquarters Saloon, by Messrs. Irwin & Mairs, whose advertisement will be noted elsewhere, is now one of the cosiest places in town.

ADJOURNED.—On Monday last the County Court adjourned for the term. The next regular term begins in May, when the District Court also convenes.

INDEPENDENCE all ablaze with excitement about the arrival of the great Fly-Photogragh Gallery, now open. J. C. KEMP, Prop'r. *

DEAD.—Wm. Roberts, who recently went from Cerro Gordo to Kernville for his health, died at that point a few days ago.

The Races—Grand Wind Up.

Our report of the week's racing given under the auspices of the Independence Jockey Club, at the Independence Track, closed with the one of Friday last. On the day following there was a much larger turn-out at the course than for any previous day, and the whole affair passed off satisfactory to spectators and all interested—always excepting those who backed the wrong horses.

The day previous the Club had ordered hung up a special pony purse of $75 for second class horses, single dash of one quarter mile. The entries were: Whistle Jack, by Murray; True Blue, by Richardson, and Dashaway by Irwin. Speculation in small pools run most lively during the arrangement of the preliminaries at the track. After a fair start the horses came through in 25 seconds, Whistle Jack but six inches ahead of True Blue under the string, Dashaway some thirty feet behind.

THE HALF MILE RACE

Between the renowned Black Harry and Brown Frank then came off for a purse of $150. Betting at first was slack, with small odds in favor of Harry's winning the race without regard to how much, but soon the backers of the black horse proposed to gamble on his beating the brown one by "daylight," when in a few moments at least $2,000 was staked upon the proposition. After a few trials the flyers were tapped off, Harry taking the lead and winning by "20 feet of open daylight." Time 49¾ seconds.

OFF FOR BODIE.—It is stated that P. W. Bennett, Esq., one of our leading Inyo attorneys, proposes to move Aurora or Bodie soon, upon the return of his law partner, Mr. Moffatt, from Sacramento. Paul has been an old stand-by and pioneer of this county, and we should be sorry to think that his leave was going to be permanent.

DEFIANCE.—Up to latest advices (yesterday) the Defiance furnaces at Darwin since Monday last were running steadily, with perfect success and a prospect ahead of continuing to do so indefinitely. In the 24 hours beginning Wednesday morning last there were run out 27,500 pounds of bullion.

RECOVERING.—A note from Dr. Middleton states that Charley Stoutenborough, of Bishop Creek, is on a fair way to recover his health, and will soon be able to start for San Francisco. In the meanwhile J. B. White, of this section of Inyo, has taken charge of some of the store work.

ABOUT AGAIN.—Wm. F. Matlack. who has been sick nigh unto death's door, is convalescent and able to be about upon the street. It is hardl: necessary to state the fact that for his early recovery he has the best wishes of a host of friends.

Mothers-in-Law.

MESSRS. EDITORS—I want to annihilate the blatherskites who write sarcastic and disparaging squibs in regard to this relation, and request them to subside. Why this senseless abuse of mothers-in-law? Are not our own mothers liable to attain that distinction? Our individual mother is, at least. The ones loudest in their abuse are no doubt supported by their mother-in-law's exertions, or by those of her child, which amounts to the same. Besides this relationship is a necessary and glorious institution; one that has stood the test of time; one that every married man or woman—except Mr. and Mrs. Adam, the parties that tried to homestead the Garden of Eden—had or ought to have had; a relationship that all should respect for—their unmarried daughters' sake, if for no other reason.

The flabbergasted shrimp who indulges his spleen at their expense is, let us hope, for charity's sweet sake, a chronic dyspeptic, and consequently a cynic; one for whom youth had no golden dreams, and in whom the buds of affection have been killed by the frosts of indigestion. He may be in good health bodily, but his mind is diseased. To any one who has an A 1 mother-in-law (and, strange as it may appear, there are such) this abuse must be disgusting. "Mothers" are not abused in this way. Is it because the relationship is too near? Then why should our wife's relations be attacked? If you have a good wife, your mother-in-law deserves the credit; if you have drawn a blank, sympathize with your legal relative and love her—if you can.

I am unfortunate and have no mother-in-law—a half orphan, so to speak, or a off half 'un—but believe in them. I believe I would like to have one, and learn by experience whether they are a fraud, delusion and snare. But am morally certain that my opinion would never be given to the world or—my mother-in-law. QUIZ.

GOLD and bonds exhibit an inexplicable perversity since the passage of the Silver bill. According to the best financiers, or those who assume to be such, gold ought to have gone up and bonds down. Instead, both are steady, with gold falling. It has reached 101¾ in New York, which is the lowest since greenbacks began to depreciate during the war. There is no apparent desire to dispose of our bonds in Europe, and what few have been returned have found a ready sale at home. The country does not seem in the least disturbed by the prospect of an additional $40,000,000 a year being added to our metallic currency. In fact the world will probably be spared the harrowing spectacle of a nation ruined by too much good money.—S. F. Call.

ALTHOUGH the Russo-Turkish treaty has been ratified by both Powers, the situation is regarded in London as very dangerous to the peace of Europe.

BEECHER'S CREED.—Mr. Beecher cannot understand how rational men can allow themselves to be excited by "the periodical misreports of the reports," in regard to his theological views. In a letter to the editor of the Presbyterian Weekly he declares that for twenty-five years he has preached the truth of the inspiration of the sacred Scripture, the existence and government of God, the doctrines of the Trinity, the dignity of Christ as a very God, the universal sinfulness of man, the atonement of Christ, the doctrine of a change of heart, the efficacious influence of the Holy Spirit in regeneration, and the doctrine of retribution both here and hereafter. "It is true," he adds, "that the question of the nature of suffering the object of penalty and the question of duration, I have discussed with such light as I had, denying that all the light had yet broken out of the Holy Scripture, on various points that it contained. The charges of atheism, infidelity, universalism, theism, are made by men who know nothing, and who take no pains to know anything. My working sympathies go with the evangelical, orthodox ministry. I refuse to be held to consistency with any dogmatic system of theology in the past. I am with Calvin and against Calvin; I am with Arminius and against Arminius; I am with Episcopacy and against Episcopacy; I am with the Roman Church and against it—my object being not to build or to defend any system of lheology or government, but to bring men near to God, and build them up in holiness of life."

WHAT WAS FOUND IN AN INDIAN MOUND.—Important discoveries were made by a party of Galena, Illinois, gentlemen recently. While exploring some of the Indian mounds, supposed to be of pre-historte origin, at the portage, near that city, the remains of several adults were found imbedded in a tomb, walled with baked clay, about four feet from the top of tne mound, and some of the bones were in a fine state of preservation. The skulls, two of which were taken out whole, were in shape not unlike those of the chimpanzee, and the bones of enormous size and length, provfng that they belonged in life to persons of gigantic structure. They lay in a bed of ashes and burnt clay, and with them were found a dozen or more bear's claws with holes drilled in the large end and the sides exquisitiuely carved; a half dozen large size lustrous pearls, evidently used for beads; a copper bodkin, a copper axe, a copper utensil about six inches long, chisel shaped at one end and round at the other; a large sized and beautiful carved piece of crockery; a flint spear head, and several other articles never before unearthed in this locality. The mounds, of which there are a large number in that vicinity, are located on a high bluff or bank of the Sinisinawa river, overlooking the Mississippi and the whole country for miles around.

OLD engravings are the present rage in London, and command fabulous prices. A collector of engravings in selling off his stock, recently, found that he received for them as many guineas as he had paid shillings, and another was much astonished when one of his prints, for which he paid only a few shillings, was knocked down for £80.

PARIS is to have an extensive underground railway system, with four principal lines, all meeting below the garden of the Palais Royal, where an immense depot will be erected. Twenty-one million dollars are to be furnished for the work by the general government, the Department of the Seine and the city of Paris.

AT the Bridgeport (Conn.) cartridge factory on Saturday, the 17th ult., 504,000 cartridges were finished by ten men and seventeen machines, being, it is said the largest day's work in this department ever accomplished at the manufactory. The cartridges turned out were for the Turkish government.

A MINNESOTA girl named Sarah Wilson recently ate two quarts of canned oysters and two pounds of crackers at a single meal. Of course the New York Commercial calls her a Sal a mander. Still we should like to know what was the dessert of Sa'rah.—Ex.

THE celebrated Eddystone Lighthouse in the British channel, which has buffeted the waves of a century, will probable soon disappear, owing to the undermining of the reef below it by the water.

ROMEO AND JULIET—1878.

O that I had that diamond on her hand
That I might raise the fair and gentle wind!

Juliet.—Ah, goodness gracious me.

Romeo.— She speaks;
Oh go on with the chin music for thou art
As glorious to this night, being o'er my head,
As is a—er—um—er ah—as is a
Kind of a sort of a—kind of a—ur ah
A kind of a—haw—sort of a bird like.

Juliet.—O Romeo! Romeo! What is thy last name?
'Tis but thy name that is my enemy;
What's Montague? Oh, my, what a horrid name,
Oh, goodness gracious me. I'd rather die
Than marry a man named Montague.
Couldn't you get the Legislature to change your last name,
And for thy name, which is no part of you,
Take all myself?

Romeo—I'll take thee at thy word;
Call me Robinson, and I'll take you
And all your goods, chattels, manors, rents,
Revenue, real and personal property insurance,
Expectations, bank accounts, bonds, coupons, stamps,
Even nickels.

Juliet.—Oh, man in the garden! Go away, you naughty man! Who are you? How did you get in here?

Romeo.—Come up the alley, poisoned the dog,
And climbed over the back fence,
Behold the ashes on my boots; there's coffee grounds
And egg-shells on my trowsers. Is
Your big brother and your father home?

Juliet—If they do see thee, trust me,
They will put an ear on thee.

Romeo.—Not much, Mary Ann; say thou the word,
And I will smear your father's paste horn one;
One that he will remember, aye, ha, ha!
And weep when he remembers it.
Look at this biceps muscle. There is
A goose egg for you.

Juliet.—O, gentle Romeo,
If you love me say so, but don't step on my bunion.

Romeo.—Lady, by yonder blessed moon I swear,
That tips with silver all these fruit tree tops—

Juliet.—O, swear not by the moon, the inconstant moon,
That monthly changes in her circled orb,
Lest that thy love prove likewise variable.

Romeo.—Well, then, by Jiminy Pelt, by dad,
By hookey, by the long armed spoon, by jocks,
By thunder, Juliet, by gosh—
What shall I swear by?

Juliet—Do not swear at all;
Or if thou wilt, swear by thy gracious self.

Romeo.—Well, then, may I be did, dad dad, dog goned,
Dad blinged to jude; oh, may I be
Dad slam the gaul dinged dad fisted
Thing to thunder:—
(Goes off after some new swears.)

MANY a parent wonders why his children do not advance more rapidly in their studies, and why other pupils succeed better in their work. Now it is the opinion of the writer that in two-thirds of such cases the fault lies with the parent; many parents permit their children to be tardy and irregular at school, to play in the streets when they should be at study; to keep the company of those who are idle, lazy, profane and unworthy of countenance. Most of such parents find fault with the teachers and school officers, and finally wind up by making a few additions to the hoodlum population, at the same time believing that they ever done well their part, and always been good and useful citizens.—Tulare Times.

THE longest sentence on record was constructed by a Western Judge. He sentenced a man for life, and afterward slapped two more years to the sentence because the prisoner called him "no gentleman."

The Work of a Thousand Years About Closed.

The more we contemplate the terms which Russia has dictated to Turkey the more are we convinced that they mean the extinction of the Ottoman Empire. By these terms Russia breaks down all barriers to a speedy march at any time upon Constantinople, while by other clauses burdens are laid upon Turkey which it is physically impossible for that empire to lift; and so when a few years hence Russia makes up her mind to occupy what is now left of the Turkish Empire, her excuse will be that Turkey has not fulfilled the stipulations of the treaty of 1878. It is plain now that Russia has beaten England as much in diplomacy as she has Turkey with her armies. It is almost comical to think of the pathetic address which the Czar last Spring issued in justification of his proposed conquest—the liberation from a hard rule of the Christians in the provinces—and then to read that 50,000 Russian soldiers are to be quartered upon and fed by the war stricken Christians of Bulgaria. But this conquest is really but the fulfillment of a Russian dream a thousand years old. The hope of making Constantinople the capital of Russia was in the hearts of Russian rulers when they were mere barbarians, and has never been relinquished through the generations since. Constantinople has for centuries been looked upon by the Russians as in a great degree a sacred city, and the rightful property of their country. Within its walls their first Christian sovereign, Queen Olga, was baptized into the Christian faith, with the title of Empress Helena. Vladimar the Great, who married Anne, sister of the Greek Emperor Basil II, thence transplanted Christianity into Russia, and caused its adoption by his subjects according to the forms of the Greek Church. It will thus be seen that the very religion which the Czar ostensibly set out to defend, is an inheritance to Russia from the Moslem capital. Thus long has Russia sought to gather the Hellespont and the adjacent countries under her ægis. The standard of Russia, the double headed eagle of Byzantium, was a part of the dowry which Sophia, the neice of the last Greek Emperor, Constantine XIII, carried to her husband, Ivan III of Russia. Under the barbarious Varangians, and through the dynasty of the Romanoffs, there was a perpetual struggle for the possession of Constantinople. Under the Runic dynasty four expeditions were fitted out against Constantinople. Ten hundred and thirteen years ago 2,000 vessels crossed the Black Sea and forced an entrance into the Golden Horn. This fleet was destroyed by a tempest almost when victory was assured. Oleg, twenty-nine years later, anchored before the city, but was driven away by Greek fire. Thirty-four years later Igor made a desperate fight for the same prize, but was defeated with great loss. A hundred years later Vladimer met with a like fate. These invasions from the north struck such terror into the hearts of the Greeks that they firmly believed that the city would one day fall into the hands of the Russians. There was a superstition that an equestrian statue in the square of Tauras was secretly inscribed with a prophecy of how the Russians in the last days should become masters of Constantinople. An equally strong superstition of its conquest by the Russians has always prevailed among the Turks. Under the Romanoffs hostilities against the Turks began in 1678. They have been continued at intervals from that date to the present day. The Muscovite encroachments on the territory of the Ottoman Empire have been going on for two centuries, and had at the commencement of the late war absorbed nearly two-thirds of the original Moslem empire. By the terms of the present treaty it seems the work of a thousand years is well nigh finished, and that the weary eagle which went away with the Grecian Queen is about to be restored to its ancient eyrie.—Virginia Enterprise.

A BETTER plan for improving the aroma of butter, in use in many parts of Switzerland noted for good milk and fine butter, is as follows: The milk, as soon as it is drawn, and while yet warm is filtered through a sprig of washed fir tips, the stem of which is inserted lossely and upright in the hole of the funnel. The milk deposits hairs, skins, clots or gelatinous sliminess on the leaves. It has imparted to it a most agreeable odor, and does not readily turn sour. A fresh sprig should be used each time.

MRS. MALCOLM, a divorced woman in Los Angeles, has kept her divorce certificate since 1853, supposing it to be a Government patent for her land. The lawyer could'nt use it as an evidence of title. One of our city Justices of the Peace granted a divorce to a Mexican woman in 1864, and the Justice gave her the original summons in the case for a license, and then married her to another Mexican by the nick-name of "Swash." She is swashing around here still.—Bakersfield Courier.

"Matrimonial Bureau Raffle."

We have received from Ogden, Utah Territory, a circular and ticket for a "Matrimonial Bureau Raffle." The number of the ticket is 5,100, and the little bit of pink pasteboard bears this seductive inscription; "This ticket will entitle the holder to the Semi-Weekly Ogden Freeman for three months and a chance to draw a young lady prize at the next quarterly raffle of the Freeman Matrimonial Bureau." An accompanying circular says there are thousands of marriageable females in Utah, who would only be too happy to be drawn by good looking Gentiles, and the plan of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman is to issue male and female tickets, at the rate of one dollar and a half each, and and whenever a male and female purchaser find themselves in possession of tickets bearing the same numbers, they have each drawn a prize in the Freeman Bureau Raffle—in short they have drawn each other. And then the trouble commences. How the lucky ticket holders are ever to be brought together, is not mentioned. It may be that the male holder is expected to make a raid into Utah Territory, and hunt down and lasso his fair prize; but if she happened to be the daughter or spiritual wife of one of the Mormon Elders, the chances are that he would be summarialy hewn down by the Destroying Angels and buried without pall bearers or the rites of the Church. An accompanying note is addressed "To the Bachelor Editor of the Enterprise," and for him, we presume, the ticket is intended. The only one connected with the establishment that fills the bill is the telegraphic news editor, and the unintelligible chirography continually pouring in upon him from the telegraph office leaves him no time to dally in the soft sunshine of love. He has but one aspiration in life—one hope that sustains him in his weary labors through the long watches of the night—and that is that he may some day be able to kill a telegraph operator, and escape the gallows on the plea of insanity. However, he holds the ticket No. 5,100, and, in anticipation of winning a prize, has already asked a three months' leave of absence; and when he swoops down upon Ogden, after the "quarterly drawing" referred to, the old Sabine legend of the Romans will be repeated. In a matter of this kind he will not be trifled with, and unless the prize be promptly delivered on demand, Freeman's Matrimonial Bureau will be smashed. All down—no more—roll!—Virginia Enterprise.

Mr. Bennett's Polar Expedition.

A petition has been presented in the Senate by Mr. Conkling, from Mr. Jas. Gordon Bennett, asking that an American register be granted to the Pandora, an English steamer which he proposes to equip and man at his own expense for a voyage of discovery toward the North Pole, taking the Spitzbergen or European route, simultaneously with the Howgate expedition via Greenland. It is thought that probably there will be more or less opposition on the part of advocates of American shipbuilding; but if an American register be given to a foreign vessel for the Woodruff scheme, it is hard to see why another one should not be given for Mr. Bennett's scheme.

It is not known who is to be at the head of the expedition, but is supposed that the adventurous Stanley, just returned from the burning sands of Africa, wishes to try his luck and endurance against the rigors of the Arctic Winter which has conquered so many adventurous spirits.

Captain Howgate expresses much gratification at the proposed expedition of Mr. Bennett, because, when taken in connection with the proposed government expedition from the United States this year, it will test the practicability of the two most prominent routes to the North Pole. The Smith's Sound route, which Captain Howgate proposes to follow, is the favorite American route; while the Spitzbergan one is and has been advocated by foreign geographers in the face of the many failures in that direction hitherto made. The two expeditions will probably differ widely in other respects, as the Howgate plan proposes an exhaustive study of the various scientific subjects upon which light can only be thrown by steady researches made within the polar area; and is not limited in its object to the mere discovery of the North Pole, that being only one of the items of the Howgate scheme.—Scientific American.

Curious Habits of the Japanese.

The Japanese habit of reversing everything, if we may regard our own way of doing it as the proper way, is vrey curious, and in some of its details very interesting. Mr. Griffiths, in his work on Japan, discusses it thus: "Another man is planing. He pulls the plane toward him. I notice a blacksmith at work. He pulls the bellows with his feet, while he is holding and hammering with both hands. He has several irons in the fire, and keeps his dinner pot boiling with waste flame. His whole family, like the generations before him seem to get their living in the hardware line. The cooper holds his tubs with his toes. All of them sit down when they work. Perhaps that is an important difference between a European and an Asiatic. One sits down to his work, the other stands up to it. Why is it that we do things contrariwise to the Japanese? Are we upside down, or are they? The Japanese say that we are reversed. They call our penmanship 'crab writing,' because, say they, 'it goes backward.' The lines in our books cross the page like a crawfish, instead of going downward properly. In a Japanese stable we find the horse's flank where we look for his head. Japanese screws screw the other way. Their locks thrust to the right, ours to the left. The baby toys of the Aryan race squeak when they are squeezed; the Turnonian gimcracks emit noise when pulled apart. A Caucasian to injure his enemy kills him; a Japanese kills himself to spite his foe. Which race is left handed? Which has the negative which the positive of truth? What is truth? What is down? What is up?—Scientific American.

SATURDAY, MARCH 30.....1878.

THE United States will possess the best and securest savings bank system in the world when the Wallace Bill becomes a law. This measure provides for the issuance of $100,000,0 0 in government bonds in denominations of $25, $50 and $100, bearing 4 per cent. interest, payable semi-annually. The bonds will be redeemable in coin fifty years from date of issuance. This measure will enable our people of all classes to invest in government securities, and thus keep our money at home instead of being sent abroad to enrich foreigners. France recovered from her disastrous defeat in 1870 simply because her citizens became her creditors, and being such, they felt a deep interest in her financial prosperity and labored to promote it. The same system ought to prevail in this country. If it were so, we would soon see a healthy tone throughout the entire country as to our finances.

CAPT. WILLIAMS, of the Seventh Infantry, stationed at Fort Belknap, has sent to military headquarters the result of several scouting expeditions, which confirms the report recently telegraphed by United States Consul Taylor at Winnepeg, Manitoba. Capt. Williams learns that the forces under Sitting Bull aggregate, with what he has assurances of receiving in the way of reinforcements, nearly 7,000 fighting men. The talk is that they will fight nobody, but if anybody comes across their path they will get just the same. The Indians are well supplied with ammunition, and the situation is regarded as critical, and decisive measures are urged.

A Eureka girl tried that same experiment, and the young man thought the cow had dropped its horns into the coffee pot.—Reveille.

Here it was the old man that administered the toe-nails—a boot pretty much full of them. The young man didn't die, but is scarcer than he was.

THE Winnemucca (Nev.) Silver State is informed that a steam wagon and three cars of machinery for steam refining works at the sulphur mine has arrived at that place. The steam wagon is to be used in hauling sulphur from the Nevada and California Sulphur Company's mines at Rabbit Hole to the railroad. The wagon was tried at Sacramento and it moved along quietly and smoothly, though attached to three loaded wagons.

PAYMENT OF TAXES.—Hon. C. H. Cooley, of Sonoma county, has introduced a bill in the Assembly, amending the political code so that all general taxes must be paid in legal tender of the United States, gold, silver or paper. A tax levied for a special purpose may be paid in such funds as may be directed.

THE Government has determined to institute a searching investigation into the alleged kidnapping of southern negroes, who have been sold as slaves to Cuban planters, an agent having been sent with instructions to ascertain whether or not there is any foundation for the report.

IN spite of the depression and the open winter, the Cincinnatti Price-Current thinks the pork packed this season will be 600,000 barrels in excess of any other. It estimates that the number packed at the six leading cities and the principal interior points, up to February 21, at 5,758,000 pounds.

SENATOR BLAINE, it is reported, is using his influence to have the nomination of William A. Howard to be Governor of Montana Territory defeated, because Howard led the break at the Cincinnati Convention in 1876, which resulted in the defeat of Blaine.

AN exchange remarks that the Administration starts on the second year of its course with a rattling escort of enemies and a slim and discouraged following of friends. Its chief consolation would seem to be that the latter squad can't be much smaller.

THE Louisville Courier-Journae quotes thhe Athens Farm as saying that an "autographic letter from Gen. Grant to a distinguished Republican of Knoxville, saying that nothing could ever induce him to become a candidate for President again."

SENATOR JONES has introduced a bill to build United States buildings at Carson; also another, to establish certain post routes south of Eureka.

KEARNEY TO THE FORE.

Just at this particular time the grand Shacataw of the State, the big Tyee, the bully Bull lozer, the absolute Dictator for all parties, is Mr. Dennis Kearney—Lieutenant-General Kearney of San Francisco, President of the Workingmen's Party. Dennis says "Thumbs up!" and everybody, the big capitalist, the politician, the Democrat, the Republican, the Legislator, the hoodlum, the dead beat, the street loafer and everybody else in or out of his own great party that is to be puts up his thumb right away. "Toe the mark!" says Dennis, and every toe is up to the chalk instantly. Altogether the like was never seen in this State of California before, the way this Kearney takes people by their noses and trots them around. The Workingmen organizations in various parts of the State make a feeble demonstration now and then to dissuade Dennis from pulling them around in that sort of way, but it doesn't seem to cause him to relax his hold in the slightest degree. He believes in repudiation, but won't be repudiated, so people begin to think that Kearneyism and Workingmenism are pretty nearly identical—particularly since no Workingmen's club has da ed to openly repudiate their duly elected President and Lieutenant-General, this same Dennis Kearney. Such being the case, some people who happen to live out in the country beyond the reach of Dennis' fingers, therefore feeling freer to express an opinion, say that if there is any odium to attach to Dennis' high-handed operations, that odium is to be shared generally by the party of which he is the President and creator. Further, that if the openly avowed principles of this Dennis and his immediate followers receive even a quasi indorsement from the said Workingmen's party at large, that the said Workingmen's party is the most dangerous to our liberties, allowing it unrestrained power, of any ever organized in the Union. The conditions are not changed because it so happens that enrolled in the ranks of that party are hundreds and perhaps thousands as good citizens as the State possesses—as good so long as they are left free to do and act as their individual sense of right and justice dictates, but liable to become as bad and dangerous as the worst when they surrender their political independence to the dictations of such creatures as this Kearney, Wellock and other adventurers, who do not hesitate to threaten to hang any and every man who dares to think or act differently from themselves.

Here, a short time ago, a respectable, honest old man named Bones was elected State Senator on the Workingmen's ticket. This old Senator voted aye on a question to which this execrable ruffian Kearney was opposed. A large gathering of Workingmen then takes place, at which the fact is promulgated that Bones was elected on a "hemp platform;" therefore, if he did not resign forthwith his life would be the forfeit. This gathering made no bones in thus avowing their murderous principles and intentions. In short, there is nothing too atrocious for Kearney and his gang to openly advocate and undertake. And the worst feature of it all is that throughout the State, in deference to the possible future power of the so-called Workingmen's party, there is manifested a pusillanimous truckling to the mob spirit of Kearneyism. "What," said Dennis at a meeting in San Francisco the other night; "What will people in Washington think if we threaten 'hemp' and don't use it?" Now, in return we ask, What will people think of a political party which even tacitly admits Dennis Kearney as its leader and exponent? Isn't it about time sensible men were coming to their senses? Let the Workingmen's party openly and distinctly repudiate the Presidency, lieutenant-generalship and general leadership of this cutthroat communist Kearney, else openly avow themselves in favor of mob law and general robbery till there is an equal division of all property, both private and public.

ACCORDING to the treaty of San Stefano the evacuation of European Turkey, except Bulgaria, must be completed in three months after definite peace, and a portion of the Russian troops may embark on the Black Sea and the Sea of Marmora. Russia has thus assurred herself the right, or at any rate the possibility, of having a portion of her troops always around Constantinople until the final settlement is signed. The Russians have in the Bosphorus two regularly fitted torpedo ships, carrying six torpedo boats.

Complete returns from the New Hampshire election foot up as follows: Prescott, 39,337; McKean, 37,863; Kendall, 521; Flint, 223; scattering, 99. Prescott's plurality, 1,514; majority, 941. The House will stand Republicans, 205; Democrats, 165.

THE suit of D. Dalziel against the Enterprise—$50,000 damages claimed for slander—has been transferred to the United States District Court at Carson.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS.

A bill to authorize Postmasters to receive deposits, accompanied with a clause authorizing the issue of bonds for the deposits, when the several amounts reach as much as $10, has passed the Senate, and is likely to be favorably considered by the House. When the deposits accumulate to the sum of $10 they can be converted into a 3.65 government bonds, and when amounting to $50 into a 4 per cent. bond. These deposits are a kind of government loan, and are made constitutional by the section giving the Government power "to borrow money on the credit of the United States." The collapse of banks in England in 1860-61, and the public feeling of insincerity in banking institutions, caused the establishment of the English system of postal savings banks, from which the idea of the present plan is devised. The advantages of these postal savings banks are obvious, as they afford absolute security, with small interest on earnings, to all depositors, and they cannot materially affect legitimate banking business, for the reason that the highest rate of interest which the ordinary savings banks are enabled to offer in seasons of prosperity, and the advantages they present over the new banks, in the convenience with which deposits may be reclaimed, will attract to their vaults money which is liable to be wanted at any moment, but which its owner thinks may as well be increasing in his possession.

City Papers on Kearney.

The Alta, the Spirit of the Times and the Stock Report are the only city papers, so far as we have seen, that have the courage to speak of Kearneyism as they feel. Here is an extract from the first-named, which, in the word "truckle," gets at the whole secret of Kearney's unblushing effrontery—that is, why it is so tamely submitted to by free born citizens and property holders:

Perhaps the most humiliating thi g about Saturday's afternoon and evenning performances by Kearney's gang of hoodlums is the way in which most of the daily papers truckle to "Mr. Kearney." That the Chronicle should so shape its reports of the blatherskite's antics as to please the disreputable classes, is not to be wondered at; for it is well known that Kearney is a constant visitor at the Chronicle office, holds consultations there, and draws inspiration and epithets from those consultations. But that other papers, from the miserable fear of losing a few subscribers, should fawn upon this creature, is shameful. Let small office-hunters—in the Legislature, on the Bench, in the Police force, or elsewhere—seek to make capital with the Communist; but let respectable papers rise above this baseness.

PUBLIC feeling in St. Petersburg is represented as all one way in favor of hostilities against England. A telegram from there says that the Government seems to yielding to the popular clamor, and that there is reason to fear the worst. The British Government evidently fears the result of the present deadlock may be an armed collision. The fleet has been re-inforced, and everything prepared for instant action in case of necessity.

IT is said that England has no cause to go to war without first going to the Congress. If she does, she will have the disapprobation of Germany and Austria. If England compromises the Congress Andrassy's policy will be thwarted, and the hopes of an Anglo Austrian understanding must be abandoned. The Berlin Cabinet holds the same view.

THE nomenclature of Shasta towns is not classical. A correspondent writes to a contemporary: "The beauty of one stream is expressed by the choice name of Dog creek, another is Cow creek; while one of the prettiest towns in the county rejoices in the exhiliarating title of Whiskytown. Among the principal villages are also, Bullskin city, Muletown, Hogtown and Sour Kraut."

JOHN SMITH, JR., a witness in the Cheney investigation in Washington, testified thusly of political morality in New Hampshire: "Oh, it's fun up there in elections. We (the Democrats) buy when we've got the money, but we don't have much. We can't put our hands in the treasury, you know."

A DISPATCH from Vienna says: The deadlock between Russia and England is complete. Austria and Germany are altogether opposed to England's demand. Austria has been confidentially informed of the conditions of peace, and considers them on the whole moderate, and susceptible of further modification at the Congress.

THE most important scientific work of the century promises to be the fourteen volumes containing the results of the Challenger surveys and discoveries in the bed of the ocean, during its three and a half years' voyage over 69,000 miles of salt water.

THE News says the attempt to form a Workingmen's party at Gold Hill was a failure. The meeting was largely attended, but when signatures were called for only three men went forward.

Shall Bones be Hanged?

A singular spectacle was offered in the State Senate of California yesterday, when several hours were passed in debating the most extraordinary question of privilege probably ever submitted to a legislative body. Senator Bones of Alameda requested the protection of the Senate, and forwa ded to the Clerk's desk a letter calling upon him to resign, and threatening him with death if he refused. At the same time certain affidavits were read from persons living in Oakland to the effect that Mr. Bones had been heard to say that money had been offered him for his vote on two occasions. The gist of the debate that followed was that Mr. Bones had the confidence of the Senate, and that he did not deserve to be hanged. As the great Dennis Kearney has declared the whole Legislature to be composed of thieves and rogues, this evidence in Mr. Bones' behalf will, we fear, not be accepted as vindicating him by the Kearneyites. Nevertheless, we suppose his colleagues wished to do their best for him. At a time when the shadow of Kearneyism hangs over the State like a threatening thunder cloud, and when San Francisco cowers abjectly at the feet of the ineffable fraud, it is possibly not to be wondered at that the Senate also should behave with exemplary meekness, and that when one of its members is openly threatened with assassination, it should be content to confine itself to expostulation, and to expressing its opinion, in a moderate and conservative way, that after all perhaps it would be a little unreasonable and rash to hang the gentleman from Alameda. When public opinion is so demoralized that atrocious propositions like this are no longer regarded with indignation and amazement, but are treated as though they were perfectly admissible, and the only question concerning them was one of expediency, it is evident that the outrageous language so freely indulged during the past six months by the Kearneyites has had its effects. And it is, moreover, quite generally believed, even by those who are not given to hysterical weakness, that the threats made against Senator Bones represented a very real and pressing danger. We are not surprised at this. It is the legitimate outcome of Kearneyism. When that execrable ruffian declared that he was elected on the hemp platform, and that if he failed to keep his pledges he should be hanged, he committed himself and his followers to a definite programme, which they could not abandon without stultifying themselves. * * * * *

If we had not had the painful experience of the last few months we should be disposed to think that the first overt act of the Kearneyites would create a storm of indignation sufficient to sweep them off the face of the earth. But in these piping times it is necessary to be cautious and conservative, and especially to refrain from depending upon the public resistance to anarchy and outrage. As the case stands we are by no means certain that even the murder of Senator Bones would be followed by any serious protest. It is possible that a public meeting would be called to denounce it; but in that case no doubt Dennis Kearney would march in and take the chair, and it would end in the passage of resolutions declaring that "There is but one God and Kearney is his prophet." * * * * The people of California meantime look on supinely. Let them maintain that attitude of indifference, and it is quite possible that the languid curiosity will before long be rewarded by a novel sensation, and that when they do get their eyes open it may be too late to prevent the State from being disgraced.—Record-Union.

NO FUSION.—The Republican Legislative caucus was in session at Sacramento Wednesday evening. The object of the meeting was to consider the propriety of acting with the Democrats in electing members of the Constitutional Convention. After a stormy session it was decided that a coalition would be impolitic. Dr. May made a telling speech to the effect that the present Workingmen's agitation must necessarily increase the strength of the Republican party, and consequently weaken the Democrats. Sargent also urged this idea strongly, and this leading idea was put forward by others. The final decision was followed by a motion to adjourn sine die, which prevailed, thus doing away with the original proposition to hold a general caucus of the prominent members of the party on the 27th instant.—S. F. Stock Report.

ITS EFFECT.—The New York World devotes two columns to proving that music has a most salutary effect on insane people, and notes a number of cases of maniacs restored to reason by the proper application of harmonious sounds. But it only gives one side of the case. We know one piano in Eureka, under the energetic management of a young lady, that has driven five lodgers in the house to the verge of madness, and made the next door neighbor a gibbering idiot for life. It may be possible, however, that the sounds that she extracts from the instrument would not, by a competent judge, be pronounced music.—Sentinel.

THEY WILL DRINK.—Bodie is getting to be a tough place for old beats and bums. The latest dodge one of them played on a prominent saloon-keeper was to step into the saloon and sit down alongside the whisky barrels. As no one was looking he turn the faucet and let the whisky run into his boot-top. When he concluded he had about enough he shut off the flow, walked out, and in two minutes was seen behind some friendly shelter dividing with a friend.—Bodie Standard.

INITIATING A GREEN HAND.—The Watertown (N. Y.) Times tells this story: "A rather ludicrous sight was witnessed a while ago on the top of an incoming freight train. The conductor of the train had ordered a brakeman, a very green hand, to the head of the train, there to repeat all signals to the engineer, as given by him (the conductor) to the brakeman on the back of the train. The last brakeman was a comical genius so he determined to have some fun with 'greeny.' The first few signals necessary to the running of the train were all right, but soon the end brakeman commenced his fun. He lay down on the top of the car and rolled over. 'Greeny' on the other end of the train, thinking it was a signal, did likewise. The end brakeman's leg went up in the air, then the other leg went up, then both legs together, then a yell, then both legs commenced to kick, and a grand kicking match commenced. 'Greeny' took all this manœuvring of the end brakeman as signaling and repeated accordingly. Thus they were drawn into town, flat on their backs and kicking in the air."

SATURDAY, MARCH 30.....1878.

MUST BE STOPPED.—The Indians are having a grand old time up about the Post these days, being on a protracted drunk—bucks, squaws and all. As a matter of course, there is a good deal of Kearneyism being developed among them, so much so, indeed, that people find it advisable to barricade their doors of nights. It is, we are assured, quite well known where these irresponsible creatures get their liquor, and we are furthermore assured that that supply must be stopped or certain citizens will take the matter in hand and put a stop to it some way, this warning being made by request. These parties are anxious for all in their midst to gather in a due share of halves and quarters, when it can be done legitimately or without causing the community to live in a constant dread of outrage at the hands of the drunken aborigines from whom the halves and quarters come. As that happens to be the way it is now, they think they can't stand it much longer, if it can be helped by peaceable or lawful means.

UNDER WAY.—Work on the Mairs' building has been resumed in strong force, and has so far advanced that it will be inclosed in a few days. Next to the Court House it is the loftiest building in the place, and in comparison tends to dwarf those in the vicinity to quite a noticeable degree. It will require some weeks to give it the finishing touches alow and aloft, but it is intended to have the lower story ready for occupancy by the middle of the coming month. As has already been noted, C. & M. Cohn, of Lone Pine, have leased it for a general merchandising business, and expect to have a portion of their goods here by the 12th proximo.

MORE SNOW.—Though the weather in the valley has been pleasant enough for the past week, at several times the heavy clouds obscuring the mountains indicated the fall of more snow. The weather clerk seems to have determined upon replacing the vast deposits of snow and ice which, until during the two dry years just past, have lain in the abysses and cañons since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary. It is a scene not accorded to many countries—that of a valley enjoying balmy air and flourishing with early vegetation while the big mountains on either side are receiving a fall of snow, as was the case here this morning.

A TOUR.—Rev. Mr. Pratt since his last visit here has taken a tour up to Columbus, Belleville, Marietta, etc., in Nevada. He reports the first named as extremely dull, nothing going on, even the local newspaper, the Miner, being hung up; at Belleville one mill is running, with the general outlook encouraging. Prospects are good, too, at Marietta, though there are but few persons comparatively in the camp at present. By-the-way, what has become of the Belleville Times? We have never seen but two or three copies of it since it was first promulgated. Screw loose, somewhere, Mr. Times.

DEFIANCE.—We are favored with the following report of the first five days run of the Defiance furnaces, showing a rapid increase in the production of bullion and auguring a complete success, more especially as the mines have abundance of ore in in sight: March 18—12 bars, 1,275 pounds; 19—both furnaces, 232 bars, 12 tons 650 pounds; 20—257 bars, 13 tons 1,242 pounds; 21—260 bars, 13 tons 1,560 pounds; 22—270 bars, weighing 14 tons and 620 pounds. It is stated that the bullion assays as high as any ever produced in Darwin.

FOR BRIDGEPORT.—Esquires Reddy, Woods and Briggs took their departure this week for a trip on legal business at the county seat of Mono. Mr. Woods, goes on a tour of observation to Bodie, where Mr. Briggs proposes to make his home, pursuant to his long cherished intention. Mr. Bennett, as mentioned heretofore, will soon start for Bridgeport likewise to attend the District Court, which convenes there on the 12th proximo.

SCARCE. — Farming operations are somewhat retarded as yet on account of an insufficiency of water for irrigating, the snow on the mountains not having begun to melt enough to increase the water supply much beyond what it has been during the Winter. Otherwise the conditions for farming are more favorable than usual so early in the season.

THE ASSESSOR'S SALARY.—Some inquiry has been elicited concerning the nature of a bill which is now a law relating to the salary of the Inyo Assessor. In reply we will state that law merely designates the time (May and August) when the salary shall be ordered paid. The amount remains unchanged.

OUR MISTAKE.—It seems we were wrongly informed as to last Sunday being the regularly appointed day for preaching here by Rev. Mr. Pratt. Tomorrow and the following Sunday are the appointed days, and during which the regular services will be held.

SHUT DOWN.—Supt. Hutchings has shut down the Rex Montis mill, which has been running on tailings for a short time past, a step necessary to facilitate the work of the complete reconstruction of the mill in contemplation, and soon to be begun.

AT HOME.—County Clerk John Crough and family have finally got settled down to permanent housekeeping here, in which they have been delayed somewhat while their dwelling was undergoing repairs.

Board of Supervisors--Special Meeting.

The Board of Supervisors met Monday, March 25, pursuant to notice by advertisement, for the purpose of acting upon proposals for the surrender of Inyo 1872-92 bonds, and for the care of county indigent sick. Present—J. R. Westervill, J. L. Garretson and Charles Meysan, Chairman.

Wells, Fargo & Co., through their agents, Harris & Rhine, submitted the only proposal for the surrender of said bonds, which bid, at par and accrued interest, was accepted to the full amount of cash in the fund--$1,535 50, redeeming three $500 bonds.

In the matter of proposals for the care of indigent sick for the ensuing year, beginning May 1st, bids were received as follows:

Mrs. M. Lewis, at $1,950 for an average of four regular patients, and $1 30 per day for all in excess of that number.

Dr. P. G. Gelcich, at $3,600 for the four and $1 per day for the excess.

There being no other bids, that of Mrs. Lewis was accepted.

After allowing bills as follows for services and mileage of members, the Board adjourned until the next regular term in May:

THE ECLIPSE PROPERTY.— Pursuant to judgment rendered in favor of John Broder and others by the United States District Court some six weeks ago all the personal property under attachment belonging to the Eclipse company will be sold at Marshal's sale on the premises, next Monday, April 1st. The property consists principally of tools, steam fixtures, including an immense boiler, disconnected parts of machinery, truck, ropes and everything of that kind not in place, therefore not rated as real property. Also, by virtue of another execution from the same Court, and in favor of same, certain of the real property will be sold under the hammer in front of the Court House on the 27th proximo. For further particulars of this last see advertisement in this issue. United States Marshal A. W. Poole, a very pleasant gentleman, by the way, was here during the week looking after this business as duty required. To save unnecessary expense against the property the Marshal appointed V. G. Thompson as Deputy to conduct these sales, and started on his return to the City on Thursday. This doubtless ends the operations of this London company in this count , a probability we can contemplate but with the deepest regret, more especially as it is a firm conviction of nearly all who know the mine that, with proper management, it can be made to pay right along; not only that, but that with the absolutely stupid if not rascally managing of the property from first to last, save when Captain Eudey was in charge, a result similar to the present was one of the inevitables, even without the mischievous interference of outside parties; indeed, but for this latter there would have been a fair chance for the institution to have regained its legs again, even now, in which case, and assuming ordinary mule sense in the management, the abused stockholders would surely sooner or later have got back all of those thousands of pounds sterling they have worse than thrown into the sea as assessments upon the Eclipse mine. Then, too, other creditors, who can have now nothing whatever to hope for, would have gotten their rightful dues as well as those who hope to, and who should do so, through these enforced sales of costly property that must go for a song.

A SAD CASE.—Mrs. Joseph Harris, a lady connected by blood and marriage with some of our most prominent families, has become bereft of reason. Her insanity at the first, about a week ago, took a violent turn, and it became necessary to keep her most closely guarded by strong men to prevent her injuring herself or others. Within the last day or two, however, she has become less dangerous and the hope is offered that under proper care and treatment, and by a change of scene, she may eventually recover. Drs. Bicknell and Colleau have been summoned to hold an ex mination, and arrangements are being made to convey her below to an asylum. The unfortunate lady is the mother of five interesting children, whose sorrow can better be imagined than described.

SILVER PEAK.—Jake Shoemaker and Geo. McGovern returned here this week from a prospecting expedition eastward as far as Silver Peak. At that camp they found prospects good for prosperous times. The milling company are erecting a building in which to try the leaching process upon the rebellious ores of the district—a new plan for this section. The company employ about fifty men now, but expect to increase their force materially after the head men of the company, soon to arrive from New York, take a look at things. Pending their coming no payments of wages are made, consequently money is scarce enough there just now.

KEMP, the photographer, is making a decided success of his business, his work giving very general satisfaction. Besides, as before intimated, if parents will let their little ones alone while in his charge, he has a most happy faculty of gaining their complete attention, thus insuring good pictures of the restless little folks.

TO LET.—John Willett offers to lease his ranch property, situated some four miles south of town, for the present season at a most reasonable figure. There will be an abundance of water to insure crops for the present season, while some of the land does not need irrigation. See his advtrtisement.

ADVICES from Tiflis state that typhus is raging among the Russian troops in Asia. Generals Melikoff, Solowieff and Schelkoffnikoff are reported to have died. It is believed that more men have been lost by sickness since the cessation of hostilities than on the battle field during the war.

DARWIN ITEMS.—On the 7th instant H. Mathey, late Superintendent of the New Coso Mining Company, left this place with his family for San Francisco, going to Mohave, on the S. P. R. R., by private conveyance—the little job wagon of the company, with two horses and two fine mules attached thereto—the old driver "Scotty" accompanying him to bring the team back. They arrived at Mohave and Scotty returned to Cayote Holes with the team. For some reason he was induced to change his mind, and instead of making Darwin his objective point, he went back to Mohave where he sold the outfit, took the cars and went either north or south, it is not positively known which, but it is believed he went north on the cars. On the 14th a man was arrested in Los Angeles having the team in his possession.

At $45 per ton (the present rate to San Francisco) the freight on the bullion produced by the two 30-ton Defiance furnaces in the first 48 hours' run since starting up, amounts to $1,260. Of this amount the S. P. R. R. (if we are correctly informed as to their proportion) receives $700, and the Cerro Gordo Freighting Company receives $560.—News.

WHAT WE NEED.—The world needs true men. It needs them everywhere, and never more than to-day. It needs them in the pulpit, who prefer substance to show. It needs men at the bar, on the bench, and in legislative halls, who can say, without bravado, what a Revolutionary hero, tempted by British gold, is reported to have said: "I am poor, very poor, but poor as I am, the King of Great Britain is not rich enough to buy me." And surely we want honest, capable and Christian men in every sphere. We want them as physicians. We want them in our business circles. We want them to study the social problems of the time, as laymen can, and mould public sentiment in the right shape, without the prejudice that the public incurs in the attempt. It is indeed a great matter that a man discover the post where he can be most useful, but it is by no means less essential that he cherish in his soul the resolve to be useful, faithful, conscientious and true, whereever his lot is cast.

A DISPATCH from Victoria, B. C., undate of March 18, says: The Cariboo Quartz Company have reached rock that assays on average $100 to the ton. A great impetus has been given to business by the recent gold quartz discoveries. Building is being actively prosecuted and real estate is in request at advanced rates.

DOBBINS' "Electric Soap."

HAVING OBTAINED THE AGENCY OF THIS celebrated Soap for Lone Pine and vicinity, we append the opinion of some of our best people as to its merits:

"I have used 'Dobbins' Electric Soap,' made by I. L. Cragin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and can most cheerfully recommend it as the best Laundry Soap in existence." Mrs. F. P. HALL.

"Family washing is rendered both pleasant and agreeable by the use of 'Dobbins' Electric Soap.' Boiling the clothes is entirely unnecessary, and but very little rubbing is needed. It promises wonders, but it does all it promises." Mrs. JNO W. GASPER.

We desire all our friends and customers to give this Soap one trial, so that they may know just how good the best soap in the United States is.

The Cause of Poverty—The Value of Money.

So much of success depends upon property that the life would be badly planned which should bestow no wisdom upon the accumulation of property. All the good things of earth represent toil. The books of the thinker, the poet, the works of the artist, the dwelling house, the contents, the food for the table, the pillow for the head, all these shapes of things come out of labor, and hence will not be given us; they must be bought. Money, hence, stands for all the blessed things of this world, and is only the medium by which we exchange the toil of self for the toil of others. I work a day and with the money buy a Shakespeare. Thus my work has bought a fragment of other toil better than my own. By as much, therefore as money is exhausted on mere pleasure, upon the gratification of vanity or transient appetite, it is applied at the dictation of folly. Wisdom of industry, that is to toil and barter toil for the valuable toil of others, is one of the first shapes that wise-mindedness can assume.

According to an almost endless number of facts gathered some years ago by an English writer, success in property does not follow high wages, but rather follows the wisdom of the toiler. It was found that just as soon as any class of English laborers quit the dram shop and began to spend their earnings in purchasing permanent good, their huts turned into houses, their rags into clothing, their wives into beauties and their children into cherubs. In villages where dram shops had for generations received the Saturday wages of the men for the week, and where every old gig and wagon had generally been engaged for two or three weeks ahead by young men who were going to have ten shillings to spend in a boisterous drive, became wholly reformed not by an advance in wages, but by a sudden advance in human wisdom.

The folly which thus wrought ruin in the British Islands is steadily working ruin in our better country. The dram shop and the gig are repeated here under the more euphonious name of the times, and salaries which far surpass all foreign pay for labor are utterly consumed by a folly equally enlarged. Should wisdom advance into this continent, called property, and dethrone the usurper folly, our young men would be amazed to see what a world would spring up from such a dynasty. But under our present system the purchasing power of money is thrown away, and men who should be laying the foundations of home with all its happiness of companionship and a sweet consciousness, are like the Indian drawing happiness from ornaments of display, not far removed from the feathers and vermilion of the red man. What solidity, what comfort of property might not the next fifteen years give to the middle and last years of life that lie just beyond. There is no reprobation i property any more than in religion. There are none who are foreordained to be lost in the gulf of poverty. We all make the descent by the help of our personal sins. All salvation is offered to all. God's laws are all general. His kingdom is grace.

The second large shape of wisdom was said to be that of thought. It is said that an hour a day of reading will transform a youth into a philosopher. Be this as it may, to have fifty years of life before one in a world teeming now with the mighty record of itself, the record of its science, its poetry, its art, its literature, its politics, and its religion is a situation worthy the envy of an angel. To rise above the dram of the drunkard, the feast of the glutton and the bondage to effeminate fashions, and find happiness in mental worth and stores, is an opportunity offered to man only once, and that when he is young.

It is painful to think of, that nature never twice offers any good to us. She comes once with youth, once with buoyancy, once with romance, once with hope, but having once offered them she never comes back. When her great massive doors open once—doors grander than those of temple or palace, equalled only by the everlasting doors of scripture—they close never to swing on their hinges again for us. The schoolhouse, the home, the years of enthusiasm come but once in all this long pilgrimage.

But thought is not simply the acquisition of truth. It is more a building up of wise principles and that young man should become wise minded so broad as to know the meaning not only of goods and prices, but to know the meaning of state and church, and pleasure and schoolhouse, and work and rest—those mighty words from the dictionary of life—is the most sacred form of thought.—Prof. Swing.

BEAUTIFUL WOMEN.—One thing may be particularly noticed in English women. The mouth, when beautiful, is absolutely statesque. The curves are decided, and at the juncture of the red of the lips with the white, there is a delicately raised outline which marks the form of the feature in a very noble way. This may also be said of the nostril. It gives a chiseled effect to these features, which is not so often found elsewhere; but the nose itself, the brow and the set and carriage of the head are generally finer among Americans. In both countries, however, the head is apt to be too large for perfect proportion. This is a characteristic defect of the English type of beauty. Then again the articulations are heavy. Fine arms are rare but fine wrists are still rarer. Such a wrist as the Viennoise women have are almost unknown among women of English race in either country. It is often said, even in England, that American women have more beautiful feet than English women. This may be doubted. The feet may be smaller, but they look smaller because English women wear larger and heavier shoes.—Ex.

WE can safely assert that the mines of North Georgia in five years will yield as much gold as those of California ever did. What more does a man want than to pick up nuggets worth forty or fifty dollars? Only last year a party of road hands working the public road near Dahlonega dug up a plug of gold as large as a man's thumb. A countryman hauled a load of cabbage forty miles to this city from Dawson county during this Winter, and had in his pocket along with his tobacco and knife two pieces of gold that could not have been worth less than $25. He was just as careless with them as if they had been a couple of buckeyes he was carrying to cure the rheumatism. We said to him: "Is there much of this kind of gold in your country?" "Yes," says he, "but you have to dig for it." "Then why do you raise cabbages and sell them so far?" He replied, "Well, you see, stranger, I have to bring my wagon down to Atlanta to carry back salt and iron and a few dry goods for the old lady, and cabbage is about as light a load as I can haul. I generally dig gold when my crop fails."—Atlanta Constitution.

COLD FEET.—The feet should be washed in tepid water every day or two but not in water so hot as to make them tender. Including the bath, dip them into quite cold water, which closes the pores naturally, and then wipe and rub them entirely dry and warm them. No business at the desk, counter or bench—no domestic task or conventional circumstance is of so grave importance as to warm one's feet when they are cold. You can't afford the hazard to health incurred by indifference to the discomfort nature is giving you as a premonition of danger. Keep feet dry. If by accident you wet you feet, don't be foolish and sit still until the death damp steals your vitals. Exercise common sense and remove the wet stockings. If chilly take a warm foot bath, ending with the cold dip and rubbing dry. If, in a judicious way, people would wet their feet oftener—clean up to their ears—it would be better for their health.—Ex.

"CATS can't live at a greater elevation than 13,000 feet above the level of the sea;" but if a wood shed was built at an elevation of 14,000 feet above the level of the sea, and a few families lived that high in the vicinity, it is pretty certain that cats would get on top of that shed to howl, or perish in the attempt.

A LITTLE fellow being told by a young man to get off his knee, that he was too heavy to hold in that way, made quite a sensation among the persons present by yelling back, "Too heavy, hey? Sister Sal weighs a hundred pounds more than I, and you held her on your knee for four hours last night!"

IF there is anything that will make the old man think that a sharper's tooth bites worse than a serpent's child, it is to have his daughter beat him out of a dollar to frame and glaze a "Welcome Home," and then lay it on a parlor chair, where he sits down on it in the dark.

"MA!" screamed young Matilda Soilkins the other morning, when she got the paper, "Ma, Silver Bill has just passed the House. "Has he, my dear?" replied Mrs. S. from up stairs. "Why didn't you ask him in?"

IT turns out that a man in Michigan "who lived forty days on water," had plenty of provisions in the boat all the while he was around the lake.

The Ultima Thule.

As it is, even now the phonograph will meet the most sanguine anticipations of any one that hears it. The first model that was ever brought to our notice certainly talked, that is, it produced sounds, the timbre of which was unquestionably that of the human voice; but, as we said at the time, it required some previous knowledge to distinguish what was said. The speech was the lispings of infancy. At present previous explanation is wholly needless. The machine repeats the voice with perfect articulation and with every inflection, so that the tones may be recognized as those of the speaker who made them.

Through the courtesy of Mr. W. S. Applebaugh, who has charge of the apparatus now on exhibition in this city, we have been enabled to make as thorough an examination of all its peculiarities as we could desire. At our request the exhibitor sang into the machine an entire verse, and it was repeated as often as the cylinder was readjusted. Sounds of coughing, clearing the throat, knocks, noises of all kinds, were as accurately produced. A curious effect is produced by whistling, the apparatus giving forth every note clearly and fully; but more remarkable still is it to hear two voices at once come from the machine. The exhibitor first sang a verse which was registered, and then running the cylinder back talked so that the indentations produced by the speech vibrations came over those made by the song. The instruments repeated both utterances simultaneously, each, however, being clearly distinguishable. Another odd performance is turning the cylinder the wrong way, and making the machine talk the language backward.

The only means now used for magnifying the sound as it is emitted is a funnel shaped resonator, attached to the speaking orifice. Mr. Edison, however, is busily experimenting on some adaptation of compressed air, by which the sound waves, he thinks, may be intensified. He says that he can in time make the machine talk so loudly that it can be used on vessels to warn off other ships during fogs, and his last astonishing proposal is that he shall construct a huge phonograph to go in the great bronze statue of Liberty, which is to be erected in New York harbor, so that the metal giant can make a speech audible over the entire bay. In view of what Mr. Edison has already accomplished, his success in this respect would not surprise us.

AN exchange thus describes the treatment which the advent of the new silver dollar received on Wall street. The scene in Wall street yesterday, during the disbursement of the first installment of the new dollar, was exceedingly lively. Everybody hated it, and everybody bought it. The poor despised thing was laughed at, ridiculed, anathemized, and then deliberately immolated at Delmonico's bar, to purchase refreshment for throats that had grown dry and husky with reviling it. No foundling laid at a crusty bachelor's door was ever so showered with bitterness of speech, and yet the female on the dollar proved that she was a better woman than Dr. Mary Walker would have been in her place.

Platt's Hall gag law must not be interfered with, while legislative gag law must be hounded and cried away with. Let us be consistent friends. Do unto others as you would be done by.

ON THE SCHOOL QUESTION.

We are in receipt of a neatly printed book of some 200 pages, Zack Montgomery author and editor, reviewing our public school system, and, it is needless to add, from the well known views of the talented author, exposing the objectionable points in detail. The purport of the work may be inferred from the title page, which reads as follows: "The Poison Fountain, or Anti-Parental Education. Essays and discussions on the school question from a parental and non-sectarian standpoint, wherein the decline of parental authority, the downfall of family government, and the terrible growth of crime, pauperism, insanity and suicides in America are traced directly and inmistakably to our anti-parental school system." The work can be had by forwarding $1 50 to the author at Oakland, California. The work is one that touches upon a subject in which we feel a very deep interest; it attacks a system of which we have always been an ardent supporter. Nevertheless, we look upon this book as one that may be read with profit by all not bigoted in the belief that perfection has been reached in our present methods of education under State laws.

From a mere cursory examination of the book we find much in sentiment as well as considerable in assumed facts to which we dissent in toto, but until time and opportunities permit a more thorough examination we shall make no effort at a review or answer to any of the statement presented, or expression of opinion as to the merits or demerits of Mr. Montgomery's proposed changes in our school laws or school system.

GOLD AND SILVER BULLION CERTIFICATES.

Stephens, Chairman of the Committee on Coinage, has reported a bill to amend the laws on the subject of coinage, to perfect a double metallic standard, to provide for issuing gold and silver bullion certificates, and to retire certain silver coins now in use. Ordered printed and recommitted.

The first section provides that the coinage of gold and silver bullion shall be on an equal footing, and on the same terms and conditions. The second section requires the Secretary of the Treasury to receive on deposit silver bullion when offered, and have it assayed and put in suitable bars, properly stamped, and issue certificates therefor, just as certificates are now issued for gold bullion and gold and silver coin. Such certificates are to indicate and represent the value of bullion so deposited in standard silver dollars of 412½ grains, and are to have the same force and effect as other coin certificates, and be alike receivable in payment of all public dues; and bullion so deposited is to be retained in the treasury for payment of certificates—the depositors to pay the expense of assaying and stamping bullion and of its coinage. The Secretary of the Treasury is to have the right of converting such bullio n into standard silver dollars, and to take up such certificates in coin or in bullion at his option.

The third section prohibits the further coinage of twenty cent, five cent and three cent silver pieces.

The fourth section makes fractional or subsidiary coin a legal tender to the amount of $20, and authorizes its redemption at the Treasury in legal tender money when presented in sums of $100 or over.

The fifth section authorizes a continuance of the coinage of trade dollars exclusively for foreign trade, but limits the amount to $750,000 per month.

TILDEN'S INCOME.—A New York dispatch dated March 26, says: "Judge Blatchford, of the United States District Court, gave a decision to-day in the suit of the United States against ex-Gov. Sam'l J. Tilden, to recover some $150,000 income tax alleged to be due the Government by the defendant. Counsel for Mr. Tilden set up demurrer and the case was argued at great length. He sustains the defendant's demurrer to the first count in the complaint. On the other eleven counts he sustains plaintiff, the United States, in their demurrer in answer to the defense, holding that the Government was not bound by the action of the United States Assessor as its agent, and that Tilden was required himself to return his income, which he had not done. The case is now to proceed to trial by jury on a question as to the amount of income of Tilden during the years in which he made no returns. In three years Tilden allowed the United States Assessor to make return, and paid tax on such return, together with penalty of five per cent. This, the Court holds, was not sufficient, as will be seen by the decision above."

THE STATE UNIVERSITY.

At a meeting of the Alumni Association of the University of California, held on January 25th, Arthur Rodgers, of the class of '72, Frank S. Sutton, class of '75, and Ed. A. Parker, class of '74, were appointed a committee to report on the practical character of the instruction given and the benefits conferred by the University. The report is quite lengthy, and contains much to interest such of our young people as may be contemplating a career at the University, as well as all watching it as a State institution. To all such the following, taken from the report, will be of value:

The University is located at Berkeley, Alameda county. It was organized in 1869. It has now six colleges established: Agriculture, Mechanical Arts, Mining, Chemistry, Civil Engineering and Letters—the last being divided into two courses designated the Classical course and the Literary course. A Law Department is also in course of establishment. It has a faculty of fifteen professors (three honorary), sixteen instructors and five assistants—thirty-six in all. Besides it has also adopted a Medical Department and affiliated a College of Pharmacy, both of which are in a flourishing condition.

Students not desiring to take a regular course may take special studies, or a special course for which they may be prepared.

The time required to complete the regular course in each college is four years, but during the first two years there is no material distinction between the different colleges. The students recite together and attend the lectures without much regard to the college whose degree they may choose. Thus all the students are brought in contact with each other, and under the influence and stimulus of all the professors. Each college has the benefit of instruction by almost all the professors of the University.

The University library numbers over 14,000 volumes. The museums of Archæology, Ethnology, Zoölogy, Botany, Geology and Mineralogy, and a General Collection have all been accumulated. A valuable collection of Civil Engineering and Surveying instruments has also been made. The cabinet of philosophical apparatus is very complete. The chemical laboratories are the best arranged and most complete of any in the United States. Provisions for the Observatory has been made. By the munificence of Mr. James Lick $700,000 has been set apart for that purpose. In 1870 there were 78 students. There are now 320, exclusive of the professional colleges referred to. Its graduates number 150.

There are no dormitories connected with the University, and students are under the direct supervision of the Faculty except during recitation hours. Of course, any breach of good conduct is attended to when brought before the Faculty. Those students having homes in Berkeley, Oakland and San Francisco for the most part live at home. Some families have removed to Berkeley or Oakland from other parts of the State, that their sons might enjoy the advantages of the University. Many of the students live in private families in Berkeley or Oakland at a cost of from $25 to $30 per month, not including washing. About forty-five live in club houses in close proximity to the University. Two of these houses are operated by college societies; one of them, including lot and building, is owned by one of the societies. The monthly expenses range from $26 to $35 for each student. Other students hire rooms at an expense of $5 or $6 per month, and club together for meals, hiring an apartment and a cook at a total cost to each individual of about $17 per month. Others hire rooms, and clubbing together do their own cooking, thereby reducing their monthly expenses to about $12. A club of ten young ladies have a house in close proximity to one of the professors; have a woman to look after the house and the cooking, and live very comfortably on an individual expenditure of $17 per month.

Whenever the grading of the grounds is in progress the students can earn fair wages. Those of the College of Agriculture can eventually find work in connection with instruction in agriculture and horticulture. A printing office has been established, in which a few students can find employment.

A YOUNG man named Powell, 18 years of age, came to his death at Cross Creek, Tulare county, on the 30th ult., while stealing a ride on the train to San Francisco. He was holding on to the brake rod under the coach, from which he was thrown by a jolt of the train, falling under the wheels.

HANGED.—On the 25th ultimo the three condemned Molly Maguires were executed at Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania. There were no disturbances or attempt at rescue. The condemned men were respectively named McHugh, Hester and Tully.

"REFORM."

Whenever an individual begins to think of retrenching personal expenses nowadays, nine chances to one he orders the discontinuance of his home paper, so that for a saving of five dollars per annum his family can go without the local country news, while he steals the reading thereof from some more sensible neighbor. When the State suddenly discovers that some country newspapers have been benefitted by advertising certain orders and actions of the Probate Courts it immediately enacts that nothing of the kind shall be published any more, except a mere "Notice to Creditors" in each estate administered upon. In the Legislature just closed—thanks to the State Constitution—some reformers of this class attempted to enact that no mining advertisements should be necessary except in San Francisco, or where the principal office of the mining company was located—with the idea to hog everything for newspaper monopolists there, same as they let the railroad hog the State. When a country proposes to retrench and reduce taxes, the method generally adopted is, if possible, to get the local printing office to reduce its rates for advertising and job work, although it may have been doing such work for precisely the same figures as charged individuals, and their receiving pay in warrants worth only ninety cents on the dollar, and after waiting three months at that. And now comes the general Government. Having discontinued advertising for mail contracts, by private intructions to postmasters it gets all such matters mentioned "as a matter of news," through the local journals. And the Treasury Department, Internal Revenue, comes to the front with a proposition that one paper in each county in each collection district, shall publish a certain notice four times, on certain and specified dates, for the sum of $2—being about one-fith of regular rates.

U. S. INTERNAL REVENUE,
Office of H. L. Childs, Dep'y Col'r,
Eighth Division, First Dis't, Cal.,
Bishop Creek, April 1, 1878.

Chalfant & Parker—GENTS: When in the course of inhuman events, this glorious dispenser of individual rights and silver coin magnanimously takes a notion to advertise, it behooves the wise and good policy of the administration to set its own figures.

Considering the above facts, you can insert the inclosed advertisement four times for $2, and wait ten years for your money, or formally refuse me, and advise the Government to go to h—l, where fuel and advertising are cheap.

Yours, truly, H. L. CHILDS.

OFFICE OF THE INYO INDEPENDENT,
Independence, Inyo Co., Cal.,
April 4, 1878.

Green B. Raum, Commissioner Internal Revenue, Washington, D. C.—DEAR SIR: In reply to the accompanying letter and circular inclosed, submitting an order for advertisement of Internal Revenue notice, you are respectfully informed that this paper declines the work at the figures set, and, in accordance with the plan suggested the Government is requested to proceed to that undiscovered country, the existence of which Mr. Beecher has such grave doubts.

Very truly yours,
CHALFANT & PARKER.

MEETING OF THE STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION.—Pursuant to a call of the Secretary, the State Board of Education met in Sacramento, March 28. After conferring life diplomas upon a large list of applicants, whose names are given in the Record-Union of March 30, Superintendent Landes introduced the following resolutions, which were adopted; and the chairman was requested to confer with the Attorney General to see if they were in conflict with the Tuttle bill:

Resolved, That Robinson's Progressive Primary Arithmetic, Robinson's Rudiments of Arithmetic, Monteith's Introduction to Monteith's and Brown's First Lines be stricken out of the list of text books prescribed for use in the public schools.

Resolved, That pupils be not required to study physiology or philosophy from text books in any grade lower than the high school.

Resolved, That pupils be not required to study drawing from text books, and that teachers be required to teach this branch orally and with the use of the blackboard.

Resolved, That the course of studies be so modified as to conform with the foregoing resolutions.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to the Attorney General with this interrogatory: Has the State Board of Education power under the Tuttle bill passed at the last meeting of the Legislature to enforce the foregoing resolutions?

ROLLING MILLS AT MARE ISLAND. The Secretary of the Navy informed Senator Sargent on the 22d ult. that he had definitely concluded to establish a rolling mill at Mare Island Navy Yard, to utilize the scrap iron about the Yard, of which there are several thousand tons capable of being converted into excellent bar iron, etc. Secretary Thompson intends to devote to this purpose a portion of the funds provided by the General Appropriation bill which passed the House the day previous. He expects, however, that Congress will make a special grant this session of $3,000,000, to be expended for the permanent improvement of the navy in the construction of new ships.

ALL STAND IN.

The matter of stocking Owens River with catfish and perch has been in contemplation for a long time. Not a citizen in the valley but says it ought to done; not one but is willing to contribute something for the purpose "if some one will only take hold and go ahead with the work." Now, we are glad to say, the proposition is assuming a tangible, business shape, and the work can be perfected by the proper time—the first of June next—if our people generally will stand in to the extent of four bits or a dollar each. We know of many perfectly willing to stand in to the extent of ten or twenty times the last named amount, but as the benefits to accrue will be universal, the subscriptions ought to be gotten up on the popular plan of everybody contributing a little. It is almost needless to attempt to portray the advantages, pecuniary and otherwise, to follow from having the river and all our streams full stocked with fish. It is a patent fact that Owens river, probably above any other stream in the State, is peculiarly well adapted to the propagation of catfish, and no less so for the perch. As Kern and other streams on the other side, stocked but three years ago, are producing hundreds of catfish weighing from ten up to twenty-five pounds each, it is perfectly safe to assume that Owens river well stocked this Spring will in from three to five years produce thousands of similar ones, the pecuniary value of which, as food for the community at large and through attraction of visitors from the mining towns, is important of itself, to say nothing of the pastime thus furnished for ourselves and future generations. We have repeatedly alluded to the most perfect success attendant upon stocking the little mountain streams in this portion of the valley, which but for the unconscionable depredations of merciless sheepherders last year, would now be fairly alive with as fine trout as swims. However, under the plan to be carried out, these creeks will furnish an abundance for the complete stocking of every stream from Olanche to Round Valley, this part of the work involving the smallest proportion of expense. But the main idea is to get catfish and perch from Kern and "plant" them in the river and all the sloughs. Mr. T. F. A. Connelly has been carefully studying up the question, and proposes, if his expenses, amounting to $500, are guarteed, to construct a tank upon his wagon and essay the bringing up of three or four hundred fish. The work would occupy men and team for upwards of a month, and as in the event of a possible failure he would receive nothing, the sum named is small and ought to be raised at once. We have little faith in any practical aid from the Fishery Commission, and the work will have to be taken in hand by our own citizens.

As will be seen below, certain citizens throughout the valley are named and are earnestly requested to use their personal influence and best endeavors to secure a small contribution from each and all of their neighbors for the purposes here named. Subscription forms will be furnished, and every contributor should have his name placed thereon, so that the amounts can be refunded by the local committee in case of a barely possible failure to finally accomplish the work as proposed. Following are the names of those proposed to act in the matter, and it is to be hoped that they will immediately proceed to business and promptly report progress to this office:

Round Valley — Thos. E. Jones, David Olds.

Bishop Creek—J. L. Bourland, John Dugan, J. L. Garretson, H. L. Childs.

A COMPLAINT filed in the Third District Court Friday by the Wells, Fargo Mining Company against the Coso Consolidated Company, O. H. Bogart and W. F. Bogart, sets forth that on the 7th of last January O. H. Bogart, as Secretary and President or the Wells, Fargo Company, executed a note to his son, W. F. Bogart, for $4,000, payable in three months, at two per cent. per month interest, giving as security a mortgage on the Company's mining ground; that at the time O. H. Bogart was owing the Coso Company about $4,000, and the note and mortgage was turned over to the latter company for the purpose of settling his personal indebtedness; that W. N. Bogart had no interest in the note and mortgage, and that his name was only used to make the transaction appear bona fide. He assigned the papers to the Coso Company and delivered them to his father, who was Secretary of the latter Company. A decree is asked that the note and mortgage be declared void as against the Wells, Fargo Company, and that an injunction be issued against the Coso Company negotiating the same. —*S. F. EXPLOSION IN A SMELTING FURNACE. About half past 7 o'clock last evening, as the wheelers were removing the slag pot from furnace No. 2 at the Richmond works, it slipped, and falling against the iron pot, upset it, causing a fearful explosion, and throwing the molten metal in every direction. A half a dozen men were standing in the immediate vicinity, and some of them were thrown a distance of thirty feet, but all escaped without serious injury, except a slag-wheeler by the name of Kennedy, he being frightfully burned about the face, head and neck. He was brought down to Dr. Bishop's office, and on examination it was found that his face, besides being badly burned, was also filled with gravel stones, imbedded by the force of the blew-up. His eyes were somewhat injured, but the Doctor thinks he will not lose his sight. His injuries were dressed and he was taken to the Turner House, where he was resting last night as comfortably as could be expected. —Eureka Sentinel, March 24.

FISHY.—A Maine schooner while fishing off the banks of New Foundland, with some two hundred yards of cable out and sails clewed, was suddenly found to be under headway. It was soon discovered that a huge whale of the finback species had got his tail entangled in the cable and was hauling the craft at the rate of fifteen knots an hour, and growing more and more excited was keeping his course to the sea. The whale finally tore away by breaking the cable.

A CORRESPONDENT of the California Farmer says: One bushel of sugar beets properly raised and pressed, will yield five gallons of juice, which, treated the same as cider is, will make a strong vinegar, of as good but different flavor; and in making cider nine bushels of apples and one of sugar beets will make a cider superior to apples alone.

THE PUBLIC SOLD AGAIN.—Hart's Assembly railroad bill passed in the Senate yesterday by more than a three-fourths vote after precisely such amendments as its best friends could have wished. It was said in the debate that the bill was one "for the protection of railway corporations," and there is hardly a doubt that it was prepared by railway officials. It abolishes the existing commission, substituting one to be appointed by the Governor, but with no powers whatever to correct any abuses or restrict any extortions by railway corporations. All he can do is to investigate and report to the Governor, with a view to what it calls "an amicable adjustment of differences." In short, it in every essential gives the turkey to the railroad and the buzzard to the people. It is worthy a passing notice that Senator Bones of the Workingmen's party in Alameda, voted throughout with the majority and against the interests of the producing classes. Owing to its amendments in the Senate, it will have to go back to the Assembly; but there is no doubt of its passage there, and the only hope of defeat is that the Governor will pocket it. The indications are that both Houses stand ready to pass it over the veto should that obstruction be interposed.—S. F. Chronicle.

OUR country is overrun with organizations, which is a burden upon the people almost unbearable: as every organization is attended with more or less expense upon each individual member. Self protection and custom makes it necessary for everybody to become a member of one or more of the many organizations. To say nothing of churches, every conceivable charitable enterprise has its organzations. Every trade from the hod carrier and the dray driver, to the master builder and scientist has its distinctive organizations with constitutions and rules to regulate it. Dealers in the different articles of commerce have formed unions; public carriers have formed combinations; the farmers have their granges, and the workingmen their organizations. Added to these, on the American continent every nationality has its distinctive organization.

TOLERABLY WELL OFF, ANYHOW.—The parties who are fighting over Vanderbilt's will claim, on one side, that he was worth $100,000,000, while on the other it is admitted that his fortune is over $60,000,000. His actual wealth, therefore, is probably between these two extremes. There is a fine field for the lawyers, and it is to be hoped that the heirs, including Cornelius, will also realize enough to keep the wolf from the door.

Now that the telephone makes it possible for sounds to be canned the same as milk, beef, lobster, fruit, etc., missionary sermons can be bottled and sent to the South Sea Islands ready for the table, instead of the missionary himself. —Chicago Journal.

SATURDAY, APRIL 6.....1878.

One More Killing.

This time it is Cerro Gordo that comes to the front with the periodical homicide, the almost regular recurrence of such acts having already attained for Inyo county an unenviable reputation. Following upon the heels of such scenes as were recently enacted at Lone Pine, where the populace in sheer desperation so signally avenged the murder of the Sheriff, it indeed speaks well for the law abiding people of Cerro Gordo that better counsel prevailed, and the slayer in this instance was not lynched, of which at one time he was in imminent danger.

About half past 6 o'clock on the night of April 2d, at the Union Hotel, while quite a number of men were in the bar or sitting room, Martin Adams in a joking manner asked some one to the bar to take something, and asked for some whisky himself. John Anderson, an employé of the house, said he would give him some whisky—reached behind the counter for a six-shooter, and placing the muzzle in Adams face fired and killed him instantly.

A Cerro Gordo letter elsewhere gives a description of the character of the deceased and the esteem in which he was held there. Anderson is a Swede, about 28 years of age, and has by no means the appearance of a murderer. He claims that the deceased and all present knew that there was no whisky behind the bar; that it was the result of "skylarking," and an accident, having no motive for harming the deceased; but it was certainly a most stupid accident. Two pistols were behind the bar, one of them without a cylinder; but is stated that Anderson reached three feet from the empty one and took the loaded one from the nail on which it was hanging.

Anderson was immediately arrested by Deputy Sheriff Mintser, and upon examination before Justice S. B. Bowen on the following day was held for murder, and the next day was lodged in the County Jail here.

Anderson states that he is without means to employ counsel, and in reply to a question by an INYO representative this morning admitted that about three months ago he had snapped a loaded pistol three times in the face of his employer, and that it would now go rough with him on that account.

TO BE HEARD.—The case of the Union Con. Mining Company vs. Thomas Passmore, Tax Collector, comes up for a hearing before the Supreme Court, April 19. The points and authorities by Messrs. Reddy & Conklin, attorneys for the respondent, have just been printed at this office. We shall hazard no opinion as to the result other than to say the issue involved is of considerable importance to the financial welfare of Inyo, and that our local attorneys have to contend with an adversary of no mean pretensions as a lawyer, being Ben. Brooks, whose attendance here in the trial of the Union-San Felipe suit will be remembered by those interested. At that time he was "fornenst" his present client, with Mr. Reddy as one of the counsel for the latter, being the reverse of present conditions.

THE HOSPITAL.—Having occasion to visit the County Hospital recently we took the opportunity to look through the wards, and must say everything looked neat, pleasant and comfortable so much so, indeed, as to make one almost feel it would be a pleasure to be crippled enough to be sent there for a period of rest and recuperation. In truth, no pleasanter location for such an institution can be found anywhere than this at Camp Independence; and we believe, too, that with Mrs. M. Lewis as Matron and Dr. Bicknell as physician none are in better hands. At present, so far as we observed, there are but three patients in the hospital, all chronic cases, and these all seem to be doing quite well.

A GOOD OPPORTUNITY.—Mr. E. Chenot, at the Camp Independrnce store, is desirous of closing out his business there, and offers his complete stock and good will together, at very reasonable rates. And in any event will hereafter sell goods with the view of closing out, at lower prices than such ever sold for before in this part of the country. His offer is worth the attention of anyone wishing to invest a small amount of capital in a country store. See advertisement.

NEW AGENTS. — Hereafter the Big Pine agency of THE INDEPENDET will rest in the hands of Mr. L. Wick, who once did the same duty over at Lida, when that country was flourishing. At Olanche, Mr. Wm. Walker has kindly consented to represent the institution. Our agents receive all orders and cash from patrons in their respective localities, thus facilitating business generally.

ESTATES.—The Appraiser's valuation of the estate of the late Sheriff Passmore fixed the real and personal property at $7,500; that of Frank Dabeeny at $725. Among the items of the latter's effects is quite a variety of murderous looking pitols, kept on hands for regular use while his infamous den was flourishing.

TWO QUESTIONS OF THE DAY.—Down at the Bay, with the Fog Snifters, the question is: "Shall Bones be hung?" Here, quite locally, the problem is: "Is the new gal baby really red headed?"

LEFT US.—Uncle Abe Parker left us for an indefinite stay on the other side on Monday last. He will probably hold forth at Knight's Ferry for a few months, after that, quien sabe?

MRS. JOS. HARRIS.—Saturday last a formal inquiry was held by Drs. Colleau and Bicknell to dertermine Mrs. Jos. Harris' mental condition, resulting in a verdict of absolute insanity. It was further decided that the best if not the only hope of restoration lay in a change of scene. On the following day Mr. Harris started with the unfortunate lady for San Francisco. She will be kept there among friends until restored to reason, or till it becomes evident no improvement can be hoped for in that way, in which case she will, per force, have to be sent to the asylum at Stockton. The grief-stricken children remain with Mr. Isaac Harris' family.

GOING.—Kemp, the photographer, will remain in town but one week more, going from here to Lone Pine. So all who intend getting pictures should be about it. He has been kept busy up to the present, as his work advertises itself, and all his pictures are good

NEW LIVERY MAN.—Receiver Tom. May has leased the Bennett Livery Stable, as will be noted by the advertisement elsewhere. He is an old hand at the business, and will doubtless make a success of it.

THE Darwin News says our senior daughter treat all the boys. His inherent temperance principles inhibit that kind of business, as he never drinks—unless asked, and then he won't, so he says.

PREACHING.—There will be preaching in the school house, beginning at half past 7, to-morrow evening.

DARWIN ITEMS.— The two Defiance furnaces have been running without interruption for the past week, and turning out bullion at the same average rate. Ore continues to arrive daily from the mine, and there is an excellent prospect for a long and successful run.

It is reported that important developments have been made in the Modoc Company's mines, and from what we saw, while there on inspection (19th inst,), we have reason to believe there is some foundation for the truthfulness of the reports.

Assessment No. 8 of fifty cents per share is levied by the New Coso Mining Company, delinquent in office April 23. This assessment, with the bullion that can be produced from the ores now on the furnace dump—if economically operated—will, we think, be quite sufficient to liquidate the company's indebtedness, after which time there is no good reason why the mine should not pay a dividend to stockholders. But for criminal mismanagement it would have done so long ago.—Darwin News, March 30.

CALIFORNIA LEGAL RECORD.—We are in receipt of the first number of a publication with the above title, and from a glance at its contents we feel assured it is just what every person interested in law matters should have. Its contents comprise all the current decisions of the Supreme Court of California, important decisions of Nevada and Oregon and of the United States District and Circuit Courts of California; also of the Supreme and Courts of last resort of other States, and decisions, legal items of County Courts, Court calendars, etc. It is in a convenient book form, and published every Saturday by Schofield & Palmer, 603 Washington street, San Francisco. Price $6 per annum.

HEATHENISH.—THE INDEPENDENT, and probably all the other country papers in the State, ought to be well up on the Chinese question if they study all the documents relating to the subject sent them by their honorable friends at Sacramento. We have four copies of one book of 300 pages each of testimony concerning the evils of China immigration, and take pleasure in saying, preparatory to reading these books, that we think so too, unanimously.

THE Bureau of Printing and Engraving of the Treasury Department at Washington has completed its designs for silver certificates, and will commence the engraving and printing of them at once. There will be six denominations, $10, $20, $50, $100, $500, and $1,000, and the certificates will resemble in size and general make up an ordinary treasury note, except that they will be printed in a black ink on white paper.

NEW SONG.—A beautiful song, entitled "Fading," by Sallie C. Mason, has just been received from the publishers, Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co. The melody is in waltz time, and is very captivating. The marked price is 40 cents.

LONE PINE LETTER.

LONE PINE, April 4,

MESSRS. EDITORS—Gentle Spring, with its ethereal mildness, is with us once more, and already its influence is seen, as Nature is everywhere assuming her refreshing mantle of green, and—and—now, Messrs. Editors—I ca'nt do it. You see, that in these dull times our town is so dull that there is really nothing new to write about, and I thought I could write a letter worthy of Charles Warren Stoddard or Josh Billings. But I can't enthuse. Last night, under a certain influence, I could considerably, and I had it all in my mind's eye what a beautiful poetical letter I would write to-day. But as I grasped my pen all my beautiful and poetical thoughts (which some other cuss has had printed a thousands times before) went where "the woodbine loves to go," and so I must come down to barren facts and try to remember what has occurred here for the last two weeks.

Well, you have heard of the "Joint Stock Company?" It was a company of good boys who put some of their stock of cash into a race horse that had something wrong with one joint in his leg. Well, they run him, and run him—not only once or twice, but often—and that joint that had something wrong about it interfered every time with him, some way or other, so that he didn't win. And now the "Joint Stocks," as a company is no more.

We have had one or two very enjoyable entertainments at the schoolhouse, conducted by Prof. Cooper and wife, assisted by a few of his elder pupils and several ladies and gentlemen. The entertainment consisted of music, reading from popular authors, etc. Prof. Cooper is an excellent reader, and if his voice was stronger, would have excelled any reading of Maguire's. I believe they will give an entertainment next week, and if they do I will send you a full account.

To speak of a more serious subject, we Lone Piners have, at last, a good cemetery. The ground was generously donated by Messrs. Elder and Lasky, being the northeast corner of the old Van Reed ranch. The ground is laid out in streets and squares, with each lot numbered. Several graves are already marked with marble headstones, and as soon as the trees are growing we will have a cemetery which, upon being viewed by a stranger, will tell him plainer than anything else that the people of Lone Pine are a civilized community.

I won't say anything about an independent line of freight teams from here to Mohave, because, you see, there's nothing in it, and, on second thoughts I won't say anything about any thing else, because I've got nothing else to say anything about. So good by.

CERRO GORDO LETTER.

CERRO GORDO, April 4.

MESSRS. EDITORS—A tragic occurrence happened here on Tuesday evening last, by which one of our most respected citizens was ushered without any warning into eternity. The event was the more deplorable by the manner in which it happened. The deceased, a Portugese named Martin Adams, stepped up to the bar of the Union Hotel with another Portugese and asked for some thing to drink. The bar-keeper, intending to play a joke upon the deceased, reached under the counter, saying, "Yes, I'll give you a drink," pulled out a pistol and snapped it. To his horror the pistol went off, killing the unfortunate man instantly.

It is not, however, of this we wish to write, but of the high esteem in which Martin Adams was held, not only by his countrymen but by all classes of the community. He had been working here for years, in the capacity of packer, for Mr. Crohn and Mr. Hunter, both of which gentlemen unite in saying that he was by far the best man they ever had in their employ. Always industrious and mindful of his employer's interests, ever peaceful, amiable and obliging, it is safe to say that Martin Adams had uot an enemy in Cerro Gordo. Of this no better proof could be had than the immense concourse at his funeral. It was the largest funeral Cerro Gordo has witnessed since the death of Mr. Beveridge. Storekeepers, officers of the company, miners, indeed all showed to the deceased the last mark of respect, while the measured sounds of the funeral march, executed by the Beaudry Brass Band, added not a little to the solemnity of the obsequies. The deceased left an aged and widowed mother, whose only support he has been, and while Cerro Gordo at large deeply feels the loss of a true and upright citizen, we hereby tender to the Portugese population especially our heartfelt sympathies for the loss of one of their members, who was one of their main supports.

We regret the departure of Dr. B. E. Stevenson from our midst. During his stay in this camp the doctor has by his courteous bearing, as well as the marked success which attended his practice as a physician and surgeon won a host of friends, whose best wishes will follow him whereever he may cast his future lot. He intends going to Bodie, but we hope that Owens Valley, where he will sojourn for a short time, will offer him as great inducements for a home, and we feel confident that if he should make Inyo his permanent abode he will not regret the step. Dr. Hehner will resume practice here. R.

REPRESENTATIVE Wigginton has introduced a copy of Senator Booth's bill releasing the title of the United States to thirty-eight acres of land near Visalia, which John Cutter, it is said, inadvertently conveyed to the government absolutely, although he intended to lease it.

WE suppose a good many men will throw up their hats and yell for joy when they learn the "coming bonnet is a capote of shirred silk, with a tulle cap under it."

"I never enjoy poetry when I am cookin'," said an old lady, "but when I step out to feed the hogs, and h'ist myself on the fence and throw my soul into a few lines of 'Cap'n Jinks,' it does seem that this airth was made to live on after all."

A Danbury man recently went to see a friend in an insane retreat. He stood a moment before a fine looking man he had seen before at the institution, and inquired his name. John Bannister, the comedian, was presented to an old lady, proud of ancient and noble blood. The lady asked a wit of the day, who was present: "Who are the Bannisters? Are they of good family?" "Yes," said the wit, "very good indeed; they are closely connected with the Stairs." "Oh," said the lady, "a very ancient family of Ayrshire—dates back to 1450. I am delighted to see your friend."

A handsomely dressed woman at a recent performance of "Hamlet" given by Edwin Booth, at the Brooklyn Academy, turned to her companion in the midst of the first act and asked audibly: "Which is Shakspeare?" She was told that Shakspeare was the author, and then asked again, this time petulantly; "Well, what is it all about, any way?" A titter ran around the audience seated near her, and her companions face turned all manner of colors.

AN INCIDENT OF BEN WADE'S ILLNESS. A correspondent of the Cleveland Leader, writing from Jefferson, Ohio, and describing the late Senator Wade's last illness, relates the following: "At only one time during his illness was he delirious or unconscious of what was going on about him, and that was one night when his condition had changed slightly for the worse. It was about 9 o'clock, and his wife inquired if he didn't want a drink of water. He gazed steadily up into her face for a few moments, and then whispered feebly: 'Have you everything ready for me?' Upon being questioned as to his meaning, he replied: 'Why don't you know I am dead, and my funeral occurs in the morning at 8 o'clock?' Nothing could be said that would change his strange idea, and he spoke in the same manner to his son Henry, who entered shortly after- In the morning he again asked his wife if all the preparations for his burial at 8 o'clock were made. 'You cannot be buried at 8 o'clock, because it is after that now,' she responded. After thinking a few minutes he became rational, and the illusion was dispelled. In speaking of the matter afterward, he said; 'I must have been dreaming to have talked in that way.'"

The Matrimonial Lottery

A young stranger called on Dr. M'C—— one evening, while he was a pastor in New York city, to engage his services in the performance of a nuptial ceremony.

"I wish to make a bargain with you, doctor," said the young man. "I think the girl I am to marry will make a first-rate wife. If you will wait a year for your fee, and she turns out as I think she will, I'll then give you fifty dollars."

They agreed, the young couple were married, and the incident passed from the doctor's mind. At the end of a year, at the same time in the evening, the young man called again. The doctor did not recognize him at first.

"Do you not remember the bargain we made when you married me a year ago?"

"Oh, yes," replied the doctor.

"Well," said the young man, "she is twice as good as I thought she was. There's one hundred dollars for you."

Exactly opposite of this is the following:

A clergyman in one of the Hudson river towns united a German couple in marriage. When the knot was tied, the bridegroom said, "Dominie, I've got no monish, but I'll send you von leetle pig." It was done, and the circumstance was forgotten by the clergyman. Two years afterward he met the German in another town, for the first time since the marriage ceremony was performed.

"Dominie," said the German, "you remembers you married me, and I gave you von leetle pig?"

"Yes."

"Vell, if you'll unmarry me, I will give you two leetle pigs."—Harper's Magazine for April.

A "PARALLEL CASE."—Yesterday a ragged, shivering middle-aged man called at a house on Sibley street and asked for food, but the lady of the house called out:

"Why don't you work for your food?"

"I would if I knew where I could find work," he promptly replied.

"There's a place down town where you can saw wood and earn your dinner," she continued,

That seemed to stick him for half a minute, but he finally said with great solemnly:

"Madam, let me state a parallel case. There is a place in heaven for you, but you don't want to die till you are driven right to it."

She pondered over his philosophy for a few seconds and then called to the cook to pass out a loaf of bread and some meat.—Detroit Free Press.

A RICH SCENE.—The following rich scene recently occurred in a court of justice, between the judge and a Dutch witness all the way from Rotterdam.

Judge—What is your native language?

Judge—What is your mother tongue?

Witness—Oh, fadder says she pe all tongue.

Judge(in an irritated tone)—What language did you first learn—what language did you speak in the cradle?

Witness—I did not speak any language in the cradle at all; I only cried in Dooch.

At this there was a general laugh, in which the judge the, jury and audience joined. The witness was interrogated no further about his native language.

MORE testimony against the cigarrettes: A venerable drayman complained the other night of not feeling very well. He reckoned it was "them surrogates the boys gave him," as he had smoked a whole package of them.

CHARITABLE lady: "Poor man! if it were possible to procure work, what situation would suit you best?" Tramp: "Ladies' companion, mum."

An Eastern View of Senator Bones' Case.

The so-called Workingingmen's Party is nowhere so rampant, aggressive and sharply defined as in the State of California. Nowhere else, so far as indications go, have the so-called workingmen made an organization so compact; and nowhere else have they gained substantial political victories. If we would discover just what would be the course of conduct, and what the probable management of a party organized in the workingmen's interest, we may properly look to the doings of the party bearing that name in California. Evidently there is in that State, as elsewhere, a leadership of workingmen which is made up of men that do not work, and will not work as long as they can avoid it. The leaders who are continually raising new issues of various kinds to excite the mass of laboring men, and who spend their time in organizing clubs, circles, grand centers, lodges, and so on, are generally demagogues who are able to make a good living by their wits. They, at least, thrive without labor, while their confiding followers pay from their earnings a tax for the support of the soft-handed gentleman who neither toil or spin. It is notorious that the five or six leaders of the California Workingmen's party, whose names come to us most frequently over the wires, are not workingmen.

Obviously these men always keep on hand at least one grievance, otherwise their occupation is gone. Not long since a vacancy occurred in the California Legislature by the death of Senator Porter of Alameda county. This county is largely a suburb of San Francisco, in which city the Workingmen's party flourishes. The agitators of that city swarmed into Alameda county and elected one Bones to fill this vacancy. Bones was chosen as an exponent of the most advanced views held by the agrarians and communists. The so-called workingmen of the region were delirious with joy over this victory. Accompanied with a band of music and an escort of orators, Bones' journey to the State Capitol was a sort of triumphal progress. The millennial day had come at last. Installed in his seat, Senator Bones seems to have voted after the most independent fashion. It is proposed in California to call a Constitutional Convention to rearrange property rights so that no man can accumulate more than a given amount of property. It is intended also to readjust the industrial framework of society, so that the principle of "forty acres and a mule," once popular in some sections of the South, shall displace the oppressive usages of the present system. Bones voted against the Constitutional Convention. Another proposition before the present Legislature is to condemn the property of the Spring Valley Water Company, a corporation supplying the city of San Francisco with water, at $15,000,000, payable in thirty year bonds, bearing interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, interest and principal payable in gold. Bones voted in favor of this scheme, which has passed the Senate.

In other respects, it is said, the Senator from Alameda has failed to meet the wishes of his constituents. Mr. Bones, who was escorted to Sacramento only the other day amid the plaudits and jubilations of the new Labor party, is now denounced as a traitor and charlatan by the very men who threw up their caps for him. The fickle mob defile the idol which they raised yesterday. The medicine which they commend to the tyrants who are guilty of owning the roof which covers them they propose to administer to their own Ichabod. At a workingmen's meeting held in San Francisco the other day, it was enthusiastically resolved that Senator Bones be repudiated as a representative of the party, and that the organization "suggest a dose of hemp as a most excellent and radical remedy to cure every symptom of that most contagious disease." Precisely what is meant by that "most contagious disease" is not made clear; but the meeting received the resolution with much cheering and cries of "Hemp! hemp! hemp!" The Chairman of the meeting, with grim dignity, announced that on the following Sunday, "at the sand lots, the honorable Senator would be hung in effigy, as a warning to all candidates who should in future break their promises." A few days afterward Mr. Bones appealed to the Senate for protection, saying that he had received a letter signed with a skull and cross-bones, demanding his resignation with terrifying threats. Bones seems to have run his brief legislative career. But he declares that he will stick.

The cry of "Hemp!" which is most frequent upon the lips of these labor reformers, is suggestive. At the beginning it is apparently alleged that those who have been wronged by the superior thrift, or good fortune, of others have a right to readjust society by hanging the oppressors. This is called the unwritten plank in the platform of the Workingmen's party of California. When an enthusiastic assemblage is sufficiently fired by allusions to the rich people of San Francisco, the cry is raised of "Hemp!" And this suggestive word takes the place of the "vivas" of the Spanish and the "hochs" of the Germans. It is at once a cheer and a threat. The downfall of Bones is complete. The cross-bones and the hemp, to which he was wont to refer so eloquently, are now shaken over him. As it is written: "His mischief shall return upon his own head, and his violent dealings shall come down upon his own pate." There is a certain rude justice in this which will give complacency to the impartial observer. The labor reformers of the school of Bones deny the right of private judgment, just as they deny the right of private property. The only course for one entrusted with the dangerous duty of representing such men is to do as he is bid. Otherwise he is a traitor for whom "hemp" is instantly recommended. But it is certain that a man who rises above the angry level of the so-called Workingmen's party must prove a traitor. Give him property and he ceases to be agrarian. Give him position and responsibility and he thinks for himself. Therefore, the party, should it ever succeed, must be betrayed by its leaders. So long as it agitates in some purposeless fashion, it lives. When it elects men to office, and becomes a real power, it crumbles at the touch of prosperity. Bones is only a type of all that may come after him. As the standard bearer in the thick of the fight he is a hero. As a Senator with opinions he is an aristocrat, a renegade threatened with skull and cross bones.—New York Times.

IMPORTANCE OF THE FISH INTEREST. A comparatively few individuals are enthusiastically engaged in trying to awaken public interest in the value of our fish interest. They claim, and justly, that our inland waters may at comparatively little expense be made to yield many millions of dollars' worth of excellent food. By persistent effort they get now and then, from State Legislatures and Congress, appropriations of a few hundreds of dollars, which ought to be as many thousands, to develope this interest. At the American Fish Cultural Convention, held in New York during the last days of February, Mr. G. Brown Goode, of the Smithsonian Institute, who is thoroughly acquainted with this subject, gave the following statistics of the present consumption of fish in the United States; codfish, 214,322,000 pounds, value, $4,825,540; 1,500 vessels are engaged in this trade in the United States. Our whale fisheries yield $2,841,000 annually. Of salmon 30,000,000 pounds are canned on the Columbia river of Oregon alone; of mackerel 49,000,000 are caught annually, and of menhaden 462,000,000 pounds, used chiefly for oil and fertilizers. In 1876 there were caught in the United States 1,294,038,000 pounds of fish of all kinds, valued at $75,278,281. Of oysters, 4,000,000,000, valued at $50,000,000. This equals 100 oysters for every man, woman and child in the country.—S. F. Spirit of the Times.

"CHRYSOPOLIS."—The happiest hit ever made in christening a locality was when Col. Fremont, in his "Geographical Memoirs of 1848," bestows upon the narrow strait which forms the entrance to the Bay of San Francisco the name of "Chrysopilæ" (Golden Gate). Its ready adoption by the world shows how appropriate was the selection, and suggests very naturally the alteration of the city's name to "Chrysopolis" or Golden City—a title the perfect application of which none would dispute. San Francisco, as a name for a great commercial seaboard city, is quite inappropriate. It is quite inapplicable to a mercantile community, having been applied originally to a mission founded by the Order of Franciscan friars, and represents neither the American spirit of enterprise nor the leading characteristics of the land to which it belongs. Chrysopolis is at once classic, elegant and refined, and indicates in a single word the peculiar circumstances under which the city sprang into existence. If our City Fathers could, by a simple ballot and to tickle the vanity of a comparatively obscure individual, change the name of one of our streets from Dupont to Fleet, we don't see why the same thing might not be done with the name of the city itself. There are a hundred good reasons for calling San Francisco "Chrysopolis."—Golden Era.

THIS conundrum is now in circulation: "What is the difference between a potatoe and a lemon?" When the questioned party says he don't know, the other says: "Then I don't want you to buy any lemons for me," and then comes the "ha, ha, ha!"

Claim of Gen. Sutter.

Representatives Page, Wiggington and Davis, of California, and Wiltshire, of Arkansas, accompanied Gen. John A. Sutter before the House Committee on Private Land Claims recently, and advocated favorable action upon the bill, which proposes to indemnify him for the loss of his Mexican grant by a money payment of $50,000. The California Representatives' plea for him was wholly sympathetic. They argued that although he might not have had any legal title to a grant of 90,000 acres, which the Supreme Court pronounced invalid, yet they believed he had equitable rights, and in this connection they referred to the fact that subsequent to its confirmation by the California Commission, he was unable to employ needed counsel and with his imperfect knowledge of our language and customs failed to hsve his case properly presented to the Supreme Court. He had, however, been in quiet and peaceable possession until crowded out by the Americans. During a long period of time he had rendered great assistance to our military forces, and furnished generous relief to incoming settlers, out of his private means. They spoke also of the fact that gold was first discoved in California through his instrumentality, and in view of all his services sacrifices, and hardships, which had reduced him to a state of poverty, they thought the Government owes him a debt of gratitude that should incline the Committee to give his present claim the most favorable consideration possible.

The Committee subsequently took a vote upon the bill, but almost unanimously decided to report it adversely, upon the ground that their powers extended only to the consideration of the question whether or not his private land claim was valid, and that they could not take action in the direction of granting a pension or gratuity. It is possible, therefore, that this matter may be brought before the Committee on Claims, but there seems to be no prospect whatever of favorable action upon it by that committae or by either branch of Congress.

Not many days since, in a Western city, a young lady of ten summers was engaged watering the plants on the lawn. A lady stopped at the garden gate, when the following dialogue occurred:

"Sissy, is Mrs. W. at home?"

"Did you address me, madam?" (severely).

"Yes: I asked is Mrs. W. at home."

"No, madam. Mrs. W. is my aunt, and Mrs. W. is not at home."

"Will you tell her Mrs. M. called?"

"Certainly, madam," (graciously).

"You won't forget the name?"

"Certainly not, madam. I am not much acquainted here, but I shall remember the name; I am a Boston girl!" And she serenely continued to water the flowers, serenely.—Harper's Magazine.

THE CHINESE QUESTION IN CANADA. In the House of Commons recently Bunster moved that the government insert a clause in all contracts for the construction of the Canada Pacific Railway that no man wearing his hair longer than 5½ inches shall be deemed eligible for employment on said work. He went on to say, that as Chinese residents of British Columbia were Chinese subjects, this was the only shape in which he could bring up what was in reality a great national question. He referred to the immigration of the Chinese, and contended that in many ways their presence in British Columbia tended to retard its settlement and progress. The motion was intended to prevent their being employed on the Canada Pacific railway. After some discussion the motion was voted down.

THE METRIC SYSTEM IN POST OFFICES. A writer for the Polytechnic Review makes this suggestion: To meet the difficulty pointed out by the Postmaster General to the committee of Congress in the way of introducing the metric system into the post offices of the United States, let there be made for all the scales in the service, few in variety, a separate attachable scale beam with the French system on it. Or, what is more simple, let there be new counterpoises, giving the right metric weights where used on the present scale beams, be made for the various varieties of scales and sent out to replace the present counterpoises.

HE came in last Saturday for supplies, and has been on a terrible tear ever since. It at last soured him, and this morning his matted hair, hollow eyes, sunken cheeks and cadaverous phiz, told how fearfully he was suffering. His partner came in after him, and we met the two on their way out, and heard the following: Drunken man "I shay, wh-here'e goin'?" Partner—"Home, of course," Drunken man—"Wh-hich way?" Partner—"Why, right up the cañon." Drunken man—"No, don't go shat way; sno'o good way." Partner—"Why?" Drunken man—"Cos m'ead's to big to go frew e'cañon."

THE Commission of Cardinals, appointed to consider the position of Catholics in reference to Parliamentary elections, have reported that is the duty of Catholics to participate in the elections, and accept seats in the Parliament if elected, taking the usual oaths to the King and Parliament, but pledging themselves not to offend the laws of the church.

A Scrap from French History.

Before leaving the Egyptian campaign it will be necessary to mention the two actions which have thrown the darkest shade on the reputation of Bonaparte; the massacre of the Turks at Jaffa, and the murder of his own men. The fate of a town taken by assault is too well known to attract any particular consideration, if it is unaccompanied by circumstances of unusual barbarity. The defeated defenders and the innocent townspeople suffer the utmost violence which the rage of an irritated soldiery can inflict. While the conflict lasts, or before discipline can be established, no life is safe; but after the first burst of wrong the perpetration of murder or robbery becomes a crime. At Jaffa it was the policy of Bonaparte to strike with terror; and he gave up to indiscriminate destruction every inhabitant of the devoted town. Five hundred Turkish prisoners were killed in cold blood, and the peaceful citizens were ruthlessly slain. The slaughter lasted for two whole days, and the general in chief ordered it to continue. This sanguinary act brought its legitimate punishment. The corpses of men, women and children encumbered the streets, and their reeking blood ascended to heaven and came down upon the murderer in the shape of a pestilence. The French army was stricken down!

Referring to the sick soldiers of Bonaparte, the narrative continues: Some he sent by sea to Damietta, others to Gaza by land. But with the remainder, seventy or eighty, lying helplessly on thier beds, expecting to die, incapable of being moved, with no sufficient force to leave for their protection, what was to be done? He ordered the doctors to prepare a soporific draught, which would easily end their pains; and though one of the physicians refused the office, some others obeyed. The patients drank the medicine and never woke again. Now these were the two dreadful crimes against humanity and christian feeling; but the defenders of Napoleon say that war is not a christian or human operation at all, and there are cases in which a massacre like that of the Turks at Jaffa may be really a work of necessity, and a murder like that of his own countrymen an act of mercy.

PAUL DE CASSAGNAC is the champion swash-buckler of the Paris press. His latest duel was his fifteenth encounter, but he has never killed anybody. Among those with whom he has declined to fight are Lieut. Lullier, now in New Caledonia, who publicly slapped his face, and M. Clemenceau, one of the members for Paris, who is renowned as a swordsman, and is the more dangerous from being left-handed. M. de Gambetta has been challenged by M. de Cassagnac, but disdained even to answer him.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.—The outcome, whether war or peace, of the pending negotiations between England, Russia, Austria and Turkey is a matter of as much uncertainty as ever. The war spirit seems to be dangerously high in England, and the contingencies are such that a terrible war may be inaugurated at any moment; still, however, as near as we can judge, the chances are that an amicable arrangement will be reached. Austria proposes to partition Turkey into three protectorates, one respectively under Russia, Austria and England, yet the autonomy of Turkey as a government to remain nominally, at least, as it is. It is said that if England had made this proposition it would have been mutually acceptable, but coming from Austria it is not. The latter power, however, holds the vantage ground, and is being assiduously courted by both the others. Should she decide to favor England it would be ruinous to the hopes of the Czar, while on the other hand the reverse would not be fatal to England's chances in case of hostilities with Russia. Turkey and Russia, it appears, have agreed upon an alliance offensive and defensive, which, of course, is decidedly offensive to England. But, again, the Grand Vizier who promoted the proposed Russian alliance is reported quite sick, which means in Turkey that the opposition is gaining the upper hold, and that no such alliance will be formed. Altogether the Eastern question is a muddled one viewed from this distance, and from the lights before us it is a waste of time to prognosticate the probable solution.

THE British Government is compelled to ask for a Deficiency Fund, and notes among other items of expenditure that could not be anticipated, $22,000 for telegrams "consequent upon the state of affairs upon the Continent," and $16,000 for "the Earl of Rossyln's special mission to Madrid to attend the marriage of his Majesty the King of Spain." Had such items of Government expense been booked in this country, the partizan howls against the extravagance would have made a nervous administration crazy.

"GO TO SLEEP, MY BA-A-A-BY."—We are in receipt of a copy of this new song, said to be one of the finest published for many a day, and generally in demand. It can be played on the organ or piano. Price 40 cents per copy; sent to any portion of the United States upon receipt of price, by addressing the publisher, F. W. Helmick, No. 136 West Fourth St., Cincinnati, O. Send in your orders early, as there is an astonishing demand for this song.

THE approval of the bill admitting women to the practice of law was among the very last acts to which the Governor attached his official signature. The bill was signed just one minute before 12 o'clock on Monday night, on the very verge of the Constitutional limits of the Legislature. Maria Smith, Esq., can now hang out her shingle and take in her clients on an equal footing with John Brown, Esq., or any other limb of the law.

WE learn from the Times-Review that two attempts have lately been made to burn the town of Tuscarora. On each occasion the incendiary applied the torch in the rear of A. K. Briggs' store. If the scoundrel is ever caught there is a likelihood of a hemp festival among the Tuscaroraers.

THERE is little doubt but that Grand Duke Nicholas has been charged to induce the Turks to conclude an offensive and defensive alliance with Russia in case of an Anglo-Russian war.

IT is stated in the Rural Press, on the authority of an English journal, that common soot sprinkled over plants, etc., will effectually secure them from being molested by rabbits.

GEN. A. V. KANTZ, lately commanding the Department of Arizona, is to be court-martialed at Omaha for the publication of a pamphlet in reference to army matters.

THE San Francisco Stock Report credits the bonanza mines with dividends as follows: Con. Virginia, $38,880,000; California, 24,840,000; amounting to a total of $63,720,000.

THE English money market reviews say it is morally certain that war would be followed by Russian bankruptcy.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

Perhaps the most important bill of the last legislative session is that calling the Constitutional Convention. It may be of interest as the next important issue to be presented to the people of the State. The Convention will consist of 152 delegates, 120 from Senatorial districts and 32 at large. Eight from each Senatorial district. The people throughout the State will vote for all the delegates at large, but the eight receiving the highest number of votes, residents of each Senatorial district, are to be declared elected. One hundred and twenty delegates are to be elected for the Senatorial districts, in proportion to the representation in the last Legislature. But in Tulare, Fresno, Kern, Inyo and Mono, instead of electing delegates in the same manner as Assemblymen and Joint Senator are elected, each of the three first named will elect one delegate each, and one delegate will be elected from Inyo and Mono. The three representatives to which Ventura, Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo are entitled are to be elected one from each county. So will the counties of Colusa and Tehama. Each of these will elect one delegate. The election for delegates will be on the third Wednesday in June. The Convention is to meet on the 28th day of September at Sacramento. The question of adopting the Constitution framed by the Convention will be submitted to the people on the first Wednesday in May next year. The sum of $100,000 is appropriated for the purposes of the Convention and all the powers are conferred for conducting business. The members of the Convention will receive mileage and $10 per day for 100 days. After that time, if the Convention is longer in session, the members must serve from pure patriotism. San Francisco will have 30 delegates elected from the city at large, one also jointly with San Mateo, and eight of the thirty-two delegates at large must be residents of San Francisco, as constituting the First Congressional District. This will give San Francisco 39 delegates out of 152. The voters of San Francisco at the election will vote for thirty delegates, representing the city acccording to the Legislative apportionment, one jointly with San Mateo, and 32 at large, making a total of 63 names on the ticket. The prominent members in the recent Legislature representing both of the great parties, have repeatedly expressed their willingness to sink party in selecting delegates, but whether this can be effectually carried into effect in selecting delegates remains to be seen.

A PHILADELPHIA paper says: A new instrument invented by Prof. Edison has been exhibited here. It is called the airophone. It is an instrument into which words can be articulated, and they gather such force as to be heard for a number of miles with great distinctiveness. It is in reality a talking fog-horn. By its aid captains of vessels meeting at sea can converse easily while three or four miles apart. Signal stations could warn vessels coming on a dangerous coast to keep off, and it is adapted to all the uses to which such instruments as fog horns can now be applied.

NEW PATENTS.—Through Dewey & Co., Patent Agents, San Francisco, we receive the following list of U. S. patents granted to Pacific Coast inventors, viz: for week ending, March 19th: R. H. Cambell, Red Bluff, Cal., flume; N. P. Chipman, Red Bluff, Cal., mode for bunching lumber for running through V-shaped flumes; W. H. Abrams, Eugene City, Ogn., saw-mill head block; E. Moreau, S. F., apparatus for the production of hot air; (labels) W. S. Halprunner, S. F., salve.

THE great four-mile race between Mollie McCarthy and Ten Broeck, at Louisville, July 4, will undoubtedly be the turf event of the season. We have complete faith in the California wonder, and shall be much surprised if she does not get away with the Eastern favorite. These are the best horses in America, and the contest is sure to awaken a lively interest throughout the nation. It is more than likely that there will be a large attendance from the Pacific Coast.

OF the proposition of certain Republicans to nominate Grant in 1880 for President, the St. Louis Evening Post, Illinois, says that with such an antagonist the Democrats will "sweep the country with an electoral vote greater even than was given to Grant himself."

JUDGING from the reports, the New York Mining Board is a great success, and is becoming quite a feature of Gotham.

THE following are the chief items of the River and Harbor bill, so far as the Pacific Coast is concerned: Oakland, $80,000; Wilmington, $20,000; Sacramento and Feather rivers, $8,000; Lower Willamette and Columbia rivers, $30,000; Columbia and Snake rivers, $20,000; canal around the Columbia river cascades, $75,000; Upper Willamette river, $20,000.

THE NEW GAME LAW.

Following is a portion of the game law and penalties, as amended by the late Legislature, as applies to present conditions in this county, the several sections given being from the Penal Code:

SECTION 1, Subdivision 3. Every person who, at any time, takes, gathers or destroys the eggs of any mallard, wood or summer duck, red head, teal, gadwell or gray duck, or any any other wild duck, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 628. Every person who, between the first day of November in each year and the first day of July of the following year, hunts, pursues, takes, kills, or destroys any male deer or buck is guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 633. Every person who takes, catches or kills any speckled trout, brook or salmon trout, or any variety of trout, between the first day of November and the first day of April in the following year, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 636. Every person who shall set, use or continue, or who shall assist in setting, using or continuing any pound, weir, set net, trap or any other fixed or permanent contrivance for catching fish in the waters of any of the rivers, sloughs or creeks of this State is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Every person who, by seine or other means, shall catch any fish so small as to be able to escape through a mesh one and a half inches in size, or the young of fish of any species, but which, at the time of capture, are too small to be marketed, and who shall not return the same to the water, immediately and alive, or who sell, or offer for sale, any such fish, fresh or dried, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Every person convicted of violation of any of the provisions of this chapter, shall be punished by fine of not less than $50, and not more than $300, or imprisonment in the County Jail of the county in which the offense was committed for not less than thirty days, or more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

DEFEAT.—At the city elections in Santa Rosa the Workingmen did not make a very good showing on the 3d instant, as a telegram from there shows:

Kearney and Wellock, the incendiary agitators, have been in this city since Monday night, interfering in the contest for city officers that took place today. The election was the most exciting one ever held in this city. Every tax-paying citizen took an interest in the matter, and the result was very large vote polled and the election of the Citizen's ticket entire by an overwhelming majority. As far as counted the vote runs three for the Citizens' to one for the Workingmen's ticket. The majority will be near 400. Eight hundred and fifty-nine votes were polled. Kearney went to Healdsburg to-day. Wellock put in appearance at the polls this morning and for a while made himself officious as a ticket peddler and talker, when a voter protested against the interference of an alien with our local affairs, and called for a show of hands by all who were in favor of his leaving, peaceably if he would, forcibly if he must. Immediately several hundred hands went up, and Wellock left the polls. The last heard of him he was two miles below town, on the Petaluma road, footing it for the sand lots of San Francisco. Our business men appreciate the importance of maintaining law and order in our midst, and tonight are jubilant over the victory won.

PLACER MINING.—The rapid melting of the snow has caused considerable water to flow in the different gulches and cañons in and around Bodie, and many of our old miners have taken advantage of it and are washing out considerable gold with ground sluices and rockers. In nearly all of the cañons fair wages are being made in this manner, and if the water should hold out a few weeks more the chances are very fair that considerable money will be taken out. This is a new industry in and around Bodie, and, although free gold has been known to exist in the decomposed quartz on the side hills and high peaks, it was not supposed to be plentiful enough to pay for sluicing or rocking, and hence until recently these placers were not prospected thoroughly. On other parts of the coast many good ledges have been discovered by slucing decomposed quartz and broken formations where the true vein lay at some depth below the surface, and it is probable that before the water ceases to run we shall hear of some good strikes being made.—Bodie Standard.

GOOD NEWS.—M. A. Wheeler, Esq., principal owner in the Swansea Mining Company whose mines, several in number, are located at Cerro Gordo, and their furnaces at Owens Lake, passed through here last Tuesday. We had the pleasure of making his acquaintance, and of a short interview, in which he informed us that the company had engaged a smelter from Eureka, who would arrive in a few days, and that he expected to start up the furnaces in three or four weeks—as soon as necessary repairs can be made. He also informed us that Col. Sherman Stevens arrived in San Francisco last Sunday from the East, and that he had reported that everything was favorable for the commencement of the construction of his narrow-gauge railroad hence to the lake. The outlook for freightage from this and contiguous district over that road when completed this season looks even better than when Col. Stevens left us.—Darwin News.

THE Eureka Sentinel has this important item: We learn from authentic sources that the whole face of the Eberhardt and Aurora tunnel is in ore, the change in the formation having been encountered this week. The ore in the cross-cut is also improving both in quntity and quality. The strike in the face of the tunnel is a most important one, demonstrating the existence of ore bodies at a depth of several hundred feet, and going farther toward solving the problem of the permanence of the once famous White Pine mines. The residents of Hamilton, and all who have an interest in old Pogonip, are to be congratulated on the outlook.

The New Electoral Plan.

The plan submitted by the House Committee on Revision of the Constitution relating to the counting of Electoral votes for President and Vice President is novel and ingenious. Here is the important feature:

"The Electoral votes and fractions thereof for each person voted for as President in any State shall be ascertained by multiplying his entire popular vote by the whole number of Electoral votes of the State and dividing the aggregate popular vote of the State for all persons voted for as President, and the quotient shall be the number of Electoral votes and the fractions thereof to which such person shall be entitled, using for such fraction three decimals and no more."

Young America, and others not cunning in political figures, will hardly comprehend this plan without explanation. Let us explain:

First, we shall assume that in the year 1880 there will be two candidates for President in the field. Call them Booth and Hendricks. California will probably poll 170,000 votes. She is entitled to six Electors. Let us give to Booth 90,000, to Hendricks 80,000 of of the popular votes. Booth's majority is 10,000; but it does not give him all the six Electoral votes to which the State is entitled. What it does give him we shall find by multiplying his popular vote (90,000) by the six Electoral votes, and dividing the product, which is 540,000, by the total number of votes polled for President, which, as we have above assumed, will be 170,000. Five hundred and seventy thousand divided by 170,000, the fraction being run out to the third decimal, gives 3.176; and this is the Electoral vote which, under this plan, Booth would be credited with for California. Hendricks would be credited with 2.824.

At the last Presidential election New York polled for all candidates for Presidency 1,015,502 votes. Tilden had 521,949; Hayes, 489,207, with something over 4,300 scattering. Had the plan we are discussing been in use, the 35 Electoral votes of New York would been have divided as follows:

Electors to Tilden	17.989
Electors to Hayes	16.860
Scattering	.151

The reader will see at a glance that this is interjecting minority representation into the Electoral Colleges; and should there be three or more candidates for President, the chances for any one obtaining a majority of all the electors would be very much diminished. Indeed, it would be next to impossible to elect in this way unless one of the candidates should happen to be immeasurably popular above all the others. It is virtually a scheme to transfer the Presidential election to the House of Representatives, where each State would have one vote, and Nevada or South Carolina would be equal with New York or Pennsylvania.—S. F. Chronicle.

THE REMONETIZATION OF CHEESE. Geo. W. Peck, of the La Crosse Sun, delivered an address before the Wisconsin Dairy Convention, in the course of which he made the following humorous suggestions: "But to come down to the present day, we find that cheese has become one of the most important branches of manufacture. It is next in importance to the silver interest. And, fellow cheesemongers, you are doing yourselves great injustice that you do not petition Congress to pass a bill to remonetize cheese. There is more cheese raised in this country than there is silver, and it's more valuable. Suppose you had not eaten a mouthful in 30 days, and you should have placed on the table before you ten dollars stamped out of silver bullion on one plate and nine dollars stamped out of cheese bullion on another plate, which would you take first? Though the face value of the nine cheese dollars would be 10 per cent. below the face value of the ten silver dollars, you would take the chances of the cheese. You could use it to better advantage in your business. Hence, I say cheese is more valuable than silver, and it should be made legal tender for all debts, public and private, except pew rent. I may be in advance of other eminent financiers, who have studied the currency question, but I want to see the time come, and I trust the day is not far distant, when 412½ grains of cheese shall be equal to a dollar in codfish, and when the merry jingle of slices of cheese will be heard in every pocket. Then every cheese factory can make its own coin, money will be plenty, everybody will be happy and there will never be war any more. It may be asked how this currency can be redeemed? I would have an incontrovertible bond, made of limburgher cheese, which is stronger and more durable. When this is done you can tell the rich man from the poor man by the smell of his money. Nowadays many of us do not get even the smell of money, but in the goods days which are coming the gentle zephyr will waft to us the delicate violet and able-bodied limbargher, and we shall know that money is plenty.

A PRESS dispatch dated San Buenaventura, March 29, says: On the 24th of March of last year, at about 2 o'clock in the morning, T. Wallace Moore, a large land owner on the Sespe in this county, was brutally murdered. The assassins set fire to his barn and when Moore rushed out to save his property, he was fired upon, and finally, after running a short distance, fell dead with two bullets in his throat, one in his bowels and seven in his brain. The latter shots were fired of course after he fell. F. A. Sprange J. S. Church, J. O. Lord, Jessie Jones, John Curlee, J. A. Sivanson and a Mr. Cook, have just been arrested by detectives on a charge of having committed the murder. The parties had had trouble with Moore about land matters. The prisoners arrived in town to-day, and a large crowd assembled at the court house to receive them. A good deal of excitement was manifested some being for and some against the prisoners. An examination will be held before the Justice as soon as the prisoners secure counsel, probably Monday. R. B. Hall, the detective who worked up the case, is the one who so successfully followed the Chico murderers to conviction. He thinks he has a good case at least against some of the prisoners.

SATURDAY, APRIL 13.....1878.

A LOCAL BILL.—Among the latest acts of the last Legislature, and the last they ought to have enacted, is one changing the name of our little hill down here near Lone Pine from Fisherman's Peak to Fowler Peak, in honor of the Tulare Senator. Now, it will strike most people around here that a Fowler local law has not been enacted this session. The Honorable Tom. has earned the respect of our people quite generally, but people quite generally are utterly at a loss to know what great deeds he has done to have his name thus immortalized by giving it to the highest peak in the United States south of Alaska, and that, too, in a county in which he never set foot. Besides this, if people are such egregious asses as to name natural objects, such as mountains and children, after living men who have plenty of time and an even chance to be hung or sent to the Legislature or Penitentiary before their earthly account closes, good taste, not to say justice, would have given the preference when naming the peak in favor of the man who earned the right to be thus immortalized by being the first to set foot upon its sky-towering summit. But the ways of petit jurors and legislators are past finding out, but with reference to the acts of the latter, not so absolutely binding but that people who have heretofore known Fisherman's Peak as Fisherman's Peak, will be apt to continue so to know it until the Honorable Tom. does some big thing to earn the lofty honor now legally conferred upon him. P. S.—There are numerous peaks, small steams, lakes, and even villages, throughout the State without legal names; now as the local residents or discoverers don't apparently know enough to give them classical names or any names at all, why didn't our late Legislature "take this present opportunity" to do honor to each other, a la Fowler's Peak.

THE FISH QUESTION.—In response to the movement for stocking Owens river and its lateral streams with fish, as set forth in our issue of last week, the citizens of Independence have already pledged nearly $100 for the purpose. A prominent citizen of Big Pine thinks that three-fourths of that amount can readily be raised there, and we scarcely doubt but that the requisite $500 can be secured throughout the valley. Even without taking the principal point into consideration—that of having catfish and perch planted up and down the whole river—the fact that the many trout streams in the different localities will be stocked with trout from the streams near here, ought, and doubtless will, be enough to rouse all hands to a proper action in the matter. Independence has already incurred a considerable outlay in the experiment (happily so successful) of stocking its own streams, but we have heard of none unwilling to go still further in the interest of the waters of the river and those of the whole valley.

BEVERIDGE DISTRICT.—The new gold district just across the summit from the Eclipse is attracting some earnest attention. The first discovery was made in November last, by Wm. L. Hunter and others. The prospects were believed to be good, but it was resolved that nothing be said about it until enabled to better judge of its merits through further examination and developments. The discoverers have kept a small force at work throughout the Winter, and now do not hesitate to pronounce the mines and whole district most promising. The snow is rapidly melting away, and as it goes the work of prospecting becomes possible. Up to the 8th instant twenty-three claims had been located, "each giving rich prospects of free gold," as our authority states it—and we consider it reliable. The country is well watered and timbered, and of the roughest description. Via. Cerro Gordo is at present the only practicable route to the new mines.

OPENING OUT.—The new establishment of Messrs. C. & M. Cohn opens for business to-day in the the new Mairs' building, but upon which the carpenter work is not yet complete. However, the store-room is complete—a very large and convenient one, by the way—and is being filled with a new stock selected especially for this market. As usual at this season of the year, trade is dull with all our merchants (and all the rest of us, for the matter of that); but the Cohn boys will doubtless secure their share, and propose to bide their time. We invite attention to their advertisement elsewhere in this issue.

IN CHOKEY.—There are two prisoners in the county jail at present, both from Cerro Gordo and both on criminal charges. Their names are Anderson and Contreras respectively. The first is in for murder, as mentioned last week, the latter on two charges, viz: disturbing the peace and assault with a deadly weapon, in which assault on some brother Mexicans a number of shots were fired, but without drawing blood from any one.

PRIVATE SCHOOL.—Mrs. Jonathan Brown will begin a private school, for primary classes, in the school house in this place, on Monday next. The term will extend through a period of about three months or more, according to the wishes of subscribers and contingencies of the commencement of the public school. There is no question but Mrs. B. will do full justice to the little ones placed under her direction.

F. & A. M.—Stated meeting of Inyo Lodge to-night at the hall, for general business and work in the second degree.

NOT YET.—Kemp has postponed his departure yet awhile. See notice under the head of "New Advertisements."

New Mine With an Old History Discovered.

A valuable gold mine has recently been located near Bishop Creek which, if it pans out such flattering prospects as did the samples our representative witnessed, will stem the tide and excitement toward Lake and Bodie districts. The history of this precious ledge when properly written up will have a somewhat romantic introduction. In fact taking all in all, this discovery has such remarkable facilities for working—wood and water near by, an easy grade and such an abundance of paying rock in sight—it has really put a damper on the enthusiasm of the several locators. That valuable lodes are difficult of access may be the rule, but a fortunate exception may be predicted in this case. The romantic business referred to dates back to about '61, when an adventurous Frenchman pushed his way through hostile Indians southward from old Owensville. He struck a ledge of considerable magnitude of reddish looking quartz; his experienced detected the hidden treasure of gold, although no free metal could be discerned. In a rude way he commenced sinking near one of the two immense chimneys, but his work was interrupted by the bloodthirsty Piutes and he was driven out of the country, leaving his tools in the prospect hole. Afterward he turned up on the coast elsewhere, and wrote such glowing accounts of the find to some countrymen that they set out to join him. Meantime the Frenchman kicked the bucket without any apparent reason for so doing. The countrymen, party No. 2, came to Bishop Creek thinking that was the Owensville mapped out. They struck the wrong scent, and finding a hot spring at the base of the Sierras south of the old Slinkard place answering to the description of the one they were directed to, they prospected for some weeks, finally giving it up without even consulting the ghost of the departed Napoleon.

Such is the novel-like prelude of the history of this identical "find." The ancient hole is discovered, and the boys feel too rich already to associate with anybody outside of the Imperial family or the royal flunkies of the Vatican. The mine is situated about twelve miles in a southeasterly direction from Bishop Creek, and leading to it is a large cañon, near the mouth of which is a hot spring. The ledge where the location is recorded has the appearance of a huge blow-out, and is easily traced for several miles. The ore tested will go $500 and upward per ton. It is of a peculiar reddish conglomeration which suggested its name, "Red Rock." It contains no free gold—resembles the dark, honey-comb rock of the Sierras. Of its true proportions, value and future probabilities we fain would avoid exaggeration, and will pass for the present until the bottom facts are shoveled out and a survey and other necessary preliminaries are finished. Gray, Hoover, Dr. Middleton, Furbee and Childs are mentioned among the locators.

THE HIGHTOWER ESTATE SUIT.—For various reasons not necessary to specify the hearing of the petition of Austin Hightower, son by a former wife of the late Geo. W. Hightower of Benton, for the revocation of letters of administration held by the present Mrs. Hightower, has excited more than ordinary interest. The hearing was before H. L. Leavitt, Probate Judge of Mono county, and was opened on the 8th instant. Messrs. George, Tubbs and Briggs appeared for petitioner, and Messrs. Reddy, Wood (of Darwin) and Whitman for respondent. The case was argued and decided on demurrer, the arguments lasting two days, and in which, we are told, Mr. Reddy, senior counsel, particularly distinguished himself as a lawyer par excellence—a fact of some local glorification due to some unwritten facts in the history of the case, if for no other reasons. Immediately after the arguments closed, the Court announced that the demurrer was sustained, thus practically ending the whole case.

A SUGGESTION.—A proposal which ought to be of considerable local interest, or pride, is suggested from the fact that the handsome, new building of the Pioneer Brewery and the store of J. S. Rothschild a Co. have been photographed, with a view of getting them engraved, for use on letter and bill-heads, etc. We have fine cuts of the Harris & Rhine building, and intend to procure one of THE INDEPENDENT establishment. Now, let our liberal county officials defray the cost of one of the Court House, and if the citizens on either side of the streets will secure photographic views of their properties, as a whole or singly, we will procure engravings and in due time publish an illustrated edition showing the general appearance and some of the prominent points of the town of Independence, descriptive of its known past and present and possible future. What is thought of it?

SWANSEA.—Supt. Wheeler has begun the work of repairing and general resurrection of the old Swansea furnaces, which have so long lain idle. The work is giving employment to quite a number of men, and in time the industries attendant upon the operation will materially help the prosperity of central Inyo. It ought to give an impetus to prospecting and extraction of ore all along the range.

DELINQUENT TAXES.—Elsewhere will be found published the law by which Tax-Collector Moore is directed to extend the time of publication of the delinquent tax list. It is now given as authentic notice to tax-payers still delinquent as to when the time comes for additional costs and enforced collection.

PURCHASING.—Charley Stoutenborough is in San Francisco, so far recovered in health that he is actively engaged in the purchase of a complete new stock of new goods for the Bishop Creek store. The institution, deservedly, is doing a thriving business.

SILVER PEAK, Nev., April 8.

MESSRS. EDITORS—IN THE INDEPENDENT of March 30, upon the authority of Jake Shoemaker, et. als., you say that pending the coming of the New York parties "no payments of wages will be made, and money is scarce," etc. This is not the case, and Jake must have been sloshing around the "Lobby," and hence this. It is a notorious fact that no man has ever had to wait for his wages, and this company here always paid up regularly every month, and do yet. Please correct the statement, as it is unjust.

Yours truly,
J. B. HISKEY.

STARTING UP.—J. W. Smith, with a new sawyer and general force, has gone to start up the saw mill for the season. The long flume has been comparatively uninjured by the snow; an abundance of water-power is assured, and with plenty of logs on hand the mill will be able to meet all demands.

IS A P. M.—We note that Dan. Canty, formerly of this region, has recently been appointed Postmaster at Cerbat, Arizona.

THE VIRGINIA & TRUCKEE RAILROAD EXTENSION.—The Virginia Enterprise says, in speaking of the Virginia & Truckee railroad extension to this place and Bodie, at its probable terminus at the head of Walker Dake, that vegetables and farm produce can then be brought into Virginia City fresh every morning, and cost will be materially diminished. The building of this railroad would add immensely to the value of the farming lands of Mason's Valley, and would also build up a thriving little town at or near the head of Walker Lake. We hope its construction may be undertaken at once, as in the building it would give employment to the host of idle men of the Comstock range. Not only would there be work for the common laborers, but also for carpenters and mechanics of other trades in the erection of bridges and buildings required at various points.—Esmeralda Herald.

SATURDAY, APRIL 13.....1878.

Defenses of London.

With the addition of some huge thirty-eight ton guns, the heaviest artillery at present in service, to the defenses of the Thames, the forts which now protect London on the side of the sea may be considered in a satisfactory condition. We rarely regard London as a fortified city, and yet against the attack of a hostile squadron it is as well assured as any port in the world. It is only within the past few years that any really serious steps have been made for the proper defense of the center of the nation's greatness. At any time, no doubt, we could organize in a few days a system of torpedo defense which would, if successful, effectuallly bar progress up the river; but torpedoes are at best a treacherous kind of a weapon, and are apt at times to be as dangerous to friend as foe. Coming up to the Nore, the first opposition that an enemy would be likely to meet with are the Sheerness forts and the Isle of Grain guns, together with any long range cannon that might happen to be in position on the Essex shore at Shoeburyness. In the event of the hostile squadron passing these, it would have to cope with a very powerful battery at Coal-house Point, and another on the opposite shore, called the new Shornmeade Fort. These works mount guns of very heavy caliber, and are so constructed that they may operate in unison, and deliver a sweeping cross-fire. Moreover, the reach of the guns is of such a nature that the forts could command any ships coming up the river a couple of miles before the latter came abreast of the batteries. If we suppose, however, the enemy to be successful in evading these works also. then his progress would be checked again by Tilbury Fort and its companion work opposite New Tavern Fort. These forts are also fitted with guns of heavy caliber and long range, those on Kent shore commanding the whole reach in the river just below Gravesend. It would only be in the event of an enemy running the gauntlet of those big guns that it would have any chance whatever of reaching the Government factories at Woolwich, or those docks whose overflowing riches the world has heard vaunted so much and so often. —London News.

HINTS FOR THE WAKEFUL.—If you cannot get sleep when you first go to bed, says Hall's Journal of Health, give orders to be waked up at daylight, get up promptly, do not sleep a wink during the day, go to bed at your regular time, with directions to be waked as before; in a week you will find that you can go to sleep promptly, but then be careful to get up as soon as you wake in the mornings, thus you will soon find out how much sleep your system requires, and act accordingly. Always avoid sleeping in the daytime; for if yqu require seven hours sleep, and spend that much in sleep at night, whatever time you spend in sleep during the day must be deducted from that seven hours, or you will soon become wakeful again. If you wake up in the night, either go to bed two or three hours later or when you wake get up, even if it be but one o'clock in the morning, and do not sleep a moment until your regular hour for going to bed; and if you go to bed regularly get up as soon as you awake, and do not sleep in the daytime, you will find out in less than a week how much sleep you require, then act accordingly. Nature loves regularity, and the four hours from ten till two is worth six hours after twelve o'clock. The great rule is, retire at a regular early hour, and get up as soon as you wake, if it is daylight. If persons have force of will enough to keep from going to sleep a second time, it is greatly better to remain in bed ten or fifteen minutes after waking up, to think about it, and enjoy the resting of that kind of feeling of pleasurable tiredness which comes over us on waking, especially if we have taken more exercise than usual the previous day, or have been kept up later.

THIS item from the Boise City Statesman, seems to us to convey a suggestion which ought to be of interest to farmers everywhere: Messrs. McCullough and Goodyear are engaged in driving fence posts around a tract of land of 1,100 acres now being brought under cultivation by William B. Morris on the plateau across the Boise river, opposite the city. The posts are driven by means of a pile driver, which is placed upon the running gear of a wagon and drawn by two horses. The hammer weighs 480 pounds and has a fall of ten feet. With this weight and fall an average of four blows to the post is required to sink it to the depth of two and a half feet. In this way a force of three men succeeded in driving from 100 to 120 posts per day.

A SINGULAR duel occurred at Boston, England, a few days ago. An ass had been accustomed to visit one of his own kind, which grazed on a neighbor's land, an action looked upon with much disfavor by an old black ram which pastured in the same field. Accordingly he attacked the ass, goring him grievously, but the ass met his assaults with great courage, sprang about with great agility, and kicked him with great force. At last he seized the ram by the nose and shook him as a dog worries a rat, bit him about the neck repeatedly and left him weltering in his blood. The combat lasted nearly half an hour and the ram died soon after it ended.

CAUSES OF SUDDEN DEATH.—Very few of the sudden deaths which are said to arise from diseases of the heart do really arise from that cause. To ascertain the real origin sudden deaths, experiments have been tried in Europe and reported to a scientific congress held at Strasbourg. Sixty-six cases of sudden death were made the subject of a thorough post mortem examination. In these only two were found who had died from disease of the heart. Nine out of sixty-six had died of apoplexy, while there were forty-six cases of congestion of the lungs—that is the lungs were so full of blood that they could not work, there not being blood enough for a quantity of air to enter to support life. The causes that produce congestion of the lungs are cold feet, tight clothing, costive bowls, sitting still, chilled after being warmed with labor, or rapid walking, going too suddenly from close heated rooms into the cold air, especially after speaking, and sudden depressing news operating on the blood. The causes of sudden death being known, an avoidance of them may serve to lengthen many valuable lives which would otherwise be lost under the verdict "heart complaint." This disease is supposed to be inevitable and incurable; hence many do not take the pains they would do to avoid sudden death if they knew it lay it in their power.

THE telegraph sometimes makes amusing mistakes. Sir Arthur Kennedy is the Governor of the British Colony of Queensland. The other day the London papers contained a telegram announcing that "Lady Kennedy has given birth to twins, the eldest being a son." Subsequently somebody remembered that the Governor was a bachelor and that there is, therefore, no such person as Lady Kennedy. An explanation was demanded of the Reuter News Company, who produced the original telegram, in these words: "Governor of Queensland—twins; first son." This shedding no light upon the matter, inquiry was made, with the result that the original dispatch was found to be: "Governor of Queensland turns first sod," alluding to the beginning of a new railway in the Colony.

SARGENT'S bill for the sale of timber lands in California, Oregon and Washington Territory was reported from the Senate Committee with only one amendmendment, providing that the prescribed penalties shall take effect within ninety days, instead of one year, after its passage. The Committee did not insert any of the provisions suggested by the California delegation for the relief of parties indicted in California.

HOW A DAY IS GAINED AND LOST. Questions are frequently asked as to how a day is lost or gained in going around the world. Professor Davidson last evening gave a popular explanation of the phenomenon to the Academy of Sciences. He started a traveler westward from London, or rather from the meridian of Greenwich, precisely at noon, and he made him travel round the world at precisely the rate of speed that the earth carries us eastward in its daily whirl of 24 hours. The traveler is always in local time at meridian; he goes around the globe in twenty-four hours, and it is always noon with him. At New York his application of time agrees with the clocks of the city, but his watch, which was at 12 noon when he left London, is now 5 P. M. He goes still westward, and in longitude 120°, the border meridian of California and Nevada, he is still at noon locally, and his watch indicates Greenwich time to be 8 P. M. In longitude 180° the sun is at meridian, and his watch shows that the time occupied by his journey is 12 hours; and in the longitude of the Ganges 18 hours have elapsed; and continuing his transit to Greenwich he has still the sun in meridian, and finds that 24 hours have been lost. The rising and setting of the sun for one day has been witnessed by the people of London and not by the traveler. Actual time is the same, but in his case the division has not been marked. Going west at 180° degrees of longitude the navigator adds a day; if it is Friday, Saturday is skipped and Sunday is proclaimed to the consternation of the ship's parson, who is affrighted lest the prayers of the service may not have the same efficacy. Coming eastward a day is gained, and if it is Saturday when the meridian is reached Sunday is made into another Saturday, and Monday becomes Sunday. Care is always taken to avoid the conjunction of two Sundays, as that would demoralize any crew.—Scientific Press.

NAVAL HONORS TO A MOTHER-IN-LAW. Even in death a mother-in-law is sometimes troublesome. A gentleman, who has been spending the Winter at a village between Perpignan and Toulon, started for Marseilles three weeks ago, having under his charge the remains of his wife's mother, who had expressed a desire to be buried in the family vault near the sea. On arriving at Marseilles he went with the Commissioner of Police to receive the body from the railway officials, but noticed that the coffin was of different shape and construction from that which he had brought from home. It turned out that the officials had sent on to Toulon the coffin containing his mother-in-law's body believing that it held the the remains of a deceased admiral, which were to be embarked for interment in Algeria, while the coffin awaiting delivery was the one which should have been sent on. The mourner having requested the railway officials to communicate at once with Toulon by telegraph, proceeded thither himself with the coffin of the admiral, but the dispatch had arrived too late. He ascertained when he got there that the first coffin had been duly received, taken on board the State vessel which was waiting for it and dispatched to Algeria. He at once called upon the maritime prefect and explained the circumstances of the case, but though a dispatch boat was sent in pursuit, the other vessel was not overtaken. Acting upon the principle that an admiral in hand is worth a mother-in-law in the bush, he declined to give up the remains then in his possession until the authorities should produce the other corpse. He consoled himself, doubtless, with the thought that full naval and military honors had been paid to his wife's mother, for the remains had gone out of the harbor amid the thunder of fort and fleet.—Ex.

THE dulciphone, says the Cincinnati Commercial, is the latest invention. When held to the ear it converts the remark of a mother-in-law into a delicious four part song without words.

Prosperity in France.

The correspondent of the Philadelphia Press writes: "I have said that the exception to the wide-spread demoralization is France, and I believe it. Her experienca seems to have baffled precedent and prophecy. She seems to have survived most of the evils that have afflicted others. Attacked and beaten by an external foe, lacerated by savage internal fueds, betrayed by her rulers and worried by her aristocracy, she is paying off her war debt, keeping her credit high, personal and general, suffering but little from strikes among her work people, and in the midst of a great foreign conflict holding wholly aloof, and quietly founding a republic on safe and conservative principles. The boasted elements of strength in other countries she discards and succeeds by discarding. As a naval power she is relatively weak; as a colonial power she is far in the rear. She is untrammelled by free trade and flourishes by protection; she is untrammeled by the silver scare because she uses it herself and her best statesmen favor its remonetization. In a period of confessed mediocrity her poets are the best of modern life; her dramatists write the plays acted and too often stolen by the rest of mankind; her painters and sculptors are patronized and busy; her people happy, industrious and irugal, and in the midst of a universal panic she is building a vast universal exhibition, as if to show she is prospering while others are poor. Is not France the exception?"

UNITED STATES SURVEYOR GENERAL. In a former editorial we took occasion to denounce any system of economy that would make it more difficult for the actual settlers to obtain title to their lands. Since then, we have received a copy of bill which is entitled "A bill to provide for a more economic and accurate survey of the public lands." The bill retires all the Surveyor Generals, sixteen in number, and removes the records to Washington City. If the act had been called a bill to prevent the settlement of public lands in the Territories and new States, the title would have expressed a part of its meaning. The object of this measure is unmistakable—it is to build up and fatten the land lawyers in the city of Washington. And it would increase their business a thousand fold. The class of people who take up public lands in California attend their own titles, and if they employ a lawyer they watch him until the case is finished—they want to know when and how the work is done. Under this new law they must expend $400 or $500 in visiting the National Capitol, or pay a land shark as much as they pay for the land. The people of California are exerting themselves to settle the State with good people, and they are determined to see all the public lands in the hands of actual settlers. The passage of this bad bill would defeat their efforts, and put the settlers at the mercy of the land grabber—it would excite a holy wrath in a people who know how to make their anger felt. There is obscurity enough now about our land titles without making the matter worse, which this bill will certainly do. A system of economy which breeds lawsuits and increases court fees, etc., is simply theft under a new name. If the bill passes, the settler may expect to be plundered. We propose to watch officials hereafter—we can watch those in the State but we cannot watch those in Washington.—Sacramento Bee.

WEAK LANGUAGES DYING OUT.—A revival of national pride in Belgium has led to the introduction of a bill in the National Legislature to make Flemish the language of the official records instead of French, which has been used since the Belgium monarchy was founded in 1830. The Flemish, a Teutonic tongue, bearing a resemblance to the Dutch, is spoken by 2,660,000 out of 5,300,000 in the Kingdom, and while a smaller speak French, this minority includes all the officials and the educated and wealthy people. The Flemish is dying out and the French is spreading; the Flemish has a very poor and French a very rich literature; Flemish is of no use out of Belgium and French is valuable everywhere; and the substitution of the former for the latter under such circumstances would be decidedly unwise. It looks now as if Russian, German, French, Italian and Spanish were enough tongues for Continental Europe, and there is a strong tendency among the Italians and Spaniards to depend upon France for their literature. The weak tongues, as well as the dialects, are dying out under the influence of the Press, railroads and general intelligence.—Alta.

IMMIGRANTS COMING.—A gentleman who arrived here yesterday from the East, via the 35th parallel route, says he passed more than 500 people coming this way. A great many people are also en route from California, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, Washington and other States and Territories with the intention of settling in middle and northern Arizona. We will not go beyond proper bounds when we say that the population of Yavapai, Yuma, Mohave, Pinal and Maricopa counties is now double what it was two years ago, and that in less than six months Yavapai will have a population of 25,000 souls. The population of Pima county is also on the increase. A cheerfng sign of the times, truly, and one which brings along the sure hope that Arizona's apprenticeship as a Territory is almost ended.—Arizona Enterprise.

JOHNNIE lost his knife. After searching in one pocket and another until he had been through all without success, he exclaimed: "Oh, dear, I wish I had another pocket, it might be in that."

A GHASTLY EXPERIENCE.—G. W. Wright, President of the State Bank of Nevada, had a rather ghastly experience on his recent trip from San Francisco. Just after starting out a tramp's legs were cut off, the result of an attempt to steal a ride; between Lathrop and Sacramento a sick man on board the train yielded up the ghost; after leaving Sacramento a son of Wm. M. Evarts, Secretary of State, died, he being a victim to consumption. The remains of the two latter were carried on through to the Eastern States. He had just arrived in Eureka when the crack of the playful pistol announced that another tragedy was in progress, and he saw the body of Botto borne past to his residence. Thinking that there might be some fatality attending his journey, and fearing that his arrival in Pioche would be the signal for a general immolation of the inhabitants, he has tarried with us. His trip was a cumulative chapter of ghastly experiences.—Eureka Sentinel.

HON. THOS. FITCH is in possession of the only office printing machine known to us in Arizona. It is a very handsome piece of office furniture; does not take up much room; is easily run and prints much faster than the fastest writer can write; then the ink is suitable for manifold paper, so that from one printed copy several copies can be taken. In front of the operator are keys representing the alphabet, each one of which when pressed by a finger elevates a steel spring and letter, which makes its impression on the paper. The movements of the machine are perfect. When the end of the line is reached, warning thereof is given by the ringing of a small bell, and the operator can divide a word on a syllable, whenever that operation becomes necessary.—Arizona Enterprise.

FROM various parts of the State the crop reports are of the most cheering character. Never has the grain given greater assurance of a large yield, except where the overflow has disappointed the farmer by not only drowning out his crops of wheat, barley and alfalfa, but remaining so long on the soil as to prevent, in some cases, a reseeding and a late crop. But in many cases the water passed off in season to allow a re-sowing. In most cases where the overflow has destroyed the grain, there will be raised good crops of vegetables; and so, although some have been very badly injured by the piling up of the waters, the many and the State generally will, from present appearances, realize greatly from the abundant rains.—Alta.

"Well, Colonel, you dined with the Governor yesterday; who was there?" said one Kentuckian to another. "Well, sir," replied the Colonel, throwing back his head, digging his hands deep in his trowsers pockets and spreading wide his legs, "there was me, sir, and besides myself there were four other high-toned elegant gentlemen from Kentucky, a gentleman from Virginia, two men from Ohio, a fellow from New York, and a son of a gun from Boston, sir. Will you take a drink, sir?"

A man of wealth and prominence at Fort Worth, Texas, recently forged a signature to a bond. A good-hearted doctor and several other friends testified that the man was insane; but the Judge held that crazy or not crazy the man must be held to answer for his crooked conduct. If this ruling is to prevail in Courts insane men will soon be deprived of all just rights to commit crime, and efforts to prove an alibi of the mind will be useless.—New Orleans Picayune.

ABOUT the time barometers became so cheap as to induce agriculturalists to purchase them, a farmer in Kilbride having been persuaded to become the possessor of an instrument. On one occasion, in spite of a rising barometer it continued raining; the farmer losing all patience, carried the instrument to the door, held it up towards the sky, and exclaimed: "In the name of guidness, will you no believe your ain een?"

THE Shah of Persia is again to visit Europe. When there before, he made many blunders. On his visit to the Tower of London, he shook hands with a lacquey, termed a Beef-Eater, instead of with the constable, and when a million sterling was placed into his hands by the Governor of the Bank of England, he put the notes in his pocket, imagining they were a gift.

A CORRESPONDENT asks: "What is th best method of feeding cattle in Winter." We don't exactly know. One man might prefer to take the ox in his lap and feed him with a spoon. Others would bring him into the dining room and let him sit at the table with the old folks. Taste differs in matters of this kind.

A VERY remarkable fact is mentioned with Edison's phonograph. A lady in New York sang a verse of "God Save the Queen," which was recorded by the phonograph and the tin-foil sent to England. The tune was there reproduced, even with a false note which the singer had given.

TERRIBLE FIGHT BETWEEN STALLIONS. One night last week a son of F. G. Brush, who owns a large farm near Birmingham, came home at a late hour and when stabling a stallion forgot to tie him in his stall, as customary. After consuming the feed in the stall, the stallion wandered out into the stable, and finally attacked his mate, a stallion which was tied in a stall close by. The imprisoned beast endeavored to break loose so as to defend himself, and making a spring to jump through a manger door before him, the top of which was let down, was caught in the halter and thrown on the floor. The other stallion now pounced upon him with his sharp iron hoofs, and sank his teeth into the flesh of the prostrate beast, which fought back as well as he could in his narrow stall. The struggle continued until the prostrate stallion was exhausted, and the other left him for dead. As soon as found in the morning he was dragged out almost lifeless, his fine and smooth hair all chopped and bitten up, and presenting a horrible sight. The floor of the stall was wet with blood, which also clung to the sides of the stall.—Detroit Fress.

A Connecticut Jonathan, in taking a walk with his dearest, came to a toll-bridge, when he, as honest as he was wont to be, said, after paying his own toll (which was one cent): "Come, Suke, you must pay your own toll, for just as like as not I shan't have you after all."

A BOY stood curiously watching the pea-nut man as he methodically turned the crank of his roaster. After expectantly waiting until patience ceased to be a virtue, the unsophisticated son of the soil blurted out: "Hullo, you feller, who don't you play suthin'?"

PUBLISHING THE DELINQUENTS.—The Idaho Avalanche and Coso News have adopted and are carrying out the plan of publishing the names of such of their debtors as seem determined to swindle them out of their rightful dues, and the latter paper thinks it a method all newspapers, particularly of the country, ought to indorse and adopt for the mutual and individual good. As for our own part, we can say that in a few instances, if not many, we would have been fully justified in thus exposing dead beats who evidently intended from the first to perpetrate a swindle upon us; and if we could only be sure that such was the intention of delinquents nothing would give us greater pleasure than to give them the benefit of advertising their true character, as advocated by the two papers referred to; but in more than one instance in our experience time showed that we had wrongly judged more than one of these supposed swindlers, for they "came to the center," and, as was evident, had only delayed in doing so because they could do no better, to put it short. Now we would rather lose a number of such bills than to have done one "poor but honest" man, in intent, the injustice of publishing him as a fraud, a bilk, a swindler or whatever term of opprobium may represent the true character of the man who will purposely defraud anybody out of their rightful dues. These exceptional cases having shown that we were very liable to do some honest men among the list of supposed thieves a great wrong, we have never thought it best to adopt the plan proposed, although we feel very much like doing so in certain aggravated cases, where we feel sure carelessness or constitutional meanness rather than poverty induces these delinquents to hold back what they know is justly ours. It is not at all improbable that we may not one of these days give some of these fellows the benefit of one of these personals advocated by our cotemporaries.

THE end to the career of the notorious abortionist, Mme. Restell, says the New York Herald, is as fitting as it is tragic. The lifeless body with the gashed throat, lying in the gorgeously frescoed bath room, conveys its own terrible lesson. Thirty years ago she passed twelve months in nominal imprisonment on Blackwell's Island, and from that time until a few weeks ago enjoyed immunity from the law. It was natural that this long reversal of justice should have made her think that she stood charmed amid judicial terrors, and that the shock of a vigorous prosecution should have overwhelmed her mental resources. The money she had amassed seemed at the last to have lost its enfranchising power, and she died by her own hand in despair, amid the mocking splendors of the mansion she had built on the proceeds of her crimes.

COL. O. L. SHEPHERD, of Newport, R. I., Architect Officer United States Army, has been tried by court-martial for neglecting to pay over a fund contributed by brother officers in 1864 for a monument on Stone river battle ground, and President Hayes has approved the sentence, which is that Shepherd shall be confined within the limits of the post of Fort Adams for one year, and thereafter until the money, $1,903, with interest from 1864, shall be paid. Col. Shepherd has been put under arrest.

GERMANY has not only refused Russia's request to guarantee the neutrality of Austria in the event of war, but it is further reported to have declared that she is prepared to interfere if any attempt is made to hinder Austria from protecting her own interests.

TIME FOR ACTION.

On the 19th of June, less than two months from date, an important election is to be held throughout the State; in view of certain current facts to be referred to presently, probably the most important election ever held in the State. This, of course, refers to the selection of men whose duty it will be to frame a new State Constitution.

The necessity of making careful selections of such delegates lies in the fact that at this moment there are no less than three distinct and antagonistic political elements now on the list to contend for the right to frame this fundamental instrument each in accordance with its own particular views. These elements are: The Great Corporation, Kearneyism and the PEOPLE, as in contradistinction to both the others.

From present appearances it is not impossible that the first two—in other words, money and communism—will so far overslaugh the third as to leave it practically out of the fight. That will depend entirely upon the conservatism and the better sense of the people of the outside counties, those not immediately within the influence of the contending head centers at the metropolis. There, and in many of the railroad counties adjacent, the people's cause, pure and simple, will cut but a sorry figure, if any at all. There it will be either King Kearney or King Stanford. Elsewhere in all these outside counties it need be neither, but the PEOPLE, if the people desire so to have it. And if they do so choose, then the balance of power will rest in their hands, and a wholesome, certainly a greatly needed, check will be placed upon the two extreme factions who are contending for the mastery.

But it may be that we will be compelled, after all, to make our choice between the two Kings—between which, as two evils, we must choose for the least. When it comes to that, it will be incomprehensible to us if the choice is not immeasurably in favor of King Stanford, though that name does stand as the synonym of "grinding railroad monopolies;" such monopolies are capable of great wrong upon communities and upon the State at large, to be sure, but with all that it is impossible they should not render something like compensation in some other direction. But not so with this Workingmen's move, so far as indicated by the repeatedly announced intentions and principles, or lack of principles, of the acknowledged leaders. Indeed we would just as soon see this Parisian cutthroat commune, Megy, now in the city of New York, casting eager glances at San Francisco for a chance to make blue blood run its streets as he did in Paris—we would just as soon see this Megy and his kind installed in supreme power at once in this State as either of that precious triumvirate, Kearney, Wellock or Knight, whom we are compelled to recognize as the head and front, the controlling power, of the so-called Workingmen's party.

True, the better elements of that party occasionally, but only as individuals, endeavor to draw a clear distinction between Kearneyism and the principles of the Workingmen's party; and it is true there is a vast difference in favor of the published platform of the party and the sayings and doings of its President. But it is also true that neither Kearney's sayings or doings has ever to our knowledge been formally repudiated by a single Workingman's Club in the State. Over the whole he seems to reign as absolutely as does the General of the Jesuits over the Jesuits. Why, right here in our neighboring counties of Kern and Tulare we find at least two newspapers, the Courier-Californian and the Visalia Delta, papers of more or less local influence, open supporters of Kearney and his lieutenants; both take especial pains to do honor to one of the worst of the trio, H. L. Knight, Secretary of the Workingmen's State organization, ex-editor of the Jolly Giant, ex-editor of the Visalia Delta, now visiting those counties to agitate and organize in the Kearney interest. These facts, all considered, leave us no choice but to accept Kearney as the Workingmen's actual mouth piece; renders obvious the fact that that party is likely to become an element of sufficient strength to make it a source of possible danger in the formation of this new Constitution; shows conclusively that in this contest we must choose between Kearneyism, with all the dangers to equal rights that "ism" implies, on the one side, and as the next most powerful party in interest the "railroad" or moneyed powers on the other. At least we are so told in effect by the Kearney papers, who seem to think that course will compel people to take sides with them as the lesser of the two evils. We beg leave to say, anti-monopolist as we are, and have always been, that in our candid conviction the cause of the monopolist becomes in such a contingency as above marked out, the cause of the people—that it is infinitely less dangerous to the rights, to the property surely, the lives of the people as a mass. This contingency signifies that Democrats and Republicans, as such, will have to make common cause against a common enemy, to-wit: King Kearney and his platform of hemp and petroleum, let the railroad or corporation question take what place or phase it may in the contest.

At all events, the situation is such that we take the liberty to propose that members of the two County Central Committees immediately take into consideration the propriety of calling their respective committee's together at as early a date as may be, with a view of selecting a committee of conference to determine upon the propriety of holding or not holding separate party nominating conventions, or of making one joint convention do for both. Also, to the people at large the propriety of casting about at once for a suitable representative to this Constitutional Convention.

THE CLERGY AND KEARNEYISM.

A short time since Archbishop Alemany issued a letter of advice to all members of his church, as well as all good citizens irrespective of church affiliations, Catholic or otherwise, warning them against Kearneyism, to put it briefly. At the succeeding sand lot meeting the letter from the Archbishop was sharply denounced by Kearney, the immediate result being that many of those in attendance left the ground, while the subsequent effect has told steadily against the influence of the crazy simpleton who assumes to be the head and front of the Workingmen's party. While it is reasonable to assume that religious reverence to the desires and the advice of the Archbishop has had much to do in influencing the withdrawal of many of Kearney's supporters, yet the good effect is by no means confined to that cause alone. The Archbishop's language is convincing of itself as to the evils of the course marked out by the Kearneyites, while, aside from that, it seems that he is a man who, in all his private relations, commands the very highest esteem from all who know him, no matter what their religious leanings. Such being the case, it is by no means surprising that Kearney's defiance of, and insinuations against the Archbishop should cause quite a general feeling of indignation against him (Kearney) and has done much to weaken his weakening cause. To show in what spirit the Archbishop's letter was received we append some of the resolutions adopted without a dissenting voice at a meeting of the 11th Ward Workingman's Club on the night of the 10th inst.:

WHEREAS, The clergy of the city have made common cause with the capitalists, land grabbers and political thieves to break up this movement, be it

Resolved, That we stand shoulder to shoulder in this movement until death or victory is the result. Be it further

Resolved, That we would suggest to the Rev. Archbishop Alemany to look after his spiritual affairs, and not this movement of ours.

And then says the dispatch a committee of three was appointed to wait upon the Archbishop and ascertain if he employs Chinese servants, and if he does and will not discharge them, to inform him that he will be put on the black list. During the meeting of the Club the Archbishop was repeatedly made the object of the grossest insults by the language of members. It was decided that hereafter the meetings of the Club should be secret to enable them to more effectually provide for organized resistance to the Vigilance Committee which is supposed to be in existence.

A NOTE from a member of the Wheeler Surveying Expedition informs the Virginia Enterprise of the death of Dr. F. Kampf, Astronomer of the Expedition, which took place in Washington three weeks ago. The Dr., if we remember names rightly, is the same genial old gsntleman who had his astronomical station for some weeks at Camp Independence when the Expedition was here the first time. At all events, deceased is said to have been one of the most learned mathematicians of the age, yet with all his learning, he failed to correctly calculate the radius of a mule's hind leg, having received a kick in the forehead from one of those treacherous brutes at Ogden last Fall, which finally caused his death. No doubt he could have told exactly how far off to stand to clear the sweep of a comet's tail, but high mathematics seem to be no safeguard when a government mule's tail becomes an initial point in a distance problem.

AN exchange puts the following query: If, according to Alexander H. Stephens' new system of weights and measures, 100 seeds make one corn, how many seeds make a bunion? If 100 corns make a nut, how many corns make a peanut? Again, if 100 nuts make a bip, how many nuts make a biped? Moreover, nevertheless, notwithstanding, if 100 nails make one meter, how many will it take to make one meet her by moonlight alone?

Confession of One of the Murderers.

Following is the confession of Jesse M. Jones, one of the San Buenaventura murderers, who turned State's evidence, the confession together with the introductory remarks being reported by the Santa Barbara Press:

When Jesse M. Jones was called from the prisoner's row to take his place on the witness stand a tremor ran through the guilty men. Jones himself trembled and shook so he could hardly stand, and with difficulty gave his testimony. Churchill heard it all with his face turned to the wall. The others with bowed heads heard their evil course retraced by the trembling lips of a former associate. Sprague, however, soon recovered, and made notes of the testimony as it fell from Jones' lips.

Jones testified as to the preliminaries, and finally coming down to the tale of getting down to the time of getting back of the willows, went on:

Sprague, Churchill, McCart, Lord, Hunt, Curlee and myself were there. The others who had agreed to meet us did not come, so at last Sprague said, "Let's go; we've got force enough to get away with him." Curlee and McCart came on foot, the rest on horseback. At Sprague's request we mounted our horses—Sprague, Hunt, Lord, Curlee and myself. We rode across the river, and came to an elder bush and tied our horses there, and went on foot from there to the house. Sprague, Churchill and I came up behind the barn. Sprague had a ball—I think a barley sack—rolled up and saturated with kerosene. He also had a handful of dry-wood with a string tied around it. He went up behind the barn and laid the ball on the ground close to the barn. Then he put the wood over it and set it on fire. We then left the barn and went around on the south side of it; then went behind the granary where the rest of the crowd were. When the barn was burning and made a roaring noise it woke the people in the house. Mr. More came to the door and then ran to the barn. Ferguson and two or three others followed him. They went into the barn and commenced turning the horses loose. The crowd ran from behind the granary to the door of the house, then went a few steps toward the barn. More came out of the barn calling for a knife. Some one then shot at him. The men who were with him called to More "Run, or you will be killed!" At that moment I would have given my life to be away from there. More started and ran. As he ran somebody shot him in the legs. I saw him put his hands behind him and run as if he was badly hurt. Sprague and Curlee followed after him. The others went to the southeast corner of the corral. Churchill ran from there to where More had fallen. Sprague and Curlee were shooting at him. He was partly lying down, resting himself on his hand. He put up his other hand and said, "For God's sake, don't shoot any more; I am dead now," or words like that. He then fell back on the ground. Churchill had reached him by this time, and, as I thought, shot him in the head. It looked so from where I stood. Sprague said, "Come on, boys; let's go." The three men who were beside More came towards the corral where the rest of us were standing on the south side. We then started northeasterly, going between the house and shop. We were getting somewhat ahead of Sprague, when he called to hold on, he could not travel, and said, "If any of you start to run I will shoot you." Some of the crowd said, "We will stay with you." I was ahead of the crowd at the time. We went on as fast as we could until we got to where our horses were. We then got on them. Churchill and McCart went ahead, as they were afoot, and we went behind them to blot out their tracks as much as possible. Curlee and I had shot-guns when we came to the cottonwood tree. I also had a large pistol. Sprague had a shot-gun; also a Spencer carbine belonging to Lord. He said he brought the carbine, so that in case any one did not have a gun he might take it. Curlee left his shot-gun at the tree and took the Spencer carbine. Lord had a long needle gun. Churchill had a shot-gun. Sprague had a shot-gun; also a large pistol. I don't remember the kind of gun McCart had. Hunt had a Henry rifle. I don't recollect that Lord had a pistol, but he almost always carried one. Those are all the arms I know of. Curlee had a pocket pistol smaller than Lord's. The Henry rifle which Hunt had was the only Henry rifle in the crowd, unless McCart had one. I am positive that Hunt had a Henry rifle. Hunt shot from the southeast corner of the corral where we stood. Am not positive that he shot more than once. More got out of the corral from the north side of the barn, and ran from there in a southwesterly direction about 100 or 200 yards. Sprague and Curlee followed up from the north side of the barn. Churchill ran on the south side.

Death of William M. Tweed.

Tweed died in Ludlow street jail, New York, on the 12th at 12 o'clock. He was attended by Dr. Carnochan; Mr. Douglas, his son-in-law; Foster Dewey, his secretary; and Edelstein, of his counsel. All hope of his recovery was abandoned soon after 11 o'clock, when Dr. Carnochan announced a clogging of the heart and complete nervous prostration. At the time of his death there was no struggle, as he passed away in sleep, with his head lying upon his arm. Keeper Kiernin was hurriedly summoned three minutes before noon, and reaching Tweed's room, the noon signal rang out, and the long-imprisoned old man dropped back dead in his bed. His last words to Dr. Carnochan were: "I have tried to do some good. If I have not had good luck, I am not afraid to die. I believe the Guardian——."

GRAND MUSICAL FESTIVAL.—Extensive preparations are being made for the grand musical festival to take place at the Mechanic's Pavilion, San Francisco, beginning May 28, to continue three days. Among the notable singers who are to take part we note the names of Miss Annie Louise Cary, M. W. Whitney, Helen Ames Billings, Miss Abbie Clark and W. H. Fessenden, renowned oratorio tenor. THE YOUNG SCIENTIST.—This is the title of a new magazine for young people, published by the Industrial Publication Co., of New York. The price is 50 cents a year. A GOOD WAY.—Says the Coso News: In the matter of nominating delegates to be voted for at the election in June next for members of the Constitutional Convention to assemble in September, the following call, signed by the leading men of five counties, has been issued in Colusa county. We reproduce it, for the reason that we believe it is a very good and fair way, and may suggest an idea to people of this county and Mono in the selection of one delegate to represent these two counties, as also them in connection wtih other counties in this Congressional District, in selecting delegates at large:

"To the voters of the Third Congressional District: A general desire having been expressed of divesting the election of delegates to the Constitutional Convention of all party politics, and of selecting such men as may best represent the interests of the conservative voters and the taxpayers of all parties, the undersigned hereby request the voters of the Third Congressional District to send delegates to a convention to be held at the city of Marysville on Tuesday, May 14th, 1878, for the purpose of recommending eight candidates from the district to the conservative voters of the State."

Von Schmidt and Rosecrans are two candidates pushed warmly. A member of the delegation said that so far the Administration had disregarded the wishes of Congressmen in nearly every appointment made, and he did not anticipate this would be an exception to the past experience of the delegation.

ASSESSMENT NOTICE.

KEARSARGE MILL AND MINING COMPANY. Location of principal place of business, San Francisco, California. Location of works, Kearsarge mining district, Inyo county, California.

Notice is hereby given, that at a meeting of the Board of Trustees, held on the Thirteenth day of April, 1878, an assessment (No. 2) of fifty cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately, in United States gold coin, to the Secretary, at the office of the company, northwest corner of South and Howard streets, San Francisco, California.

Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on the 18th day of May, 1878, will be delinquent and advertised for sale at public auction; and unless payment is made before, will be sold on Monday, the 10th day of June, 1878, to pay the delinquent assessment together with costs of advertising and expenses of sale.

By order of the Board of Trustees.

JOHN CALVERT, Secretary.

SATURDAY, APRIL 20.....1878.

FROM STOCKTON.—Mr. John Shepherd has just returned from Stockton, bringing thence for his own use a family carriage and team, both of such superior qualities as to be sure to attract the attention of all parties wishing to obtain such outfits, particularly good carriages or buggies that will hold together in this hot and extremely dry climate. By way of description we shall only say that the vehicle is Stockton built, and is of the latest and most approved style of side springs, handsome, but plain straight body, two-seated carriage, with strength and stowage room, aside from the seats, enough for an averaged sized Western family, possible future additions, of course, not counted—it would be unreasonable to ask any Stockton family carriage builder to take such uncertain future quantites of that sort into estimates for contingent stowage capacity of family gohicles; and that, we suspect, is one reason why Jim Shepherd is waiting for the "sweet by and by," to determine, roughly like, about what tonnage measurement his rising family may need in an institution on wheels. We only surmise this last part from analagous cases we have heard of in other countries, assuming no part, as alleged against Jeems, to be nearer than three-quarters of a mile to actual truth, he being a peace loving single man, albeit of an undefined future before him.

CHANGE OF SUPERINTENDENTS. — Mr. John Hudgins arrived here Wednesday to assume the superintendency of the Rex Montis mill and mines, vice Mr. Jas. Hutchings, who tendered his resignation some weeks ago with the view of accepting a similar, but to himself, more promising position at Bodie. Mr. Hudgins is quite well acquainted with his new charge, having constructed the new mill as it stands, and is moreover, as we understand, essentially a practical mining and business man as well as a mechanic. With regard to the first two important qualifications, however, we have no reason to assume that he has any advantage, except, perhaps, in more varied experience, over the late Superintendent, Mr. Hutchings. Next to the stockholders themselves, this locality feels the importance of having this property under competent superintendency, hence this reference, to which we will add that we are quite well satisfied from observation and inquiry that the property is in the control of a man who will do it full justice in all respects. Mr. Hutchings, who has already surrendered charge here, expects to start immediately for his new scene of operations, which, we hope, may fulfil his highest anticipations in every way.

THE BOUNDARY SURVEY. — County Surveyor Seeley is about ready to start out with four assistants, to meet the San Bernardino Surveyor and outfit at Borax Lake, then to begin running the intermediate boundary thence eastward to the State line, as proposed to San Bernardino county by our Supervisors some months ago. This will determine which of the two County Assessors will have the best right to demand road and other taxes from the honest miners at Resting Springs and other distant corners of the earth located away out there on the desert, belonging no one can now say to which county. But in any case, seeing that those camps are but little or no less than about two hundred miles from the populated centers of either county, it is not extremely likely that the taxpayer there will come out with his road and other taxes with such frightful alacrity as some folks might think, no matter which Assessor gratifies him with the invitation. With the survey of this southern line the entire boundary of Inyo will be surveyed except the western one along the summit of the Sierras.

AFTER 'EM.—We mentioned a short time ago that as soon as our battery of Gatling guns arrived a member of this institution would take the war path after delinquent subscribers. Pursuant to this plan, our junior in company with, if not in charge of, Sheriff Moore started off northward last Monday, since which, all the lines being down, we can't say how goes the battle. As the Sheriff is after jurymen and the other gentleman after delinquents we fancy most everybody up that way will be particularly delighted to see 'em stay—away. If this battery proves of no avail in the field, as is probable, we hope still to get our money back on it through using it on merchants, beef men and sich, as a means to secure a reasonable extension of credit, war exigencies demanding extreme measures these days.

WILL FIND A BIGGER ONE.—A friend up at Cerro Gordo, referring to our article about that "little hill back of Lone Pine," says that if we want him to he will find a taller one than that (Fisherman's Peak) one of these days. Well, if he will find it, climb it and name it in letters of brass, so the next Legislature won't call it Fowler's Peak, we should be pleased to have him proceed; otherwise, otre de mode.

CHANGE OF BASE.—Paul W. Bennett, Esq., has decided to establish his law office in Aurora, Nevada, instead of Bodie, as contemplated a short time ago. As soon as his dwelling, in course of construction, is finished, Mrs. Bennett will also take up her residence at Aurora, and thus our social circles here will lose one of its most highly esteemed members. But so wags the world.

AFTER HIM.—If we are not mislead as to the identity of the individual, our well known ex-Inyoite, Al. Briggs, has rendered himsel so obnoxious to some Kearneyites up in Tuscarora, Nevada, that they have recently made two decided efforts to burn up his store, and were very nearly successful both times.

COHN'S.—C. & M. Cohn are rapidly filling up their exceedingly fine new store-room and new store in this place with goods and groceries of all descriptions required for this trade, and have got things in ship shape for the reception of a multiplicity of cash customers, if any of that partioular sort can be scared up conveniently. Meyer Cohn, leastways the one that don't have any wife and twins, runs this establishment, with Jerome Coldren for first officer, while C. Cohn, the one that does have the nicest twins and wife, too, we'd say if it wasn't liable to excite somebody's jealousy, will continue in charge of the old establishment in Lone Pine. The married society here would, no doubt, have prefered to have had this order reversed for the reasons given, whereas, on the other hand, the unmarried, on account of the first fact stated, are, possibly, better satisfied as it is, all of which has a tendency to show that it is no easy thing to please everybody except in the matter of goods, as may be seen by going to the new store hereinbefore alluded to.

THE DESERT LAND CANALS.—Mr. D. E. Hunter furnishes us the following approximate statement of the acreage of grease wood and sagebrush desert land being seeded, and to be watered from the only "desert land canals" so far completed in the valley. These two canals run parallel to each other, and quite close together; but the larger, having a capacity of about 5,000 inches, takes water from the river just above the Bishop Creek bridge, the other being supplied from the Fish Slough springs. The latter is known as the Rickey ditch, the first as the McNally. Under the Rickey ditch, Rickey & Hunter will seed 100 acres, and A. Johnson 30 acres, mostly grease wood land, and unpromising enough in looks; under the McNally ditch, Alexander & Owen have 60 acres, Stewart & McCarty 50, Jas. Turner 40, and Mr. Parker 20 acres. Assuming fair success this year, next there will be not less than four times the above total of acres seeded, much of it, however, in alfalfa.

WEATHER.—For the past eight days the weather has been frosty and disagreeable generally, a strong west wind blowing most of the time. Ice froze half an inch thick two nights in succession, and as a matter of course destroyed a great deal of young fruit and garden stuff, much of which had got pretty well advanced through the effects of the preceding Summer-like weather. We are told that the snow storm on Monday night and morning extended clear below the Lake, falling at the Lake perhaps to six inches in depth, though melting nearly as fast as it fell. Altogether the weather clerk has not administered affairs for several days past in a manner to be at all satisfactory to gardeners and such, save that the continued additions to the mountains of snow on the mountains give double assurance for the greatest abundance of water all the Summer through.

THE KEARSARGE.—By notice elsewhere it will be seen that the Kearsarge company have just levied assessment No. 2 of 50 cents per share. Supt. Gray, who was down from the mine a day or two since, reports the weather worse upon him and all hands than at any previous time this Winter. The tunnel is now in nearly five hundred feet, heretofore all the way in solid granite, but now in quartzite or some such rock, showing such a change as to give the highest hope of soon striking the ledge; but if not struck sooner the tunnel will be driven at least 500 feet further, and in view of that possibility and determination this assessment has been ordered. Mr. Gray most surely deserves success, and we have good grounds to believe he will win it.

NOT GONE YET.—Owing to the weather as well as accumulated work, Kemp's gallery still remains with us. We are pleased to say his work has given the highest satisfaction, and we can cheerfully commend him and his work to the Cerro Gordoites, whom he will next visit, and all others who want good pictures of themselves or views. He has taken some superb pictures of about every prominent or noted building in this place, most of which are to be engraved and electrotyped for business purposes, as suggested by us last week.

THE BLUE RIBBON.—We learn that this new temperance move is making headway in this county as well as elsewhere in this State. So far, however, the only locality in Inyo where the move is becoming a notable success is at Bishop, where some forty or fifty persons, many of them original Good Templars, now sport the blue badge. If we were not afraid it might be considered personal by a certain Revenue Collector, we'd say there's lots more of them up that way that might don this sort of a ribbon to advantage.

RETIRED FROM PRACTICE.—Dr. S. A. Middleton, the favorite and very successful physician of Bishop Creek, has announced his intention of retiring from the practice of his profession—a fact which will be much regretted there. We learn of two difficult, but entirely successful, surgical operations he has performed there, but the doctor complains of failing eyesight, and that a rest is a case more of necessity than real disposition.

TEACHER'S REPORT.—Following are the totals shown in Mrs. Lowe's report for the Independence school for the six months' term ending March 22: Whole number of days attendance, 4,282; days absence, 216; tardinesses, 1 1; whole number boys enrolled, 30; girls, 28; average number belonging, 38; average daily attendance, 36; percentage of attendance, 95.

SNOW.—We learn from Mr. D. B. Curtis that at his place, fifteen miles north of this place, the snow fell to a depth of four inches on a level last Monday morning.

LETTER FROM LONE PINE.

LONE PINE, April 18.

MESSRS. EDITORS—The future success of the Lone Pine Dramatic Society is an assured fact. On the evening of the 13th inst. the society gave their first public entertainment to a crowded house, which repeatedly showed its approval and appreciation by frequent applause. The acting of Mr. E. E. Steers as "John Oldacre;" Miss Ida McCall as "Mrs. Oldacre;" Mamie Ball as "Rosa," and Zelia Meysan as "Laura," in the "Oddity," was really good. And in the farce of "His Last Legs." Prof. Cooper as "O'Callaghan," and Mrs. Co per as "Mrs. Montague," was better than anything we have had since the Wilton troupe played some three years ago. Mr. J. J. Stewart as "Mr. Rivers;" Eddie Eames as "Charles," and Minnie Lasky as "Miss Julia," in the same piece were also well acted. In fact, all who took part deserve mention. Considering that it was their first appearance (except Mr. and Mrs. Cooper) it was surprising that they played so well. I believe that the society intend to give entertainments every two weeks in the old corner saloon building, where they have fitted up a permanent stage, etc. Mr. and Mrs. Cooper deserve our thanks for their exertions in getting up these entertatnments, as it serves greatly to relieve the monotony to which all small towns are subject.

What a blessing it would be to us Lone Piners if somebody would invest $15,000 or $20,000 in an irrigating ditch? It is easily demonstrated that it would be a paying investment, and how it is that some outside capitalist has not attempted it before this is a mystery.

The subscription here to the catfish fund was pretty generally signed, and we hope that the scheme will prove such a success that we can soon have our catfish and perch for breakfast, dinner and supper.

By the way, the idea is abroad that it is hardly safe for a stranger to come to Lone Pine; that the community consists of desperadoes; that a man is liable to be hung by a mob, etc., etc. I do not mean that this view is held by Inyoites, but in conversation with parties from San Francisco I learned that this was the general impression among many people throughout the State. Now, this is all nonsense. There is not a more quiet, orderly, law abiding town in the State than Lone Pine, and if outsiders would only inquire into the facts of the recent killing, they would learn that in the absence of regular officers the citizens were compelled to take upon themselves the duty of arresting a couple of murderers, and they found it impossible to take them alive. Our town is now thoroughly cleansed of that element, and peace and quiet reign. BUSTER.

Appreciative.

The following from the Arizona Sentinel shows that the can appreciate a practical man down in that country:

The bullion received by Collingwood & Co. and stated to be from Townsend & Co., should have been credited to Capt. Eudey, Superintendent of the Miami Mill Company. The Captain arrived here with the ore on his way to San Francisco. When he came into the district the furnaces were a perfect failure, but being rebuilt with brick are now a success. By adding to the mill concentrators they will be able to work most of the ores of the district, which is sure to be done at no distant day. The mill can't fail being a great success under the management of a practical man like the Captain.

We learn incidentally that there is a slight probability that Capt. Eudey, who is now in San Francisco, may again be placed in charge of the Eclipse property here, in which case we will venture to say the Eclipse property will be made a success. We certainly, for obvious reasons, hope such an arrangement will be effected, otherwise the chances are, the Eclipse mill is not likely to run a wheel again for many a day.

ACCIDENT. — Receiver Thos. May, while playing carpenter around the new carriage shed in course of construction alongside of his livery stable, was a day or two ago thrown from a scaffolding in such a manner that a sharp-cornered board cut about a two inch gash in his forehead. Fortunately, though, like beauty, it is only skin deep, and does not disable him at all. Still, when a stranger comes to town and casts a glance at him, he inquires "if there's been much of a row here lately."

FREIGHTS.—Some three weeks since the Cerro Gordo Freighting Company reduced freights from San Francisco to this point from 4 to 3¾ cents. We are not advised as to whether a similar reduction has been made in favor of other localities or not, but presume it likely. This, of course, is good for the merchants, if not consumers, but it is likely to prove disastrous to all the independent teamsters, who rarely have back loads to help them keep up expenses.

THE FROST.—The junior writes that from Big Pine northward this miserably cold spell has destroyed all the budding fruit and sprouted garden stuff. Thos. Bell and W. A. Baker at Big Pine are sufferers by loss of prospective fruit at least $2,000 in the aggregate. Round Valley has no fruit trees to get nipped, and is therefore very happy, so long as they can keep the babies a-kickin'.

GETTING DOWN ORE.—Mr. Wheeler, of the Swansea company, has teams now at work in getting down ore from the Ygnacio mine, Cerro Gordo, to the furnace at Swansea, which old institution will soon be in full operation again.

FOR A TEST.—The "Red Rock" (the late discovery at Bishop) company want to get ten tons of ore reduced at some mill as a working test.

LETTER FROM ROUND VALLEY.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Having no time or talent to consult the muses—no capacity for grinding you a batch of poetry on the "ethereal mildness of Spring"—allow me to inform you prosaically that we are having very fine weather; the mildest we have ever experienced in this section, where "Winter lingering in the lap of Spring" is the general rule

The green grass is away up and the young grain pushing itself vigorously through the ground looks pretty enough. The fruit trees are all in bloom, but we are afraid "Spring hangs the infant blossoms on the trees" too early. Jack Frost one of these raw mornings will very likely severely visit the young and tender buds, and thus cause us to curse and exclaim with Milton:

"Nipp'd with the lagging rear of Winter's frost.'

Considerable new ground has been ploughed this Spring in the valley, and of course more grain is expected to be raised than ever before. Judging from the many rumors afloat respecting mining discoveries in this vicinity, there will be ready sale at home for all the grain raised here.

PERSONAL

The indomitable County Assessor has paid his annual visit, and took in everything valuable and invaluable. The Round Valley store is in runuing order and Mr. Badger threatens to have a larger assortment soon. Another store is talked of on the east side of the valley, which will catch the traveling public to and from Long Valley.

PREACHING EXTRAORDINARY.

Since the little set-to between J. C. and C. concerning empty benches, squashes or something of the kind, the Reverends have turned loose on this community, but nobody injured to date. The Rev. Mr. Pratt preaches once a month, also the Revs. Clark, Case and Bell occasionally. Mr. Bell preached last Sunday to a crowded schoolhouse.

Mr. Wm. Arcularius and family have returned. Jas. Black, who went back to America a few months ago, has just returned and brought with him a lady companion now known as Mrs. Black. Everybody wishes the young couple a very bright and joyous future. Mr. Riggs has also returned, but, like a confirmed bachelor, did not largely invest in calico.

THE LONG VALLEY FEVER

Is raging. Men bound for the Lake district and other mining points in the vicinity of Long Valley pass through here daily. Some go afoot, others horseback while a few navigate with vehicles. I cannot give you any accurate information respecting the mines of Long Valley, but that there will be considerable excitement ere long is a foregone conclusion. It is said that the distance from Round Valley to Lake is about 27 miles, and from Round Valley to Benton 30 miles—these three points forming a triangle. The indefatigable Mr. Sherwin has been out surveying, who may furnish you interesting facts and figures. It is his intention, providing he can get the necessary pecuniary aid, to build a wagon road from here to Benton, and another road to Lake District. Whether a 40-stamp mill (which was the rumor) is on the way to Long Valley or not, we are positive that a heavy whisky mill passed through here the other day, sailing gracefully for Lake District. Another one, they say, has started out from Benton. Consequently the boys will be well supplied with the "ambrosial" tarantula juice,

RECREATION.

"The world is moving on" and so is this little valley. About once a week our young folks meet for a social musical entertainment, with an occasional hop interposed. The other evening quite a crowd met at the house of T. E. Jones, to while away the evening hours. Boasting aside this was undoubtedly one of the best entertainments we have ever had in this valley. The co trolling spirit on this occasion, as well as on the others, was Mr. E. A. Buck, who also presided at the organ. At his bidding the young ladies and gents alternately discoursed a variety of sweet music while Mr. B. played accompaniments to all with but one exception, viz: When an elderly gentleman sang the euphonious "Rhosllanerchrugog" (consult Webster's underabridge), which produced an uproar. Besides the vocal and instrumental music, Mr. Badger delivered in fine style some dramatic extracts. J. Rowlands done his part well. Mr. L. Lewis, from Benton, entertained us with very fine songs. "Beautiful Isle of the Sea," and "Will you Love me when I'm Old" were pathetically rendered. Best wishes to the printers and the red-haired sorrel-top babies. BLARNEY.

PACIFIC COAST PATENTS.—Through C. W. M. Smith, Patent Solicitor, San Francisco, we have received the following latest list of patents issued to inventors of the Pacific Coast: Yung Chow, San Francisco, Pockets; Roderick D. MacLennan, Los Angeles, Cal., Sash Holders; Peter F. Nilson, Santa Rosa, Cal., Watch Case Springs; John S. Covert, Monroe D. Garner and L. B. Walthall, Modesto, Cal., Bag Holders; Samuel Hill, San Francisco, Pencil Holders; Eric O. Leermo, Gold Hill, Nev., Pump Suction Pipes; James M. McFarland, Virginia City. Nev., Stamp Mills; John M. McPike, St. Helena, Cal., Harrow Attachments for Plows; Michael L. Mery, Chico, Cal., Feeders for Threshing Machines; James Pritchard, San Francisco, Car Starters; Albert G. Rockfellow, Ashland, Ogn., Gates; George J. Ward, Jr., San Francisco, Cooking Apparatus; George W. Cranston, San Francisco, Sand or Earth Elevators.

MAJOR TRUMAN, Postal Agent, commenced a short time ago to weigh all the mails carried on railroads on this coast, intending to continue to do so every day for one month, thereby to arrive at a fair average for the year.

England Will Roar.

Russia—I want several provinces to square off my territory.

England—Now, I don't think that's right.

Russia—I'm going to take those Turkish ships.

England—Now, you shouldn't do that. 'Tain't right.

Russia—Let's see. But that isn't near enough. I want two or three or twenty or thirty millions of roubles.

England—By George, you'd better take and done with it.

Russia—Don't know but that I shall. Now there's Egypt.

England—Now, if you touch Egypt I shan't like it. I'll roar. I can roar awful. You'd better not make me roar.

England—Now, if you cork up the Bosphorus I will roar. I've got 400,000 roaring men. 1—

Russia—Yes, I will put a fort on the Bosphorus.

England—Now, I'm just going to commence to roar right away if you do that. Austria will roar with me, too, won't you Austria?

Austria—I—dunno. I haven't roared for a good while. I got awful sick the last time I roared at Germany. May be I'll roar. I'll see. I'll think about it.

England—Well, I've a good mind to roar all by myself. I declare it's shameful. Why, the man has no more conscience than a bear.—N. Y. Graphic.

A GOSSIPING woman intent on slander went into a neighbor's, and exclaimed, as she threw herself into a chair: "One-half the world doesn't know how the other half lives." "That isn't your fault," quietly responded the neighbor.

Two souls with but a single thought—Two ragamuffins climbing over an orchard fence with a fierce eyed dog in pursuit.

To hit a sleepy worshipper on the head with a contribution-box is merely a bump of benevolence.

FELT hats—those worn on sore heads.

HAVING OBTAINED THE AGENCY OF THIS celebrated Soap for Lone Pine and vicinity, we append the opinion of some of our best people as to its merits:

"I have used 'Dobbins' Electric Soap,' made by I. L. Cragin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and can most cheerfully recommend it as the best Laundry Soap in existence." MRS. F. P. BALL.

"Family washing is rendered both pleasant and agreeable by the use of 'Dobbins' Electric Soap.' Boiling the clothes is entirely unnecessary, and but very little rubbing is needed. It promises wonders, but it does all it promises." MRS. JNO. W. GASPER.

We desire all our friends and customers to give this Soap one trial, so that they may know just how good the best soap in the United States is.

The Way to Success—How A. N. Towne Became Superintendent of the C. P. Railroad.

We make an abstract from an article by Alfred L. Sewell, in a Chicago paper, which gives an account of the railway career of Mr. A. N. Towne, General Superintendent of the Central Pacific railroad, a gentleman well known throughout this coast. Mr. Sewell writes:

In the earlier years of my experience as a printer in Chicago, more than 20 years ago, our firm did a good deal of printing for the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, and, because of this, I came to know a young man who is the subject of my story. He came from Massachusetts; he was poor and had no influential friend to even give him a letter of recommendation. He sought employment on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, and after waiting a time at last secured a position as brakesman on a freight train—salary about $30 a month. He was faithful in this position, and being both intelligent and industrious, he was soon made conductor of the train, with wages nearly doubled. He attracted the attention of his superior officers, who saw in him an honest, faithful and conscientious conductor, one not seeking his own ease or pleasure, but constantly devoted to the interests of the company that employed him, so that not many months elapsed before he was made a conductor of a passenger train—a more comfortable position and one yielding a somewhat higher salary. Here I first knew him, and I saw in him a modest, quiet, unassuming young man, free from the popular vices, and one who tried to be just as faithful and true and devoted to his work as a conductor as though the position had been that of General Superintendent.

One of the sternest and most exacting, and yet one of the noblest, ablest and most conscientious men who ever filled a similar position was then General Superintendent of the road. This man, Col. C. G. Hammond,, watched every employé of the road with an eagle's eye. He measured every man, knew the ability of each, and seemed intuitively to know which were the lazy shirks. Our young conductor did not escape the keen eye. When he least thought of it his chief was measuring and sounding him, and finding out what kind of metal he was made of; but none ever knew whether he was approved or not, for the chief's look was always stern and cold as ice.

One Saturday morning train No. 4 moved slowly out of Chicago under the care of my friend, who, only intent on doing his work as well as he knew how, seemed to have no higher ambition than to be a good conductor—salary, $900 a year. About noon when he stopped at a station, he found a telegram from the head office ordering him to "leave the train in charge of——, and take the first train for Chicago."

This was an unusual thing. Wondering what could be the matter; conscious that he had tried to do exactly right, and yet remembering how exacting was the General Superintendent, he feared that unintentionally he had fallen under his displeasure. With a fearful heart he presented himself at the office of the Superintendent.

"Good morning, Mr. Hammond. I received your telegram, and come to see what it means."

"Good morning," growled the chief, "I see you have, sir. I have concluded to take your train away from you."

The conductor's heart sank lower than ever. What was only fearful foreboding before was now painful truth. He had served the company to the best of his ability. He had kept the affairs of his train in complete order, his reports had been carefully and correctly made; and yet, after all, he lost his position. He dared not hope to reverse the decision of the all powerful official, yet in as calm a voice as he could command, he politely asked the reason for his summary dismissal.

Col. Hammond waited a while before he answered. Then the muscles of his face relaxed a little, and he said, "I want an assistant superintendent in my office, and I have called you to take the place."

True worth is always modest, and our thunderstruck conductor could only stammer, "But I am not competent, sir, to fill the position."

"You can do what I tell you; you can obey orders, can't you? That's all you have to do, sir. You will begin work this morning. That is your desk."

The new difficulties were not difficult as he expected. At first he had only to obey orders, and carry out the details of work laid out by the chief; and to these duties he brought the same faithfulness and thoroughness that had made him noticeable as a conductor. His elevation did not spoil him or make him proud. He was plain and modest and hard working as before—the salary at first was $1,800.

After a few years' service under Col. Hammond and an advance of salary to $2,500, the plain young man was invited to take the office of general superintendent of a younger road at a salary of $4,000. Distrusting his own ability, but determined to do his best, he accepted the call and succeeded, until the C. B. & Q., realizing how much they had lost in parting with him, invited him to resume his old position and secured his services by the tempting offer of $6,000 a year.

In the meantime Col. Hammond had become the General Superintendent of the Union Pacific railroad, running from Omaha to Ogden, where it connects with the Central Pacific railroad. The Central Pacific road was owned by four or five millionaires who built it, one of whom was its General Superintendent. However good a business man he was, he knew but little about railroading.

But where could they find a General Superintendent who had the ability and would dare to reorganize the road and put the affairs upon a better basis? They consulted Col. Hammond and other railroad men, and the result was that, most unexpectedly, our whilom modest and hard-working conductor one day received a telegram asking him if he would undertake the duties of General Superintendent of the Central Pacific railroad at a salary of $10,500. He was satisfied with and appreciated by the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, who proposed to increase his pay to $7,000, and as he preferred to remain in Chicago, he declined the princely offer made by the California road. Then another telegram asked at what salary he would become chief of the Central Pacific. Almost hoping to discourage his tempters he telegraphed "$13,000 a year in gold." At once came the answer "Accepted." So, taken in his own trap, he had nothing to do but to bid adieu to the city that had served him so well, and turn his face toward the land of gold.

This was nine years ago. He is still General Superintendent of the Central Pacific railroad, one of the most important railroads in the world. With its connections in California, this quiet man, not yet 48 years old, now superintends 2,734 miles of railroad, and over connecting steamers, besides dictating the tariffs of the China, the Australia and the Panama lines of steamships. While other young men preferring present ease and comfort to the interests of their employers, wasting money and time in billiard halls, theaters and drinking saloons, Albion N. Towne was at work, building up character as well as reputation, and now fills one of the most important positions in California, and instead of $360 a year as a brakeman on on a freight train, he now draws the comfortable salary of $20,000 a year in gold.

"Lucky man," says one. "Luck" had but little to do with it. Modest worth did it. Work did it. Faithfulness in the performance of present duties, however humble did it. This untiring faithfulness in the humbler duties not only attracted the attention and won the appreciation of his superiors but fitted him for the higher positions, which, without his seeking he was called on to fill.—Scientific Press.

DURING the Crimean war, a Turk while at his noon prayer one day, was kicked and told to get out of the way by an English soldier. He paid no attention to the insult until his prayer was finished, when he offered to fight the Englishman. Johnny Bull, thinking he had a soft Turk, "squared" himself, but received a most severe thumping, and as he cried "Hold, enough," you can imagine his consternation when the victorious worshipper exclaimed, "Now, nixt time ye insult a Turk be sure he's not from Kilkenney."

ONE of two young ladies who visited the city from the country wrote home as follows: "We attract a great deal of attenshun prominaden the streets like other ladys, an holen up our close. Nobody isn't nothing nowadays which don't hold up their cloze, and the hiar you holds 'em the more attenshun you attract."

A STUDENT while at college could not pronounce his r's. One day he told his professor that the students on the campus were having a wow. "A what," asked the professor. "A wiot," said the student. "A what?" said the professor. "Oh, a wumpus," he exclaimed, as he stalked away.

"WHO is your warmest friend," asked the teacher. "My mother!" yelled one of the boys. "Your mother?" "Yes, she warms me every day!" The teacher has given up her missionary work.

Parrott Takes the Mine.

The case of the People vs. More, which has lately been decided by the Supreme Court on appeal, says the Sacramento Bee, is a curious one, and may furnish food for thought and a warning to a certain class of mining speculators, who may have hitherto considered that they were safe from prosecution. The facts are these: One Stephen S. More desired to become possessed of certain mining property in the State of Nevada, and finding that he could not locate a sufficient number of feet in his own name, he used in addition thereto, and without their knowledge, the names of two of his friends as locators. He afterwards went to San Francisco, where he met Tiburcio Parrott and made an arrangement with him by which Parrott was to erect the necessary machinery and receive in consideration a controlling interest in the mine. He represented that there were two persons who were part locators and owners of the mine and demanded respectively $2,000 and $3,000 for their shares. Parrott gave him $5,000 in order to buy them out. More returned to Nevada and managed to secure deeds in full for the portions located in his friends' names, for the sum of one dollar each, and retained the $4,998—doubtless as a perquisite. Parrott, on discovering these facts, brought action in the Municipal Criminal Court of San Francisco against his partner for embezzlement and that tribunal sentenced him to five years' imprisonment in the State Prison. The case came up before the Supreme Court and, as has been said, the judgment has been affirmed. Now More languishes in a dungeon, while Parrott has entire control of the mine. The case has excited considerable discussion among the legal fraternity, many of them expressing surprise at the decision and saying that Parrott's correct refuge lay in a civil action for the recovery of the money.

Short Words.

Ex-Gov. Seymour believes in short words. At the Educational Convention held recently in Utica, he said: "I have always thought that on the trial of John F. Knapp, for murder, the jury found him guilty not because the proof was so strong—for the judge thought it weak—but because Mr. Webster put before them the scene of the old man's death in a way so graphic that they mistook his speech for proof. William H. Maynard, a very able man, who stood very high in this county and this State, once wrote out a speech for the Fourth of July in words of one syllable. His strength was very much due to the fact that in thought and speech he made it a rule to use as few words as he could, and those that were short and clear. If he had lived out his term of three-score he would have been known as one of the great men of the State. I do not mean to say that the mere fact that the word is short makes it clear, but it is true that most clear words are short, that most long words we get from other tongues, and that the mass of men do not know what they mean, and I am not sure that scholars always get the same idea from them."

A FRENCH engineer, who has lately been studying the circumstances under which slipping of the wheels of locomotives occurs, concludes that it is both a more general and complex phenomenon than has hitherto been supposed. He observed that in going down an incline of 0.005 in a meter, with a speed of 120 kilometres per hour, that the real velocity of the coupled wheels was 360 turns per minute, instead of 303 turns, which would correspond to the rate of translation. He finds from further inquiry that the slipping is almost nil in ascending an incline, but that is also very notable always in descending. It increases very rapidly with the speed, but appears to be greater, for the same velocity, in descents than ascents. Its suppression, if possible by any means, would of course effect a considerable economy in the consumption of fuel and in the wear of machinery.

AN editor referred in his local column to a "bracelet lost by an estimable young lady in our city," and requested the finder to leave it at her residence. The compositor set it up "breeches lost," and the proof reader let it go at that. The young lady says she would not advertise in that paper again if she were to lose $40,000 worth of jewelry.

"ANY news, Mr. Jinkins?" asked the landlady as that gentleman laid down the paper and began to struggle with the steak. "Yes, ma'am," said Jinkins, "Sitting Bull has crossed the boarder."

HE gave her a hearty smack. "Don't kiss like that," she said. "I want a sweet, tender pressure when I am kissed. I don't want any fire-works." He left out the explosion in the next act.

CABBAGE AND DITTO.—We have just now heard a cabbage story, which we will cook up for our laughter loving readers. "Oh, I loves you like anything," said a young man to his sweetheart, warmly pressing her hand. "Ditto," said she gently returning the pressure. The "ardent lover," not happening to be overlearned, was sorely puzzled to understand the meaning of "ditto," but was ashamed to expose his ignorance by asking the girl. He went home, and the next day being at work with his father in the cabbage-yard, he spoke out, "Daddy, what's the meaning of ditto?" "Why," said the old man, "this here is one cabbage head, ain't it?" "Yes, daddy." "Well that are's ditto." "Rot that are good for nothin' gal," ejaculated the indignant son, "she called me cabbage-head, and I'll never go to see her again."—Ex.

A REVEREND doctor, who preaches not a hundred miles from the Temple, has a considerable weakness for clergymen of color, and on a recent occasion gave in honor of three or four of them a dinner, to which he invited some of his distinguished fellow laborers in the vineyard to meet them. The dinner hour came and the white parsons along with it, but though host and guests waited three-quarters of an hour, not a black one appeared. The host thereupon sends for the servant and asks whether any one has called. "No one, sir, no one," is the answer, with which the doctor being dissatisfied proceeds to cross-examine, and it, after some time, occurs to the servants to say, "No one, sir, indeed, no one has called, except some Christy minstrels, and I soon got rid of them."—London World.

A PAINTER had the following announcement displayed on the front of his house: "The Acme of Stencil." A "learned Theban" in the same line on the adjoining street, in order to outdo the "old original" stenciler, thus set forth his pretensions: "Stenciling in all its branches performed in the very height of acme."

WHILE "Mignon" was being performed in Cincinnati the tenor rushed into the burning building to bring out the girl, but not returning immediately the stalwart baritone went to his assistance, and soon returned with the fair burden, the tenor following meekly behind them. REV. JOHN BROWN, of Haddington, was in the habit of proposing on festive occasions a certain young lady as his toast. Having abandoned the practice, he was asked the reason. "Because," said he, "I have toasted her for sixteen years without making her Brown, so I've resolved to toast her no more."

BAD POLICY.

Last week we published a commuication from Lone Pine wherein it was stated, in effect, that the reports as to the lawlessness said to exist there did the place great injustice; that nothing could be further from the actual truth, etc. The writer is a gentleman in whose statements we have great reliance, and, no doubt, spoke what he believed to be the truth. But from certain facts that have come to our knowledge it is not surprising that reports to the contrary have found believers. It seems that certain persons, few in numbers, and most likely acting from considerations purely personal to themselves—possibly fear—have served notices upon two or three Mexicans, notifying them to leave the vicinity in twenty-four hours or suffer serious consequences at the hands of the "21," from whom said notices came. That in obedience to this summons, the vaqueros who received it, did leave; that it has excited a feeling of uneasiness among the Mexicans, so much so that some begin to fear both for their lives and property; hence, some removing elsewhere assign these facts as the reason, and, of course, convey the im pression, naturally enough, too, that a condition of lawlessness does exist in Lone Pine, and that Mexicans, at least, had better not go there.

It is supposed that the cause for serving these warnings is that the parties getting them up do so because fearful that they may be selected as the victims of Mexican revenge, because of the death of two men the day after Sheriff Passmore's death.

Now, we have it from a source that we believe ean be implicitly relied upon —two prominent Mexicans recognized by all as reliable men and citizens— that the Mexicans entertain no thought whatever of making bad worse by rash attempts at revenge; not even so far as to wish to prosecute the matter in the Courts. They say, further, that if even inclined to take such a step, the dictates of ordinary prudence, of common sense, saying nothing about good citizenship, would compel every Mexican citizen of property and individual standing to do all they could to prevent the irresponsible among them from doing anything in a spirit of revenge of this kind. That they candidly believe that nothing whatever of that sort need be apprehended by any one. This we believe can be depended upon.

Now, it will occur to any one of ordinary intelligence that the very best possible way to induce acts of spiteful vengeance is identically the way the "21" have entered upon. If there was anything to be apprehended from the objects of these notices before receiving them, there surely can be no less after it. The whole thing had better be stopped; no possible good can come of it, while much of harm possibly can, in a business point of view, if no other.

The belief is that the "21" consists of not to exceed three or four persons. Whether more or less they are doing themselves, others and their locality a wrong.

THE Beecher-Tilton scandal has been ressurrected in New York by Mrs. Tilton publishing a letter stating that she has lied where she has asserted her innocence, and now states that she and Mr. Beecher were guilty as charged by her husband. Mr. Beecher published an explicit denial, and opinion remains divided, as it has always been, as to guilt or innocence. There is probably no way of establishing the truth of either statement, and it is to be hoped the public will hear no more of it.

"THE voice of England is still for war." Russia echoes back, "If war must come let it come." Austria sits back and says by inference at least, "I will take a hand, if I must," while Germany waits and watches to aggrandize herself if possible, in the event of continental strife.

THE Wisconsin Legislature has resused to make insanity a cause for divorce. This, we believe, is the first time a State has legalized the opinion so often flippantly expressed, that whenever a man wants a wife it is when he is crazy.

THIS LAND OFFICE STEAL.

Register R. M. Briggs, the gentleman "who," according to an up country paper, "has had such a time in disengaging himself from the Independence Land Office," arrived here a few days since from the Standard mine, Bridgeport and intermediate ports "for the purpose," as he graciously informs people, "of completing that Land Office steal, pursuant to orders of President Hayes." (A few weeks ago Mr. B. had another name for this President R. B. Hayes, which decency compels us to merely indicate thus: "that s—— —— —— of a fraud."—The same title, by the way, the old gentleman has several times vociferously used to designate our respective Judges, a lawyer now and then, saying nothing about its habitual application to certain newspaper people; given, plenty of benzene, say a pint every thirty minutes, and no man can beat this efficient federal officer in oratorical street efforts of the kind indicated). As we were saying, Mr. Briggs is here to complete that Land Office steal, pursuant to order No. 2, Schedule X, of the President. What is singular about it is, Mr. B. is going is wait for final orders from the Department before he packs things off; to be in keeping with all the rest of the nefarious business, he should have packed off the records forthwith, without further orders, or the usual formalties of six weeks' notice by newspaper publication, and all that sort of red tape.

Manifestly, the poor clod-hoppers of the valleys have no rights which "the best Government the sun ever shone upon" is bound to respect for a moment when in any degree in conflict with the interests of gentlemen who live at high altitudes, and who make a Civil Service Reform President believe their political influence is equally high. But dropping that, let's see how this business stands:

Immediately after last election Mr. Briggs became greatly offended at the people of Inyo, particularly, of this place, while his love for those of Mono county welled forth in an inverse ratio. He proclaimed it at Bishop and Benton and in the midst of the High Sierras at Bodie and elsewhere that "he owed the Inyoites nothing, and was going to get even on them;" i. e., move the Land Office and himself out of the county. Nobody took on much on this last account.

He dwelt strongly on the fact that the land business of this land district was so insignificant in amount that public policy demanded the immediate discontinuance of its office.

Also, that no office room could be had in Independence, the office theretofore having been alongside a gin-mill, involving all the demoralizng effects such juxtaposition implies. That was the sum of the arguments, according to what Mr. B. himself told us.

Mr. S. and Mr. P. were so impressed with the cogency of these arguments they actually persuaded Mr. Booth and Mr. Davis and Mr. Pacheco himself—the entire delegation except Luttrell—to squint at the all important facts through their own green glasses. All saw at a glance the party and the country and civil service reform would come to grief if an office alongside a gin-mill that only paid "$40 in fees in October" wasn't wiped out. Besides, if Mr. B. quit because he could hardly make grub out of the office, as he had rather threatened to do contingently, it would bother Mr. S. to provide for him any longer at the public expense.

Not a soul in this locality believes for a moment that Mr. Briggs ever did tender his resignation unconditionally.

In the interest of public economy the whole pack joined in and had the only land office in the State east of the mountains wiped out. Possibly it was the gin-mill argument that induced our temperance President to issue that order in the cool month of December by which Mr. B.'s little land office was consigned, bag and baggage, to Visalia, where Billy Carr could see to things—that is, public morals rather than public economy (!) was the moving consideration.

It seems that the programme broached a year previously by which, according to current reports at the time, Mr. B. hoped to become Register of three consolidated offices at Sumner, or Visalia, wouldn't work under the December order altogether, not exactly. It seems there was "a biger man than old Grant," leastways, Briggs, over there somewhere, and Mr. B. would be left out.

In fact, though, Mr. B. wanted to go to Bodie and grow up with the country, and be legal adviser to some big mining company right along, as was stated at the time, and was, therefore, as much put out at Mr. Sargent's foolish arrangement as anybody; said, with unusual unction, that "he didn't care a —— what became of the office so they let him go;" and, with even more marked emphasis, this community chimed in on the exact converse of that proposition. Mr. B. interpreted this peculiar spirit of accord to mean that he was to be burnt in effigy, but was the first, last and only one to suggest such a warm expression of esteem, he being well on to three score years. Furthermore, he was was going to "shoot the —— —— —— that set fire to it."

He is quite peppery sometimes.

For a while it looked as if Mr. B would have to go to Bodie and, without the pay or prestige of his office, trust to the uncertainties of his profession for a livlihood.

Again Mr. S. (presumably) laid Mr. B's distresses before the President. Was ever a President so bothered? To comply with desired conditions he would be compelled to take back all he said before.

The public economy dodge wouldn't do as a reason for removing the office to Bodie, it being in the same district, consequently, could not by any combination of circumstances increase the business of the district and office, or lessen its expenses; on the contrary the result for a time at least must obviously be the reverse. Besides transportation a hundred and fifty miles, advertising, accruing salaries during a couple months' enforced suspension of business, and all that, would in the aggregate, take more than a year's fees on the October basis.

The office room dodge didn't look encouraging, for people slept out of doors in Bodie for want of houses enough to hold them all; and the city was cut off from the rest of the world and the saw mills by deep snows so no new houses could be erected, which was annoying to all concerned.

The gin-mill-high-moral argument wouldn't avail in connection with a new mining camp, located literally almost in a stone's throw of the Nevada State line, on a mountain over 9,000 feet high, a dozen miles off any thoroughfare, less than 50 from the apex of the acute angle comprising the northern extreme of the district, which extends thence nearly four hundred miles south and easterly. No, the high moral argument would hardly satisfy in the face of that actual showing for Bodie.

So there was no alternative but to revoke the Visalia order in order to substitute Bodie on the grounds that "the facts had been misrepresented upon which the first order had been made!"

That is, certain lawyers want to enter suits at law by which they hope to make something out of some five of the leading mines in Bodie; to this end convenience of access to the land office records is important. Hence, the proof that the Visalia order had been procured on misreprentations (which was the case), consisted in this showing, viz., to reach Visalia residents (these Bodie people in particular) on the east side of the mountains must travel hundreds of miles northward to cross the Sierras, then still a greater distance south down the other side—which is true. Hence the second order and absolute outrage against the very first principles of democratic government, to wit, the rights of the many before undue favors to the few.

The actual nature of this outrage against the rights of the people of this district in general may be truly set forth in the following comparison, not overdrawn in relative bearing allowing for difference in interests involved: Suppose it in the power of a handful of men to re-locate the capital of the United States wheresoever self-interest in conjunction with a revengeful spirit might dictate; that thus they should select any mountain town in Oregon for new site. An extreme supposition, of course, but not an extreme comparison for the actual conditions brought about through this astounding order here referred to. The capital, so re-located, would bear identically the same relative geographical position to the rest of the Union as does this mountain, undeveloped, exclusively mining town of Bodie to the rest of this land district.

Inconsequential this change ma be to most citizens, yet it is none the less a swindle—senseless, unjust, impolitic, as such a thing can possibly be, and as no great lapse of time will show.

SATURDAY, APRIL 27.....1878.

RELATING TO A PANAMINT MILL.—A gentleman who lately visited Candelara District, near Belleville, informs us that a number of capitalists and mining experts were making a critical examination of some mines in that locality with the view of purchasing; in that event the intention is, according to rumor, to remove there the Surprise Valley Company's mill, at Panamint. This mill—the 10-stamp, or the larger one of the two that the company has there—is one of the very finest in this State. Three years ago this mill started up under as favorable auspices, with regard to an apparrently inexhaustible supply of rich ores to operate upon as any similar institution in all sage-brush land. No one doubted but a large mining city, in fact, would spring up in that cañon. Millions of dollars in permanent improvements were there expended. To-day, as it has for months past, solitude reigns in Surprise Valley as absolutely as if it was another of those deserted cities of the ancients. But people will "go their bottom dollar" on mining cities that are to be just the same, and on no better assurrance to begin with than had Panamint.

BRIGHTENING.—We have good reason to expect the Eclipse, with a new company, to be in full operation in a few weeks. The prospects for the Kearsarge in the same way are good. By the way, that tunnel is to be driven the whole distance to under tap the Cliff mine shaft, no matter what the intermediate discoveries may be, that being the original objective point on account of the body of the very richest ore uncovered in the bottom of the shaft. The Rex Montis is billed for steady work from date. Up the country the new discoveries east of the river, at Lake District and surrounding localities are really of great promise. South, a mill at the lake, and other contemplated operations will liven up things there, while Darwin and all the adjacent camps are regaining vigor steadily.

TROUT PLANTING.—The Bishop people all seem to think it would be a good and proper thing to have the beautiful streams up there stocked with trout and the river with cat-fish and perch, but most of them manifest a total indifference about doing anything. Wm. O. Harrold, however, is a notable exception. Last week he sent a team down to Oak creek and transplanted 104 live trout to a pond on his ranch at Bishop, losing but a single one of the fish in a trip of nearly fifty miles. At Big Pine two years ago the people stocked that creek with trout, and they are now comparatively plenty.

PLEASE REPORT.—If the project of getting the river stocked with fish is to go through at all, it is necessary for immediate action. The committees throughout the valley are therefore earnestly requested to immediately report to this office the amounts subscribed in their respective localities. We hear incidentally that Lone Pine, Independence and Big Pine have done well, and it is to be hoped that other points will come to the center at once. As before stated, the money is not wanted from the committees until the work is done.

CENTRAL COMMITTEES.—The County Central Committees of the respective political parties consist of the following named gentleman: Republican—Chairman, Nathan Rhine; Secretary, T. A. Gardner; J. C. Mills, A. B. Elder, P. A. Chaffant, W. R. Johnson and Thomas Boland. Democratic—Chairman, Joseph Schalten; Secretary, Henry M. Isaacs; David Olds, J. B. Swearingen, D. B. Curtis, J. A. Lank, A. N. Bell, S. P. Moffat, P. Reddy, J. R. Hughes, H. W. Woods, J. J. Gunn and I. G. Messic.

DRAWN OFF.—The stage company have withdrawn their line of stages from Lone Pine to Cerro Gordo, now delivering the mails by pony riders. The stages were taken north, and this arrangement is doubtless preliminary to abandonment of the whole road, as we understand the Clugage company have nothing to do with the new contract. Our people will be sorry to lose Uncle George Smith and the rest of the company's old employés.

NEW ROAD.—J. W. McMurry, of Big Pine, has extended a new wagon-road of his own across the Inyo range, it leading up a cañon just south of the Greenley Toll Road. Besides opening a direct communication with the proprietor's Deep Spring property, the road opens up extensive wood lands on the summit, from which he has taken posts enough to fence nearly three-quarter sections of his 1,400 acres of Big Pine lands.

BRANCHING OUT.—J. H. Stoutenborough, the heavy merchant of Bishop, evidently believes in making himself and business known to the public through judicious investments in printer's ink, and he contracts for space in which to call public attention from week to week. The concern is deservedly doing a good business.

BAVARIA BREWERY.—The advertisement of the new brewery establishment of Munzinger, Hughes & Co., at Snedenville, will be found elsewhere. Gospel Swampers take kindly to Louie's brew, and the new institution, like everything else in the upper country, is flourishing.

HOME AGAIN.—Hon. S. P. Moffat returned from his legislative work on Saturday of last week. He tarried a time at different points to the north, but has now settled down to the practice of his profession here. He is warmly welcomed back by everybody.

The New Gold Mines.

By reason of late discoveries the time seems to be near at hand when the real worth of that portion of the Inyo or White Mountain range, which walls in our valley on the west, will become known to the world at large, and the fact that it is one of the richest mineral belts on the coast made manifest through actual developments. From the old Montgomery district on the north to Lookout—a distance of about 150 miles—the range is continuous, except a break at Darwin, or more properly at Belmont, this side of Lee District. How much further below into San Bernarnino or Mexico this mineral belt extends we have no idea, but on the north it is in a due line with what may be one grand mineral chain, comprising the Comstock and Esmeralda deposits. But without accepting this, which is the essence of Prof. Frank Stewart's theory, that in slightly varying lines around the globe, from the north to the south pole, there are continuous mineral bearing zones, we may state the fact that between Lee and Montgomery the Inyo chain is one range and comprises a half dozen districts producing all kinds of silver and gold bearing ores. Prof. Whitney and Clarence King, the well known geologists, have pronounced the Inyo range to be of the very earliest formation and one of the original upheavals of the earth, so far antedating the Sierras in age that the time is incalculable except by the different geological periods.

Out of all the known mines now in the range the one attracting most attention is the "Red Rock," mentioned a week or two ago as a re-discovery of a rich gold mine which was found in early days. That little fact, legend or what not, however, cannot affect the value of the find one way or another. It was located in November last by W. B. Gray, an experienced prospector and miner, for the present owners—himself, J. B. Hoover, S. A. Middleton and T. J. Furbee. It is situated on the north side of a wide cañon leading to the summit of the range, and about four miles from the river, or eight miles directly across the valley from Furbee's ranch, above Big Pine. Messrs. Hutchison, Sharp and others have nearly completed a wagon road up the cañon, some six miles in length, to open up an immense quantity of piñon and cedar lands on the plateau of the summit. This road passes within a hundred yards of the new mine and about a mile below an unfailing spring of water, sufficient for steam milling purposes, which can easily be conducted to the mine by a mile and a half of piping In passing up the cañon there is on both sides hills of conglomerate cement, covered by a curious capping of limestone. In places where this is broken perpendicular cliffs appear on the southern side. Further on comes a slatey belt, which shows the beginning of the mountains proper, and this is supported by limestone nearest allied to marble. To the east of the mines and near the summit a belt of basalt is found.

A description of the new discovery itself is difficult. Where work is now being done to develop it, a huge chimney or blow-out of red half-oxydized iron ore and quartz sticks out on the mountain side, the general trend of the country rocks being at right angles with the cañon, or nearly north and south. There is an immense quantity of the ledge matter, the body closely resembling the croppings of the old Gould & Curry, on the Comstock. On the west there is a well marked wall of talcose slate; on the other side the country rock is porphyry, but without a clearly defined line. Probably the width of this cropping is twenty feet, extending up the mountain and northward 100 feet and traceable by outcroppings for half a mile. Lying at the west side is an outcrop of lively white quartz, showing silver as well as gold. This part of it is considered the central point of the permanent ledge. The main body is a red conglomerate of iron and quartz, varying in color across the ledge and as opened out. So far as we have been informed no analysis of the ore has been made, nor even fire assays of it; but as to its value it will suffice to state that of the hundreds of tests made by pulverizing and washing out the pulp by means of a horn spoon every one has shown a heavy percentage of iron sulphurets filled with flakes of fine and flour gold. Several trials with acids proved the unmistakable character of the metal thus extracted. We have, however, sent away numerous samples for assay, and will report results. The belief of all who have examined the new find is that the lucky owners have struck a big thing. A milling test of ten tons of the ore is to be made as soon as possible.

At other points in the new district we took a look at properties which, were they in any country to which there was a mining "rush," would undoubtedly be gobbled up and developed at once, and will take occasion to refer to some of them hereafter. The whole mineral section is unprospected, and to-day presents the most promising field in the State for geological study and prospecting.

VIEWS.—Kemp has taken views of all the prominent buildings and pretty much the whole town, except the Blaney House, Broder and L. Wood's properties. We hope that such a picture will be had and that a copy of all the views will be left with this office.

AT WORK.—Supt. Hudgins has started up the pans of the Rex Montis mill, running through tailings. It is known that the tailings will pay well for the handling. Other work of repairing and construction about the mill is now going on.

LONG VALLEY.—Judge Campbell, of Big Pine, has purchased an 800-acre tract of land in Long Valley, for a Summer home, farm, fishery and stock range.

High Mountains.

CERRO GORDO, April 24.

MESSRS. EDITORS—My item to you last week about finding a taller mountain than "that little peak back of Lone Pine," was not intended for publication. But since you choose to publish it, I will give you a little more enlightenment on the subject:

It has been known here for some months past that the high conical peak standing at the head of Lone Pine creek, commonly known in Owens Valley and to THE INDEPENDENT as "Fisherman's Peak," alias the "Dome of Inyo," alias the "Hon. Tom," alias, alias, etc., but known and recognized by the geographical and scientific world for the last fourteen years as "Mount Whitney," is not the highest peak in the culminating groups of the high Sierras. Within the last year an eminent geographical engineer has made the discovery that another nameless peak overtops the giant Whitney by some seventeen feet! A noble monolith, ice-chiseled, glacier polished and storm-tinted, left standing amid the wreck and ruins of a past geological age.

According to the established customs of the world's map makers—the geographers and men of science—the person first describing and locating the precise spot on the earth's surface of a mountain, peak or any other natural object, has the prerogative accorded him of giving such object a name; and such names endure to the end of time. As the discoverer of this great and nameless peak has accurately determined its latitude, longitude and altitude, he will doubtless exercise the prerogative accorded him, and give it a name worthy the great American People, regardless of the wishes of the Hon. Tom, the poor, lone fisherman or THE INYO INDEPENDENT.

In the May number of the Bulletin of the American Geographical Society will appear a complete description of the culminating groups of the Sierras, embracing seventeen of the highest peaks, none of which less than 14,000 feet absolute altitude. The map accompanying it gives the precise locations and altitudes of some forty peaks, and, strange as it may seem, neither Fisherman's Peak" the "Dome of Inyo" or "Fowler's Peak" are found among the forty odd.

It is now three years since it was determined by Lieut, Wheeler of the United States Engineers, that "Blanca Peak," in southwestern Colorado, was a little higher than any known peak in the Sierras, being over-topped itself only by Mount St. Elias, in Alaska. But recent determinations of the altitude of Mount St. Elias, made by the Coast Survey, have reduced its altitude until it is over-topped by "Blanca Peak" and the new nameless peak of the Sierras—now known to be the highest peak within the dominions of the United States. MOUNTAINEER.

There is an erroneous assumption in the foregoing really fine production of "Mountaineer's," and in referring to it THE INDEPENDENT begs leave to correct itself also—a most agreeable duty under the circumstances. Mr. Moffat is to be credited with having prevented the legal naming of our high mountain as "Fowler Peak," instead of quietly acquiescing in the freak of some alchoholically funny Senator in the last hours of the session, as was so understood and reported. The general facts are, that Mr. Moffat endeavored in response to suggestions to confirm the name of "Fisherman's Peak" by legal enactment, but found the same difficulty as confronted Mr. Parker in the 20th session—that of being unable to get at its true latitude and longitude, notwithstanding Prof. Whitney's celebrated State Geological Survey maps of the same. Our representative then proposed to call it "Inyo Dome," but gave up the idea as impracticable in its details. Mr. Moffat, however, by the aid of Lieut. Wheeler of the United States Exploring Expedition. arrived at the necessary data at the eleventh hour and introduced a bill into the House to designate the mountain as "Fisherman's Peak." It passed that body, of course, but in the last hours of the session the Senate amended by substituting "Fowler's Peak," and returned it to the "lower hoose," as "Hon. Tom" was wont to call it, for its concurrence. Knowing full well his opportunity and power to finally squelch the matter in the Governor's hands, Mr. Moffat permitted the thing to pass to concurrence as a part of the fun of the evening. The Governor's capacious pocket, or rather some vault in the Secretary of State's office is now the everlasting reposing place of the unapproved bill.

MATTERS PERSONAL. — JOS. Harris, and N. Rhine, of Harris & Rhine, got back from the Bay in the last day or two, and bring quite encouraging news as to the estimate in which our mining prospects are held in the city. Mrs. Jos. Harris is recovering from her mental derangement so rapidly as to give high hopes of perfect restoration in a short time. Capt. Eudey, and some San Francisco gents, are expected in a few days. Mr. Reddy has gone to the city. Col. Stevens is back from his Eastern trip.

TO LOCATE.—The professional card of Dr. B. E. Stevenson will be found elsewhere this week. The gentleman has determined upon locating at Bishop Creek, for a time at least, and we predict for him a most successful career at that point, coming as he does with the highest indorsements from the southern portion of the county.

STARTING UP.—The Modoc furnaces at Lookout were to fire up again to-day, and those of the Defiance, at Darwin, about the 5th proximo.

IMPROVED.—The Bishop Creek Hotel, having been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Swearingen, has been enlarged and greatly improved in appearance generally. "Pete" makes a successful Boniface, and the concern is well patronized. See advertisement.

GOOD.—It is stated that the Emigrant Company, of Lee, are contemplating the removal of their mill to a point on the Lake.

PREACHING.—There will be preaching in the school-house, at this place, tomorrow evening, beginning at 8 o'clock.

A Startling Rumor.

A Paris correspondent says: From a person who professes to have an intimate acquaintance with the Vatican I hear that a movement is on foot which promises to be the most important in the religious history of the century. It is nothing less than secession in large bodies of members of the English Protestant Church to the Roman Catholic Church. The number of seceders is placed at as high a figure as 3,000,000,000 of people. Included in this exodus from the Church of England are Bishops, Rectors, Curates and Deacons. Authorized delegates are, it is asserted, now in Rome negotiating the conditions upon which the secession will take place.

First—The acceptance of all doctrines of the Catholic Church.

Second—To solve the difficulties among the Anglicians relative to ordination. The Bishops, Ministers and Deacons consent to receive fresh orders in the Roman Church under certain conditions.

Third—All new priests undertake to observe celibacy.

Fourth—Ministers already married shall not be asked to quit their families, but shall be debarred from hearing confessions.

Fifth—The new Catholics to be placed for a period of twenty years under a special episcopal hierarchy, in order to smooth any differences that may arise during the transition.

This plan is modeled on that adopted by the Church in the East. In Armenia, for instance, every city has it special hierarchy. I give this as the French say sous toute reserve, but it come from such high source that I would not be justified in treating it with incredulity.

THE STEVENS RAILROAD.—Col. Sherman Stevens arrived here from San Francisco last Thursday, and after stopping an hour or two passed out to Inyo, his home. He informed us that his trip East was successful, in this: The parties had considered the project of building a narrow-guage railroad from here to Owens lake, and had concluded that if two hundred tons daily could be furnished the road for transportation, they would furnish the money to build it, provided the representations of Col. Stevens as to the amount of wood on the Sierra Nevadas were true. Mr. Bond, Col. Stevens' partner, is now in the East, and will come out with the gentlemen proposing to furnish the necessary capital early in June next, to make personal examination of the route, timber supplies, etc. We think they will not hesitate to undertake the consummation of the project after a thorough examination and inquiry. With better facilities and cheaper rates two hundred tons per day are but a tithe of the tonnage that could and would be furnished a narrow-guage road from this, Lookout and Lee mining districts. The James system, after but slight examination by the Board of Locomotive Engineers, was condemned as being impracticable. They say that to haul a train of cars of fifty tons weight up a grade of one hundred and fifty feet to a mile, would require a locomotive weighing not less than 30,000 pounds, in order to acquire the tractive power. Of course a locomotive of that weight would ruin a wooden rail but fourteen inches in width the first time it ran over it. Besides, with the driving wheel out in front of the locomotive as proposed by Mr. James, that amount of weight could not be acquired by any principles of construction known to the Board. We fear this explodes Mr. James' system of railroads, but perhaps he may yet be able to devise some plan to overcome such slight obstacles. —Darwin News.

PALISADE COAL.—The Carson Tribune has the following: A gentleman at Carlin, writing to a friend in this city in relation to the recently discovered coal mine at Palisade, says it is exactly like the great deposits at Carlin at the outcrop, and the stratum of true coal at Palisade is four feet in thickness and well defined. From fossils found in the limestones of southern Elko county, the Palisade and Carlin coal-beds probably belong to the Devonian period. The coal is of excellent quality, remarkably free from deleterious substances, and judging from samples now in possession of Moore & Parker, of this city, the new discovery will prove of inestimable value to the mining interests of Eastern Nevada.

REDUCING THE WAGES OF WORKMEN ON THE MORMON TEMPLE.—On Monday John the Revelator called on the workmen in the Temple, and told them they must stand another reduction of at least twenty per cent. on their wages. This is the second reduction within the last thirty days, and the poorly paid workmen are beginning to think the Lord has a mighty mean man on earth to carry on his work. If John don't take care of the Temple, boys, in better shape, we are afraid we shall have to go back on him and support some other scoundrel for prophet, seer and revelator.—Salt Lake Tribune, April 4.

ON the afternoon of Sunday the 21st inst. a terrible tornado tore through Western Iowa along the Missouri river, killing and wounding a large number of persons and animals, carrying off houses bodily.

Little People.

"Never do things by halves," said the boy as he went through a whole pie he found in the cupboard.

A little Florida boy tamed an alligator, and the ugly reptile learned to like the little fellow—not, however, until the little fellow was all gone.

Vicar's Daughter—"And why did Aaron make a golden calf?" Sharp child of three and a half—"Please, Miss, because he hadn't got enough gold to make a cow."

"How to Keep Boys at Home" is told by Rev. Audirondack Murray in the Golden Rule. The best way, however, is to lock all the doors, bolt all the windows and leave the pie-pantry open.

"Does your sister Annie ever say anything about me, sissy?" asked an anxious lover of a little girl. "Yes," was the reply, "she said if you had rockers on your shoes they'd make a nice cradle for my doll."

"What is your chief consolation in life?" asked the pastor of a young lady in a Bible class. The young lady blushed and hesitated but said, "I don't like to tell his name, but I have no objection to telling you where he lives."

At bed-time little Willie was saying the usual prayer at his mother's knee, and having got as far as "If I should die before I wake," hesitated. "Well, what's next," asked his mother. "Well, I s'pose the next thing would be a funeral."

"Where was Bishop Latimer burned to death?" asked a teacher in a commanding voice. "Joshua knows," said a little girl at the bottom of the class. "Well," said the teacher, "if Joshua knows he may tell." "In the fire," replied Joshua, looking very grave and wise.

A six-year old child who was in the habit of saying the Lord's prayer only in the morning, said the other evening, "Mamma, I think I'll say the Lord's prayer to-night, too. I can just leave out 'Give us this day our daily bread,' and instead I'll say what the ministers say, 'Keep us, O Lord, from the prevailing diseases.'"

Col. Doctor H. Follett, of Boston, not knowing his pistol was loaded, gave it to his little eight-year old boy to play with, and the little fellow playfully shot his father behind the ear with it. It didn't kill the Colonel. But that is not surprising. We wouldn't suppose you could kill a man who would give a child a pistol to play with by shooting him in the head.—Burlington Hawkeye.

A COINCIDENCE.—The killing of Gus. Botto, and the discussion indulged in over the affair, has brought to light a coincidence, as some term it, in the matter. It will be remembered that a few years ago he killed a man—Jack Brannan—and he was acquitted, threats against Botto's life having been proven on the trial. The trouble having originated over the same amount of coin involved in Saturday night's fatal tragedy the shooting occurred on the same day of the week, a similar weapon was used, and the precise number of shots fired and wounds received in each instance. The superstitiously inclined predicate on the above facts a doctrine of fatalism, and look upon the latter event as an inevitable sequence of the first. As, however, there were many circumstances in connection with both events of a totally different character, we do not think the fatalists will be able to make their position tenable.—Eureka Sentinel.

A NEW YORK man against whom proceedings for a limited divorce had been begun by his wife, testified that he had to keep his hair closely trimmed to prevent his wife from pulling it out. When a man takes such a mean advantage of his wife we are not surprised to hear that she wants a divorce. No doubt if he had permitted his hair to grow as long as a wild eyed spiritualist's, so that she could get a good grab and drag him around the room three or four times a day to relieve the dull monotony of her household duties, she would never have thought of bringing suit for divorce. Husbands should read a lesson from this.

THE peculiarity of the fly is that he always returns to the same spot; but it is the characteristic of the mosquito that he always returns to another spot. Thus he differs from the leopard which does not change his spots. This is an important fact in natural history.

"SECOND class in grammar, stand up," said the schoolmaster. "John is. Who does John correspond with?" "I know," said the little boy at the foot, holding up his hand. "If you mean John Smithers, he corresponds with my sister Susan."

A RICH miser being asked what he thought of his neighbor, who was very poor, replied: "He is a very honest man, for during the forty years he has lived next door to me he has never asked me for anything."

IT is useless for physicians to argue against short-sleeved dresses. The Constitution of the United States says that "the right to bare arms shall not be interfered with."

A MISS TANNER, who recently married a widower named Hyde, with eleven children, says she has given up tanning and is now dressing Hydes.

THAT was a clever boy who said that he liked a "good, rainy day—too rainy to go to school, and just rainy enough to go a fishing."

"LOVE is an internal transport," exclaimed an enthusiastic poet. "So is a canal boat," said an old forwarding merchant.

"WILL the coming woman lecture?" asks a cotemporary. "If she marries she will," answers another.

U. S. MARSHAL'S SALE.

BY VIRTUE OF AN EXECUTION ISSUED OUT of the United States Circuit Court of the District of California, in the suit of John Broder plaintiff, against the Eclipse Gold Mining and Quartz Crushing Company, Defendant, upon a judgment lately rendered in said Court, for the sum of One Thousand Eighty-eight 59-100 ($1,088 59-100) Dollars, in gold coin of the United States, besides costs, duly attested the Nineteenth day of March, A. D. 1878, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of One Thousand Eighty-eight 59-100 ($1,088 59-100) dollars in gold coin of the United States, besides accruing costs and interest, I have levied upon all the right, title and interest of the said Defendant in and to the following described real property, to-wit.

That certain mill property formerly known as the Ida quart mill, situate upon the public domain, on the eastern side of Owens river about half a mile in a southeasterly direction from the mill known as the Eclipse mill, in the County of Inyo, State of California, said Ida mill property consisting chiefly of an engine and boiler; also all their right, title and interest in and to that certain mill property being the remains of the old quartz mill erected at or near the site of the old Union Quartz Mill, on the eastern side of Owens river on the public domain, being between one and two miles in a southerly direction from the Eclipse mill, in the said County of Inyo, the remains of said mill consisting chiefly of a large boiler.

Notice is hereby given that on Saturday, the Twenty-seventh day of April, A. D. 1878, between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., to-wit, at the hour of 2 o'clock P. M. of that day, in front of the Court House in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, I will sell all the right title and interest of the said Defendant, the Eclipse Gold Mining and Quartz Crushing Company, in and to the above described property or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy said judgment and all costs, at public auction to the highest bidder or bidders, for cash in hand in gold coin of the United States.

Uncle Remus and the Silver Dollar.

"Wat's dis about dat silver bizness?" asked Uncle Remus yesterday. "I heerd Miss Sally readin' about it, and axed her about it, but she sed that I must ax Mas'hr John, and I axed Mas'hr John, and Mas'hr John say I must go to dese noosepaper men wa't kick up all the devilment—I bl'eeve wuz the langwidge he used."

"Who helt the bigges' han' in de game?"

"Why, we are to have the old fashioned dollar—the old silver dollar that suited so well."

"I notis dat I ain't got mine yit."

"Oh, it's too soon yet. They will be put in circulation just as fast as the mints can make them."

"Whar 'bouts in de 'sembly you speck I'm settin', boss? How fur back frum de man wat rash'uns out de scads du yo' reckon I is?"

"Oh, the silver dollars will be circulated just like any other money. You get it if you earn it."

"Hev' fer ter scramble arter it same as befo'? Well, den, in rege'ds to dat silver bill, I'd a bin whar de little boy whar wen he made a mouf at de cow."

"Where was that, Uncle Remus?"

"On de top rail er de fens. But dar's anudder pint, boss," continued the old man, reflecting a few minutes. "I hear talk dat dese Mexican dollars ain't up to high water water mark in dere wuffness."

"Well, those who pay you a Mexican dollar will give you a nickel to make up the value—that is, if you call their attention to it."

"Den I don't git de nickel, caze a silver dollar's good nuff for me, w'edder she's Nunited States, er w'edder she's furrin. Nobody don't hev fer ter coax me fer ter take a silver dollar."

Uncle Remus sat thinking a few moments, and proceeded:

"Not much. Not dis season. Wen Mars John gimme my wages I'll take de Mexikin dollar, an' lef' de nickel fer him an' his mudder-in-law fer ter fight 'bout, an' I'm blessed ef I don't bl'eve de ole 'oman'd mount 'im and gouge 'im fer heap less d-n dat. Ain't yer got a bucket of water yer want brung boss?"

A CORRESPONDENT of the Galveston News recently talked with the old Indian chief Santanta, in the Texas penitentiary. Santanta, the correspondent says, is treated very leniently. His occupation is chair making, but he is allowed to desist and fall asleep whenever he chooses. He said that his age was 86 years, and yet he is a powerful looking old fellow, with not a gray hair in his head. When asked whether he liked prison life as well as he did the prairies and buffaloes, he said, "Ah—h—ah!" and shook his head.

OFFICIAL returns made to the Bureau of Statistics show that during the month of March, 1878, there arrived at the port of New York 4,586 immigrants, of whom 3,204 were males and 1,382 females. During the three months ending March 31, 1878, the total immigration into the port was 8,786, as compared with 7,250 arrivals during the corresponding period of 1877.

ACQUITTAL does not always acquit in Russia. The woman who lately attempted to murder the St. Petersburg Chief of Police, after being set free by the court, returned to her home, and next morning she had utterly disappeared, the authorities being utterly unable to give any account of her. Perhaps she strayed off in a fit of temporary insanity, and joined a train bound for Siberia.

A Badly Scared Editor.

An editor was sitting in his easy chair, buoyant in mind and heart, with the calm serenity and blissful tranquility that none but editors know. A shuffling sound at the door brought him back to earth, and, facing nervously about, he beheld a man of deep determined look closing the door behind him. With a sickly feeling of foreboding, the editor motioned toward a chair, and gazed upon the intruder helpless and breathless, resigned to meet the worst.

The hand of the man wandered toward his breast pocket. The editor's cheek blanched and his lips turned blue. Alas! alas! he had guessed aright the mission of the stranger.

The man pulled out a bundle of letters and papers. The head of the editor fell forward upon his breast and his arms fell listless from the arms of his chair.

"My errand is not a pleasant one," said the visitor, speaking slowly.

"Hoora! ha! ha! ha!" roared the editor, springing up and nearly shaking the man's arm off. "Heaven be praised! But, Lord, what a scare you gave me. Blister my corns, if I didn't think you had a chunk of Spring poetry. Drive on—sell the old shanty—it's a rat-eaten barracks anyway, and rents are cheap. Ha! ha! what a load you've taken off my mind. Let's have your name—and down it goes for two years' free subscription. Your an angel in breeches, old fellow, but you don't look like it—darned if you do. Ha! ha! Cut your hair, man; cut your hair, and wear a stand up collar. It'll save your children sorrow."—Cincinnati Breakfast Table.

QUICK ON THE TRIGGER.—"You will please observe," said old Mr. Lambwell, as he led us through his school the other day, "that the boys are required to display the utmost attention to quietness and discipline, and in a short time become even divested of that most annoying disposition to tease each other; in short, soon settle down in all the gravity of mature years, under the wholesome system I have introduced."

We at this moment arrived in front of several boys who were standing around a bucket of water, and one had just charged his mouth with the contents of a tin cup, while the old gentleman was stooping to recover his pen from the floor, when another, passing behind, snapped his finger quickly beneath the drinker's, and caused him by a sudden start to eject the contents of his mouth over the pedagogue's bald pate. Starting upright with his hair and face dripping, the master shouted:

"Who did that?"

"Jim Gun, you rascal, what did you do that for?"

Jim, appalled at the mischief he had done, muttered out that it was not his fault, but that Tom Owens had snapped him.

This changed the direction of old Lambwell's wrath, and shaking his cane portentiously over Owens' head, he asked:

"Did you snap Gun?"

The culprit, trembling with fear, murmured:

"Yes, sir; I snapped Gun, but didn't know he was loaded."

DIFFERENT KINDS OF WEDDINGS. Frank Leslie's Ladies' Journal tells about weddings thus: At the end of the first year comes the cotton wedding; at two years comes the paper; at three the leather; at the close of five comes the wooden; at the seventh anniversary the friends assemble at the woolen, and at ten comes the tin. At twelve years the silk and fine linen; at fifteen the crystal. At twenty the friends gather with their china, and at twenty-five the married couple that have been faithful to their vows for a quarter of a century are rewarded with silver gifts. From this time forward the tokens of esteem become rapidly more valuable. When the thirtieth anniversary is reached they are presented with pearls; at the fortieth come the rubies; and at fifty comes the glorious golden wedding. Beyond that time the aged couple are permitted to enjoy their many gifts in peace. If, however, by any possibility they should reach the seventy-fifth anniversary they are presented with the rarest gifts to be obtained, at the celebration of their diamond wedding.

THE bill introduced into the House of Representatives by Mr. Stephens, of Georgia, to promote the general use of the metric system of weights and measures—a project now attracting considerable attention—proposes the following metric tables:

Measures of Length—100 haus make a nail; 100 nails make a meter; 100 meters make a kile.

Measures of bulk and capacity—100 drops make a spoon; 100 spoons make a quart; 100 quarts make a cask.

Measures of Weight—100 seeds make make a corn; 100 corns make a nut; 100 nuts make a bi-pound or bip; 1,000 bips make a ton.

A DANBURY boy was taken to task by his mother for striking a companion. She told him that he must ask the forgiveness of the wronged one. He went up to him, and whispered through his clinched teeth, "I've got to ask you to forgive me for hitting you, and you'd better speak right up at once that you do, or I'll give you something to remember." The victim spoke up.

How the Weasel Runs Down His Game.

There are other members of game life besides human poachers, whose numbers must be kept within bounds to insure successful sport. The thirst of the weasel for blood is insatiable, and it is curious to watch the persistency with which he will hunt down the particular rabbit he has singled out for destruction. Through the winding subterranean galleries of the burrows, with their cross-passages, "blind" holes and "pop" holes (i. e., those which end in undisturbed soil, and those which are simply bored from one side of the bank to the other, being only used for temporary concealment), never once in the dark, close caverns losing sight or scent of his victim, he pursues it with a sort of eager impatience. It is a generally a long chase. The rabbit makes a dash ahead and a double or two, and then halts, usually at the mouth of a hole; perhaps to breathe. By and by the weasel, baffled for a few minutes, comes up behind. Instantly the rabbit slips over the bank outside and down the ditch for a dozen yards, and there enters the burrow again. The weasel follows, gliding up the bank with a motion not unlike that of a snake; for his body and neck are long and slender and his legs short. Apparently he is not in haste, but rather lingers over the scent. This is repeated five or six times, till the whole length of the hedgerow has been traversed—sometimes up and down again. The chase may be easily observed by any one who will keep a little in the background. A though the bank may be tenanted by fifty other rabbits, past whose hiding place the weasel must go, yet they scarcely take any notice. One or two, whom he has approached too closely, bolt in and out again; but as a mass the furry population remain quiet, as if perfectly aware that they are not yet marked for slaughter. At last, having exhausted the resources of the bank, the rabbit rushes across the field to a hedgerow, perhaps a hundred yards distant. Here the wretched creature seems to find a difficulty in obtaining admittance. Hardly has he disappeared in a hole before he comes out again, as if the inhabitants of the place refused to give him shelter.—Popular Science Monthly.

A DEAF MAN'S MUSINGS.—He is rich who is poor enough to be generous.

To extol one's own virtue is to make a vice of it.

Take from what has been written that which has done mankind no solid good, and a Saratoga trunk would hold the rest.

Look out for the man who makes liberal use of the personal pronoun "I" in conversation for the chances are that he is a liar.

"I leave to my heirs an abundance of hate, envy and legal strife," would be an appropriate clause in the last wills of most rich men.

There is somewhere a fool key to your friend's nature, and if you can find it you can make him dance to any tune you whistle.

When a man reaches the age of 50 it is time for him to make up his mind as to what manner of an old man he would like to be and put himself at once into training.

VENTILATION.—Many persons complain of always getting up tired in the morning. This is often due to defective ventilation or from using an undue amount of bed-clothes and bedding. Feather beds are too soft and yielding, and partially envelop the sleeper, thus producing profuse perspirations. The habit of lying too much under the blankets is also very pernicious, by reason of the carbonic acid exhaled by the sleeper being respired. Again, it is a common error to suppose that by simply opening a window at the top a room can be ventilated. People forget that for proper ventilation there must be an inlet and outlet for the air. In bed-rooms there is often neither and if there is a fire-place it is generally closed up. Again, it is a mistake to suppose that foul air goes to the top of the room. Certainly the heated air goes to the top, but the chief impurity, carbonic acid, falls to the bottom. There is nothing so efficacious in removing the lower strata of air as an ordinary open fire-place, especially if there is a fire burning.—Sanitary Record.

TO KEEP NAILS FROM RUSTING. Heat a quantity of them on a shovel, and throw them while quite hot into a vessel of coarse oil or melted grease. The nails should not be so hot that the grease will be made to smoke freely. Cut nails prepared in this manner are improved in every respect. They are rendered tougher, and they will outlast any kind of wood, even though buried in the ground; while unprepared nails are completely destroyed by rust in a very short time. Probably melted paraffine would be still better than ordinary grease, as it forms a very effectual coating, penetrating the pores and preventing the access of air or moisture.—Ex.

A CHICAGO humanitarian shot his worn out horse to ease it of its sufferings, and the animal had the cheek to fal against him, breaking his leg.

A YOUNG Canadian 8-year old takes the palm for cruelty. She is the child of Mr. Charles Frost, of Berlin, Ont., and being left with the care of a sister of 5, became angered because it interfered with her frolics with her companions. She determined to rid herself of the incumbrance, and began to abuse the child in the most fiendish manner. First she filled its mouth with snow, next dipped into a quantity of water until nearly drowned. Then it was placed in the oven of the stove and burned and bruised, and next thrust under the stove. All these devices failing, she went for a saw to saw its head off, but relented and hit upon the plan of dragging it around the room in a bag. She was engaged in this pleasant amusement when the horror-stricken mother returned. Of course the injuries proved fatal.

THE production of precious metals in America is nearly $81,000,000 per annum. During the past eight months we have shipped abroad $2,570,000 in gold and silver bullion more than we have received from Europe. Other years, during the same length of time, we have exported from $35,000,000 to $40,000,000. There is a heavy balance in our favor, and gold and silver are rapidly accumulating. Our exports for the last eight months amount to $461,000,000 a gain of $36,000,000 over those of any former year.

THE Queen and English society frowned upon Col. Valentine Baker when he assaulted a woman on a railway car, and the clubs all expelled him. His distinguished services — though nobody knows what they were—in the defense of the cause of the much married Sultan and the religion which sytematically debases woman have reelected him with all the honors.

The President and His Order.

The President is reported as coming forward as the interpreter to his order to the Federal office-holders. Supposing him to have said what is attributed to him, it is surprising how far the general understanding of this order has been from the meaning of the Executive. For it now seems that it was intended in a sort of Pickwickian sense, the delicate distinctions of which somehow failed to be apprehended. The President never meant to disapprove of campaign assessments. All that he meant to say was that they should not be compulsory. He now tells the office-holders that he should be pleased if they devote a share of their income to political dues, but of course it is understood that their offerings are purely voluntary. No man will be removed for declining to contribute, but those who do contribute will be looked upon with most favor. In like manner the President never meant to prohibit office-holders from taking an active part in politics. All he intended was that they should be careful not to expose the machine too awkwardly, by packing conventions with their own class. He has no objection to the employment of the Federal Brigade in politics, that is to say, but he stipulates that the men shall do their campaigning in mufti, and leave their uniforms at home. They are at liberty to utilize their discipline, and to employ all the weapons their positions furnish them, but they must operate as a sort of irregular force, and must eschew the pomp and circumstance of regular service. We had no conception that Mr. Hayes was so keen a casuist as this explanation shows him to be. It is really a very adroit and complete illustration of the process of explaining away an awkward and embarassing proposition. We venture to say that nobody outside the White House ever before discovered so many diverse meanings in the famous order, but if, after the new interpretation, there is any difficulty in using the "machine" to its fullest capacity, certainly nobody can blame the President.—Record-Union.

HON. SOL. HEYDENFELDT, a former Judge of the Supreme Court, has published a pamphlet in which he offers a plan for the reconstruction of the entire Judiciary of the State. He, in brief, proposes a Supreme Court of nine Justices, to hold office during good behavior; three Courts of Appeals of three Justices each; and County Judges and Justices of the Peace. The County Courts would have the same jurisdiction now possessed by the District Courts. He proposes that the Governor nominate two sets of candidates for every judicial office; that the Legislature have the power of rejecting or confirming these nominations; and the people shall only elect from the list of candidates nominated by the Governor and approved by the Legislatere. The plan proposed by Judge Heydenfeldt is worthy of the most serious consideration of the people.

THE Emperor of Germany, if one may believe divers pleasant anecdotes concerning him, is a stout disciplinarian. It is said that at one of the recent state balls he observed that a young officer, in talking to his partner, had accidentally turned his back on an English lady. Walking up to the unconscious offender, he seized him by the shoulders and turned him round, telling him that he should never turn his back to a lady. It is related, also, that His Majesty happened to see another officer dancing quite awkwardly, and immediately told his Colonel to inform him he was not to dance again until he had learned to do it better—an excellent injunction.

JUST WHAT PARENTS WANT.—The American Young Folks for May has been received. It is published at Topeka, Kansas, by J. K. Hudson, at 50 cents per year. It is full of useful, entertaining reading, pure and elevating in character. It contains School Plays, Parlor Games, a Post Office, Natural History, Anecdotes, Pleasant Stories, and is rich in short articles covering a wide range of topics. Teachers from Ohio to California have universally given it their approval and support. It is a 16-page, finely printed and illustrated monthly—a really good paper.

OYSTERS have always been considered as forbidden food by the Jews, the law of Moses prohibiting the eating of fish without scales. In consequence, however, of Mr. Darwin's theories, a learned rabbi has arrived at the conclusion that oysters are plants, and may therefore be eaten by Jews. An English paper reports that the problem will be submitted to a grand council.

THE annual post route bill as passed by the House and sent to the Senate, provides for the creation of the following new post routes in the Pacific States and Territories: California—El Monte to Azusa; Centerville to Squaw Valley; Sulphur Creek to Elk Creek; King's River, via Squaw Valley, Mill Creek, Banger Camp and Townsend's to Visalia.

OUR DUTY.

By far the most important political event of the history of California is to transpire in September next, when the Constitutional Convention is to be holden. It has long been evident that an entire new fundamental law was a requirement and at last the matter of making one is at hand—the work to be done by a Convention of 152 delegates to be elected June 19th, composed of men selected especially for honesty and ability, the instrument itself subject to ratification by the people at an election for the purpose in May next. As comprising one district, and having the right to elect one delegate, Inyo and Mono counties have before them the immediate duty of selecting candidates for the office, one of whom to be elected by a majority or plurality vote. Our voters have, besides, a vote for each of 32 delegates at large, eight of whom are to be nominated from this Congressional District, but the entire uncertainty of our votes affecting the election of any one of the men who may be thus placed in the field renders it the more important that our strongest man be centered upon for a local delegate. Such a man, to do his constituents, the present State and future generations some service, must be a man of brains, energy and character—subject to no monopolies and allied to no communism. He should be a bed-rock lawyer, devoted to the interests of his home and the State, and one who could take advantage of an opportunity, which can come but once in his life, of making a State reputation. We are but giving expression to the almost universal opinion of our citizens, Republicans and Democrats alike, when we state that these two counties possess just the man required—viz.: Mr. Patrick Reddy. But as to whether his time and business will admit of his accepting the position or not, we don't know.

With each election precinct of the two counties to be heard from, and nominations agreed upon, there is certainly no time to be lost. The respective County Central Committees, as the only authorized political bodies having any authority whatever, have the right to make nominations, if they wish, without the formality of primaries or convention, or they can call representative men together and then make them. The Democrats meet to consult on the matter next Monday. It is a common expression among Republicans of the county that, in view of this Land Office matter, they do not feel disposed to make any effort whatever to maintain party lines, even if such should be called for, for the simple reason that they feel ashamed of an Administration that will permit men to hold office and so use and abuse their trust in such utter disregard for the rights of the people as has been shown in that transaction.

We have referred to parties because they have, in their Central Committees, the only power necessary to begin the work, but the election of delegates is by no possible means a political question. No matter at issue can make it such.

Owing to the narrow-minded, partisan stupidity of the leading Democrats, the late meeting of the State Central Committees at San Francisco was a failure in the main object—that of a coalition and joint nominations. But the Republicans met and adopted a series of resolutions, the substance of which is contained in the following, and which we most heartily endorse, and consider it a pity that a document similar in tone could not come from the other side:

"Resolved, That the Republican State Central Committee, in accordance with the spirit of the resolution sent to the Democratic State Central Committee, recommend to the Republicans of California that they unite with their fellow-citizens in the selection of the ablest, fittest and best known gentlemen to represent them in the Convention which has been called for the purpose of preparing a new Constitution for this State; and that for the nomination of such candidates, meetings be held in the several counties and Senatorial and Congressional Districts, at such times and places as they and their fellow-citizens shall determine to be most suitable and convenient."

CHANGED HANDS.—D. Musgrove has turned the management of the Bellville semi-weekly Times over to D. M. Brannan, who, we believe, is the identical "Mark" that used to hoist foot-balls, etc., around here, and stick type in this office.

IT is reported in San Francisco that Messrs. Flood & O'Brien are to build a woman's hotel in that city at a cost of $1,000,000.

THE school roll at Grass Valley numbers 846 pupils—423 girls and 423 boys. That's a clear case of "half and half."

Execution of Runk.

Following is the account of the execution of John Runk in San Francisco, April 26, as published in a dispatch to the Nevada papers:

John Runk was hanged this afternoon for the murder of police officer Coots one year ago. This morning at 9 o'clock his mother and sister were admitted to his cell, and took final leave of the condemned son and brother. On their departure all access was denied to him, except to the officers and spiritual advisers, the latter being in constant attendance upon him. They state that the prisoner maintained his fortitude throughout, and seem resigned to his fate. Before noon the people began to throng toward the jail, and before noon the street was blocked with a dense crowd, through which those holding permits to witness the execution could scarcely force their way. The jail was also crowded with visitors, among whom was Sheriffs Greer and Mitchell, of San Mateo and Los Angeles. At 2 o'clock Runk was brought from the cell with his arms pinioned, and took his place on the drop. The priest at once intoned prayers, Runk responding in a low, steady voice. His demeanor was quiet and firm, and no signs of trepidation showed themselves. The delay was brief, the rope was quickly adjusted, the drop fell, and the condemned murderer dangled for a moment motionless. The noose slipped under his chin, and in a moment it was evident that he was slowly choking to death. His struggles were violent, though rendered abortive by the bands with which his limbs were confined, but his labored and convulsive attempts to breathe, short gasps, and the opening and the clenching of his hands were horrible to view. His struggles were prolonged some three or four minutes, when his breathing ceased, and the physicians in attendance pronounced him dead.

THE YOAKUMS HELD.—The examination of William and Thomas Yoakum, for the murder of Tucker and Johnston, which began on Thursday last was concluded on Saturday. In the wisdom of the counsel for the defense the public was excluded and no report was allowed to be made of the proceedings. Mrs. Tucker was on the stand all of the first day. She repeated the testimony given on the Coroner's investigation, and then was subjected to rigid cross-examination. All the ingenuity of the counsel was brought to bear to exclude damaging evidence. Her testimony was that she was sitting on the seat of the wagon with her husband holding her infant in her arms, and with two other children in the wagon; that Johnson was first shot; she saw the smoke of the gun on the hill among the rocks, and immediately afterward another shot was fired and her husband fell forward, the ball entering his breast, and the blood gushed out upon her from his back where the ball passed out. That her husband fell out the wagon on to the ground and died immediately; that she then went to a point on the road near by where she could look up the cañon, and saw two men; one was Thomas Yoakum, the younger brother, the other was William Yoakum; they had guns in their hands and were running down the hill. Every effort was made to test her certainty as to the persons, but she stated she could not be mistaken. She described the dress of one of them but could not describe the other. At the close of the examination the parties were held to appear before the Grand Jury for murder, and were taken back to jail.—Bakersfield Courier-Californian.

THE TAINT IN UTAH.—Almost every number of the Salt Lake Tribune contains the account of from three to twenty polygamous marriages. Since Brigham Young's death the busiuess has been pressed by the Directors of the Church to an extent never dreamed of in the old Chief's lifetime, and emissaries of the Church are scouring the Eastern States and the northern countries of Europe to find women ignorant enough to accept the shame. The whole businese is in direct contravention of the laws of the United States, and daily, in the name of religion, men and women are performing acts in Utah which in any other region of our Republic would consign them to the penitentiary. So far the Government has interposed no authority which has stayed the disgrace for a moment. Congress seems to lack the courage to act, though the evil is swiftly assuming a magnitude which will require force to cure if the matter be delayed a few years longer. Either the Mormons who have more than one wife are guilty of felony, and deserve imprisonment and to be debarred from exercising any rights of citizenship, or polygamy is right and should be generally encouraged, until, like Turkey, the Great Republic becomes but one vast harem.—Virginia Enterprise.

TILDEN, Conkling and Butler all encouraged these Florida men to turn State's evidence against themselves. It is well known that all of them want to sink Hayes. As Conkling said, Butler and Conkling aim to isolate Hayes wholly from the Republican party and make his position intolerable to him. Some people begin to think they may succeed in this, but the majority think Hayes cannot be got out of the White House before March, 1881, except by death or a squad of soldiers. The published statements of McLin and Dennis are not considered of any particular importance, but they furnish material upon which, before the Investigating Committee, bottom facts can be proven.—N. Y. World.

A PARTY of twenty or more Chinese washermen were recently arrested in Boston for gambling. One of them addressed the court as follows: "What se usee play pokel? Me hold four kings and a lace. Melican man hold four lace and a king; whole week washee gone all same like woodbine."

THE Silver State learns indirectly that at a council of military chieftains in San Francisco, held a few days since, it was determined to abandon Camp Harney, in Eastern Oregon. The Silver State is bitter in denunciation of the scheme, and fierce in its invective against the officers who are said to have met in council. It closes its phillipic with these words: "It is to be hoped that the War Department will look at the Indian question through unclouded spectacles, and not be deluded into the belief that Indian tribes on the frontier can be Christianized by agents, and that prayers at reservations will save the families of settlers from the scalping-knife of the savage if the troops, which afford them protection, are withdrawn."

FERNBACH'S BUILDING. — The new $6,000 brewery building of Jos. Fernbach, now completed, is by far the handsomest structure in the county, its architectural effect surpassing many buildings which cost much more. Beside the "cooler" room, 18 by 24 feet, the main building is 31 by 38 feet, and 28 feet in hight, surmounted by a cupola and weather-vane. On the top of this is a gilt ball, turned out by our mechanical senior at his turning lathe. Our aforesaid temperance senior thus contributed the apex of the new building, while perhaps the late and present juniors have assisted in the purchase of some of the foundation timbers, in the way of buying beer. However, the institution is as complete an affair of the kind as there is in the State. The bar-room proper, 20 by 20 feet, is finely finished with Oregon pine and red wood. A cellar, 20 by 24 feet, and most convenient of access, affords a cool place for storing and quaffing "swei lager." A substantial veranda, 80 feet in length, surrounds the two fronts, built in style and finish to correspond with the fine ornamentation of the building. An abundant stream of clear water has been used as power for grinding malt since the first starting up of the institution. The perfection of its internal arrangements seems to be in having an abundance of room to carry on every process of brewing with the least possible work, every improved appliance of the business being supplied. The site of the present "Pioneer" Brewery was once occupied by the first boarding house in the central portion of the valley—in fact, the second house (principally "adobe") erected in Independence, and was owned and conducted by Blaney, who afterwards established the Exchange Hotel, since rebuilt as the present Blaney House. In 1867, the concern was merged into a brewery by Louis Munzinger and John R. Hughes, and came under ownership of the present proprietor in the following year. We hope to give an illustration of it and other prominent buildings soon, so will defer further description. A formal opening will take place to-night, with free beer on tap for everybody. As will be seen by notice elsewhere, Charley Miller has retired from the concern, and Jos. Schalten has become the chief dispenser of the "amber beverage."

STAGE MATTERS.—Mr. Geo. Allman, the head of a firm of mail contractors whose bids were accepted at the last letting for a large number of mail routes throughout the West, favored us with a call Sunday last. Among his other lines is the one from this place to Aurora, and he was here to effect preliminary arrangements for the beginning of service on his contract in July. And this reminds us of a somewhat noticeable difference in the time tables (if the routes were let according to the terms of the advertisement) between the schedule time from Aurora and Caliente, respectively, to this place. On the Caliente route from the railroad here the distance is 160 miles, while the schedule time is 51 hours; time of arrival here being two hours later than at present. From Aurora here the distance is 138 miles and the time 28 hours, giving a relative difference in favor of the Caliente contractor of 24 hours in which to make 22 miles. It is possible, however, that in the final lettings some alterations may have been made to equalize the time a little better as between the two routes. Instead of a daily mail as heretofore, on the Aurora route, we will have but a tri-weekly under the new contract. For a wonder the Department did not cut the service down to once a week from the railroad, it remaining a tri-weekly, as heretofore.

LETTER LIST.—The following list of letters remain unclaimed in the Independence Postoffice, May 1: Geo. W. Bagg, R. R. Briges, Jas. P. Cummings, C. M. Crane, J. N. Chim, Geo. K. Davison, Geo. Franonier (2), Joseph Garringer, A. W. Dutch or Lutch, Mich Flutey or Hatley, Lonisa Holland, Archy Love, Michael McMahon, Miss Sappy McComb, Patrick McKay, Thos. Miner, John Murray (2), J. R. Murphy, Chas. Reynolds, M. Ritter, D. Summers, Frank C. Smith, John Steen (2), Wm. Twaddle, Rudolph Winke, John E. Wiscomb (3).

OPENING.—The Walters Brewery Depot, in the new building adjoining the Post-office, will open for business on Monday next, and the genial proprietor requests us to invite all his friends to drop in and sample his brew to their fullest desire. P. S.—The above arrangement, in connection with the opening, to-night, of Joe Fernbach's establishment, fixes us for two days' salubriousness, and perfect content would prevail were it possible that the intervening Sunday could be provided for.

SWANSEA.—Supt. Wheeler, of the Swansea furnace, was in town during the week. He states that the works are undergoing complete repairs and refitting for business. We learn from other sources that the Ygnacio Company have agreed to put ten men at work getting out its rich silver ore for the new works, for which liberal prices are paid per ton.

DEPUTY.—Jas. E. Parker, of this paper, has been appointed one of the County Clerk's deputies, to assist during the Grand Jury, Courts and Supervisor sessions. It would be hard for Johnny Orough and George Gill to be in more than four different places at a time.

COMMITTEE MEETING.—An important meeting of the Democratic County Central Committee is to be held on Monday next, to take action relative to the nomination of a candidate for the Constitutional Convention.

THAT FIRE.—The burning of the Mexican Hall, at Lone Pine, whether by accident or incendiaries, has created an intense feeling among property owners and citizens of Lone Pine. Under the hypothesis that some drunken or malicious Indians — possibly through a wild notion that he was retaliating for the killing of Indian Dick, which preceded the Passmore tragedy—the event comes in a most unfortunate time, to say nothing of the idiocy of blaming the Mexican and Chilean people for the doings of a Portugese. And if it is possible that any white man has been mean enough to fire the building and destroy valuable property simply to provoke a feud, the best punishment for him would be a literal roasting at the stake. The leading citizens realize the situation, and offer a handsome reward for the detection and conviction of the criminal. The offer will be noted elsewhere, and though it has no signature, we know it to come from responsible parties easily found. Besides their labor, the building destroyed cost the Mexican Society nearly $2,000; it was built for their annual celebrations (of which Lone Pine will probably see no more), and open for the use of everybody. It has of late been used for the accommodation of invalids cared for by the Society, and the Mexican population—who in themselves had mighty little to do with the late tragedies—have but few paupers to fall upon the public purse, whatever their shortcomings may be otherwise.

PERSONAL.—Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Eibeshutz returned this week from their visit among the fog-snifters, as did also Capt. Eudey. Both gentlemen were parties in some mining and other transactions in kind of local interest, but of which more hereafter. H. W. Woods, Esq., late of Darwin, is here, en route for the Black Hills, where he proposes to locate in his profession. His family will remain in Darwin for a short time before removing thither. Mr. W. is a young lawyer of marked abilities, and worthy of the highest success.

OUR LONE PINE LETTER.

LONE PINE, Cal., May 2.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Our people pretty generally turned out yesterday for a May-day picnic, and proceeded to the ranch of Julius Roeper, at George's Creek, to hold it. About 9 o'clock A. M., nearly everybody was ready, and ladies and gentlemen on horseback dashing up and down the street, four and six horse wagons filled with people, old and young, with fluttering flags, gave our hitherto quiet streets quite an animated appearance, while occasionally was heard the dulcet voice of "Butch," softly murmuring that "he'd soon be up."

The Sooner Society has suffered a serious loss, as two of their most prominent members left with County Surveyor Seeley to fix the boundary line between Inyo and San Bernardino. The trip is liable to produce such an effect that upon their return they will be unfitted to resume their former standing in the Society.

Last Tuesday night, about 12 o'clock, the Mexican Hall was discovered to be on fire. The building was completely enveloped in flames before any one got there, and we could only stand by and see it burn. As the hall was quite isolated, it was undoubtedly set on fire. I am inclined to the belief that some drunken Indians must have set it on fire, as I have been told that on several occasions Indians have been seen sleeping in a shed attached to the main building. The loss of the building is regretted by everybody, as our town can ill afford to lose any of its improvements.

I would like very much to know who your "two reliable Mexicans" are who stated that notices had been served on two or three Mexicans to leave, and, in consequence, they did leave. Now, this is a mis-statement. No notice has been given to any Mexican. A notice was given to a Chilean and an American to leave, but they paid no attention to it; they are both here, and neither appears to be frightened.

The Lone Pine Dramatic Society give an entertainment next Saturday night. They play two pieces—"Michael Earle, or the Maniac Lover," and "Kill or Cure." If any of your Independence people wish to witness a very pleasant entertainment you had better come down.

BUSTER.

OLANCHA, April 30.

MESSRS. EDS.—I am glad to see that your agent in this place has been exerting himself somewhat in procuring subscriptions to the Owens River Fish Stocking Fund, and has obtained $20. Messrs. Titsworth and Bunker stand in with $5 each. These gentlemen not only take an interest in improving Cartago, their place of residence, but also the whole county. That station has just received a thorough painting up which greatly improves its outside appearance; but the improvement inside is by far the most important; the culinary department is now under the supervision of a white woman (how beautiful that word sounds!), and if Mr. Bunker has been the cause of changing the complection of the place from olive to white I for one say "bless him; may his shadow never grow less." Olancha proper has given a helping hand in the fish business—A. Walker contributing $5, the remainder coming from others there.

Dropping in there last evening, I found the place lit up in extra style; music in full blast, and the girls and boys tripping "the light fan—" etc., but where they all came from I cannot undertake to say. "Old Pap Walker" appears to be able to raise a crowd for a dance or an election whenever he pleases. However, we had a pleasant time, and no one seemed to enjoy it any better than Pap himself.

Times in this neck of the sagebrush are beginning to look up, and since Frank Dillon has been here and let us know that we were worth so much more than we knew of or even expected, most of us will make some improvements. Come to think of it, we're able to do it and there's lots of room.

SETTLER.

"Bad Policy."

LONE PINE, April 29.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—I see in your valuable paper, dated the 27th of this month, an article headed "Bad Policy," concerning some affairs in Lone Pine, in which you state that "notices were served upon two or three Mexicans, notifying them to leave the vicinity within twenty-four hours," &c. Some parties here are kicking about it, because the two men that were served with such notices were one Chilean, by the name of José Lopes, and one American by the name of Charles Adams, and no one of them is a Mexican. Although the two Mexicans upon whom notices were served, notifying them to leave the vicinity within ten hours were Carlos Ferman and Eustaguio Santoyo, and as you know, both were killed on the 10th of February last. Please, if you see necessary, correct the statement in your next, and oblige, Yours very truly,

JUAN MEZA.

GEORGE'S CREEK, April 28.

MESSRS. EDITORS. — Reading your mention of the several places where the people have taken an interest in the matter of stocking our running streams with fish, I see no report from George's Creek. Julius Roeper went around last week and in a few hours collected, (mind you) $25, and thinks he can bring it up to $35 in our district.

Yours, etc.,
CHAS. KEPPLER.

SNOWBLIND.—Four of the Rex Montis miners came down from the hill yesterday, almost completely blinded from the snow.

MEETING.—Inyo Lodge, No. 221, F. & A. M., holds its regular monthly meeting on Saturday evening next.

MESSRS. EDS.—We, of this remote portion of the Lord's moral vineyard, opine that it would be of interest to yourselves as well as to some of your readers to know the exact locality of the above named place, its resources, liabilities, prospects and expectations of the inhabitants thereof, their numbers, class and occupations, together with a synopsis of matters and things in general in and around the so called famous Lake Mining District.

to this bonanza portion of this mundane sphere is from Benton; it was built by A. C. Webster, who, with a force of white and Piute individuals, has been at work upon it about three weeks. It is yet but passable for light teams, numbers of which are coming and going daily, bringing men, provisions and provender. The road crosses Owens river in Long Valley, thence to Casa Diablo Springs (the Saratoga of the Eastern Slope), thence to this place, which is on the head of Owens river, and thirty-five miles from Benton.

RESOURCES.

The locality is most beautiful, being on the mountains, with an abundance of the purest water and the very finest of timber. There are fertile meadows which even this early afford support for the animals used in the journey hither. Last but not least are the mountains of gold and silver-bearing quartz rock, in some of which gold can be seen with the naked eye. This mineral-bearing mountain stands about 2,000 feet higher than any other hereabouts, runs nearly north and south and carries gold and silver in croppings and float for a distance of four and one-half miles. About four miles to the southeast of this main belt are numerous base metal ledges, well defined and of an average width of four and one-half feet; some of these assay from $40 to $180 per ton in silver, with a trace of gold. The number of mining locations to this date is supposed to be about three hundred, besides timber claims, hay ranches and mill sites too numerous to mention.

TOWNS, ETC.

The town at the mines is known as Lake City, so called from the five small lakes adjacent thereto. Lots are taken up and fenced for a distance of about one mile, and some twenty or more houses are in course of erection. The town at the foot of the mountain about two miles west of the mines is known as Mineral Park, which though not so extensively located as yet has the appearance of a more permanent business place, as it will be as far as teams can get for three or four months to come. The buildings going up are a saloon and hotel by Dan Ashley, a store by George Rowan, feed stable by Miller and other places.

PERSONAL.

The number of inhabitants is estimated at 125. They are variously occupied, some prospecting, some building, others selling gin and occasionally a man standing on a stump pulling out "Oh-Jo." Mr. Lowery, Superintendent of the Alpha mine, showed us around; took a look into the tunnel and saw some very pretty specimens of ore; then went to the croppings, where we saw rock containing much of that metallic substance which "Th: Nast" so thirsts after.

And now in conclusion (per style) I will state for the benefit of all who may wish to call this way that for a prospector, stock-raiser, pleasure-seeker or high-toned sport, this locality comes nearer being a field for all than any ever before known to

A GOOD IDEA.—Citizens of Lone Pine express a desire to contribute liberally toward a fund for the reconstruction of the lately destroyed Mexican Hall. Do it by all means; the reasons why are too obvious to deed special setting forth at this particular time.

GONE TO WORK.—Road Master Connelly started out on Thursday with a strong force of men, a large number of long piles and a pile driver, to begin the re-construction of the Lone Pine bridge.

AN OLD TIMER RETURNED.—Capt. I. G. Messic, Superintendent of the S. V. M. & W. Co., whose operations at Panamint were on an extensive scale—honorable throughout, although not altogether a success—came in last Wednesday, and went out the same afternoon for Lookout and Panamint. The Captain has made the "grand rounds" since he left here, taking in Bodie, San Francisco, Kernville, etc. He goes to Panamint on a regular inspection tour of the company's excellent 20-stamp mill, store, etc., and we have reason to believe will see enough in and around Lookout to warrant him in advising that the mill be left where it is, for the present at least, as the probabilities of its being utilized on milling ores to be found in this section will favor the chances of the company making more out of it in that manner than to pay such exorbitant prices as are asked for transportation of same to the Bodie country. The Captain left Senator Wm. Stewart in the city, who is operating in Bodie mining stock and and the Mahoning and Lincoln mines, excellent properties situated in Amador county, in which the Senator is interested. Coming through Kernville, the Captain inspected the Big Blue or Sumner mine, now owned by Mr. Burke and Henry Jones, the latter a brother of the Hon. John P. Jones. The many friends of Henry Jones will be glad to hear that he is well and that his prospects are good. Sixty stamps are now running by water on ore furnished from the Sumner mine. Mrs. Messic is in San Francisco, but not in the enjoyment of her usually excellent health, having been afflicted with a bad cold during the Winter.—Darwin News, April 27.

IT speaks well for the efficiency of the Canadian system of dealing with Indians that the Government can safely and without protest distribute arms and ammunition among the tribes. In pursuance of a treaty made with the Blackfeet forty-six of the chiefs and head men of the tribe have each been furnished a Winchester rifle and 400 cartridges. The United States has not progressed so far as this in the science of getting along with its Indian wards.

SATURDAY, MAY 4.....1878.

A Farmer's Stew.

A Canadian journal remarks: "In Canada we have learned something from the French about cheap living. Perhaps our pot-pie came from them, because they are famous for their rich wholesome stews. Take a joint of any kind of fresh meat—some like beef, others like veal, I like mutton, because my father kept long wool or mutton sheep. In the city you can get such a joint for a dime, and in the country it ought not to cost more. In all cases put the meat in cold water, add enough water to cover it, and boil until it is tender—for beef and mutton say two hours, for veal say one hour. Add salt and pepper. About half an hour before serving, put in six pototoes pared and quartered, and let them boil with the meat. In the meantime prepare the dumplings by taking one quart of flour, a tablespoonful of butter, and two teaspoonfuls of sifted baking powder; wet with milk enough to make a stiff batter, so it will drop from a spoon, ten minutes before serving drop the batter into the stew a spoonful at a time, until it is all in, and then cover tightly, and boil ten minutes. If the meat is not sufficiently fat, add butter, but not otherwise; it is generally rich enough without butter. The batter thickens the gravy as well as makes the dumpling. Serve, of course, on a large platter. Here you have meat and the juice of meat, bone and the juice of bone, potatoes and flour, all healthy and nourishing, and good for brain, muscle and bone. Enough for a large family does not cost 25 cents; all like it; and we at home have this stew at least twice a week."

MOTHS IN CARPETS.—The carpet moth makes his favorite home about the bindings and corners of the carpet. If this is an ingrain or three-ply fabric, successful war may be waged upon him by wringing a cloth out of hot water, laying it over the bindings and edges, and ironing with as hot an iron as can be used without scorching. This will destroy both the moths and their eggs, and after a few such visitations they disappear. But this steaming and ironing process is not effectual with Wiltons, Moquettes or any other heavy carpetings. The heat cannot thoroughly penetrate them, and ironing injures the pile of the velvet. Still, it is best to draw the tacks occasionally, and lay the edge of the carpet over—one side only, or a part of a side, at a time—and steam and iron it on the wrong side. Then, besides this, the floor should be wiped as far under as the arm will reach with a cloth wrung out of strong and hot Cayenne tea; and before re-nailing, the binding and edging of the carpet should also be wiped with it, rubbing them hard. Some have recommended sprinkling salt round the edges of the room before nailing down the carpet, but we should think this objectionable, as the salt absorbs moisture from the air.—Ex.

BABIES AND TEARS.—It is a well known fact that very young babies do not shed tears. They will scream and cry loudly, but no tears follow these demonstrations. The scalp will be inflamed with blood, the eyes contracted and mouth open with cries, and yet no tears run down the face, as in older children. Darwin takes especial notice of this fact, assuming that tears do not often make their appearance earlier than 100 days in infants. "In one instance," he says, "I was positively assured, tears run down an infant's face at the unusually early age of 42 days. It would appear that the lachrymal glands required some practice in the individual before they are easily excited into action." Now, in my own case, a fine, healthful infant shed tears from the very first. It was a pitiful sight to see the large drops sweell under the eyelids and run down the little cheeks. "Born to grief," the nurse exclaimed; and I found upon inquiry, that this was a common superstition, which would seem to imply that exceptional cases of this kind are not infrequent.

MR. DICKS is one of the admired young gallants of Wooster, Iowa. Two girls claimed his escort from a social gathering. He politely offered an arm to each, but that arrangement did not please the rivals, who quarreled in the street. Mr. Dicks declined to interfere in the controversary. He stood aside and told them to settle the question themselves. They did so by a long and severe fight, in which hair and clothes were torn, faces scratched and fingers bitten. At length one was vanquished, and Mr. Dicks gave his arm to the victor.

IN England a barrister may not plead in Court without a wig. In one British colony, at least, Natal, he may not plead with one. A Dr. Smith of the English bar, having appeared in a wig, the Chief Justice told him: "It is a covering to the head, like a hat or any other, and you must not appear here covered." A singular ground of objection, inasmuch as it will equally apply to a wig worn to conceal baldness. The case was stopped till the wig was removed.

EDMOND MEGY, a leader of the party which assassinated Archbishop Darboy during the Paris Commune in 1871, is now in New York working at his trade as machinist. He is anxious to institute the principles of the Commune in this country, and jovially smoked a cigar the other day while he developed to a reporter his pleasant theories as to the prospects of a social revolution.

DR. WILD, an English parson, is trying to make out that Queen Victoria is a descendant of King David, and this is how he proves it: Her ancestor, the prophet Jeremiah, went to Ireland by water—of course—and tarried at Tara. He was accompanied by a princess, who married an Irish King, and this Irish King was a lineal ancestor of the Guelphs.

Pool Selling.

We copy from one of our New York exchanges the following article on "Pool Selling" at fairs and "Gambling" in our cities, we need only repeat the question there asked: "Is it well to ruin the breed of young men in order to improve the breed of horses?" All who have ever been to the agricultural fairs of our State have seen the influence of "pool selling" and "gambling," upon the young men and old men. Better that all our fairs were abolished altogether than that these practices shall be allowed, the evils resulting from these practices are ten times greater than all the benefits gained by our fairs:

The law against pool selling passed a year ago was enacted for the greatest good of the people of the whole State. But "no thief e'er felt the halter draw with good opinion of the law," and there has been a good deal of squirming on the part of a few gamblers and saloon keepers whose occupation was swept away. These gentry are trying to have the law repealed, on the plea that gambling tends to improve the breed of horses! A protest has been drawn up by the Society for the Prevention of Crime, to be presented to the Legislature. Every friend of good morals and of the youth of the State, should sign this document. The following is the protest:

"The Society for the Prevention of Crime desires respectfully to call the attention of the public to the effort now being made by an interested portion of the community in behalf of the legalization of gambling.

"It is well understood in every civilized State that few vices are more destructive of the public interests than this. It dissipates fortunes, tempts to dishonesty and fraud, excites the evil passions and leads to idleness and thriftlessness."

It is argued that pool selling at horse races is necessary to support the raising and maintaining the best breeds of horses. Even if the argument were a correct one, is it well to ruin the breed of young men to improve the breed of horses? Are horses of more value than men?

But the argument itself is false; the best horses are not those that run the fastest. The best horses are those that are the most serviceable in the ordinary uses to which horses are put, and these are not the product of the race course. The demand for this class will naturally stimulate the production. It is mainly the few who amuse themselves with fast horses as an expensive luxury who will be benefitted by the gambling of the race course. Are we ready to bow to the will of these few and give legal sanction to a ruinous vice? Make gambling respectable at Jerome Park, and you will have it respectable at Saratoga, and in every gambling den in New York.

We ask our citizens to protest with us against this bold endeavor to destroy our youth and undermine the foundations of society. The sporting characters of the community are not safe guides in legislation.—California Farmer.

JOHN THORNTON and J. H. Stong are preparing to put in 25 acres of South Carolina rice on Kings river this season. The land has been plowed and is now flooded, but will be drained and flooded again before planting. It is thought that in case of securing a crop, it can be cleaned by a mill which can be attached to water or steam power near at home, thus saving about two cents per pound in transportation to and from San Francisco.—Visalia Delta.

CHARLIE MAY had been taught by his father that God made all things. He began to inquire in detail in regard to various objects. Coming out one day where his father was at work, he set his foot on a thistle. "Oh, papa, what is that?" "That is a thistle, Charlie." "Thistle. Did God make it?" "Yes, Charlie, God made the thistle." "Well he whittled it pretty sharp, didn't he?"

The export trade of France for the past year showed a decline of $32,000,000 from the previous year, while the decrease of imports amounted to $40,500,000. The United States is the only country that shows an increase of both exports and imports.

An Indiana paper says: Farm labor throughout the State promises to be lower this year than it has been for the last twenty years. From $13 to $16 per month, farmers say, will be all they can afford to pay, unless greenbacks are plentier.

Advices from Havana state that business of every description is stagnant, with a downward tendency in prices for nearly all kinds of merchandise. The Havana Mercantile Review thinks that 550,000 tons is the probable decrease in this season's sugar crop, but journals in other parts think that will turn out to be an under estimate by several thousand tons, owing to the bad weather that has recently extended over the whole island.

New York importers report trade backward and business generally dull. There is a sharp demand for fancy dress goods with little or no demand for the plain goods. Silks, velvets and millinery goods are being purchased sparingly, and only to meet immediate wants. The market has been greatly overstocked and the economy of the people of the West and South is so marked that heavy sales are scarcely anticipated.

G. A. LEBOUR, of the College of Physical Science, Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, makes the important geological announcement that he has found marine fossils in the lower coal measures of Northumberland.

Facts for Farmer.

It is worth while for farmers, everywhere, to remember that thorough culture is better than three mortgages on a farm.

That an offensive war against weeds is five times better than a defensive one.

That one evening spent at home in study is more profitable than ten spent in lounging about saloons and taverns.

That cows should be milked regularly and clean.

That it is the duty of every man to take some good, reliable and entertaining paper, and—pay for it promptly as a matter of course.

MR. PATRICK, one of the earliest friends of Hon. James A. Garfield, tells a very pretty story of the latter. He says: "I want to tell you about a young man who came to my farm-house from the canal. He had been a canal-boat driver, and as the canal had just frozen up, he wanted to do chores for his board during the Winter. James—for that was his name—was a stalwart, honest looking fellow, so I took him in. My own children soon began attending school, and I asked James if he did not want to go to school with them, but he declined. I soon noticed that he seemed to be quite despondent, and I asked him if he was troubled about anything. He then confessed to me that, although he was nineteen years of age, he could neither read nor write, and he was in such mental distress because, as he thought, it was too late for him to begin. I assured him it was not too late, and urged him to begin at once, which he did, with so much energy that within a year from that time he was teaching school himself." That boy's name was James A. Garfield.

DARE TO DO RIGHT.—"All men forsook me," is Paul's own account of himself, "but the Lord stood with me and strengthened me." Here is a golden hint for the young who are put to their mettle in refusing a sinful fashion, or in bearing a jibe at their conscientious scruples. The young man who can be laughed into a glass of wine, or a game of cards or a ball-room, may set him down as a pitiable coward who can be pushed back by a straw. If he is more afraid of a companion's sneer than of God's frown, he is doomed. —Rev. Theo. Cuyler.

THE Salt Lake Tribune publishes the following, which is worthy the attention of builders, now that lead has become so cheap and plenty in this State: In England and France a thorough test has been made of the adaptability of lead for roofing. It is rolled in sheets a sixteenth of an inch in thickness and cut into squares suitable for handling easy; then it is nailed on the roof with copper tacks. A roof of this kind never leaks, is almost as cheap as shingles, and never wears out by age or usage.

THE largest steamship ever built, except the Great Eastern, is now in New York. She is named the Hooper, and has been used in the laying of telegraph cables. This is her first trip to this country. She is 350 feet over all, 55 feet wide, and 36 feet deep. She is is registered as 5,935 tons, but has a capacity of 6,000 tons exclusive of passengers. She will carry out the largest cargo that ever left any port in the United States.

A VERY little boy had one day done wrong, and he was sent, after paternal corrections, to ask in secret the forgiving of his Heavenly Father. His offense was passion. Anxious to hear what he would say, his mother followed to the door of his room. In lisping accents she heard him ask to be made better, and then with child-like simplicity he added, "Lord make ma's temper better, too."

"How are you getting along at your new place?" asked a lady of a girl whom she had recommended for a situation. "Very well, thank you," answered the girl. "I am glad to hear it," said the lady. "Your employer is a very nice lady, and you cannot do too much for her." "I don't mean to, ma'am," was the innocent reply.

THE eminent English historian, Jas. Anthony Froude, has sent an elaborate article to the International Review of New York containing the most remarkable statements upon science and religion. He holds that the present state of religious opinion throughout the world is extremely critical; that theologians no longer speak with authority; that those who uphold orthodoxy cannot agree on what grounds to defend it; that materialism all over Europe is respectfully listened to when it affirms that the claims of revelation cannot be maintained; and that the existence of God and of a future state, the origin of man and the nature of conscience and the distinction between good and evil, are all open questions. He says that no serious consequences, at least in England and America, are yet outwardly apparent, and that the entire generation at present alive may pass away before the inward change shows itself in marked external symptoms; but that it is certain that religious opinion is moving with increasing speed along a track which it will never retrace, and toward issues infinitely momentous.

OUR people were somewhat despondent on Saturday at the aspect of the barley throughout the county. Nearly all the early sown barley had been flattened down first, by the wind storm of Sunday week, and then by the rainstorms that followed. Two dry days, however, have brought a great deal of it up. We saw a number of fields yesterday in which the stalks were rising to a vertical position, and the general impression is that a few days of sunshine will restore it all to an erect stand. The late sown grain has not been lodged to any great extent, and the wheat has very generally escaped the flattening process, although there are some appearances of drooping weakness in some of the extensive fields in San Fernando valley.—Los Angeles Express.

SETTLED.

Subjoined will be found correspondence in relation to the candidacy for delegate to the Constitutional Convention. It will be seen that the Republican and Democratic County Central Committees have united for the purpose of putting a candidate in the field, and that they intend to coöperate for his election. It will be further noted that they strongly urge P. Reddy, Esq., to accept the nomination, and that Mr. R. has consented to do so. It is due to him to say that he has consented to do so only because of the earnest solicitations of a large number of citizens regardless of partisan leanings. Their unanimity on this point is something remarkable, and, like others of the attending circumstances, unprecedented in the political history of the county. And we will venture to say that no man will cast a vote against Mr. Reddy because of a doubt of his eminent fitness for the duties of the position. But we will defer all further remarks on that point for the present.

In the usual order of making nominations by parties the naming of the candidates would have been left to the formal action of a joint convention of delegates from both counties comprising the district. While that course of procedure still remains to be carried out to the letter, yet the peculiar conditions of the joint action of the two parties, making it essentially a people's move, together with the necessity for decisive action by reason of the short space of time intervening before election, and other facts, some of which we will endeavor to explain hereafter, made it necessary in the present instance to ignore that rule somewhat in spirit, hence the following:

INDEPENDENCE, May 10, 1878.

P. Reddy, Esq: DEAR SIR—At a joint conference held between the Chairman and Secretary of the Republican Central Committee and the Chairman and Secretary of the Democratic County Central Committee, under instructions from their respective Committees, we hereby solicit your acceptance of the nomination as Delegate to the Constitutional Convention to be held in Sacramento, commencing on the 28th day of September next. And in case of your acceptance, we were further authorized to pledge you the cordial and hearty support of our respective committees, both in securing your nomination and your election. An early reply is solicited.

Very respectfully yours,

NATHAN RHINE, Chairman.

S. P. MOFFAT, Secretary.

INDEPENDENCE, Cal., May 10.

Nathan Rhine, Chairman, and S. P. Moffat, Secretary of Joint Conference: GENTLEMAN—Your favor of the 10th inst. has been received. I am fully conscious of the honor you propose to confer upon me, and thank you for it. In reply, allow me to say, that if the Convention should select me as its candidate, I will accept the nomination.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

PATRICK REDDY.

WE have received from the Secretary of State a sample copy of ballot paper to be used at the next election. He says: "You will oblige me by retaining in your office, for public inspection the sample sent, that all voters may know the kind and quality of the paper to be used, and thus avoid possible trouble as to the legality of the ballots used at any election." We will take pleasure in showing the sample in our possession to any one who wishes to see it. To all appearance it is identically the same as that used at the last two or three elections.

IT appears from testimony taken in the Seward case recently that Seward charged the Government $3,000 a year for rent of the legation building, while the owner of this building, who is now in this country, says that he received only $400 a year for it. The epidemic of corruption has not spared even the honored family of Seward. It is well that old Wm. H. Seward is in his grave, for the disgrace which his nephew has incurred would have broken the old man's heart.

HOT.—The heat in the Sutro tunnel has become so great at the header that the men are only now working six hour shifts. Mr. Sutro resisted the demand of the miners for short shifts, but finally had to yield. The heat is so intense that many times the workmen have to be put in cars and taken to the mouth of the tunnel.

JEFFERSON DAVIS and wife called upon President Diaz in the city of Mexico on March 26. Mr. Davis' health is so bad that he is not expected to live long.

FEEDING Indians on the Colorado River Reservation is to be resumed about July 1. Small-pox has reduced them to a state of great poverty.

THE OLD STORY.

From various Indian tribes, all along the border in fact, come reports of threatened Indian outbreaks. Every year the Government expends hundreds of thousands of dollars to provide those people with the necessaries of life—in amount quite sufficient, one would think, to insure them against absolute hunger and cold, consequently of the constantly expressed desire to go forth and slay and be slain, as with the Modocs, Chief Joseph, Sitting Buil and all the rest. But their discontent is not hard to understand, allow as much as we may for their savage, blood-thirsty natures. It is the old story, but yet never half told—abuse at the hands of scoundrelly Indian agents.

The Fort Ellis correspondent of the New York Tribune describes the annuities recently purchased for the Crows, at a cost to the Government of about $84,000. There were striped socks for the stalwart braves, and princesse stockings for the squaws, plug hats, butcher knives, overcoats with velvet collars, business suits in the most popular checks and diagonals, a full line of fancy three button waistcoats, open in the bosom so as to show the whole set of shirt studs, and, for Sunday wear, an unrivalled assortment of that most stylish article of wearing apparel, which the East side young man commonly designates as "spring bottom pants." Arrayed in all these high-toned clothes the noble son of the forest must be an impressive illustration of the benefits of a paternal government—only the butcher-knife, if we regard it as an ornament, is hardly in keeping with the rest of the costume, and if we consider its use, the objection arises that the Indian has no meat; perhaps it is for both reasons equally that the butcher knives, as the correspondent tells us, are unpopular in the Indian country, and are "swapped" for ammunition—namely gunpowder and corn whisky—as fast as possible.

The Indians are growing dangerous because they are growing hungry. They cannot find game in the hunting grounds to which the Government restricts them; "full rations for Indians have been unknown for a year past;" a recent council of the Crows complained that they "got less and less with every succeeding agent;" an army officer detailed to watch a distribution of supplies at one of the agencies discovered a heap of Indian goods hidden beneath a pile of empty boxes and barrels; the savages, rendered desperate by starvation, declare that it is better to die in battle than perish like old women.

SEVERAL capitalists of San Francisco are preparing to build a narrow-gauge railway from the San Joaquin Valley across the Sierra Nevada mountains to Bodie. The road will start from Stockton or Modesto and go over Mono Pass via Sonora. The total distance is about 155 miles. The pass is thought to be entirely practicable for a railroad line. The intention is to build a section of the road across the valley before harvest in order to carry the coming crop. Subscriptions will be asked for from Stanislaus, Tuolumne and San Joaquin counties. One of the projectors of the road and an engineer will make a reconnoissance of the route immediately.

JUDGE THORNTON, of the Twenty-third District Court, is very rigid in his inquiry as to the knowledge and social status of applicants for naturalization papers. Among the questions proposed by the Judge to an applicant recently were the following: "Did you ever read the Constitution of the United States? Did you ever read the Constitution of this State? Have you been guilty of attending meetings for illegal purposes? Have you ever threatened to hang a man? Have you ever advocated the burning of houses?" Many similar questions were asked to each of which the applicant replied "No."

THE programme for the opening of the Paris Exhibition displays good sense and propriety. While the foreign representatives will be treated, as guests of the French nation, with marked consideration, the workmen who constructed the buildings are to receive a fair share of honorable recognition. The political harmony which now exists in France served to make the ceremonies of the first day a genuine manifestation of good will.

BEGINS TO APPEAR.

The last issue of the Bodie Standard devotes a column in a sort of a review of what it designates as a "two-column article [in THE INDEPENDENT] abusive of R. M. Briggs, Register of the Land Office." The only point made or arrived at apparently in the Standard article seems to have been to fill a column with leaded matter; in that it is a success. Yes, here are two assertions in one sentence in the column-filler referred to, which we quote as a specimen brick of the whole:

Independent of the fact that a large proportion of the business of the Land Office arises in this county and immediate neighborhood, Mr. Briggs displayed excellent judgment in the selection of a residence.

Indeed, he did. Wherever the carrion smells the loudest there flock the buzzards. Here, as outlined in a dispatch to the San Francisco Chronicle, is the explanation of the whole business:

Our little camp was thrown into great excitement on Saturday by the report that the Standard and Bechtel Company mines were about to be "jumped," and that men were stationed on the ground with rifles and shot-guns. An investigation disclosed that Treadwell and Von Leight, Deputy United States Surveyors, were making adverse surveys for the Crescent and Lady Alice Company claims, which cover the Standard, Bechtel and Bulwer Company mines for which a patent is being applied for, The surveyors were confronted by Superintendent Irwin, of the Standard and Bulwer Company mines, and Superintendent More of the Bechtel mine, backed by an armed posse. A short parley ensued, after which the surveyors retired from the field like sensible men. Otherwise bloodshed would have resulted.

That also tends to corroborate the first fact of the two quoted from the Standard man's effort. It also throws some light upon the question why ex-Senator Stewart and other gentlemen of influence wanted to use Mr. Briggs and his Land Office, and to have both conveniently at hand. In other words it explains the influence brought to bear to perpetrate this swindle on equal rights, viz.: the removal of a public institution from a central and convenient location, to one neither central or convenient, except to the people of one single mountain village, in altitude the highest, with one possible exception, of any in the United States. Now, in the usual order of things, this threatened litigation affecting the title to the leading mines of Bodie, among them the only one that has yet paid dividends, must cause a suspension of operations for an indefinite length of time upon all of said mines, and consequently paralyze the entire business of the place. When that not improbable event takes place, people, even the Standard man, will see what an immense winning it was when through such miserable misrepresentations of facts they got Mr. Briggs and his Land Office in their midst to help produce that very result.

THE State Central Committee of the Workingmen's party has issued a proclamation to the faithful. It lays down the following programme: Within the first three days of the second week in May all associations of Workingmen are to meet in their respective halls and elect delegates to the county convention, which is to meet the following Friday at the county seat and nominate candidates to represent the county in the Constitutional Convention; also elect delegates to district conventions where required, and likewise delegates to the State Convention, which is to meet in San Francisco on the 16th of May. Each club is entitled to one delegate for every 100 members, and one for every fraction over 50. Each county will be entitled to three delegates to the State Convention for every representative it is entitled to in the Assembly. No proxies are to be allowed in any Convention. All nominees for office must be members of the Workingmen's party, and endorsed by clubs in their respective localities.

A WASHINGTON telegram says: An important step toward final and favorable action on the legislation for the suppression of the Coolie traffic was taken recently by the sub-Committee on Education and Labor in the House having these bills in charge. It was decided to report to the full Committee the Wren-Sargent bill, amending it by making the number of Chinese who can be carried on merchant vessels fifteen instead of ten, and deferring the date at which the bill is take effect from September, 1878, to January, 1879. Willis, of Kentucky, wrote a strong report on this question, as Chairman of this Committee, which is substantially unanimous, although Hungerford, a Republican member of the Committee, does not fully concur with the rest in believing this legislation necessary.

THE Senate has passed the House resolution to rescue the grave of Jefferson from shameful neglect, and the author of the Declaration of Independence will have at least a decent tombstone. Who can say after this that Republics are not grateful?

DR. CHAPMAN, of Brooklyn, New York, uses alcohol externally and internally in the treatment of diphtheria. He claims that the poison which causes the disease is neutralized by it, that it subdues the fever and arrests the disease. We suppose his theory is that alcohol has the same effect in diphtheria as in cases of snake-bite.

Assessing Migratory Stock.

At a meeting of the State Board of Equalization, on the 19th of April, a communication was received from F. M. West, County Treasurer of San Joaquin county, in which the following questions were asked:

Several removing sheep, etc., from San Joaquin county to Alpine county for pasturage are compelled to pass through Calaveras county. In one or two cases the parties have been compelled by storms to stay for a few days, and in each case the assessor of Calaveras county has assessed the parties, and made them pay the taxes on their stock by seizure, notwithstanding the fact that the assessor of San Joaquin county had made his return to Alpine county in due form. Has any assessor the right under such circumstances to re-assess said stock and enforce the collection of the said tax?

Second—Can any assessor make returns to the counties for the same stock if parties so request?

Third—Has any assessor the right or can stock once assessed be assessed a second time during the first year, except for violation of law in connection therewith?

The Board gave a negative reply to each question.

DIED.

Bishop Creek, Inyo County, California, May 4, 1878, MILTON SUTTON CLARK, a native of Pennsylvania, aged 38 years, 3 months and 17 days.

It is but a few days since we were at the bedside of poor Milton, as he lay slowly dying and in the last stages of consumption. Though bereft of voice and helpless from the effects of a wound received while fighting as an officer in one of the gallant Iowa regiments during the late civil war, in all his pain he faced slow-coming death with bravery, the utmost fortitude and a most remarkable cheerfulness. He was a man of education and refinement and strong moral and physical courage, and one whose sad demise will be generally deplored. He leaves a wife and two children, with a wide circle of relatives, who have the deepest sympathy of all.

SATURDAY, MAY 11.....1878.

COUNTY COURT. — Judge Hannah's court met in regular term Monday, May 6....Empannelled Grand Jury ....On Wednesday the Grand Jury submitted their report, which was read in open court....After reconsideration of the last clause, as moved by P. Reddy, Esq., and upon order of court, the report as amended was re-submitted, accepted and jury discharged... At 4 P. M. Mercades Contreras was duly arraigned, and R. M. Briggs appointed counsel for prisoner, who asked one day in which to prepare plea; granted. On Thursday counsel for prisoner filed demurrer to the indictment; demurrer overruled; whereupon defendant entered plea of not guilty, and trial was set for May 14, a venire for 20 jurors being ordered....Ygnacio Preciado vs. James Derygay; trial set for May 18.

SCHOOL BENEFIT.—Round Valley people are moving in aid of a depleted school fund, and the young folks of that favored region announce an entertainment on the 22d instant. The programme embraces singing, speaking, declamations, both of the pathetic and comic order. The laughable farce of the "Rough Diamond" will be given among other treats, the whole to wind up with a dance. The moving spirits in the matter are: Misses Millie Hilton, Lottie Jones, May Sherwin, Lily Olds, Mary A. Jones, Debbie Jones, Maria Evans; Messrs. E. A. Buck, F. M. Hilton, O. Hilton, O. Vaughn, J. Rowlands, John Jones, J. Shipley, W. Vaughn, Chas. Hilton, Chas. Olds, and others.

CONVALESCENT.—We are pleased to be able to announce to the numerous friends of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Beasley that the latter, who was brought to Camp Independence about four weeks ago in an almost hopeless condition of health, has so far recovered as to be up and around and about rea y to return to their home at Big Pine, having submitted to a severe surgical operation in the removal at the hands of Dr. F. T. Bicknell of a large uterine tumor, an operation which reflects no little credit upon the skill of the doctor. In the hope of benefit from the doctor's skill, and for convenience in attendance, a number of individuals, among them several ladies, from distant parts of the valley have taken up their residence in housekeeping style at the Post.

THE TRANSIT. — According to the announced programme the planet Mercury passed between the Earth and the Sun last Monday, the 6th. Mercury is said to be a very eccentric little planet, nevertheless, we have no doubt it flipped across old Sol's face exactly as the learned people said it would do; but smoked glass observations gave no proof of the fact, such a wee speck being visible only through a good magnifying glass. Doubtless thousands of observers were afield that day, particularly in the United States, throughout the whole of which the transit was visible.

A CLUE.—We are told that some facts have come to light pointing out almost to a moral certainty the perpetrators of that dastardly piece of incendiarism by which the Mexican Hall at Lone Pine was destroyed, and it is not improbable the suspected parties may have a call to prove the scent a false one ere long, else take a trip to San Quentin where they belong. Meanwhile posters offering a reward for their arrest and conviction are being circulated through the country.

"STAY WHERE YOU ARE."—A. K. Briggs, now merchandising at Tuscarora, Nevada, writes: "Hardly a day passes but I get letters from some Inyoite asking about this country; it seems they want to emigrate somewhere, and don't know where. All that I have to say in reply is: Stay where you are. Go South or West instead of North; there's nothing for you to come here for. This camp will do nothing this Summer."

GRAND JURY. — Following are the names of the Grand Jurors of the present term of the County Court, whose regular report is given elsewhere: J. A. Shoemaker, G. Walz, Jas. N. Rose, Henry Premer, W. P. Spaulding, W. A. Powers, L. A. James, Nathan Hul', G. W. Reynolds, A. Goodridge, A. Spencer, A. S. Mizner, T. McKeown, Jno. Mullane, C. W. Hitchcock, C. W. Johnson, A. H. Johnson, Nate Mount, and Jas. Shaw, Foreman.

AT LONE PINE.—Kemp, with flying gallery outfit, went to Lone Pine on Tuesday, where he expects to remain about two weeks, then to return here again. Kemp does good work, very good, and we cheerfully commend him to all wishing good pictures of themselves or scenic views.

IN FULL BLAST.—C. A. Walters has his new beer cellar, next door to the Postoffice, in full order for business, and a very pleasant place it is, especially in warm weather, in which to set down to a glass of good lager. "Henry" is first Lieutenant, and is always ready to answer to a call.

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN.— By his card elsewhere, it will be seen that Dr. Fetterman, late of Benton, has located at Bishop Creek, so that all who prefer the homeopathic system of practice will have the opportunity of gratifying that desire by calling upon Dr. Fetterman.

READY.—J. W. (alias Jim) Smith has his sawmill and delivery flume in full operation, and is ready to fill orders for any description of lumber on sight as near as may be.

ICE.—Mr. S. Zaun informs us that his ice-house in Lone Pine is now open for business, and that he is prepared fo fill orders for ice at five cents a pound.

FISHERMAN'S PEAK.—Mr. Hutchings, of Yosemite Valley fame, is preparing an exhaustive article upon the subject of the high Sierras, comprising the high peaks, their proper nomenclature and respective location which has caused so much discussion. His production will appear in some of the monthly magazines soon, which we shall reproduce for home readers. Mr. Hutchings supports the name given the big peak by the Lone Pine fishermen, and in his report will give descriptions of all explorations, notices of discovery, etc. He quotes Lieut, Wheeler's data upon the matter as follows: "The latitude and longitude of Fisherman's Peak (or new Mount Whitney) are respectively 36° 34′ 32.95″ North, and 118° 17′ 32.02″ West. The barometric altitude of this peak is 14,448 feet. Old Mount Whitney—or the peak which was so designated—lies about five miles to the southeast of Fisherman Peak, or in latitude 36° 31′ 14″ North, and longitude 118° 14′ 23.77″ West, and has an altitude of 14,094 feet above sea level, as determined by barometer."

WILLIE CHALFANT, while bathing in a little pond near the school house, stepped upon broken glass and cut his foot badly—severing three cords. We wonder if the fellow who put it in there for the purpose of keeping the boys out feels any better now? We don't envy him any happiness such an action can bring him.

The foregoing is from Norman Conklin's Tarantula of this morning, and expresses our own views pretty exactly. We are glad to say, however, that it is a mistake about the cords being cut, and that no permanent injury is likely to ensue, otherwise the fellow who fixed the trap would certainly be called on to answer precisely as if he had endangered life and limb by setting spring guns in similar public places and malicious intent.

ADDITIONAL.—Up to last evening the Board of Supervisors added the following to their labors reported elsewhere: O. I. Mairs, Jos. Le Cyr and W. K. Miller were appointed a commission to appraise the value of the Owens Lake-Darwin Toll Road, offered for sale to the county; also, to report upon the advisability and practicability of opening a free road to Darwin by another route in case the purchase of the toll road cannot be consummated satisfactorily....Drs. Middleton and Wainwright presented a bill of $250 which the Board (on technical grounds) razeed $100 worth, and ordered paid out of the Expense Fund....There are various other mattters under consideration that may prolong the session beyond to-day.

VENIRES ISSUED.—In the case of Andersen, indicted for manslaughter, a venire, returnable on the 14th, for 30 trial jurors has been issued, while 12 more are wanted from which to choose three to settle some point of difference that has arisen between W. P. George and R. Merryman; also, another, from Judge Hannah's Court, of 20 to look into that little escapade of Mr. Contreras', who has demonstrated that he is a very uncertain shot, and therefore has a flattering prospect of being convicted of something or other.

WON'T BE TRIED.—It seems that the District Attorney's proposed indictment of "Andersen versus the Deceased," can't be tried this term, because the Sheriff has a delicacy about trying to get service on defendant, nor yet will the Court appoint an elisor. It's a pity, because the case might have become a "cause celebre," or even higher up the hill than that.

DISTRICT COURT.—Owing to an overrun of business on the Mono District Court calendar, Judge Reed did not arrive here till Thursday evening. Court was opened on the following day, but we shall defer report of proceedings until next issue since little else than setting cases has been done.

WHO WANTS ONE?—Richard Hessian, of Big Pine, has a number of the latest style Singer sewing machines, which, as will be seen by his advertisement in this issue, he offers for sale at prices much below regular agents' rates.

APPOINTED. — Justice Jos. Schalten having resigned his office, T. A. Gardner, upon petition of citizens generally, was yesterday appointed our Justice for this township.

A TELEGRAM from Hanford, dated April 29, says: Things in this vicinity have a serious look. The Southern Pacific Railroad company has given notice to settlers to make the first payment on the land in dispute or pay rent. The lands are graded at from $18 to $45 per acre. All the settlers will at once make application at the Land Office, appeal to the General Land Office, and at all hazards will retain possession until the case is finally adjudged by the Courts. The settlers are organizing a secret league.—Kern County Gazette.

NADEAU has constructed a number of cabooses, which he has placed on wheels, to serve as boarding houses for the army of harvesters he will employ to gather his immense barley crop. These perambulating boarding houses will follow the harvesters in the fields, and wherever work stops there the tired laborer will find his hotel waiting for him. There is economy and convenience in this.—Los Angeles Express.

IN regard to the recent brutal murder of Lord Leitrim, the latest theory on the subject is that it was perpetrated, not because of his cruel and heartless course as a landlord, but for the purpose of avenging a wrong of an entirely different character. The families of his tenantry were, it is said, compelled to minister to his baser passions, and the belief in the vicinity where he lived is that his assassination was entirely owing to some outrage of this kind on his part.

GRAND JURY REPORT.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA,
County of Inyo.

To the Honorable County Court of Inyo County: We, the Grand Jurors empannelled to serve at the May term, 1878, of the said County Court, would respectfully report that we have found a true bill against Melcades Contreras, for assault with intent to commit murder upon one Raphael Ortis.

We find a true bill against John Anderson for manslaughter, for shooting one Martino Aldoado Silveira, in the town of Cerro Gordo, on the 2d day of April, 1878, between the hours of 6 and 7 o'clock P. M.

A committee of three, consisting of Messrs. Powers, Spaulding and Johnson, were appointed to examine into the condition of the County Hospital, and report that they found it in good shape and well-kept. Also that the patients spoke highly of the treatment they received. Found one patient who they thought ought to have some clothing furnished.

A committee of three was appointed to examine into the County Jail, consisting of Messrs. Spencer, Mullane and Johnson, who report the jail to be very poorly ventilated, and in a very bad condition to keep prisoners, and would recommend that it should be better ventilated. Also, would respectfully request that the Board of Supervisors should have built a good substantial fire proof vault for the protection of the county records, which the jury recommend be attended to immediately.

We called upon Mr. Connelly to show his receipts and expenditures on the roads in the county for labor and material furnished, and would say that we believe the money has been honestly expended.

We would earnestly recommend to the Hon. Board of Supervisors that some action should be taken to give the people in the upper end of the county more passable roads, and at the same time do justice to those in the lower part of the county, and we believe that they should have a free road as far as Darwin at least

The National Bankrupt Act.

The Judiciary Committee of both branches of Congress having reported in favor of the repeal of the existing National Bankrupt Act, there is a strong probability that the law will be done away with. There is no doubt a wide-spread feeling that it has proved a failure. Just how much of this has been brought about by erroneous construction, how much by the peculiar circumstances of trade of late years, and how much by the ineradicable element of dishonesty in commercial affairs, it would be impossible to determine. But there can be no doubt that it has done much to aid in lowering the standard of business honor and integrity during the late years. Its execution has been so expensive, and so full of delays, that creditors, rather than allow a debtor to avail himself of its provisions, have accepted the offer of settlement on the part of the latter on his own terms. In the lapse of time a large number of men not over-scrupulous have come to believe that this is one of the tricks of trade, and consequently have offered the anxious creditor a percentage which has enabled the debtor to become the possessor of a stock of goods which cost him much less than the market price, and which enables him to sell at a figure which enables him to put an honest business man at great disadvantage. Much of the present uncertainty in business circles comes from the pernicious influence of this law. Men refuse credit or give it with the expectation that the debtor will suspend. In either case it has worked to the detriment of honest business.—Record-Union.

AN Ulster county, N. Y., man and a bear got into a fight not long ago and tumbled over a precipice three hundred feet high, the one being severely bruised and stunned and the other killed. Why it was that the bear was killed and the man wasn't is not known, though an Irish gentleman of the neighborhood thinks that while going down they must have agreed to lessen the danger by dividing the distance between them, the bear foolishly consenting to take the end that had the sudden stop to it, and was killed in consequence, while the man took the upper part, which had no stop at all to it, and of course escaped.

IT was, indeed, a ludicrous mistake. One pastor was dead and the other had gone south on account of sickness. When the deacon, who had received a letter from the second, arose in the prayer-meeting to make his report, he became confused, and got the dead pastor's name in place of the sick one's, and said: "He says the weather is very warm—indeed uncomfortably warm in that locality, and he wishes he could return." He soon saw that "some one had blundered," but it was too late.

STRAIGHTENING TOOLS.—The Polytechnic says: It is not generally known that steel tools sprung in hardening can be straightened in tempering. Hardened steel when not enough to change the color to straw color or purple, is about as pliable as annealed steel when cold. So pieces warped in hardening can, while hot, be straightened with a hammer, or, better, with a screw press, without danger of breaking.

CURRENT gossip in Washington has devised a new way for getting rid of the twin relic polygamy in Utah. It is proposed, it is said, by some of the Pacific Coast delegation, to unite Utah with Nevada, thus placing our Constitution over the polygamists and swiftly checking their practices. We don't think the people of Nevada want to be bothered with Utah, and if their wishes are consulted the annexation scheme will not succeed.—Virginia Chronicle.

THEY are making an unearthly fuss down in Maryland because a couple of the members of the Legislature took home the chairs they had used during the session. The people of Maryland will live long enough to be thankful if their legislators don't steal anything but chairs.

MRS. KEARNEY says that Dennis beats and abuses her shamefully, but, woman like, excuses him on the ground of the constant state of excitement he is kept in. He does nothing for the maintenance of his family, she says. But then Dennis is a reformer.

The Coming Election in Nevada.

The general election for Nevada occurs in November. The politics of that State have heretofore been somewhat incongruous. At the election four years ago the Democratic State ticket was generally elected, while the Legislature, which had the choice of United States Senator, was largely Republican. On that occasion Mr. Sharon was elected United States Senator, there being no opposing candidate in the Republican caucus. The Legislature to be elected in November will also have the choice of a United States Senator to succeed J. P. Jones. It is also regarded as a possible contingency that there may be vacancy for the short term caused by the resignation of Mr. Sharon. Considerable interest therefore has already been manifested over the coming election. No names for the United States Senatorship have yet been prominently mentioned by the Nevada press. It seems, however, generally conceded that Mr. Jones will offer himself as a candidate for re-election, basing his claims on the position he has taken on financial questions. With regard to the possible resignation of Mr. Sharon, it is asserted by Nevada politicians that unless his business engagements in San Francisco permit him to give greater attention to his Congressional duties in the future, he will in all probability surrender his trust, provided a Republican Legislature be elected in November.

Concerning the State ticket matters are beginning to assume a more definite shape. On the Democratic side Governor Bradley is seeking a third term. His administration has been generally popular, especially in Eastern Nevada. Several Democratic papers have, however, already declared in favor of J. C. Hagerman, a prominent merchant of Reno, for the first place on the ticket, arguing against any third term. It may here be mentioned that J. Schooling, who has been twice elected State Treasurer by the Democracy, has publicly announced himself as not a candidate for re-election, upon the ground that a third term is contrary to the principles of the Democratic party. In the Republican camp the candidates for the Gubernatorial honors are R. M. Daggett, of the Virginia Enterprise, C. C. Batterman, ex-Congressman Woodburn, and John H. Kinkaid, of Humboldt. In the former elections the State ticket of both parties has been fixed up in connection with the United States Senatorship. It is more than probable that such will be the case in the coming election.—Bulletin.

THERE is a "champion schoolmarm" in California, and like the charms of Babette's rival in the Bab Ballad, "her beauty is beneath her skin, and lies in layers on her bones." The young creature stands five feet ten in her pink hose, can ride the wildest mustang that was ever foaled, and can dance anything from the dance of death down to a double shuffle on a cedar puncheon. Nor are her only attractions muscular. The editor of the Quincy National boasts that she is prettier than an Arabian colt; that she is smarter than anybody, and makes the "school superintendent's aren ache cutting notches on a stick to tally her points on examination day;" and that she can sing Psalm tunes like a ten-octave angel, or beat any sport in the State at seven-up.—Eastern Exchange.

CHIEF Nachez informs the Winnemucca Silver State that he has concluded to abdicate his chieftainship of the Piutes, settle down on his ranch and become an American citizen. He has several acres of land under cultivation on the Big Meadows, seed having been furnished by Col. Barnes of the Pyramid Lake Reservation, of whom he speaks in terms of highest praise, and he expects to raise vegetables enough to support himself and family.

"WEAR your old clothes and work every day, is the way to keep the balance of trade in our favor," remarks an exchange.

A Sham Battle.

The several companies comprising the Military Division under Major-General French, at present stationed at the Presidio, had a sham battle lately in the presence of a large concourse of people, for the purpose of exhibiting the method of attack of a fortified hill. On a high hill in the southern part of the reservation was stationed a battalion of infantry, comprising Capt. Byrne's (senior officer) and Capt. McGowan's companies, supported by a detachment of artillery commanded by Lieut. Anderson. The attacking force consisting of Capt. Sumner's Troop D, First Cavalry, Capt. Miller's battalion, composed of his own, Capt. Cushing's and Capt. Field's batteries, and Capt. Hasbrouck's Light Battery were stationed on the flat at the bottom of the hill. Everything being in readiness the signal was given and operations commenced. Capt. Miller's battalion advanced on the double quick, and began the ascent of the hill. Their progress was soon stopped by the battery on the hill, which discharged several volleys of imaginary grape and canister. The battalion then making a detour to the left of the hill, advanced once more on the double-quick until near the top of the redoubt, when they were met by the two infantry companies and driven back. The infantry followed up their advantage and drove from the hill the artillerymen. This was the one great error of the day, for it left their rear exposed and the attacking party were not slow to avail themselves of it. For soon a company was seen stealing up the hill on the right, and when near the top they gave a yell and started for the apex of the hill in the face of a galling and murderous fire and captured the battery, turning the guns on the unfortunate infantrymen. The First Cavalry then came up the hill on a dead run in support of the artillerymen, and charged the infantry, who scattered and ran like a flock of sheep. The recall was then sounded, and grim-visaged War smoothed his wrinkled front once more and the battle was over. The prisoners were marched with all the honors of war to the guard-house, and the victors of this hard and well earned fight dispersed to their respective quarters.—S. F. Chronicle.

THE latest idea to insure the purity of elections was experimented on last week in Ohio, and proved to be a perfect failure. The ballot-box was constructed of thick glass, and was seven feet square, so as to admit of two men being inserted in it through a door in the side. The idea was that they should sit there all day and tally every vote cast, with a view to prevent any stuffing of the huge box by interested parties. They got along pretty well till noon, one being, of course, a red-hot Democrat and the other a violent Republican, when the glass became clouded through exhalations of their breath. This, of course, prevented the by-standers from observing the actions of the imprisoned politicians, but it served the purpose of the scrutineer of the Democratic party to a turn, as when the box was opened at sundown it was found that he had eaten just 183 Republican votes, the exact number of votes necessary to secure a victory for his party. He looked very plump as he left the polling place, but he told a friend afterwards that in the cause of right and justice he could have chewed up eleven more tickets. The only way to insure an incorrupt election would seem to be the printing of tickets on sheet-iron plates, and gagging the man inside.—Ex.

A ROYAL SCANDAL.—Much excitement prevails among the higher circles of Roman society in regard to the condition of the Countess Miraflore, the wife of King Victor Emanuel by a morganatic marriage. The Countess, it appears, was left almost totally unprovided for by the late King. In consequence, as has now become known, she determined to make her claim not only to King Humbert, but to the chief minister of his government. In her declaration she states that the small annuity left her by the late King, her husband, is by no means adequate to provide for herself and the two children, the issue of this marriage, in any way befitting their title and parentage. The tone of this demand has not met with any favor from King Humbert, who simply ordered the letter to be returned to the Countess without any reply. It is also affirmed that Signor Caoiroli has followed in the same course, and now it is rumored that the Countess meditates publishing facts which cannot avoid becoming a great and distinguished scandal.—Manchester Courier.

A TEXAS camel-breeder, speaking of the rearing of the "ships of the desert," says: They are no more trouble to raise than horses and cattle. The colts for the first three or four days are rather tender and require close attention, but after that take their chances with the herd. They feed on cactus and brush, eschewing all grasses that cattle and horses eat, if the favorite cactus can be had. The females, with proper care, give a colt every year, and the price at which they are sold, the ease with which they are raised, their extreme docility, and the adaptability of our climate to their nature, would seem to indicate that camel-raising is a profitable business in Texas. Mr. Lanfear says that there is one camel in the herd that has traveled 150 miles between sun and sun, and that most any well broke camel is good for more than 100 miles in a day.

The March bullion product of the Eureka Con. was $403,500. That of the K. K. Con. $40,000.

Death of W. S. O'Brien.

The death of W. S. O'Brien, one of the four bonanza potentates, will bring a pang of regret to all who personally knew the deceased. Mr. O'Brien has a history which discounts the story of Aladdin. He arrived in this State in 1850 without a dollar, and he died in 1878 with at least twenty-five millions. Up to 1866 he was still a poor man, and he and his partner, Flood, were known to every one in San Francisco as the proprietors of the "Auction Lunch," a popular refreshment place adjoining the Washington Market, on Washington street. They were both, however, men of good business instincts, and their tavern was long the headquarters where the most reliable information could be had of a certain class of mines greatly in vogue in those days—the Esmeralda and the Humboldt mines. They made their first notable "raise" in Hale & Norcross in 1869, and by a number of rapid and successful deals, they secured the control of that mine at a time when it was yielding very handsomely. From that time on they were guided by so sagacious a judgment as to become a power on the Comstock. Having united their fortunes with those of Mackay and Fair, two of the best practical miners in Nevada, they rapidly rose to great wealth, until now the firm of which they are composed is, by long odds, the most powerful firm financially in the world. Mr. O'Brien always had the reputation of being a very clever fellow. He was, indeed, a genial, whole-souled gentleman, with a great deal of native brightness. But he was never looked upon by his friends as possessed of extraordinary shrewdness. He was doubtless always guided in important business matters by his partner, who is a grave, silent, thoughtful man. We suspect that the deep planning and the shrewd business tact which led to the great wealth of these two men may be justly ascribed to Mr. Flood. Mr. O'Brien was a New Yorker, of Irish descent. He was unmarried, and his vast fortune will probably go to collateral relatives. It is intimated that he has left a will, and that he has made important public bequests. We can only think of Mr. O'Brien as we knew him before he became a millionaire—a tip-top, genial fellow; one who was the very soul of good nature, and of a disposition so kind and gentle that he was without an enemy. We doubt whether great wealth brought to Mr. O'Brien the cheerful happiness which he used to enjoy when he was familiarly hailed by all old San Franciscans as plain Bill O'Brien.—Los Angeles Express.

More Cheerful News.

The Chicago Communists have been imparting some more information to the press. They say that a general uprising will take place in about a month, and that it will be commenced in San Francisco. The programme is for Kearney to open the proceedings, and for the Communists of Chicago, New York, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Boston and other large cities to follow suit. It would be interesting to know Kearney's views upon the matter. He has recently declared openly that he intended to march a mob down to the Pacific Mail wharf when a China steamer was coming in, and open the ball by setting fire to the vessel. Perhaps this is the regular programme for the occasion. If it is we may assume that the "Chinese must go" is to furnish the excuse for the projected outbreak in San Francisco. It is true that Kearney has broached more than scheme. He said recently, for instance, that if his followers did not succeed in electing a majority of delegates to the Constitutional Convention, he would upset the Government, or words to that effect. Of course, his declarations may be all brag and wind, but at least the communistic movement in Chicago and the Eastern cities appears to be real, and to be regarded with a certain apprehension; and as there seems to be something like an understanding between the transmontane rioters in training and those in San Francisco, it is possible that there may be some fire behind all the smoke. The real justification for uneasiness consists in the fact that a few desperate scoundrels might at any time cause incalculable damage to San Francisco by applying the torch, and that great destruction of property would be certain to result from such incendiarism, no matter how promptly or effectually any attempt at riot or pillage might be put down.—Record-Union.

MARRIAGE.—Never marry a man who has only his love for you to recommend him. It is very fascinating, but it does not make the man. If he is not otherwise what he should be, you will never be happy. The most perfect man, who did not love you, should never be your husband. But though marriage without love is terrible, love only will not do. If the man is dishonorable to other men, or mean, or given to any vice the time will come when you will either loathe him or sink to his level. It is hard to remember amidst kisses and praises that there is anything else in the world to be done or thought of but love making; but the days of life are many, and the husband must be a guide to be trusted, a companion, a friend as well as a lover. Many a girl has married a man, whom she knew to be anything but good, "because he loved her so." And the flame has died out on the hearthstone of home before long, and beside it she has been sitting with one she could never hope would lead her heavenward, or who if she followed him, as a wife should, would guide her steps to perdition. Marriage is a solomn thing—a choice for life; be careful in the choosing.—Belgravia.

PURELY ACCIDENTAL.

Perhaps from the best lights before them, the jury in the Anderson case rendered a proper verdict when they found him not guilty. It was a matter of accident all around. It was an unfortunate accident, instead of incident, that Silveria ever playfully asked for whisky when he stepped up to the bar to be deliberately slaughtered in cold blood. The victim might possibly have calculated that when Andersen should pick up the pistol as usual he might make as lucky an escape as did the other man a few weeks before, in which case, after being pleasantly snapped in a man's face three or four times, it went off and the bullet only grazed the side of his head. Hence it was nothing but a bad accident all through. To be sure the two pistols behind the bar—one of them being the smaller, much lighter and without a cylinder, which could not be held on cock without keeping the thumb on the hammer; the other a heavy, full-loaded revolver, and not so easily reached—were of course entirely blameable for the bad accident of a man killing his dearest and most beloved friend. That is, in handling such unimportant trifles as pistols to snap in friends' faces, the mere difference of place, length, shape, weight and completeness between the harmless and deadly one, the prisoner being familiar with both, could not cut much of a figure. At least in this case our District Attorney could not imagine that it did, and the weapons were never introduced in evidence. Less informed people might suppose that in these points rested positive proof of guilt. In older and less civilized countries than this, where a man is on trial for taking the life of another, most of the direct and circumstantial facts are brought out in evidence, but here we work upon the advanced system of keeping the jury in ignorance, in order that people don't accidentally get into prison. Our Cerro Gordo friends will consider it merely accidental that we have such a rule of practice here, and they may think that the accident which prevented the lynching of Anderson at the time was the worst one of the lot.

THE Darwin News of last week comes out with several sensible suggestions relative to holding a joint non-partisan convention for making nomination for Delegate to the Constitutional Convention. Later, it learned of the action of the joint Central Committees in the nomination of Mr. Reddy and of his acceptance, and considers the matter settled. The gentlemen selected by the citizens as delegates to a nominating convention also declined, upon the ground that the candidate thus placed in the field "would receive the indorsement of all citizens of this and Mono counties," and had also been nominated as designed by a non-partisan convention. As to Mono, prominent citizens state that no candidates will be put forward there by either party, and in an aquiesence by the Republican and Democratic authorities there in the nomination made here will do away with any necessity of a further joint convention as between the two counties.

A SAN FRANCISCO paper says; "Mr. Bennett, who owns a ranch near Resting Springs, in southwestern Nevada, became involved in a quarrel with the Indians, who attacked him, and in the row that ensued he shot and killed four of them." No doubt the locality referred to is the Resting Springs south of us, in this county and State, not Nevada. It is very likely the said Bennett was drunk, and he wanted to prove himself a big brave.

THEY have a "what is it" sensation at Tuscarora, Nevada, wherein one woman, in the guise of a man, courted and married another woman. The local paper is much excited about it, and a legal examination of the matter is to take place.

REPUBLICAN CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Republican Congressional Committee of the Fourth Congressional District, held at San Jose on the 11th of May, 1878, pursuant to a call by the Chairman, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That in conformity to the recommendation of the Republican State Central Committee, we recommend that the Republicans of this District unite with the Democrats in the selection of Delegates to a District Convention to be held at Music Hall, in the city of San Jose, on the 30th day of May, 1878, to nominate eight candidates at large from this Congressional District to the Constitutional Convention to be held at Sacramento, September 28th, 1878; and that so far as practicable an equal number of each party be selected as such delegates. And it is further recommended that if upon the meeting of the Convention it appears that there are present a preponderance of delegates of one party, the other party shall be accorded an equal number of votes in the Convention.

It was ordered that said Convention consist of fifty members, apportioned as follows: Stanislaus, 2; Merced 1; Mariposa, 1; Fresno, 2; Tulare, 4; Kern, 2; Inyo, 1; Mono, 1; San Diego, 3; San Bernardino, 3; Los Angeles, 5; Santa Barbara, 1; Ventura, 1; Santa Barbara and Ventura jointly, 1; San Luis Obispo, 2; San Mateo, 2; San Benito, 2; Monterey, 3; Santa Cruz, 3; Santa Clara, 10.

There being no further business, on motion the committee adjourned.

THOS. FLINT, Chairman.

C. D. WRIGHT, Secretary.

In accordance with the foregoing, it is to be hoped that our joint Central Committees will meet and appoint some one willing to go to San Jose to represent Inyo in the selection of eight candidates at large. A live representative could in all probability get one candidate put in the field from this side of the mountains. Now, as this county is likely to be accorded the right to name one of the Delegates at large for the Constitutional Convention, it is all the more important it should have a live representative present at this nominating convention above called. There is little probability that any one now here if named for that duty, would go to San Jose to attend to it. But it so happens Inyo now has at least two representative citizens sojourning in San Francisco, either of whom would do us both credit and justice as delegate to the nominating convention, and either of whom would do no less in both as Delegate to the Convention itself, should either permit his name to go on the ticket as one of the candidates at large. These two gentlemen are Paul W. Bennett and M. W. Belshaw.

We observe that the joint nominating conventions that have already placed candidates in the field have selected the very first men in point of talent and standing to be found in their respective counties, districts and the State. It is notably true of the eight delegates at large for the San Francisco district; it is true for the joint delegate of Inyo and Mono. It will be no less true for Inyo if either of the above named gentlemen should be named as her candidate for Delegate at large, and without question if our county joint committee will appoint either as our representative in the District Nominating Convention, the proceeding will be indorsed by the citizens of the county almost universally. Time is short, and immediate action is necessary.

"OLD COMANCHE" is the name of the battle-scarred horse who alone of all that goodly company of men and horses that followed Custer to battle that fatal June 25, 1876, now lives. It is pleasant to note that the old horse has become the subject of a general order, that, "his kind treatment" (to quote from the order itself), "and comfort should be a matter of pride and solicitude on the part of every member of the Seventh Cavalry, to the end that his life may be prolonged to the utmost limit." Continues the order: "Wounded and scarred as he is, his very existence speaks in terms more eloquent than words of the desperate struggle against overwhelming numbers, of the hopeless conflict, and of the heroic manner in which all went down on that fatal day. The commanding officer of Co. I will see that a special and comfortable stall is fitted up for him, and he will not be ridden by any person whatever, under any circumstances, nor will he be put to any kind of work. Hereafter, upon all occasions of ceremony (of mounted regimental formation), Comanche, saddled, bridled, draped in mourning and led by a mounted trooper of company I, will parade with the regiment. By command of Brevet Maj.-Gen. S. D. Sturgis, Col. Seventh Cavalry." The order (general order No. 7) is dated April 10, 1878, at Fort Lincoln. Comanche was the gallant and handsome Capt. Keogh's charger in that massacre.

What makes you think so?

The Wagon for this Climate.

Mr. Jas. Birchim, of Round Valley, returned a few days since from a two months' visit in the Eastern States, his first there for 28 years. While in South Bend, Indiana, he spent considerable time in the famous wagon manufactory of the Studebaker Bros., and it will be of considerable interest to record some of his observations, particularly the system now in vogue in that establishment of seasoning timber and construction of vehicles of all descriptions, farm wagons especially.

Of the works themselves it must suffice to say that they cover many acres of ground—enough for quite a good-sized farm, while the stock on hand represents millions of dollars in value and hundreds of thousands of vehicles. On an average a complete wagon is turned out every seven minutes. The fitting, all done by the very best machinery, is so accurate in every detail that it is impossible to distinguish the joints except by the grain of the wood.

An entire new system was adopted some years since in the selection of timber, not a stick of any description of hard wood now being used but the very best, generally of "second growth." Better still, this hardwood is air-seasoned under cover for a period of five years, then hot air-seasoned for another five years, making ten years in all, before any portion of it is used in a wagon at all. Then, to make perfection "more perfect," every wheel with all its spokes and felloes, forced into place by powerful machinery, is thoroughly cooked or soaked in boiling oil before receiving the tire. In this process the wheel is slowly rolled along, completely submerged, through a large tank of the boiling oil, then on to a draining platform, from which the drainage runs back into the tank, then on to a sort of an elevator platform, where it receives the red-hot tire, and with platform and all is instantly lowered into water, cooled, up and away, one after another at the rate of one wheel every sixty seconds, the day through!

From this it will be seen that wagons constructed out of such material and thus put together, would, as near as it is possible for any wagon to do, stand for ever, almost, even in such a terribly drying climate as this of sage-brush land. Two members of the firm are old Californians, and well acquainted with its peculiarites of climate; they are now constructing wagons especially for this market, and within the next few months intend to ship several car-loads of them to this State, of which a large number will be sent to this valley. The invoice will include light wagons or carriages, farm wagons, some steel and some iron axles, with others thimble skeins. They can be sold here for perhaps 25 per cent. less than similar ones of home construction. Such being the facts we deem it but right to give this free notice of the famous firm, or their products, since it may prove of value to such of our readers as may contemplate purchasing wagons, etc., but can ill-afford to pay the high prices demanded by home manufacturers for vehicles that cannot by any possibility it would seem, be any better, if so good, as those from this great factory.

DURING the last few months California has suffered the loss of millions of dollars on the account of Kearneyism. To-day, in San Francisco, it is almost impossible to obtain money on a building. Suppose, for instance, there is a lot worth $10,000 with a building on it worth $50,000. The owner can borrow money on the lot, but not a cent on the house, simply because the torch of the incendiary can burn the house but not the lot. Again, there are numbers of buildings in San Francisco gotten under way before this Kearney agitation began, which are standing just as the workmen left them when the owners ceased to build, because they feared to put more money in the building, not knowing what moment the torch might be applied. Thus, building has been arrested by this outrageous Kearneyism of hemp and torch, while hundreds of thousands of dollars have been forced back into bank vaults which otherwise would have found circulation among mechanics and laboring men. And yet the Workingmen complain of this arrest of work and the hiding of capital. There is no doubt San Francisco sleeps over a volcano of destruction whose fires have been kindled by Kearneyism. If it should explode the explosion would be as disastrous to the laboring man as to others. It will take food out of the mouths and clothing from the backs of their wives and children. As it is, Kearneyism has worked untold woe and suffering to the honest laboring classes. It seems to us thrt our Workingmen should see this as well as feel it and rise up in their indignation and cast out Kearney and such as he from their ranks. Better times will not come to the workingmen until they give capital assurance of safety, so that it may seek investment in that way in which it may find lodgment in the pockets of the laboring man. This is plain, sensible talk, and we commend it to the calm consideration of working men.—Los Angeles Star.

Bodie Prospects.

The Standard, in a few introductory words prefixed to the weekly summary of its district, is quite sanguine as to the future, as follows:

Our full and comprehensive report of the mines this week shows a steady progress in all the leading mines of the district, where everything seems to be moving along with a steady, sure stride which indicates the abiding faith our people have in the bright future which a few months will bring them. As the snow gradually melts and the roads are becoming passable men and teams are moving, and lumber and timbers, the lack of which has been a serious means of retarding work, begin to come forward, and in a few weeks the supply will equal the demand. Work will then be resumed on many mines which since last Fall have laid idle, and the district will in a measure renew its bustling times.

On the other hand, the Carson Appeal tell us how "we met a gentleman from Bodie the other day who quite startled us with his account of the destitution in that camp. He said it was almost impossible to get work and that there was much suffering. That there were men ready and willing to work who were actually living from the contents of swill barrels. These men are compelled to remain, they cannot get out on account of not having boots, and the condition of the roads, and some of them have sore feet and thus they are forced to live as they can. —S. F. Stock Report.

EVERYTHING over at Lida Valley is beginning to brighten up. They have some rich rock in that camp, and it will soon come to the front as a large bullion producer. The mill, owned by Mr. Hanson, was to have started up yesterday.—Belleville Times.

SATURDAY, MAY 18.....1878.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.—The proceedings of the last two days of the Board of Supervisors can be stated as follows: The County Clerk was authorized to procure a new table and desk for his office. Bill of Messrs. Reddy & Conklin for expenses of personal attendance upon the Supreme Court in the case (set for July next) of the Union Con. against Sheriff Passmore, was rejected. The application of the Independence Dramatic Club for use of the Court-room was rejected. It was ordered that 100 copies of a supplement to the Great Register be printed, and the necessary blanks for the Constitutional election be procured at THE INDEPENDENT office. A special meeting of the Board was ordered for May 24th, to attend to election matters, establishing precincts, choosing election officers, etc.; to consider the matter of costs attached to the survey of county boundary line, and to take action as to the construction of a fire-proof vault for the Court House. After allowing bills of Supervisors—respectively, C. Meysan, $48 40; J. R. Westerville, $50, and J. L. Garretson, $72 80, the Board adjourned.

BIG CHICKENS.—T. A. Gardner has received from a friend at Placerville a dozen hen eggs of the Plymouth Rock variety, and given them to "Pap" Lank and Joe Fernbach for incubation. We don't mean that the Coroner and brewer are going to "set" on them, but that the job of hatching them will be given to a couple of their most faithful and motherly old hens. The Plymouth Rock chickens are no slouches of birds. The first nine eggs imported to the coast cost $25, and a seven months' old rooster over there stands two feet and four inches high, actual measurement, and of fine proportions generally. From these eggs big roosters may grow, and the breed of poultry improve.

VISITORS.—Besides the different jurors, whose names were given last week and elsewhere this week, among the late visitors to town were Martin Mee, John Wilson, E. A. Reddy and Mat McDonald, of Darwin; H. L. Childs, Dr. Stevenson, Frank Hutchison, Jas. Birchim and Charley Burroughs of Bishop Creek; J. C. Mitchell and L. E. Tubbs of Benton; Gus. and Wm. Walker of Olanche; Dave Naylor, L. Wick, Geo. Shedd, Tom Goodale, J. W. McMurry and Jim Stewart of Big Pine; J. R. Hughes, of Cerro Gordo; R. Van Dyke, R. Diaz and R. L. Peterson of Lone Pine, with many others.

A CLOSE CALL.—On Sunday morning last a heavy smoke and heat in the rear of the large blacksmith shop in the center of town caused a fire alarm, and necessitated lively work to prevent a conflagration of the whole town. Some carboys of acid which had been thoughtlessly stowed away next to the building became ignited from the heat, or had somehow escaped, and began consuming the pile of boards and rubbish. Luckily no damage further than the ruination of a suit or two of clothes occurred, if we except the loss of the carboys of acid, which were dumped into the creek.

RED ROCK.—The opening upon the new Red Rock discovery near Bishop, has reached a distance of 30 feet in upon the ledge, the matter bearing the same general character as at the beginning of the cut. The company's force have been engaged in sinking for water, building a cabin, etc. It is the intention of the owners to soon commence work on a fine ledge of white quartz in the immediate vicinity. The ore has a very fine appearance, the ledge being strong and well defined.

COUNTY COURT.—In the matter of the People vs. Mercades Contreras, indicted for an attempt to commit murder, the Court appointed R. M. Briggs, Esq., counsel for prisoner. By reason of the non-attendance of a witness on the plea of indigent circumstances, an attachment was ordered for said defaulting witness, and the hearing of the case set for Saturday, May 18. Ygnacio Preciado vs. Jas. Darygay, hearing set for to-day, May 18.

C. & M. COHN.—A new advertisement of this enterprising house, of Lone Pine and Independence, will be noted elsewhere. They are justly gaining a fair share of patronage at their new branch here, while the old original establishment enjoys a heavy trade. They deal in almost everything, and their stock is new and first-class.

ADJOUNED.—The District Court, having disposed of the calendar, adjourned for the term last evening. The Judge goes to Kern county, where he anticipates four weeks of murder trials and a heavy calendar of civil cases. He goes as far as Havilah with Mrs. Thomas May, who started this morning on a visit to her old home.

COOL.—Thursday night and yesterday morning was altogether too cool for the enjoyment of much solid comfort while out of doors. It don't appear, however, that there was any damage done to the growing crops, and it is reasonable to hope that our Spring cold snaps are over for this season.

SPEAKING. — P. Reddy, Esq., the Inyo county nominee for Delegate to the Constitutional Convention, will speak at Bishop Creek on Saturday evening next. The importance of the candidacy and the speaker's reputation will doubtless insure a very large attendance.

ICE. — Mr. Zaun, of Lone Pine, wishes it stated that his price of five cents per pound for clear, solid ice, includes the cost of delivering it at Independence and other points.

DISTRICT COURT.

Theron Reed, Judge — Proceedings of the May Term.

MONDAY, May 6.

This being the appointed day for opening court for the regular term, but no Judge being present, the Sheriff with the County Clerk present called and adjourned court until the following day, and so on each day, until FRIDAY, May 10.

The Judge being present, court was duly opened and proceeded to business, the following report extending through to Thursday, the 16th:

Ordered, that Geo. M. Gill be appointed Court Commissioner.

People vs. John Andersen, under indictment for manslaughter, in having killed on the 2d day of April last one Martaho Silvero. H. W. Woods, Esq., was appointed counsel for prisoner. On the 16th prisoner was brought into court and the case put on trial with a jury as follows: C. M. Joslyn, Jas. Shepherd, John Kispert, Geo. H. Shedd, Fred. Uhlmeyer, W. D. Clark, W. K. Miller, R. Van Dyke, A. M. McKellip, David Naylor, Henry Hopper, and J. H. Cook. Court took a recess till 2 P. M., when after the examination of a number of witnesses on both sides, and arguments of counsel, the case was given to the jury, who after a brief absence returned a verdict of "not guilty."

S. G. Hanson vs. Lulu Wapelhorst; passed for the term.

J. S. Rothschild & Co. vs. John Willett, foreclosure; report of Court Commissioner approved, and decree ordered.

Rachael Goodman vs. T. K. Hutchison; report of Court Commissioner approved and decree granted.

R. C. Jacobs, et. als. vs. the Minnietta Belle Mining Co.; report of Court Commissioner approved and decree granted.

Chas. A. Donnel vs. the Inyo Lumber & Wood Co.; demurrer overruled and judgment for want of answer, in favor of plaintiff for $2,477 25.

Chesley & Co. vs. E. A. Reddy and John Wilson; motion by defendants for nonsuit sustained; plaintiff excepts; ordered that the substance of the evidence of H. D. Jones, relative to the publication of the co partnership notice of Chesley & Co., be entered upon the minutes of this court.

John R. Hughes vs. Rosey Hughes; report of Court Commissioner approved and decree granted.

E. A. Reddy vs. Margaret Reddy; decree of divorce granted. Custody of children awarded both, two to each.

Koch vs. Furbee; taken under advisement.

Spencer W. Clawson vs. Lucy A. Clawson; report of County Commissioner approved and decree granted.

W. P. George vs. R. Merryman, jury trial; motion by plaintiff to strike out the demurrer sustained, and judgment rendered against defendant in the sum of $1,100; defendant excepts.

FIRE-PROOF VAULT.—A most sensible recommendation was made by the late Grand Jury in requesting the Board of Supervisors to provide a fire-proof vault for the Court House, to be connected with the Clerk's office. The little cubby-hole which was in the first place put in there for the purpose has been worthless from the start—lacking room to receive even one half of the county records, lacking strength to support itself if the building were to burn, and even if it were large enough to be of any use whatever, is valueless as a protection from fire because of having but a single iron door and it being impossible to shut or fasten that. None of the books of records have ever been put in it, and should they be destroyed endless confusion of all titles might ensue. As to the thing required, we concur in the idea of Supervisor Garretson—that adjoining the back portion of the Clerk's office on the south side of the building, there be constructed a solidly-built vault out of the light stone so abundant just across the river from Bishop Creek. This material is as fire-proof as any known rock applicable for building purposes; it can be cut into blocks with a saw or axe, and is so light that its transportation would probably amount to less than so much lumber. With the purchase of double iron doors, a vault could be cheaply constructed out of this material answering every requirement of protection, convenience and beauty.

APPOINTED.—Since our remarks in another column suggesting the appointment of Paul Bennett as the Inyo delegate to the District Nominating Convention was in type, we learn that the County Executive, or Joint Central Sub-Committee, have anticipated the suggestion, and have already appointed Mr. Bennett as such delegate. We are glad of it; we hope, too, that he may be nominated as one of the eight delegates to which the district is entitled in the Constitutional Convention. The sagebrush region ought to be awarded one of the eight, and certainly Mr. B., in the nature of his profession and business interests, would be as much of a representative man for the whole section as any we can name—and, in case of his election, no man in that Convention will vote with any clearer conception of the matter in hand than he.

LONE PINE BRIDGE.—Road Supervisor Connelly has completed the job of strengthening and fixing as a permanency the Lone Pine bridge. Some 32 heavy piles have been driven around the abutments and as supports to the center. The work is pronounced complete by competent judges, and the structure considered safe from the effects of the high water likely to come during the Summer.

PIONEER BREWERY.—Elsewhere will be found Joe Fernbach's new advertisement. His establishment is most frequented by our townspeople, and visitors should not fail to pay the concern a visit of inspection, as well as to sample his brew.

DEXTER SALOON.—Von Briesen & Co., Lone Pine, call attention to their saloon and restaurant business. They run a popular establishment, and are deserving of public patronage.

The Gold Mines of Beveridge Mining District.

The recent discovery of rich auriferous quartz veins on the east slope of the Inyo range has already begun to attract prospectors and capitalists to the new El Dorado. The increasing interest manifested in this class of mines has induced us to make a careful inspection of the mines and prospects in this District.

The Beveridge Mining District is nearly due east from the Eclipse mine, and extends from the summit of the Inyos on the west to Saline Valley on the east. The route by which the mines are at present reached is by the stage road to Cerro Gordo, thence by an easy mountain trail, following the summit of the range, twelve miles northward to the head of Big Horn cañon, down which we descend some two miles to the Big Horn spring, situa- in close proximity to the mines. From Cerro Gordo northward ten miles the summit of the mountain is made up of paleozoic slates, limestones, sandstones and shales, with an occasional cropping out of dykes of syenite, diorite, hornblende-schist and other eruptive rocks. Arrived at the New York Butte, ten miles from Cerro Gordo, the sedimentary rocks on the summit of the range give way to paleozoic gneiss and granite frequently intersected with dykes of diorite, diabase-porphyry and hornblendic schists. Then again, dark-colored metamorphic quartzite slates cap some of the secondary ridges, while in the intervening cañons the eruptive rocks form the greater part of the visible surface. We have now arrived at the head of Big Horn cañon. Thence descending for half a mile over white, metamorphic crystalline limestone, alternating with dark colored lime slates, we come to the underlying granite, with its dykes of diorite, syenite and diabase, belonging to a later eruptive period. On the north slope of Big Horn cañon, extending down the side of one of the numerous "hog-backs" running from the summit of the range to Saline Valley, lies the mineralized zone. The mineral belt—so far as known at present—extends from east to west about two miles, and from north to south about one mile. On the north slope of Big Horn cañon the formation containing the mineral zone is made up of gneiss, granite, amphibolyte, syenite and diabase-porphyry, the mass of the mountain being composed of a mica-hornblendic granite. Cutting east and west through this mineral zone are several belts of mica hornblende-schist — apparently pseudo-morphous after granite—from 20 to 200 feet thick, in the middle of which are contained the auriferous quartz veins, from one foot to eight feet thick; striking east and west and dipping north 45 to 50°. These auriferous quartz veins are—to use a common expression—true fissure veins, and for the following reasons:

From the preceding statements it will be seen that the system of veins run parallel with the course of Big Horn cañon. Hence the gulches that intersect Big Horn cañon must also cut the vein system. An examination of the veins in these gulches shows them to be equally rich in auriferous quartz as they are on the alternate ridges. Hence we would infer that the gold suffers no diminution in quantity as depth is attained.

In ascending the trail from Big Horn spring to the mines, the first claim encountered is the Red Warrior, situated near the middle of the Champion lode. The discovery shaft, sunk on the dip of the vein to the depth of ten feet below the so-called water level, exhibits in the bottom a fine body of high grade ore, averaging $160 per ton. At other places on the croppings of this claim fine free gold specimens have been obtained. Adjoining the Red Warrior on the east lies the Golden Thread claim, so-called because of the fine specimens of nature's filagree handiwork found here, consisting of wire and and leaf gold, intermixed with the quartz. Average samples from several tons of ore on the dump gave $150 per ton. East of the Golden Thread lie the Robles and Eureka claims, not yet developed to any considerable depth, but prospecting well on the surface. Adjoining the Red Warrior on the west are the Borago Broncho and Franklin claims, two of the richest claims in the district; 150 tons of ore extracted and in sight give over $200 per ton. On the Borago Broncho there are three fine ore chimneys extending from 75 to 100 feet in length. The Golden Horn, Alta, Snow Flake and San Antonio each carry one or more ore chimneys of $100 rock.

The gold occurs in the quartz in wires, scales and plates, and are throughout associated with auriferous ochre, pyrites, chalcopyrites and galena, the pyrites largely exceeding in quantity all others. The enclosing schist is soft, and easily removed in mining, thereby easily showing up large bodies of ore with comparatively little labor.

In considering the ancient geological formation of the mineral zone, the regularity and strength of the grand system of parallel auriferous quartz veins, the extensive ore chimneys exposed on the surface, the presence of so many eruptive dykes through an eruptive rock, we are confident that these mines will continue to an indefinite distance in depth, and also that gold will continue to increase in quantity as depth is attained.

The discoverers and owners of this property, Messrs. Porter, Hughes, Hunter and Brittain, may consider themselves fortunate in possessing the richest and most extensive mining property yet developed in Inyo county.

Two Italians have been held at Vacaville to await the action of the Grand Jury, on a charge of murdering Christian Weinmiller.

That Mountain Business Again.

MESSRS. EDITORS—In a former issue of your paper, signed by "Mountaineer," I found an article entitled "High Mountains." Which after careful perusal appears to me to be too lavish in hints and flowery literature, and too deficient in facts and information to be accepted by the public unconditionally. "Mountaineer" can do much toward satisfying some of your readers by first assuring them that in informing them of a new monument discovered higher than Mount Whitney he did not allude to the obelisk erected in honor of Wm. R. Johnson, by a party of fishermen.

The same careful perusal of his production referred to above, will convince any one that "Mountaineer" is himself the eminent geographical engineer to whom he refers as the discoverer of "that nameless, ice-chiseled, glacier-polished, storm-tinted monolith," which stands seventeen feet higher than Mount Whitney. The modesty which compels "Mountaineer" to allude to himself so indirectly, would also prevent him from following the established custom of the "world's map makers" in giving such a discovery a name. That eminent geographical engineer has left us in the dark regarding his name, the precise locality, the latitude, longitude and altitude of his nameless peak, and from what point he took his observations and under what circumstances. He, under his alias of "Mountaineer," assures us of a graphic description of the culminating groups of the Sierras, to appear in the May number of the Bulletin of the American Geographical Society. Would he add to this information where such a publication could be obtained? Harper's list of newspapers, periodicals, etc., published in the United States, gives no account of any such publication.

"Mountaineer" leaves Lieutenant Wheeler and the Coast Survey to quarrel over the respective altitudes of Mount St. Elias and Blanca Peak, (Colorado?), while he, the pet of fortune, discovers a greater mountain hight than either. Another mountaineer equally as capable as our worthy friend, may reduce the altitude of this nameless monolith below the hight of Mount Whitney much in the same way as by the stroke of his pen he made the Coast Survey reduce the altitude of Mount St. Elias below the altitude as found by Lieut. Wheeler. Enlightenment about Blanca Peak is also wanted.

Mount Whitney stands in the highest rank of lofty peaks, and before we allow any other mountain substituted in its place we should see that full justice is done to the snow-capped monster that has been Inyo's pride for fourteen years. CERRO GORDO.

OUR LONE PINE LETTER.

LONE PINE, May 16.

MESSRS. EDITORS—I called attention in my last letter to the entertainment of our Dramatic Society, to be given on the 4th instant, and advised the Independence people, if they wished to pass a pleasant evening, to come down. I was glad to see a few put in an appearance. Frank Eames, as "Michael Erle," acted his part extraordinarily well, as also Eddy Eames and Miss Mamie Ball. It is needless to add that Prof. and Mrs. Cooper ably acquitted themselves. While the first piece was being played quite an excitement was raised by an alarm of fire, and the audience started for the door, but some one crying out that it was "in the play" soon quieted the nervous ones, and order was restored. The "Maniac" behind the scenes had got too close to a candle and set his wig on fire, which caused the alarm. On the 18th the Society give another entertainment, when we hope to see more outside people attend, as the programme is really good.

There is some anxiety felt here about that surveying party. No word of any kind has been received since they left, and it is feared they are lost.

I wonder if there is any truth in the report that the toll road leading into Darwin was offered to Wm. Jenkins, of Winters' Station, a little while back for $500, and he refused to give the price asked, as it was not worth a cent? If that report is true, I am afraid that the owners will lose money if the county only pays $6,000 for it.

I will close this letter by simply expressing my admiration for the tact, executive ability and adroitness displayed by Supervisor Meysan in getting his favorites appointed, and how easily he gets away with the up country members of the Board, and candidly admit for the first time that he is too much for BUSTER.

APPOINTED.—The late appointment by the Board of Supervisors of Justice of the Peace as Lone Pine, to fill unexpired term, seems to have been a bit of sharp practice on the part of somebody, when W. H. Nosler was selected to succeed himself. Two petitions were on file, the one for Mr. Nosler having two names less than the one for Mr. G. H. Palmer, it being stated that the one in favor of the latter comprised a majority of tax-payers. We, of course, express no opinion as to which of the gentlemen is the best qualified, but it appears that two of the Hon. Board didn't know of the second petition, and when the first—that of Mr. Nosler—came up, it was acted upon and when in time the other came to light it could not be complied with as there was no vacancy. We think a reconsideration should have been had and the two petitions acted upon together.

THE first of the new silver certificates, amounting to $2,000,000, in denominations of $500 each, have been sent to the Assistant Treasurer in New York.

FIELD, the Associate Justice is becoming very conspicuous in arranging plans for investigating the Florida frauds.

Fish Slough.

BISHOP CREEK, May 16.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Ever and anon in this our earthly pilgrimage our cup of happiness is treated with Gospel measure. We forget for awhile life, its troubles and disappointments, and drink unalloyed pleasure from the fountain of contentment. It was thus with buoyant spirits and genial company on last Sunday morning I pursued the even tenor of my way toward Fish Slough. The morning was bright and the air bracing, being burdened with the aromatic odors of Spring. The mountains, with their ever panoramic views, presented new scenes to please the eye. Arriving at the well known stand, we found that "Belgium's capital" had not gathered there, but the ever genial and whole-souled Burroughs and his partner, Mr. Miller, welcomed us with a cordiality that lightened the heart and sharpened the appetite. Mr. B. conducted us around the premises, a very attractive feature of which is their well arranged fish pond, stocked with beautiful mountain trout. These shy, graceful creatures seem to know his voice, and come forth from beneath the shadowy water-cress at his bidding and nibble the food they daily receive. Returning to the house with sharpened appetites, Mr. M. served up a dinner to us that would do credit to any of our most accomplished housewlves. Fresh fish and other luxuries of the season, savored with the cordiality of our hosts, carried us back to other days when we broke bread beneath our own vine and fig tree in a distant land. And when homeward bound in the coming twilight we said long live Messrs. Burroughs and Miller, may fortune guide them in green pastures and by still waters. AMICUS.

It is now estimated that there will be 250,000 head of cattle driven from Texas to Kansas this season.

Party Tickets.

Independent candidates will have a slim chance to "ring in" on regular party tickets hereafter. The bill which Swift introduced and which became a law makes it extremely hazardous to fool with regular tickets. Following is the law:

SECTION 1. It shall hereafter be lawful for the State Central or other managing committees of any political party having a State organization, and for the city and county or other managing committee of any municipal or local party, before each election in this State, to prepare and adopt by engraving and otherwise, a ticket vignette, or heading with an appropriate inscription, to be printed at the top of the ticket of the party, or on the inside thereof, as a distinctive and characteristic heading thereto. Such vignette shall not be more than two inches high by four and a half wide, and in addition to the device adopted shall be set forth legibly the fact that the ticket is the regular ticket of the party, with the name thereof. It shall also show the district, ward or precinct where such ticket may be lawfully voted. Said vignette and inscription shall stand at the head of the ticket, on the inside thereof, and to be followed within a space not to exceed one half of an inch by the word "For" on the first line thereof, and the names of candidates and offices shall then be printed below in the order and manner provided for in section 1191 of the Political Code. The length of the ticket to be used at elections in this State shall—in case the length of the tickets now allowed by law shall be insufficient to permit of the printing of such vignette or heading and have sufficient heading at the top and bottom, and not otherwise—be increased two inches in addition to the length prescribed by section 1191 of the Political Code, in order to allow space for said vignette and inscription.

SEC. 2. When such vignette and inscription have been adopted and prepared an impression of the same, followed by the regular ticket of such party, printed so as to constitute a lawful election ballot, and sealed up in an envelope, may be filed with the County Clerk of the county at any time before the opening of the polls on election day. Such ballot shall be kept by the said Clerk on deposit, and from the time of said filing it shall be unlawful for any person to imitate, copy or in any manner counterfeit the same. Any person violating the foregoing provisions shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction, punished accordingly.

SEC. 3. Any person who shall knowingly print, circulate or distribute any ticket, tickets, ballot, or voting paper, having therein or thereon, the vignette or any imitation of the vignette or inscription, or any ballot or ticket so filed with the County Clerk, but containing the name or names of any candidate or candidates, other or different from the name or names, candidate or candidates, upon the ballot or ticket of such party, so filed or deposited with said Clerk, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction punished accordingly; provided that nothing in this act shall be construed to interfere with the right of any elector to erase or insert any name or proposition upon said ticket if done in writing.

SEC. 4. Hereafter all tickets, in addition to the matter provided for in section 1191 of the Political Code, and immediately above the word "For," as specified in said section, shall show the name or number of the district, ward or precinct where the same is to be used, and if such name and number is not contained in the vignette [as it must be done if one is used] the same shall be printed in capital letters, so as to take up not more than two inches of space, which in all cases shall be added to the length of the ticket as established by said section of the Political Code; provided, that the provisions of this section shall not be compulsory except in the city and county of San Francisco.

POTATO AND ONION SOUP.—Put four medium sized peeled potatoes in some cold water with a little salt, and boil them until well done and mealy, then drain and mash them smooth, and add gradually a quart of scalding milk. Strain it through a colander to remove all the lumps. While the potatoes are cooking, put a small tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan, and when melted put in three or four sliced onions, and stir them until they are quite brown, then draw them to one side and put in half a teacupful of flour, and stir and mash it until it begins to brown, when the onions may be mixed with it, and when the flour is of the same color add by degress the milk and potato; season to taste with pepper and salt, and let it simmer for 15 minutes, watching carefully that it does not burn. Serve hot with dry bread cut in dice and fried in boiling lard (croutons), and a little chopped parsley.

A DOG WITH A LONG MEMORY.—Youatt says that Newfoundland dogs are often remarkable for their long memory, and, as an instance, mentioned that one recognized him after a lapse of five years and left his new master to follow him. Mr. Jesse also furnishes another instance which occurred at the village of Cumberland. A man in passing struck a sleeping Newfoundland a blow with a whip. The animal pursued him for some distance, and, although he was unable to get his revenge, he did not forget the indignity, for twelve months afterward he recognized his assailant of the previous year and savagely attacked him.

There is a rumor that Irish Fenians will collect in great force at Buffalo, for a raid on Canada, in the event of a war between England and Russia.

The product of Hearst, Haggin & Co.'s Ontario mine in Utah for 15 months was $2,299,800. The mine is better now apparently than ever before.

GRAHAM BISCUIT. — Three cupfuls Graham flour, one cupful white flour, one teaspoonful soda, two of cream tartar; rub the soda and cream tartar into the flour, and sift altogether before they are wet; then add one salt spoonful of salt; next two teaspoonfuls of lard, rubbed into the prepared flour quickly and lightly; lastly, three cupfuls of sweet milk, containing one tablespoonful of white sugar. Work the dough rapidly, as handling too much injures the biscuit. The dough should have a rough surface and the biscuit be flaky. Roll out lightly, cut into cakes about half an inch thick, and bake in a quick oven.

WATER-RISING BREAD.—Take a quart pitcher and a spoon, scald them, fill the pitcher half full of boiling water, cool to the temperature of good hot dishwater, stir in flour to make a batter, as flour pancakes, add a quarter teaspoonful of salt and as much soda, cover closely, and set where it will keep quite warm, stirring occasionally; it will rise in five or six hours. Some prefer this to hop or brewer's yeast.

FOR SMOOTH HANDS.—After washing and drying the hands, pour into one hand a few drops of good cider vinegar; rub the hands together, wetting the whole surface, both sides, and dry it. Practice this and your hands will feel smooth.

HAVING OBTAINED THE AGENCY OF THIS celebrated Soap for Lone Pine and vicinity, we append the opinion of some of our best people to its merits:

"I have used 'Dobbins' Electric Soap,' made by I. L. Cragin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and can most cheerfully recommend it as the best Laundry Soap in existence." MRS. F. P. BALL.

"Family washing is rendered both pleasant and agreeable by the use of 'Dobbins' Electric Soap.' Boiling the clothes is entirely unnecessary, and but very little rubbing is needed. It promises wonders, but it does all it promises." MRS. JNO. W. GASPER.

The Telephone.

Much is said and many descriptions given of the telephone, the phonograph and the ærophone in the periodicals of the day, but one of, perhaps the most simple forms and uses of the telephone seems to have escaped notice. The form operated through the assistance of the magnetic battery, in consequence of the perhaps unlimited distance over which it may be operated, as well as its general adaptability to nearly all circumstances is, and probably will be of most general use. Still it has the serious fault of indistinct articulation, of unnatural, metallic and resonant sound of the voice, and requisition of skilled workmanship in its construction. The same fault in sound applies to the simpler form without a battery, as commonly described, viz., with common tin fruit cans for cups or drums.

A lengthy series of experiments with a variety of drums and lines or conductors has entirely removed these objections; and the articulation and every inflection of the voice delivered (and recognized, if of an acquaintance) all as distinctly as if in immediate presence.

A neighbor, Mr. Thomas, and myself have experimented on a line of 270 feet, with tin cans, using the can bottom, paper, parchment and bladder for drums. Then with pasteboard and wooden boxes of various size, with varied material for drums; also on iron and copper wire, silk, linen and cotton cord, and thread for conductors. And from all we have the most satisfactory results from the common wooden collar or cuff boxes found in most of our dry-goods and variety stores, of three to four inches in diameter and about four inches depth, with a bladder drum tensely drawn over the end. This is both tough and sensitive to the vibration. For lines or conductors we use the common patent linen thread drawn through the center of each drum, knotted and pasted down solid.

Or a better attachment is made by cutting two or three pieces of bladder about the size of a nickel, and pasting over the centre of the drum inside the box; then put the thread through, knot and then paste another piece over the knot. This gives strength and solidity. Larger threads or cords are less liable to break, but will not yield to each minute inflection of the voice. They are also subject to greater expansion and contraction from wet and dry weather.

The line on which we have experimented connects with our separate residences, ninety yards apart, passing through small holes in the window sash.

Under favorable conditions of still, light, dry atmosphere, every word and peculiarity is as distinct as when face to face. Even whispered words are distinctly audible. Nor is it necessary, as with lines worked with a battery, to have the voice or ear in close contact with the drum.

The vibrations become more distinct at distances of from six to fifteen feet from the drums.

Conversation has been held on it with both speaker and hearer eighteen feet from the drums.

Wet or windy weather interferes more or less with the vibrations. Another line of like construction at Kansas City of 1,000 feet in length works nearly as distinctly as ours. How much farther it might be extended with success I know not.—A. L. Child, in Inter-Ocean.

THE New York World says that as the body Wm. M. Tweed was borne through the crowd at the funeral, there was a general murmur of grief, and several persons who had probably known the dead shed tears. There was one striking figure—that of an aged negro, with grizzly wool and beard as white as snow, leaning against a tree and weeping like a child. His name is Wm. Dove, and he was in the service of Mr. Tweed's father, of Richard M., and, indeed had been in the employment of every member of the family. The old man's grief was eloquent, and won the respect of the somewhat rough crowd by which he was surrounded.

For Mothers.

One night not long ago a young girl in a haunt of vice in Philadelphia, accidentally, while at supper put her foot on a parlor match, which set fire to her clothing. Another girl, who ran to her rescue, shared her fate; their dresses were of thin material and blazed over their heads while they fled shrieking to the street, and there burned slowly to death. The men, their companions, stood by and offered no help. The significant part of this horrible story is that both women were young, attractive, of good birth and social position, both educated (one a graduate of Vassar College); both had left homes of comfort and ease, husbands and children voluntarily, to take up this mode of life, which in their case could boast of no attractive gilding. The house in which they met their terrible fate was one of the lowest of its class; the men whom they chose as friends belonged to a wretched negro minstrel show—degraded, cowardly brutes, who stood off in safety watching them die.

The most frightful fact in our social life faces us in this story. It is that there are women in the lowest deep who are not driven there by want or cruelty, nor led there by a betrayed affection; women who have been gently reared, educated, beloved, whose natures are so tainted that they choose to go out, like the prodigal of old, from the home God gave them to feed with the swine. How many such are hidden in these dens God only knows; how many remain in their original position the records of our divorce courts, the foul gossip with which so-called fashionable society reeks, not only in this country but England, gives us an appalling hint. It is useless to ignore this fact. Neither the pulpit or the press, if it means to help at all in the work of bettering our social life, ought to ignore the fact that a certain portion of American and English society is rapidly becoming as licentious as that of Paris.

Who is to blame for it? Not human nature. Women and men are born as pure as they were a generation ago. Not Christ's religion. His hand is as strong to save the Magdalen in the streets of New York as Jerusalem. It is the mothers who are to blame. Mothers in fashionable society in the cities, and in that society which feebly apes the fashion in towns and villages from Maine to Oregon, who set before their daughters, from their birth, dress and show and style as the sole gods they are to follow. We venture to say that "style," that most vulgar of words and things, has done as much to corrupt the women of America as liquor has. Not only was it the cause of our financial downfall, but modesty, honesty and decency are sacrificed to it. Fashion now publishes even the rules for "first communion dresses," and sets forth the pipings coiffure in which an innocent girl may properly approach her God. There is nothing so holy that is not made subservient to it. It is not the wealthy mother alone who vitiates her child's mind by this worship of folly, but the mechanic's wife, the poor seamstress, whose aim is to push "her daughter on in society," to give her stylish dresses instead of a modest heart, a clean mind and a God-fearing soul. The moral training which such mothers neglect is supplied by hot-pressed, sensational, juvenile literature, and the reports of foul scandals in the daily newspapers. Listen to the precocious gossip of the flaunting over-dressed schoolgirls who parade the streets on a holiday, and the tragedy in Philadelphia will not seem a strange sequel to such training.

It is but to a certain portion of our society that these truths apply, and that the smallest. The great obscure mass of American women are honorable, chaste and modest. In the majority of our homes there are common-sense and piety enough to give tawdry display its proper place in life, and to curb and direct the appetites which God has given to men and women. It rests with mothers to make that majority larger or smaller.—N. Y. Tribune.

SPANISH bull-fighters find their profession, though dangerous, very lucrative. The favorite of Madrid, Frascuelo, possess a fortune of $400,000, a magnificent house and wife who is the prettiest woman in the city. He is also a member of the most aristocratic club in Madrid. He took part in the late bull-fight before the King and Queen, on which occasion his costume was covered with diamonds.

WHEN a devoted wife holds her husband out at arm's length by his sore ear, and says she wouldn't crush a worm, he realizes, all at once, how fearfully and wonderfully women are made.

A FLORIDA negro mistook a mule for a ghost, and poked it with a stick. The verdict recited that he came to his death by using too short a stick in probing the unknowable for a future existence.

"WHAT was the sermon about this morning?" asked a mother of her son. "Well," was the reply, "it was about—let me see—it was about twenty minutes too long; that's all I remember."

EDISON says that his phonographs will cost about $100 apiece. This will enable poor families to keep a phonograph, but they will have to dispense with a couple of dogs.

A POPULAR clergyman recently gave a lecture on "Fools." The tickets of admission were inscribed: "Lecture on Fools. Admit one." There was a large audience.

IN Boston they scorn to call it a "dog show." Instead of this they say "canine convention."

Compared Notes.

Times must be harder than we suppose on the Base range, if there be any foundation for the following from the Eureka Sentinel:

A new arrival from Tuscarora met an old companion on Main street yesterday, and the two compared notes as to experiences and prospects. "I tell you," said the immigrant, "times were awfully tough when I left Tuscarora. Pledge you my word that it took mighty hard rustling to make a living for the last month or so. The saloon keepers froze out to free lunches, and if you ask a man for a half he wanted to know if you thought he was the owner of the Grand Prize and had just got his dividends. I did manage by hard work to get a meal once a day; but that was not enough substance for a young growing fellow like me, and so I put out for Eureka."

"You left a place where you could get one square meal a day, did you?" asked his friend; "well, let me give you a little advice: Just you commence to count the ties back to that paradise. I am considered as good a sparrer as there is in this town, and you have been indulging in riotous living compared to me. Let me see," reflectively, "Sunday, I had a bean and a dash of pepper sauce; Monday, one of the boys played lucky, found a place where some hens roosted and we coaxed two or three up into his cabin. That was a royal feast that night—only needed some bread to have equalled one of Delmonico's spreads. Tuesday, Jim and me knocked down a squaw, and took some old grub away from her that she had begged out of a kitchen; that was good, but not quite enough to fill up on; and to-day I have been chewing on a pork rind that I found out in front of Bismark's. Oh, yes, they do have free lunches here, but they keep a bouncer in the house, and it sharpens up a man's appetite too much to be chucked down stairs every time he reaches out for a piece of cheese or a bit of cracker. A man will leave a square meal a day to come to Eureka! Well, pard, you are the derndest fool I ever laid these blessed eyes on." Then he took up another hole in his belt, looked seriously at the plump condition of his acquaintance, the cannabalistic expression of his face indicating a mental calculation as to the savory meal he could make out of him, and the two disappeared up the hill. They must have taken sweet counsel together, for the next morning they were seen heading down the cañon, bound for that locality where one square feed a day was procurable.

ANOTHER PASTE RECIPE.—One tablespoonful flour, half teaspoonful alum, and a small piece of tallow. Mix with blue water, and (very important) cook well. While cooking, thin with cold water. When done, it should be quite thin, as thick paste will cause the leaves of the scrap-book to blister and look rough.

A YOUNG lady was undecided whether to accept the addresses of James or John. James gave her a sealskin sacque and she immediately gave the sack to John.

THE FOURTH DISTRICT CONVENTION. We shall await results of the proceedings of this body with considerable interest, now that the First and Second have done so well in character of candidates named; but as the meeting does not take place until next Thursday, the 30th, we will hardly be able to publish the names of the nominees before the week following. As the district is composed of fourteen counties, and but eight candidates to be named, it is of course, a matter of proportionate uncertainty whether one of the eight can be selected from Inyo or Mono, more especially as there are very many able men throughout the district to choose from. Considerations of ability and availability may tend more to determine the choice than a mere question of locality, since these are to be delegates at large, to represent and frame a Constitution for the whole State, not to legislate for individual counties. But should the selection hinge on the question of ability, Inyo will not take the second place withany of the fourteen should the names of either Mr. Bennett or Mr. Belshaw, as suggested by us last week, be presented. We do not know that either would accept under any circumstances, but if either should, no matter which, he will get the vote of the county with which both have been identified from long before the date of its organization down to the present, and in which both are recognized as men of honor and ability.

A STRONG DELEGATION.—From the nominations made for Constitutional Delegates at Large made by the Republicans and Democrats jointly for the San Francisco, or First District, it will be seen some of the heaviest guns in the State are likely to make a report in that Convention. Here are the names: M. M. Estee, W. H. L. Barnes, Joseph W. Winans and John F. Miller, Republicans, and Eugene Casserly, Joseph P. Hoge, John S. Hager and S. M. Williams, Democrats. It may interest a certain class of people referred to elsewhere to know that all of these, with one possible exception, are lawyers. It should also be borne in mind that the thirty-two delegates at large, though nominated by Congressional districts, eight for each, are to be voted for together throughout the State.

THE railroad grab of 230,500 acres of land in Tulare and Fresno counties, covering the homes of many of the settlers, has provoked from tne "Settlers' Grand League" a righteous pronunciamento "That all men are warned againt purchasing any of the lands that are occupied by actual settlers, as no man can peaceably occupy them or any portion of them to their exclusion until their case is finally adjudicated by the U. S. Supreme Court." If ever people have cause for fighting for their homes unto death, the settlers mentioned certainly have it in this matter.

FOR THE SECOND DISTRICT.—From the following nominations for Delegates for the Constitutional Convention made by the joint convention of Democrats and Republicans of the Second (Sacramento) Congressional District, it will be seen that the list of candidates will fairly equal in point of talent that for the San Francisco (First) District given elsewhere: H. H. Haight, Hugh M. Larue, J. B. Hall and Rufus Shoemaker, Democrats, and Henry Edgerton, Walter Van Dyke, J. E. Haile and J. M. Porter, Republicans.

GEO. ANDERSON, M. P. for Glasgow, has gone into insolvency because of the numerous suits brought against him by the enraged shareholders in the Emma mine. Over 200 actions have been instituted, one for $5,000,000, the full price of the mine. Most of them have been brought on speculation by shareholders, to whom an enterprising London solicitor sent out circulars.

A COMMERCIAL telegram from New York says that the home trade is falling off with the advance of the season, but exports more than hold their own, the outward movement of products thus far during the year being the largest on record. Imports, on the other hand, show a heavy decline, being at the rate of about $200,000,000 per annum less than they were five years ago.

IT is believed the Jesuits and violent party have triumphed at the Vatican, which, it is said, has resolved on a policy of resistance, all negotiations with Prussia and the other powers having failed.

THE Aurora Herald states that diphtheria has again made its appearance in that locality, a child of Mr. Charles Adams having died from the disease last week.

HARD TO SATISFY.

The stale remark that "it's no use to try to please everybody," applies with unusual force in the matter of choice of men to re-model our State Constitution. But there are none who claim that partisanship, in the ordinary application of the term, has anything special to gain or lose in the consummation of that work at a time like the present when there is not even a vestige of a party issue to be touched upon in the wording of such an instrument: still, there is here and there a machine party man who growls because for once in his life his party leaders ask him to vote for some who are not of his particular school of politics. As a rule growlers of this stamp would cheerfully uphold the veriest imbecile and bummer, if such should by any means become his regular party nominee, rather than to risk his standing in his party by voting for a veritable Jackson or Webster upon an opposing ticket. Partisans of this sorry stamp constitute the tools with which the meanest demagogues do their dirty work.

It is a comfort to know that these growlers growl in vain this time all through this State. No doubt, though, they will vote consistently as near as may be by scratching from their ballots the names of all associate candidates not recognized as of their particular party.

Then come those who won't support men, no matter how well qualified in other respects, because they happen to be extensive land owners, of this or that profession or calling, or that they are successful and rich men, in fact.

It would be neither safe nor advisable in any respect to put it in the power of any given property interest exclusively to shape a new fundamental law for the State, although it is difficult to see how a general or constitutional law could be framed that all property interests would not be affected alike. Nevertheless, it has been done, and may be again, by authorizing a certain system of banking, insurance, etc., for instance, where gains by swindles overbalance all considerations of equal taxation. But it is curious to note that the very class of men or profession best able and most certain to guard against the admission of ambiguous or special clauses of any kind by which stautes of favoritism and in the interest of frauds may afterwards be built up, are the lawyers, against whose admittance as a predominating element in this Convention come the loudest objections. Yet if these objectors were delegated to select a committee to codify existing statutes they would surely name none but lawyers for the work. They would be so selected not alone because of their familiarity with the several statutes to be simplified in words and systematized in order of recurrence, but chiefly for the reason that the habits of their profession compel them to reject every sentence and word, as far as possible, that may be capable of more than one construction in subsequent application. Their habits of scrutiny in this respect give the best possible assurance that as makers of a fundamental law nothing of doubtful construction would be admitted, therefore the best assurance that nothing of evil could follow by reason of a cunningly worded clause.

Next, it is impossible for such a convention even if controlled wholly by the legal profession to shape its acts in the interest of that profession, since the interests of its members are as variable as those of their clients, and, in practice, the cause of retainer to-day may be adverse to that accepted for to-morrow. In this view, yet claiming no superiority for them on the score of integrity or natural talents over other professions as a class, no profession or interest could as safely be entrusted with the great duty in question as this of the law.

As individuals, too, other conditions being equal, a lawyer Constitution maker is more likely to do justice to his constituents, the people as a whole, than almost any other man, inasmuch, if a true and successful lawyer, his practice has induced the ruling habit of pleading his client's cause as his own cause, and, for the nonce and as long as the issue continues, of considering his client's adversaries his own enemies, and vice versa, client's friends mutual friends. Then, as that laudable spirit shapes his private practice, so must it, as a precisely analagous case, make him the most earnest advocate of the people, his clients', interests.

AN exchange says that in Florida gophers are a sort of a legal tender, the largest passing for fifty cents. A glutted market would be apt to reduce the price. In other words, if the people of Florida were to energetically go-pher for the gopher they would soon gopher less than fifty cents each.

THE new timber bill, which has been supported by Senators Booth and Sargent, has probably gone to the President for his approval. Under the bill 160 acres of timber land can be obtained for individual use at $2 50 an acre.

THE POTTER RESOLUTION.

After five days of hard work the Democrats finally secured a quorum and passed the Potter resolution, by which the Presidential fraud question is to be re-opened and investigated. As the Democrats persistently refused to admit an amendment that alleged frauds at that election in other States, particularly Oregon and Mississippi, might also be inquired into and exposed, the Republicans of the House refused to vote at all, hence the difficulty in getting a quorum. Immediately after the resolution was passed the Republicans issued an address to the people of the United States, reciting the circumstances and motives of the resolution, denouncing it as revolutionary and ill-advised to the last degree, saying its highest and only object was to make Democratic party capital for the Fall elections. The following from the leading New York papers shows the differences of opinion in relation to the matter:

The New York Times, of the 18th, commenting on the action of the House yesterday, says: The whole business of the investigation is the work of a handful of men, individually unimportant, but able to use the machinery of the caucus as to commit the party in spite of the better judgment of the majority of its members. The resolution does not express the mature result of a conference representing the party as a whole. It merely tells the purpose of a faction, of which Tilden is the guiding spirit, and its adoption by the party in Congress, and indicates how abjectly the members respond to the requirements of the unscrupulous men who hold the caucus screw. A circumstance that will, by and by, embarrass the investigators and frustrate the revolutionary part of their programme, is the gradual awakening of the business community to the reality of the peril with which it is threatened. The moment the contest assumes the form of an attempt to re-open the Presidential contest, and plunge the country into anarchy, public feeling will manifest itself in a way not pleasant to the knaves who now shout fraud.

The Tribune regards the movement as revolutionary, and says the Democratic resolution is not only indecent and knavish, but is an attempt to get up a new rebellion against lawful authority. In either aspect it could be resisted as a matter of right. In the latter it is a duty to resist it. Until the revolutionary intent is wholly defeated, Republicans ought to treat all compromises and adjustments that may be proposed precisely as the "peace at any price" Copperheads were treated when the first rebellion began.

The Herald says no intelligent man of either political party can long doubt that this whole batch of incendiary attempts are instigated by Tilden; he never did anything more characteristic of his still hunt methods. This astute and secretive plotter, who mistakes cunning for wisdom, is no doubt sincere in thinking that he has been defrauded of the office to which he was elected by the people, and he doubtless justifies to himself the underhand attempts he is making to shake the stability of the Government, imperil public tranquility and disturb the business of the country, but neither his aims nor his methods will be indorsed by the public sentiment of the country. If the Democratic party sets itself in array against the title of a President who has been regularly inaugurated, and who has completed nearly half of his term, the party will exhibit a truly remarkable case of political suicide. The indignant opposition of the country to an attempt to Mexicanize our institutions, will render the Democratic party as odious to public feeling and as contemptible in numbers as it was at the close of the civil war. This great blunder of the Democrats the Republicans are prompt to seize upon to their own advantage, as will be seen by the Republican address which is issued on the heels of the passage of the Democratic resolution. Against the cry of fraud they raise the cry of revolution.

The Sun has no editorial, but prints a figure-head with the word "fraud" on the forehead, and following title: "The portrait, as delineated by Mr. Charles F. Adams, of the man who yesterday saw a section of the day of judgment; a person who must forever carry on his brow the stamp of fraud, first triumphant in American history; no subsequent action can wash away the letters of that record. [Signed] Chas. Francis Adams.

The World regards the Republican address as unwise and wild, which tends to excite the very clamor and confusion which those who thus misrepresent the action of the Democratic majority pretend to deprecate. The World refers to the report of the Republican Congressional Committee in 1869, upon the alleged frauds in the State of New York, which report considered it of the highest importance that Congress should provide a remedy against further frauds, and asks if a remedy against this danger has since been found or provided. The World adds: All that Potter's resolution aims to accomplish is to carry out a measure which a Republican committee of Congress in 1869 truly pronounced to be of the highest importance. Is that measure of less importance now, when, as a majority of the people of this country believe, the absence of a proper remedy against this danger in Florida and Louisiana has actually resulted in the elevation of a candidate to the Presidency by votes fraudulently or illegally cast.

THE rainfall the present month has been at Shasta 95 inches, while at Bakersfield it has been but eight inches, the former being about the wettest and the latter the dryest locality in the State.

THE Supreme Court of Massachusetts has decided that a note given for a church subscription does not carry with it an obligation to pay, since it is given without consideration.

THE Modoc mine has commenced producing bullion, and from this on we look for great activity in the stock. The heaviest owners in the property think it will rival Eureka Con., and are sustaining their belief with fresh investments. We trust that the mines will yield handsome dividends, and fully justify the reports of the experts who have recently made brilliant reports on its prospects. We mention Modoc at this time because we believe that it is destined to attract much attention in the near future. Whether the stock is a buy or a sell is not for us to say. Our duty ends with giving the news from the mine, and suggesting that something is brewing in the stock. —Stock Report.

IN THE PROBATE COURT OF THE COUNTY of Inyo, State of California. In the matter of the Estate of Timothy D. Lewis, deceased. Order to show cause why Order of Sale of Real Estate should not be made. INYO INDEPENDENT.

SATURDAY, MAY 25.....1878.

A MAN KILLED AT LOOKOUT.—Tuesday last, in Darwin, some difficulty occurred between Frank Fitzgerald and John McGinness- That same evening, but in Lookout, McGinnis renewed the quarrel with Fitzgerald, and abused the latter so outrageously that he (Fitzgerald) finally drew his revolver and told McGinnis to do the same. McGinnis said he was not armed, whereupon Fitzgerald told him to go and "heel himself;" accordingly McGinnis went off, and soon after returned with his "gun" and began to blaze away at Fitzgerald—in other words, "came a shooting." Fitzgerald returned the fire, and with such effect that McGinnis fell with a shot through each arm and one through his lungs, from the effect of which he died within an hour, Fitzgerald escaping unhurt. We know nothing of the cause of the difficulty other than it is said that bad blood had existed between the two men for some time previously. It is also said that McGinnis was considered a dangerous man, and that in this he got no more than he deserved. He is the same individual who killed old George Hirsch some months since, but, in reverse of the present instance, popular opinion said he did just right. So it goes. We give reports as we hear them, knowing nothing personally of the parties or circumstances. P. S.—We have since learned that the cause of the difficulty was McGinnis' objection and strictures upon the part taken by Fitzgerald as Deputy Constable in the furnace difficulty in which Delehanty was killed the night before.

A LAUDABLE ENTEPRISE.—Mr. W. H. Huff intends to connect with his new barber shop a bathing establishment of elegant style and with all modern improvements for the comfort of bathers, provided he receives sufficient encouragement from our citizens. His means being rather limited, he proposes to issue and sell tickets in advance, redeemable on presentation, and we warrant their being honored as promptly as bank notes. We are glad to learn that several parties have already offered to purchase from 25 to 30 of his tickets, price, 75 cents for warm and 50 cents for cold baths, which, the expense for wood, etc., considered, is very reasonable, and we hope Mr. Huff will meet with liberal encouragement from young and old.

THE COUNTY JAIL.—With but one or two exceptions every general Grand Jury which has met since the completion of the present county buildings has recommended the Board of Supervisors to provide for the ventilation of the county sweat-box, known as the jail. And with remarkable uniformity the several Boards have ignored such recommendation. The thing at any season is a dark hole of Calcutta, but most especially vile in the hot Summer months. The mere matter of providing for the proper ventilation of the cells is a small thing, and it might be well to attend to it before some Court shall be compelled to release a prisoner on a writ of habeas corpus, on the ground of cruel and unusual punishment.

REWARD.—The reward offered by the citizens of Lone Pine for the arrest and conviction of the Mexican Hall incendiaries, as we learn from a copy of the original list, is as follows: C. & M. Cohn, $50; C. D. Begole, $25; A. B. Elder, $10: G. G. Burckhardt, $5; John Schulte, $10; V. Van Brieson & Co., $20; John Lubken, $25; C. Meysan, $25; E. Chabrie, $5; Jesus Carrasco, $5; Juan Meza, $25; L. Colleau, $10; P. G. Gelcich, $10; Mrs. Barry, $5; Kersting & Co., $5; J. G. Dodge, $15; Johnson Bros., $5; John Lucas, $10; Macarter & Edwards, $20; J. H. Dodge, $15; R. Diaz, 20; J. A. McKinzie, $5; Wm. L. Moore, Sheriff, $25.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.—The work of the present special session of the Board of Supervisors, which began yesterday, is pretty much comprised in the election proclamation given elsewhere. A report was received from the viewers or appraisers of the Darwin and Owens Lake Toll Road, estimating its value at $1,000, for which sum they state that an equally good road could be built between Winters' station and Darwin. The Board ordered that a warrant for such sum be proffered for the road.

COUNTY COURT.—Melcades Contreras, who was indicted by the late Grand Jury for assault with intent to kill, was found by the trial jury guilty of simple assault. Judge Hannah sentenced him to pay a fine of $90 or 90 days' imprisonment in the county jail. Thus it transpires that Contreras gets sent up for his villainous carelessness in missing his man, while in the District Court Andersen was honorably discharged because his man got killed. Bah!

SPRING GOODS. — J. F. Stoutenborough, at the Bishop Creek store, is now receiving the largest and most varied stock of Spring and all kinds of goods ever offered in that locality. In the matter of prices, go and see for yourself, and you'll be sure to make a dicker—Charles and Hiram are very plausible fellows, and will take much pains to make you see things in the proper light.

GOING.—Kemp, the photographer, started northward with his flying gallery yesterday. He will make a stop at Big Pine for a few days, and then goes on to Eureka, Nevada. We commend him to our friends at all points where he may put in an appearance, as a first-rate gentleman and a good artist.

FOR THE FOURTH.—Why not get up a big pic-nic for the coming Fourth of July, to be held at that most beautiful spot in the county, Camp Independence, and in the old company barracks have a theatrical entertainment and a grand ball?

Bad Work at Darwin.

It will be remembered that some months ago the New Coso Company at Darwin resolved upon the reduction of the wages of employés, and that upon attempting to put their plan into execution, the Workingmen's organization of that locality interfered and compelled the agent or superintendent of the company to leave the place immediately in fear of his life. In view of this condition of affairs, the company decided to allow their works to stand idle, and have done so up to within the last week or ten days, during which time another effort has been made to start up with wages reduced, as proposed before. This the organization referred to, it seems, had determined to resist at all hazards—in other words had resolved that the company should not employ anybody whomsoever except at standard rates, acceptable to the Workingmen or Miners Union, whichever title may be most correct.

Last Monday the furnaces were started up. Soon after the Superintendent was formally notified by the organization that the men then on duty could work out their shift, but the second shift would not be permitted to go to work, and that the furnace should be shut down or else the company be compelled to pay $4 per day instead of $3. At the request of the Superintendent or furnace manager, W. F. Welch, Deputy Sheriff, Frank Fitzgerald, Constable Sixth Township, Wm. Hogan and Oliver Roberts (the two latter deputized as Constables), went down to protect the furnace men. Welch returned to escort some men on the 11 o'clock P. M. shift to the furnaces, and when within about 80 or 100 yards he was confronted by Delehanty and Jas. McDonald, who arose from the ground within ten yards of them. Welch challenged by saying, "Who's there? speak quick," but neither answered. Delehanty continued to advance on Welch, when a shot was fired, presumably from Welch's party, but the evidence does not show positively who did fire, and Delehanty fell. In a moment a number of shots were fired by others scattered around, and also from men at the furnaces. No one else was hurt so far as has been ascertained, though it is reported that one or two are missing. Delehanty was brought up to Reddy & Wilson's saloon where he died in about an hour. There were seven holes in his left groin and one in his abdomen, to the left of the navel—probably caused by buckshot. An inquest was held by Coroner Lank on Tuesday, the details of which we may expect to appear in Saturday's News. The verdict was, in brief, that Delehanty came to his death by gunshot wounds inflicted by parties to the jury unknown. Several knock downs growing out of this affair occurred later in the day, and several pistols were drawn, but outside of a few black eyes nothing serious occurred.

To the foregoing our correspondent adds: "People here are determined to stand by law and order. Delehanty, the deceased, was a promising young man, an engineer and machinist; has a brother who was reporter on the Mail, San Francisco. Was not an agitator, but was influenced by bad men and worse whisky. Had promised up to 5 o'clock that evening that he would have nothing to do with it—the strike or mob or whatever you please to call it."

We have reason to think that the inquest will elicit nothing of importance not in substance above. We may add that Deputy Sheriff Welch, who it is reasonable to suppose did more than simply challenge, and Delehanty were friends and associates previous to this sad occurrence, and that the Deputy Sheriff's party did not recognize either of the men as they advanced upon them in the darkness. It is clear that the posse did nothing more than what duty and force of circumstances compelled them to do. The furnaces continue to run night and day, and no further trouble is anticipated.

SOCIABLE.—A very pleasant little party met at Mairs' Hall on Monday evening last, at the behest of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Eibeshutz, in honor of some anniversary or other of Mrs. A. W.'s birthday—of course, we didn't learn which particular one. However, the dance was well enjoyed, and the lunch at the French Restaurant duly discussed by the goodly company present.

PICTURES.—In acknowledging the receipt of nearly a dozen fine photographic views, showing pretty much all there is of the picturesque locality of Lookout, from our old friend Addis, we hardly know the way to tell how perfect specimens of the photographic art they are. Addis is a most excellent manipulator of the camera in the matter of outdoor and mountain scenes.

PREACHING.—Rev. M. W. Pratt will, to-morrow evening, beginning at 8 o'clock, preach upon the subject of "the authenticity of the Bible"—a theme that should interest everyone.

MODOC BULLION.—The Modoc Consolidated shipped on the 8th bullion valued at $4,600; on the 9th, $8,181 53. Other shipments have been made, but we have not obtained the figure. They are much higher in value, as the bullion has been increased to nearly $500 per ton, and nearly ten tons per day are being turned out.—Coso News, May 18.

Various Little Matters.

Things always look very Pacific between California and the Sandwich Islands.

The "Warte" is the name of a new paper at Chicago. The editor should have corns to match.

There are eighteen rules to govern a man seated behind a runaway horse. Rule 1st—jump.

If a man will be economical he can make a trip to Paris and back for $100. This can include a six months' stay in France—in jail.

There is something sad about a harp, but whether it's the tone or the collection taken up by the player is what puzzles the philosophical mind.

A Paris hackman always promptly returns purses, jewelry, etc., left in his vehicle. P. S.—Every hackman in Paris is under the close watch of a policeman.

A silent man may be either a wise man or a fool. The man who talks and betrays the fact that he is a fool saves an investigation and is, therefore, the best man of the pair.

A Tennessee man has been sent two years to the Penitentiary for stealing a coon skin. If he had only come here and turned his attention to murdering people he would now be a free man and respected.

Suicides are more frequent in Springtime, but true inwardness comes only with the green apple season.

It has been discovered that the sun is about five hundred miles nearer the earth than has been supposed. Perhaps, after a while, the man who gets sun-struck will get a chance to strike back.

The Year Without a Summer.

An aged resident of Hartford remembers that the Winter of 1823–30 surpassed this in mildness; farmers plowed every month of the season, and no snow fell until February 2. The Winter was followed, however, by a cold, backward Spring, with a snow storm in May, which killed the returning swallows.

As an offset to the above story, one of the old residents of Derby tells us the year 1816 is what is known as the "year without a Summer." Old New England farmers refer to it as "eighteen hundred and starved-to-death." January was mild, as also was February except a few days. The greater part of March was cold and boisterous. April opened warm, but grew colder as it advanced, ending with snow and ice and winter-cold. In May ice formed half an inch thick, buds and flowers were frozen, and corn was killed. Frost, ice and snow were common in June. Almost every green thing was killed, and fruit was nearly destroyed. Snow fell to the depth of three inches in New York and Massachusetts, and ten inches in Maine. July was accompanied with frost and ice. On the 5th ice was formed in New York of the thickness of window glass, also in New England and parts of Pennsylvania, and corn was nearly all destroyed in certain sections. In August ice formed half an inch thick. Corn was so frozen that a great deal was cut down and dried for fodder. Very little ripened in New England and the Middle States. Farmers were obliged to pay $4 and $5 a bushel for corn of 1815 for seed for the next year's planting. The first two weeks of September were mild; the balance of the month was cold, with frost, and ice formed half an inch thick. October was more than usually cold, with frost and ice. November was cold and blustering, with snow enough for good sleighing. December was quite mild and comfortable.—Harper's Weekly.

THE AMERICAN TRADESMAN.—The ubiquitous American tradesman has already begun to improve the opportunity afforded by the opening of the Paris Exposition. Several Eastern papers have published long special dispatches from Paris concerning the rival varieties of cabinet organs, lead pencils, hog's lard and stove polish upon which the gaze of enraptured Europe is now concentrated. It is pleasant to observe that each one of the exhibits overtops all the others, even of its own class, so that there is no room for jealousy or dispute. One firm, according to the papers, has elicited the undisguised delight of the assembled princes and potentates by "the exhibit of their lard, which, for its uniformity and purity, has long been known throughout the world. They have erected a temple made of American wood. In the center a stuffed American pig stands surveying the situation with a corn cob in its mouth. Their lard is displayed in oak and white wood, of the highest polish and exceedingly beautiful, rivaling their lard for beauty and satin polish. A daily bulletin of hog products from America is shown for the use of dealers in the trade."

MUCILAGE.—This is generally made of water and gum arabic. An excellent mucilage can also be made with one tablespoonful of common dry starch boiled in a teacupful of water.

THERE are 8,064 distinct languages and yet the man who smashes his nose on the edge of the door, in the dark, finds difficulty in expressing himself.

WHEN Juliet said "Oh, swear not by the moon, the inconstant moon," she was under the impression that Romeo was president of a gas company.

WEAK EYES.—A very simple remedy for weak eyes is recommended, as follows: Get a five-cent cake of elder flowers at the druggist's, and steep in one gill of soft water—it must be steeped in bright tin or earthenware; strain nicely, and then add three drops laudanum; bottle, and keep in a cool place; use it as a wash, letting some of it get in the eyes. Follow this, and relief is certain. If the eyes are painful or much sore, make small compresses, wet in the mixture, and bind over the eyes at night. I can warrant the above as harmless and sure, having tried it a number of times in cases where other skill and remedies had utterly failed. If the eyes are badly inflamed use it very freely; and a tea made of elder flowers, and drank, would help cleanse the blood. Pure rock salt and water will strengthen your eyes if you bathe them daily in it. I would earnestly advise you to avoid mixtures or washes containing mineral or other poisons. —"Doctor."

"Electric Soap."

HAVING OBTAINED THE AGENCY OF THIS celebrated Soap for Lone Pine and vicinity, we append the opinion of some of our best people to its merits:

"I have used 'Dobbins' Electric Soap,' made by I. L. Cragin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and can most cheerfully recommend it as the best Laundry Soap in existence." Mrs. F. P. BALL.

"Family washing is rendered both pleasant and agreeable by the use of 'Dobbins' Electric Soap.' Boiling the clothes is entirely unnecessary, and but very little rubbing is needed. It promises wonders, but it does all it promises." Mrs. JNO. W. GASPER.

We desire all our friends and customers to give this Soap one trial, so that they may know just how good the best soap in the United States is.
